Greater Use For Words.

Old Time Lexicographers Would Marvel At Increased Demand.

When will the demand equal the supply? The supply of words always has been greater than the demand for ordinary usage, but of late the demand has been increasing rapidly—which is good news for the lexicographers who like to have their products put to use.

The late William M. Laffan of the New York Sun once said that he delighted in driving his readers to the dictionary. He believed that looking up words was a good habit. But even then there was less use for words, and consequently less use for dictionaries, than at the present time.

The more extended use of words calls for greater use of the dictionary—and the one dictionary that everybody should have is the New Universities Dictionary. If the great lexicographers of the past could know of the demands for this new volume, they would surely marvel at it.

The coupon printed on another page of this issue shows how you can come into immediate possession of one of these useful volumes.

"70" WILLYS-KNIGHT SIX

This is but One of Many Willys-Knight Points of Preference

THE great popularity which the "70" Willys-Knight Six has achieved since its introduction just fourteen months ago is based upon a group of exclusive engineering features found in no other car of its type or class.

Flashing acceleration! The new "70" Willys-Knight Six is the liveliest car of its class ever built—it accelerates from 5 to 40 miles an hour in 14½ seconds . . . a new record for activity. It has the only motor-car engine in the world that actually improves with use. You never know what carbon trouble is—and there are no valves to grind.

The "70" Willys-Knight Six is notably light on oil. The Willys-Knight Oil Rectifier minimizes the quantity of oil consumed because it effectively prevents oil dilution. It is equipped with 4-wheel brakes. Its low-swung chassis fairly hugs the ground. Its narrow clear-vision corner posts is another safety factor.

And now Beiflex Shackles provide still another exclusive Willys-Knight "Point of Preference". A noiseless, flexible material—shock absorbing, rubberized—Beiflex guards against all chassis rattles and squeaks. It deadens road vibration, affords permanent chassis silence, and diminishes wear at every point of the car.

Examine the "70" Willys-Knight Six—you'll delight in the beauty of it. Ride in it—you'll thrill to the comfort and roominess of it. Drive it—feel its responsiveness, its liveliness, the amazing power of it.

"70" Willys-Knight Six prices from $1,625 to $1,945; Willys-Knight Great Six, from $2,575 to $3,050; f.o.b. factory, Toronto. Taxes extra.

"SPIRITUAL DISCERNMENT"

Saturday

"We Should Live by the Light We Have"

SCRIPTURE: Read — Matthew 25:14-30.

"If ye know these things, blessed are ye if ye do them" (Jn. 13:17).

"But be ye doers of the word, and not hearers only, deluding your own selves" (Jas. 1:22). "Blessed are they that hear the word of God, and keep it" (Lk. 11:28).

See—John 20:29; II Timothy 1: 12.

MEDITATION: Consider the spiritual truths of which we are sure. Love is better than hate; unselfishness than selfishness; friendship than treachery; goodness than meanness; self-control than license, etc., etc. Our conscience insists on the love of the better. To live by the light we have is to obey that spiritual voice. How far-ranging this is! It calls for the actual application of known truths to personal life, to business, to politics, to social questions, to international relations—a large order! For it power is available through prayer.

"Inspire me with that love of love which implies the scorn of scorn and the hate of hate."

HYMN:

O Master, let me walk with thee

In lowly paths of service free,
Tell me thy secret, help me bear
The strain of toil, the fret of care.

Teach me thy patience; still with thee
In closer, dearer company,
In work that keeps faith sweet and strong,
In trust that triumphs over wrong,

In hope that sends a shining ray,
Far down the future's broadening way,—
In peace that only thou canst give,—
With thee, O Master, let me live.
—Washington Gladden, 1879.

PRAYER: Pray for—power to weigh things spiritually; personal safety; seamen; the wayward.

Collect—Heavenly Father, whose tender mercies compel our love, we thank Thee for the gift of Christ our Saviour. In Him our shortcomings are filled up; our sicknesses of soul are healed; our rebellions of spirit are quelled. For salvation full and free we bless Thee. In the presence of Thy outpouring of love our selfishness stands revealed. Breathe into us of Thy spirit that we may be strong to forsake sin to overcome temptation and to live in the light which Christ supplies. O our Father, grant us to know something of Thy passion of love. Help us to proclaim the gospel of all mankind. Record our pledge before Thee that we will exalt the things of the spirit. Amen.

Uncle Wiggily

To-day's Bedtime Story.

By Howard R. Garis

UNCLE WIGGILY AND THE CHALK DUST

Copyright, 1927, by McClure Newspaper Syndicate.

(By Howard R. Garis)

Once upon a time, as Uncle Wiggily was hopping through the woods, he reached the Hollow Stump School just as the Lady Mouse Teacher was dismissing the boy and girl animals for the day.

With barks of joy Jackie and Peetie Bow wow, the puppy dog boys, rushed out of school. They were followed by Joie and Tommie Kat, who were mewing their delight, and Johnnie and Billie Bushy tail, the squirrels, chattered:

"Now we are free! Hurray! Hurrah! Hurree!"

"I suppos," said Uncle Wiggily to the Lady Mouse Teacher, who stood in the doorway of the school, watching the pupils rush out, "I suppose they are so happy because there will be school for them tomorrow; aren't they?"

"Oh, no," squeaked Miss Mouse. "I should say they are so happy because there is no more school today." With that she started to creep back into the class room.

"Where are you going?" asked Uncle Wiggily. "Isn't school out?

"Oh, no," squeaked Miss Mouse.

Why don't you go home. Come, I'll walk with you."

"I wish I could, but I can't," answered Miss Mouse. "School is out for the boys and girls, that is true. But it isn't out for me. The teacher must always stay after school, you know."

"Not for being bad, I hope?" asked the bunny with a twinkle of his pink nose. "Not for being bad!"

"Oh, no," said Miss Mouse. "But I must clean off the blackboards ready for new lessons tomorrow."

Back into the school room she crept, while Uncle Wiggily looked off through the forest where the animal boys and girls were having fun. Soon the rabbit gentleman heard Miss Mouse coughing and sneezing.

"What's the matter?" he asked.

"Oh, it's just—ahem—the chalk—choo-hhoo—the chalk—ker-choo—the chalk dust!" answered Miss Mouse. "The chalk—kee-foo—dust flies up my nose and makes me—ahem — ker-zoo — it makes me—sneeze!! Ker snitzio! It's the chalk dust from the—ker-foo—black boards!! It makes me sneeze!"

"I should say it did!" exclaimed Uncle Wiggily. "You ought not be obliged to stay in and clean the blackboards and so get chalk dust up your nose! Here, now!! You come out in the fresh air."

He hopped in the school room to fetch Miss Mouse out.

"But who will clean the blackboards?" asked the teacher.

"I will!" offered the rabbit gentleman. "Some of the boy animals should have stayed in to help you. But as they didn't I'll do it. I don't mind chalk dust up my pink nose. I like to sneeze!"

So the bunny gentleman made Miss Mouse sit out in the fresh air in front of the school, while he cleaned the boards. And as he was wiping off the old chalk marks with the erasers, Johnnie and Billie Bushytail, who were playing tag, raced past and through the window saw what Mr. Longears was doing.

"Oh, Billie!" chattered Johnnie, "Uncle Wiggily is helping Miss Mouse clean the boards. Uncle Wiggily helped find me, with Fox Fire, when I was lost."

"And he helped me out of the hole in the tree when I was too fat from eating so many nuts," added Billie.

"Then let's you and I go in and help him clean the blackboards for Miss Mouse!" whispered Johnnie.

"Sure!" chattered Billie.

Into the school scrambled the squirrel boys. Their tails were just like dusting brushes, and soon they had helped Uncle Wiggily to make the blackboards as clean as they could be. Each time they filled their tails with chalk dust, Johnnie and Billie would perch on the sill of an open window and shake the dust out of doors. In this way there were no more sneezes.

But all of a sudden, when the last of the chalk had been wiped away and Johnnie was shaking his tail out of the window, all of a sudden just below it, a voice cried:

"Ker-choo! Ker-foo! Ker-fiddle-de dum!" And it was the Bob Cat who had crept under the window, hoping to get a bite of some one. But when the chalk dust made him sneeze he knew he was discovered, so he had to run away. So you see it's a good thing Johnnie and Billie cleaned the blackboards for Uncle Wiggily.

And if the roller skate will give the piano a ride down to the corner to buy a stick of baked bean candy I'll tell you next about Uncle Wiggily and the fast door.

RID FORESTS OF GOATS

HAWAII NATIONAL PARK, March 26.—A goat drive culminating in an abandoned Hawaiian village ridded the Puna and Kau forests of 3500 goats and furnished meat for native luaus or feasts. The goats were distributed among the Hawaiians with the stipulation that they be killed within a given period. The drive was organized by the local forest service and neighboring ranch men.

OMEMEE ANXIOUS ABOUT TANNERY

Many Men Out of Employment—Rumors in Circulation.

MAY GET SIDING.

OMEMEE, March 26. — Many rumors are in the air regarding the Omemee Tannery, and many inquiries are being made. This institution, which at Christmas time employed upwards of seventy-five men, has cut down its employees to less than one quarter. Negotiations by the Edward and Edwards Tanning Company are being considered by an American firm should the C.N.R. decide to build a siding to the plant. This would do away with an enormous amount of handling and long hauling and thus cut down a heavy expense which has always been a drawback. Citizens are anxiously waiting to know what the outcome may be, as many men have already gone elsewhere for employment with the intention of moving their families in the very near future.

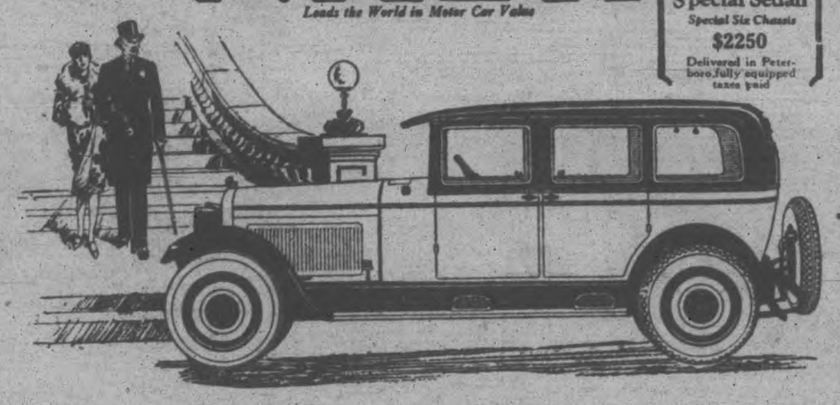
NASH

Leads the World in Motor Car Value

NEW Special Sedan — Special Six Chassis — $2250 — Delivered in Peterboro fully equipped taxes paid



The Nation's New Vogue in Body Design

Styled by Nash

It is emphatically apparent today that Nash has created a new era in enclosed body artistry with this arrestingly distinctive body design.

With its new symmetry of line, its classically beautiful French-type rear contour and French roof design, and its rich ensemble of costly car features, the new Special Sedan pictured above possesses magnetic appeal for those most keenly perceptive of motor car style and quality.

The steering wheel is of real walnut in fitting harmony with the handsome walnut finish of the inside window mouldings, door panels, the instrument board and the crowned panel which is above the instrument board. The gray toned upholstery is genuine Chase Velmo Mohair Velvet, deeply tufted.

And Nash powers it with a 7-bearing motor—the world's smoothest type.

So that in transcendent power-evenness and quietness, in lightning-fast "pick-up," and in easeful roadability on the straightaway or climbing, together with a world of speed, it stands out as the most notable car of its field.

As standard equipment there are Gabriel Snubbers at front; 4-wheel brakes, of special Nash design, with the front wheel brakes completely enclosed for safety's sake; and 5 disc wheels.

A larger Special Sedan on the Advanced Six Chassis, reflecting the same unsurpassed quality throughout, is also offered at a favorably low price.

THIS CANADA OF OURS

LORD SYDENHAM.

Ques.—Who was Lord Sydenham?

Ans. — Lord Sydenham was Charles Edward Poulett Thomson, a prominent English statesman, who became Governor of Canada in 1830, but who lived only one year and eleven months after assuming office. He died in Kingston Sept. 18, 1841. Lord Sydenham had been in ill health, but his death was hastened by a fall from his horse. Although Governor for less than two years, he exercised a large influence on the political destinies of the country.

The first Parliament of Upper and Lower Canada met in Kingston Hospital Building June 14th, 1841, and the death of the Governor sealed its first session. Lord Sydenham's body was placed in a vault beneath the central aisle of St. George's Cathedral, Kingston, and is marked with a tablet.

IMMIGRATION REGULATIONS USED TO KEEP STANDARD OF PEOPLE UP

Mental and Physical Tests Are Applied to All Classes.

ALL EXAMINED

Occupational Rule Does Not Apply to British Subjects.

(This is the third of a series of articles on the above topic contributed by the Federal Department of Immigration and Colonization.)

Canada's immigration policy is designed to promote the settlement on the land of farmers and farm workers. It also includes special efforts toward meeting the demand for female houseworkers, but its principal activities are directed towards land settlement; the immigration regulations are framed with these ends in view.

Certain regulations, such as those relating to mental and physical health, character and literacy, apply alike to all immigrants. Other regulations, such as that relating to passports, are not applied alike to all.

The Immigration Act and Regulations require that persons, from whatever country, to be admissible to Canada, must be in good health and of good character. The Act specifically denies admission to certain classes which include idiots, imbeciles, feebleminded persons, epileptics, insane persons and persons who have been insane, persons afflicted with tuberculosis or any loathsome disease or a disease which is contagious, infectious or which may be dangerous to public health; physically defective persons, criminals, immoral persons, etc. To these regulations there are no exceptions.

In order to insure that persons entering Canada are in good health, medical inspection is required. Primary medical inspection takes place prior to embarkation and is a protection to the immigrant, in that it guards against inadmissible immigrants coming forward to a Canadian port. Final medical inspection takes place at the Canadian ocean port and is conducted by medical officers of the Federal Department of Health.

Provision is made for a literacy test which applies alike to all nationalities. It is not, however, applicable to children under 15, or to wife or unmarried or widowed daughter or to parents or grandparents over 55 years of age.

A general regulation, P.C. 183, known as the occupational test, provides for the admission of persons of certain occupations and of others of certain relationships. The occupations are farmers, farm labourers and houseworkers. The relationships are a wife and unmarried children; parents and unmarried brothers and sisters, of any persons legally resident in Canada. Exceptions to this general rule are made in the case of British subjects entering Canada from Great Britain and Northern Ireland, the Irish Free State, Newfoundland, Australia, New Zealand, the Union of South Africa and the United States of America. Exceptions are also made in the case of United States citizens entering Canada from the United States; and, in practice, of citizens of certain countries of northwestern Europe. All immigrants must be coming to assured employment or have sufficient means to maintain themselves until employment is secured.

The passport regulation provides that immigrants shall be in possession of valid passports. Passports of those coming from Europe must be vised by a Canadian Immigration officer stationed on the Continent of Europe. Other passports must be vised by a British Diplomatic or Consular Officer. The following are exempt from this regulation: (1) British subjects landing in Canada from Great Britain and Northern Ireland, the Irish Free State, Newfoundland, Australia, New Zealand, the Union of South Africa or the United States of America, provided they were born or naturalized within British territory mentioned; (2) United States citizens landing in Canada from the United States.

The importance of the passport is that it definitely establishes the citizenship of the immigrant and facilitates deportation where that becomes necessary. Before passports were required, Canada admitted immigrants who later became inmates of mental or penal institutions and whose deportation could not be effected owing to inability to establish citizenship in the countries from which they came. Passports are not required from British subjects coming from most British countries or from United States citizens, as the deportation difficulties referred to do not arise.

Asiatic immigrants, other than Chinese, who are dealt with under a separate Act, are admissible to Canada only if bona fide agriculturists, female domestic servants or the wives, or children under 18 years of age, of persons legally resident in Canada, or nationals of a country covered by a special treaty or agreement regulating immigration. Of the first two admissible classes, each person must possess in his own right the sum of $250.

An Order-in-Council, known as the "Continuous Journey" regulation, prohibits the landing in Canada of immigrants who have come otherwise than by continuous journey from the country of which they are native or naturalized citizens and upon through tickets purchased in that country or prepaid in Canada. The judicious application of this regulation, in conjunction with the passport regulation, protects Canada against the admission of immigrants who cannot be deported in the event of the necessity arising.

The Immigration Act gives authority to the Governor-in-Council to make additional regulations as circumstances may warrant. This provision enables the Government to deal with unforeseen difficulties as they arise. All such regulations have the force and effect of law.

The Immigration Act provides for the deportation of persons other than Canadian citizens and persons having Canadian domicile who come within classes defined as undesirable. These include persons convicted of criminal offences in Canada, inmates of penitentiaries, reformatories, prisons, etc., hospitals for the insane, public charitable institutions, and also include certain immoral classes and persons who at the time of entry to Canada belonged to prohibited classes.

After five years' residence in Canada, immigrants who have been legally admitted acquire what is termed "Canadian domicile," which establishes a legal right to remain in the country.

Any attempt to condense the Immigration Act and Regulations into a column of newspaper space allows only a brief reference to the more important features and necessitates omission of many minor matters of less public interest. The present article indicates the general tenor of the regulations—regulations which are applied by Immigration officers with a recognition of the fact that they are dealing with human beings and in a sincere desire to enforce the law with as little hardship as possible to any individual.

St. Thomas' Collegiate Boys Wear Old Derbies To School

ST. THOMAS, March 26.—A strange epidemic nas struck this city. Hundreds of boys attending the collegiate institute and vocational school are wearing derby hats. Many of the older boys in the public schools have also caught the disease, and are appearing with these unfamiliar head coverings.

The epidemic started largely by accident. A local clothing dealer who had a large quantity of old derbies placed them on sale at 25 cents each a few days ago and a high school boy bought one and wore it to school that morning as a lark. The fashion spread like wild fire, and within twenty-four hours at least twenty-five companions were wearing the antiquated lids. They stormed the clothing store where the style-setter purchased his and soon the supply was entirely exhausted. Demands for old derbies were made of other clothing dealers, with the result that stocks long ago relegated to the basements and attics were dug out to meet the demands of youth.

The boys bought recklessly, with no consideration given to size or style. Practically every style of derby hat that has been worn during the past thirty or forty years is represented on the youthful wearers.

Read the Message of the Bagpipes!

Down the street, in gay array, march the Campbell Highlanders, led by the famous Campbell Band, whose pipers are playing one of the best known Scotch airs. Can you read the words of their message? Start at the top left, and this is what you see: "HET BELLCAMPS RAE COGMIN OT REFFO YUO SLAVUE." The letters in each word are a little mixed, but the words in the sentence are correctly placed. Rearrange the letters in each word, put each one into its right place, and you will see that the bagpipes' music is a message from the famous Campbell Hosiery Mills. For instance, the second word, BELLCAMPS, when the letters are correctly placed, will read CAMPBELLS. Can you solve the puzzle of the other words? Take your pencil and try it NOW. This advertisement may never appear again. Act now! $1500 in cash money prizes will be awarded to the winners of this fascinating puzzle contest.

HOW THESE CASH PRIZES WILL BE AWARDED

The persons securing the total of 500 points, or nearest thereto, will receive the first prize—$1000 cash. The other cash prizes will be awarded—in order—to those obtaining the next highest totals.

SAINT and SINNER

By ANNE AUSTIN

On an impulse, born of unreasoning excitement, and aroused by the growing mystery of old Phil, the crippled beggar, Faith hurried to Stephen Churchill's offices, and found the ante-room crowded with uneasy, impatient-looking people. She rightly guessed that they were to be called as witnesses for the defence in Cherry's trial. Odd that all these people, most of whom she had never seen before in her life, knew something which Stephen Churchill would try to get into the record to help clear Cherry of the charge of murder.

"I'm sorry, Miss Lane, but Mr. Churchill is frightfully busy," the lawyer's secretary told Faith crisply. "I'm afraid he can't see you at all to-day."

"I must see him," Faith urged. "I have information of vital importance."

She could not look at the witnesses as she waited for the secretary to return from the lawyer's private office, but she was conscious that they were whispering about her.

"Mr. Churchill will see you for a minute, Miss Lane," the secretary announced.

Two other lawyers — lesser legal lights, who were assisting Churchill, —rose when Faith entered the private office, but Churchill churlishly remained seated.

"My dear Miss Lane," he barked, behind the inevitable cloud of cigar smoke, "I've told you repeatedly that my hands are full and running over with a mass of detail work. I simply can't take the time to inform you of every step made in your sister's behalf. Not good policy anyway."

Faith's mouth quivered as she answered, but she resolutely kept anger out of her voice. "I'm sorry to bother, you Mr. Churchill, but Mr. Hathaway and I have stumbled upon something which we believe is of vital importance."

Then she told her story, haltingly at first, finally with a rush of eager words. When she had finished reciting the meager facts, she summed up: "I have a theory that the old man had been nursing a fancied grievance against Mr. Cluny for months, and that when his mind gave way, he plotted the murder. The fact that Cherry happened to be on the scene just a minute before successfully diverted suspicion from him, but he really took no particular pains to conceal his crime. There were his footprints in the snow. And as I told you, they fit almost exactly," she reiterated desperately, in face of Churchill's frowning impatience and frank skepticism.

"You're writing fiction, Miss Lane. It's rot, I tell you, absolute rot." Churchill mouthed his cigar. "Everybody in the downtown district has seen old Phil hundreds of times; old and sick and harmless. Don't waste any more time on him, Miss Lane. You keep busy on getting Cherry ready for the trial. And for God's sake, see that she doesn't use any rouge or lipstick. We want her to look pale, you understand, little and pale and childish."

"Mr. Churchill,' Faith pleaded. "Won't you please put one of your investigators on the trail of the crippled beggar? Please Mr. Churchill?"

"Got other and more important things to do than to pry into the private affairs of a harmless old beggar,' Churchill snapped.

"I'm not going to give up," Faith cried in anger and disappointment.

Bob's excitement when Faith told him what she had learned about Phil, the beggar, was a precious balm to the hurt which Churchill's rudeness and incredulity had dealt her overcharged heart.

"We've got something to work on, at last," Bob exulted. "So the old boy's name is Schultz — Philip Schultz. I'll get his address to-morrow from his peddlar's license. And we'll play our hand alone, darling. I have a hunch that we can unravel this mystery without Churchill."

"I hate Churchill!" Faith cried. "I don't believe he cares two cents for Cherry or anyone else. All he's interested in is his fee."

"Oh, he wants to get an acquittal, of course," Bob reassured her. "It would be a big feather in his cap. Banning is strutting these days — open and shut case, he says. Our chance is that he is so sure of his case that he won't exert himself. He'll want to string the trial out as long as possible and make it as sensational as possible, since the press will be flashing his name from one end of the country to the other."

"Do you know whether Churchill's investigator—Crowell, didn't you say his name is?—has found a clue to the writer of the threateing letter to Mr. Cluny from prison?" Faith asked.

"Churchill says he found three men who just about fill the bill. But there is none whose initials is B, and so far they haven't been able to pin a motive on any of them. Churchill said one of them had been bedridden with tuberculosis; another got out of Atlanta six months ago, and has moved to New York. His alibi is apparently beyond question. The third is a business man here in town, practically above suspicion. Churchill thinks the letter was sent by a crank, that it has no significance whatever."

The next morning Faith was unable to leave the house, for Joy's temperature had suddenly risen at an alarming rate, and pneumonia threatened. Bob telephoned while Faith was rubbing the little chest of the sick child with aromatic oils.

"Don't leave me, Faith. I feel awful. I can't breathe hardly," Joy moaned.

"Just to answer the telephone, precious," Faith reassured her tenderly.

'I've checked up on the license clerk, honey,' Bob told her. "And, say, there's something else to set your Sherlock wits working. Old Phil removed his peddlar's license in June, and the handwriting is quite different from that on his license of the year before!"

"What kind of handwriting is it?" Faith asked breathlessly, afraid to entertain the tremendous idea that was knocking for admittance. "That of an educated man?"

"Sorry to disappoint you honey," Bob answered with a slight chuckle, as if he had guessed the cause of her excitement. "But it's a queer, childish scrawl, such as I might do with my left hand. Maybe old Phil's right hand became so crippled with rheumatism that he had to learn to write with his left. But anyway, I've found out his address, or at least, the address he gave in June, and I'm going down to Peach Tree Hollow this afternoon. I'll be around for supper, if you'll let me bring the makings."

GOD'S MUSIC

W. D. Packwood.

I hear it in the sighing of a tree,
In the moaning of the bar when on the sea,
I hear it in the waters mighty splash,
And in the midst of thunder's loudest crash.

I hear it in the steady fall of rain,
In the howling of the wind across the plain,
I hear it in the stillness of the night,
And in the gentle breeze at dawn of light.

I hear it in the song of nightingale,
In the screeching of the owl from distant dale,
I hear it in the highest mountain peaks,
And in the valley, still to me it speaks.

I hear it in the singing of the Thrush,
In the murmer of the reed and water-rush,
I hear it in the lowing of the herd,
And in the chirp of early morning bird.

I hear it in the wave-beat on the shore,
In the blizzard when it whistles o'er the moor,
I hear it in the cooing of the dove,
And in the blackbird's melody of love.

I hear it in a thousand different sounds,
God's voice through nature everywhere resounds,
And often in the mud and scum of things,
I hear it too, for there it always rings.

DRESS

By MARY MARSHALL

The mauve crepe de chine frock has a bolero formed of dull mauve fringe which is also used to trim the skirt in points.

Fringe apparently well expresses the mood of the fashion epoch in which we live for there has been hardly a season for the last ten or fifteen years when fringe has not been spoken of as one of the leading trimmings of the moment. Usually it is hailed as something of a novelty. People talk of the "new fringe", and wear it eagerly as a novelty.

In a way fringe does come as a novelty for there is something new and different in the way it is used or in the way it is made. There seems to be no limit to the variety of this rather simple trimming device. One season it is long, heavy silk fringe, then it is knotted. Short fringe comes to us as a novelty and then beaded fringe.

What characterizes the use of fringe this spring is that it is used in a dozen ways that apparently never occurred to the dressmakers before. They have taken liberties with it—looping it up, trimming it, cutting it diagonally, and even pleating it. Frequently it is applied to pointed tiers on the skirt of a dance frock. Poiret sometimes makes entire skirts of long fringe that swings over full Turkish trousers beneath. Fringe is sometimes made by a fraying out of the material and several of the dressmakers have made fringe by slashing some closely woven material.

Incrustations of sequins appear all over the long fringe made from slashed silk that hangs from hips to hem on a new evening frock. A charming French evening frock of white satin is almost covered with tiers of pink and red fringe. An unusual evening frock is made of pale pink taffeta with closely-fitted bodice and bouffant skirt. Large embroidered red roses appear all round the skirt just above the knees and from these roses hangs deep red silk fringe that extends over the hem of the rather long skirt. This has been dubbed the lampshade skirt.

From the house of Philippe et Gaston of Paris come frocks with slender skirts draped over long fringe with oblong shawls to match with deep fringe edging one length of the shawl only.

The Stars Incline, but do not Compel.

(Copyright, 1927, by The McClure Newspaper Syndicate)

SUNDAY, MARCH 27, 1927.

Until the evening of this day the planetary influences are good, according to astrology. Benefic star dominate.

There is a sign of big promise to the clergy who will be greatly needed in world affairs, it is foretold.

Many preachers will go abroad and severe tasks await those who are first in the field, the seers prophesy.

Men and women are to turn again to religious matters and to seek spiritual consolation, the stars indicate.

While there is a sign presaging much interest in the church in promoting peace movements, astrologers foretell that war will have its effect in America.

Although astrologers prophesy the movement of ships and armies by the United States they do not foresee the entrance of this nation into any foreign w

All the signs appear to presage for the United States great gain in power and prestige.

The seers prognosticate for President Coolidge recognition as a great statesman owing to an independent policy which he will initiate.

Thrift is to be preached and methods of saving are to be encouraged as never before in the coming months, it is forecast.

The people long quiescent in public affairs are to awaken to a new sense of responsibility, astrologers predict, and to demand that vice and crime be stamped out.

Corruption in politics is to be uncovered and women are to prove that they are worthy of full citizenship, according to a reading of the stars.

Persons whose birthdate it is have the augury of a happy year, and prosperous one. Writers should benefit.

Children born on this day probably will be must lucky in making money and winning success.

MONDAY, MARCH 28, 1927

(Copyright, 1927, by The McClure Newspaper Syndicate)

Good and evil planetary influences continue today, according to astrology. Benefic aspects dominate early in the morning and late at night.

This is read as a most stimulating planetary influence for brain workers and the year is to be prosperous for all who have original ideas in literature or science.

There is an auspicious sign for aviation and inventions are to be marked within the year. Airships as well as airplanes will be in demand for everyday uses.

All who belong to the learned professions should benefit by the configuration which presages great activity for lawyers and surgeons.

Merchants may have rather a dull time for a period and this rule is not helpful to them, but later they will profit.

Engineers are to be in great demand, but this direction of the stars indicates delays.

There is a sign of promise to those who seek employment today, for their will be many vacancies due to unusual causes.

All with an adventurous spirit will be especially restless under this planetary government and many will obtain opportunities to go abroad.

Women today would better postpone all important matters. They will wage big reform campaigns later in the year.

This is not an auspicious day for the theatres and new plays should not abide by the verdict made under this rule.

Women will find this a lucky day for any sort of beauty quest as the stars smile on the attainment of loveliness and the preservation of youth.

Great movements of population appear to be presaged for the United States, for the great land development is presaged.

Persons whose birthdate it is have a year of great activity before them, but they must be wise in avoiding temptation to waste time.

Children born on this day may be specially endowed with a sense of humor. Comedians are born under this star.

INDIGESTION Gas on Stomach Caused Severe Pains

Mrs. C. F. Whibler, R.R. No. 1, Glen Ewen, Sask., writes:—"For years my eldest son suffered from severe pains and agony from imperfect digestion. He dieted and used artificial digestants, but all to no avail. At last I got him a bottle of

SAFEGUARDING MILK

BY PASTEURIZATION

(Report of M.H.O. Toronto, Continued from Thursday)

Professor Lusk of Cornell University says: "Milk is the most important single food we possess even for adults. It is more economical to produce than meat, and if it were a question of having to limit oneself to either one or the other, it would be better to choose milk rather than meat."

We cannot expect a good community dietary if that community uses less than a pint of milk per capita per day. "No family of five," says Professor Lusk, "should buy meat until they have bought at least three quarts of milk." Even though the revenue of the home is limited, milk should be the last article of diet on which we should consider for a moment economizing.

Professor McCollum of Johns Hopkins, who has done extensive work in determining the food value of milk, states that one quart of milk daily should be the allowance for every growing child and that adults would be greatly benefitted physically and mentally by drinking a quart of milk a day. They certainly should never consume less than a pint.

The United States Department of Agriculture, in dealing with the milk problem states that two facts stand out prominently as regards the increased production and use of milk. First: That milk as purchased on the market supplies food material together with growth promoting elements, more economically than either meat or eggs. Second: That the dairy cow is our most economical producer of human food. One great law of food conservation is to turn inedible food into edible food. The dairy cow can utilize and does utilize coarse material, inedible by the human, such as grass, cornstalks, hay, etc., and turns them into milk, which is a most valuable food for human consumption. In fact, the most recent developments in food research have revealed the fact that milk is the only perfect food we possess, inasmuch as it contains all the elements essential for the developing of the human body and the maintaining of life and growth. These are proteins, carbo-hydrates, fats, mineral salts and vitamins.

Next Winter's Fuel Problem Can be Solved Now—

JUST so you will better appreciate the statements we make about Hamilton By-Product Coke being the ideal fuel, we suggest you make this test now. Order a trial ton, test it, and you will then readily admit that it fully measures up to our claims as to quality, heat value, and all round satisfaction.

One of the chief features of Hamilton By-Product Coke is that it can be burned to give any amount of heat required. It is particularly suited for "in-between season" weather, as it gives a steadier, more continuous heat than anthracite or soft coal. Without doubt there is no cleaner or more economical fuel known.

Hamilton By-Product Coke is made-in-Canada in our great coking ovens at Hamilton. It is strictly a quality product, made from the highest grades of hand-picked coal obtainable. Its heat value, uniformity of size and hardness have been maintained season after season. And the price is in keeping with the best of other fuels. Write us for names of dealers handling it in your city.

We find an ever-increasing desire on the part of former coal users to follow our suggestion of testing Hamilton By-Product Coke at this season of the year. By making your test now, and convincing yourself of its value as an all-round fuel, you will then feel safe in ordering Hamilton By-Product Coke to fill your winter's fuel requirements.

HAMILTON — ONTARIO

THE LITTLE BIRDS.

The Collegiate Institute Assembly Hall was filled to capacity last night tor the first presentation of the play "The Little Birds," put on under the auspices of the Literary Society of the Collegiate.

It is a comedy in three acts, a translation of a French play "Les Petits Oiseaux," by Eugene Labiche. The play was clean, pretty and humorous, and exceedingly well presented by the young amateur artists of the Collegiate. The parts were taken in a very able fashion, the production was exceedingly well staged, and the costumes worn were all suited to the roles portrayed.

The entire performance was a great credit to those who took part and to the teachers of the Collegiate Institute who had so well trained the young actors.

The story of the play deals with the life of two brothers who are totally different, in respect to the way they believe their boys should be raised and their outlook on other members of the human race. Gordon Richardson played the part of Edmond Blandinet, a Parisian property owner who believes in everybody. Francois, his brother, who is a successful manufacturer, and believes in nobody, was played by Jacob Low. These two brothers each have a son, Leonce (Delbert Gardiner) is the son of Edmond and is generously provided for by his father. Tiburce (Alex. Rogow) is the son of Francois. He was unprovided for and left alone in Paris to make a living. These boys incurred large debts. Tiburce deceives his father, and when he comes to visit him, his son is arrested. Finally the father's heart softens for his son and he pays the debt.

Edmond is very lenient with his tenants and these fail to pay their rent. He also has a dear friend who gets very hard up for money and comes to borrow from him. This friend, Aubertin (Reginald Howden) has a daughter Laura (Nan Parsons), who is soon to be Leance's wife. Henriette (Jean Puttick) who is the wife of Edmond, tries her best to get Edmond to be more severe with his tenants and his brother gets out of patience with him, believing in everyone, until at last Edmond distrusts his wife and his friends. He refuses to lend his friend money, thinking that his story is faked, and when he finds that his friend's story is true he is nearly heart-broken.

Near the end of the play Edmond's banker leaves the country, and Edmond believes himself a ruined man. His brother and his friend both overlook the differences which they have had with him, and offer him a partnership with them in their different lines of business. It finally turns out that Leonce, following his father's instructions, had drawn all the money out of the bank. There is a very fitting ending to the little comedy in which all are friends.

The two fathers and sons had the stellar roles of the play and with their little quips, their parts were exceedingly well taken. Henriette played her part in such a manner that she was always the central figure while on the stage. The role of Laura was less difficult, but she delivered a soliloquy on the little buds, which touched the hearts of all present.

The other parts of the play were taken by Douglas Gordon, who was one of the tenants, a shoemaker by trade, who pays his rent in shoes until Edmond has 50 pairs. Charles Kitney took the part of Rondin, Leonce's shoemaker; Douglas Bethune was the man servant, and Prudence the maid.

At the beginning and between the second and third act, Jean Padgett, attired in an 18th Century costume, sang several solos. Between the first and seconds acts the Scottish Rite Octet, composed of Messrs. M. H. Park, S. J. Graham, W. H. Morphet, T. H. Gillespie, G. D. Carlisle, R. F. Downey, R. A. Brown, C. S. Browne, and J. Crane, sang several selections which were well received by the large audience. The pianist for the evening was Miss Gwen Donley.

This play will be presented again tonight commencing at 8.15 and the young artists well deserve a second full house for it is one of the best amateur plays presented in this city this season.

APPEALS TO WOMEN TO USE HOME FRUIT

TORONTO, March 26 (Canadian Press).—"Bride Broder," in the Mail: Representatives of Canada's fruit and vegetable growers have been asking the Dominion Government for a seasonal tariff on importations from the United States. When Canadian strawberries come in in June the imported article has had a fortnight's start, and the first fine careless rapture with which we greet this ambrosial gift has gone. The growers want legislation to prevent this.

"We need something more. We need an aroused national sentiment among the women who do the buying. We want them to ask for and obtain, Canadian-grown fruit and vegetables. We said the women have the situation "very largely" in their own hands. One of the drawbacks is the producer. He has not yet learned the value of quality, and, in many cases, he still feels that it is rather a clever thing to 'do' the city consumer—we are speaking of produce that comes to the door from the farm, or produce offered for sale on the market."

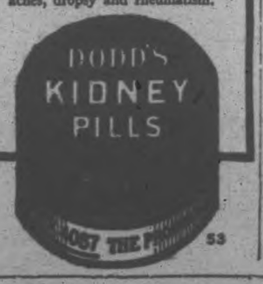
Unsolicited Testimony Speaks For Itself

Mrs. M. Macleod Now Praises Dodd's Kidney Pills

"I have suffered from backache and rheumatism for some time," writes Mrs. M. Macleod, a well known resident of Tarbot Vale, Victoria Co., C.B. "I have taken Dodd's Kidney Pills and found them very satisfactory."

Ninety per cent. of the ills from which women suffer come from weak kidneys. They are the organs that strain all the impurities, all the seeds of disease, out of the blood. If they fail in this work the impurities remain and result in weakness, weariness, nervousness, headaches, backaches, dropsy and rheumatism.



Became So Weak Could Hardly Stand

Mrs. Wm. Palmer, Tomahawk, Alta., writes:—"Last spring I had a long spell of sickness and became so weak I could hardly stand. I could not sleep at night as the least little noise would wake me up. I tried blood tonics and other nerve pills, but they did me no good, and I was getting worse.

WILLY-OVERLAND ADVANCES

Sales Indicate a Rapidly-Growing Preference Toward Product of Canadian Manufacturer.

In a special interview to The Examiner Mr. Florian Leduc, Sales Manager for Willys-Overland, gave out information which is bound to have a very important bearing upon future developments of this aggressive organization.

Last year, Willys-Overland did a volume of business that exceeded their 1925 sales by over 30%, he said, and having achieved this enviable record, very ambitious plans were drawn up for 1927.

The 1927 plans which were outlined in detail at their large convention in Toronto and Montreal, call for an increase in production and sales in Canada of 100% over their 1926 record.

"Naturally, such aspirations met with no little opposition and were conceded by many as being entirely out of line with performance records made by them in the past," stated Mr. Leduc. Nevertheless, being very familiar with the new models being introduced this year by Willys-Overland and knowing inside details of the companies very extensive merchandising program, the above figure was determined upon and everybody associated with the organization turned their efforts towards reaching the great objective aimed at."

That the executive heads of Willys-Overland used unerring judgment in gauging the demand of Canada's motoring public for Whippet and Willys-Knight cars in 1927 is readily apparent and the future looks extremely bright. For instance, in January this year they showed an 81% gain over January of one year ago. In February by leaps and bounds, and on the 28th day of the month showed an increase of 152% over February of 1926. For the period—January 1st to Feb. 28th—the gain that has been made is 126% above that of one year ago.

Mr. Leduc states that indications for March are even better than they were in January or February, and from one end of Canada to the other large orders have already been received for immediate delivery. It is more than likely, he said, that March 31st would show a 100% gain again being made.

If this record continues, the Willys-Overland factory at Toronto will be operating to capacity, and extensions will be necessary in 1928.

Asked as to what he considered the most fundamental reason for this splendid showing, Mr. Leduc stated that it was due mostly to the fact that Willys-Overland in 1927 were presenting a line of automobiles that were, without any question, modern in every sense of the term. Not only that, but being modern they were also pleasing to the eyes. Beauty of design, comfort, roominess and engineering features were well planned and embodied in the new models to meet the critical demands of the motorist—not only this, but the new 1927 models are priced right for quick sale.

Another reason he gave was that the dealer organization from Coast to Coast was much improved over that of any previous year, and owners and prospective buyers realize that they are able to secure unexcelled service anywhere in Canada on either Whippets or Willys-Knights.

Mr. Leduc stated that Willys-Overland this year is building four distinct models — the Overland Whippet Four—Whippet Six—Willys-Knight 70 and Willys-Knight Great Six—each model having a complete range of body styles—24 in all.

FIRM SENT GOODS

available to show these goods were declared."

Mr. Greisman denied any knowledge of importations of liquor and cigarettes by his firm. He stated that the shipping of goods from Germany to Toronto was looked after by two of his brothers in Europe.

The report of the auditors on the King Suspender and Neckwear Company "found no direct evidence of fraud against the Customs Department." Mr. Griesman explained the practice of shipping goods to Montreal before declaring them by saying that he hoped to get a market for them there. When no market was obtainable the goods were shipped back to Toronto.

The Commission adjourned until Monday.

Officially Notified.

TORONTO, March 26 (Canadian Press).—The Customs Department here has been officially notified by the Department at Ottawa that renewal of the license of the O'Keefe Beverages, Ltd., of Toronto, will be withheld until such time as books and papers requested by the Royal Commission are produced. This action follows along the lines of a report sent in to Ottawa by the Customs Commission after Hon. N. W. Rowell, K.C., counsel for the Commission, had suggested some such recommendation. Officers of the company who were examined before the Commission claimed to know nothing of the whereabouts of the books. Chief Commissioner J. T. Brown, from the bench, said that the Commission had suspicions that they had been removed so as to prevent their examination by Government auditors.

The books which, according to one witness before the Commission, were sufficient to fill an automobile, are said to have been lost in transit between the offices of the brewing company and the law offices of the late Charles Millar, a former president and solicitor for the company. Mr. Millar died the day after the books were despatched to his office.

PRIZE WINNER IN FOURTH BRIDGE HAND

The prize-winner in The Examiner's fourth bridge hand is Mrs. F. C. Bonnycastle, Box 239, Campbellford, who had the correct solution.

Unfortunately, the pictures of the layout for this week, and the diagram of last week's winning play, have gone astray in the mail. If they arrive before Monday, they will be inserted then.

Here is the way Ellis O. Jones, author of "Scientific Bidding" and bridge expert of The Examiner, says the hand in Bridge Contest No. 4 of The Examiner should be bid and played.

In the play of Mr. Jones, with South dealing, East-West made three hearts, scoring a total of 104 points—24 for tricks, 80 for honors.

Here is what Mr. Jones says was the correct way to bid the hands:

SOUTH	WEST	NORTH	EAST
Pass	1 Heart	2 Clubs	Pass
2 Diamonds	2 Hearts	Pass	Pass
Pass

Mr. Jones gives the following explanation of the bidding and the play:

By ELLIS O. JONES, Author of "Scientific Bidding."

Not having two sure tricks for defence, South must pass on the first round and even on the second, his only reason for mentioning diamonds is to deny his partner's club. When West goes to 2 hearts without assistance from his partner, East need say nothing and the bidding closes.

Clearly North's first lead is the club king and, when dummy goes down, showing the queen and four more clubs, all know that North has the ace with at least three, probably four, others.

Now is the time for North to do his deepest thinking. Indeed, at trick No. 2, after the first peep at dummy, is always the time for the biggest pause for thinking purposes. Most amateurs would now thoughtlessly lead the ace of clubs or open South's diamonds. North does neither. He sees that if he leads his ace of clubs not only might he lose it, but he will also set up a string of clubs in dummy to be made after the trumps are out and dummy gets the lead with the ace of spades. As to the diamonds, he does not take them seriously because his partner passed originally. So North does what only the advanced would do, goes after dummy's spade ace before the clubs are established.

The declarer now takes up the burden and quickly decides to lead through South's diamonds and, when his queen holds, to take out the trumps. When the trumps fail to fall in three leads, he has to put his own thinking cap on. Shall he take out North's remaining trump or not? He can see 9 tricks, but he is striving for game. North must be very short of diamonds as South has bid them and East-West have six. West has no sure way of sizing up the spades, but North's lead at trick 2 makes it reasonable to think he has the queen with others.

THE SPRING TIME IS TONIC TIME

Something Is Needed To Quickly Improve Your Health.

With the passing of winter many people feel weak; depressed and easily tired. There is no particular disease, but the system lacks tone. You find yourself tired, low-spirited, often unable to get sound sleep at night. All this is the result of closed-in-door confinement of the winter months, and shows that the blood has become thin and watery. New, rich, red blood is what you need to put you right and there is no other tonic medicine can give you this new, rich blood as surely and as speedily as Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. This new blood goes to every part of the body and quickly improves the general health. The digestion is toned up, and you have better appetite, the nerves are strengthened and sleep is refreshing. The special value of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills at this season is shown by the statement of Mrs. Elizabeth Clarke, R.R. No. 1, Hastings, Ont., who says:—"I know Dr. Williams' Pink Pills are a great blood builder because I use them in the spring, when one naturally feels run-down after our long winter. Last spring I was feeling weak and easily tired, and again used the pills with the result that I have had splendid health since. The pills also restored my daughter, Mae, who was badly run-down, and seemed almost bloodless. She used the pills faithfully for a time and has since enjoyed the best of health. Naturally I never hesitate to recommend Dr. Williams' Pink Pills to people who are run-down."

You can get these pills through any dealer in medicine, or by mail at 50 cents a box from The Dr. Williams Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

CHILD WELFARE WORK EXPLAINED

Miss Charlotte Whitton Tells Ladies of Activities of League Commisson.

CANADA'S DELEGATE.

Miss Charlotte Whitton, Canadian representative on the Child Welfare Committee of the League of Nations, was the visiting speaker to a large audience at the meeting of the Women's Canadian Club, held in the auditorium of the Public Library yesterday afternoon.

Miss Whitton, who, by the way, still remains in the ranks of the unbobbed sisterhood, is a speaker of the brilliant, vital type, compelling, enthused, brisk, with a pleasant, clear voice, and an evident concentrated mental attention on the subject in hand. Eloquent and forceful, she held the attention of her hearers to the last sentence of an address which dealt mainly with her experiences as Canadian representative, or "assessor," as she was termed, on the Child Welfare Committee of the League of Nations.

"The League of Nations is an international and political organ, organized primarily for the promotion of peace," said Miss Whitton, "but its members have come to realize that the abstract ideal and the abstract appeal of ideals, has not quite the same attraction for he man and woman on the street, as something more definite. War has a more active appeal than peace, or the machinery of peace, to the mind. The League realizes this and is now trying to call on all sections of the world to unite all their knowledge of any type, in making life better and to realize that life to new strength, and freedom, new values and possibilities. So it has created all these great humanitarian services with which it is now occupied."

Speaking of discussion by the Commission of such services, and their ramifications, Miss Whitton referred to the shock experienced by the Anglo-Saxon mind, which had become accustomed to but one way, the right way, of looking upon social evils, by encounters with the type of national mind which looks upon the traffic in women and children, for instance, as something to be tolerated and regulated, and even given legal recognition. An observation of arguments in favor of customs which to Anglo-Saxons are absolutely outlawed, gives an idea of the task which the League has on its hands.

"Even on fundamental moral questions, the great nations are as far apart as the Poles."

Miss Whitton went on to describe the functioning of the Child Welfare Commission, of which she was a member, and which has representatives of so many great nations; Great Britain, the Scandinavian countries, Belgium, France, Italy, Spain, Roumania, Poland, Japan, and Uruguay. She described the formation of the Commission and spoke of the wonderful work done in Canada by women's voluntary organizations engaged in Child Welfare efforts. Referring to the national mind of the countries, as exemplified in their representatives, she said:

"Japan glimpses more of the preventive aspect of the work than almost any other country. It is difficult to work out a satisfactory solution, when one country is troubled over problems of congestion, for instance, while its neighbr is puzzled over isolation and its problems."

The procedure of the Commission is carried on in two languages, in French and in English; French speeches being translated at their conclusion into English, by ready interpreters, and vice versa. This keeps the Commission sitting twice as long as might otherwise be necessary, and the inclusion of Germans, with her consequent demand for her own language, may lead to "Three-barrelled attempts from now on."

Matters considered by the Commission include various types of child welfare work, in children's health and employment, neglected dependency, juvenile delinquency, mental defectives, and uses of recreation, which the speaker said had so much to do with problems relating to delinquency, family life and the character-building of nations. An interesting portion of the work, also, was the consideration of the relation of motion pictures to child life.

The most outstanding aspect to a Canadian going abroad to this work was the recognition by the nations, in their efforts to make a recovery from the conditions following from the Great War, of the absolute and primary necessity of the conservation of the life of the next generation and the instilling into it of all possible forces for is strengthening and developmen. "The idea of the conservation and preservation of the life of the child was the keynote of our constitution."

In this connection, Miss Whitton spoke of the clauses relating to child welfare which were such prominent portions of the constitutions of various European nations, as drafted within the past ten years, even in countries where child labor, in extreme forms, had formerly been recognized as a part of the economic life of the nation. Heavy appropriations were being made by nearly every nation for departments concerned only with child welfare.

Speaking of Italy and the measures along this line enacted by Mussolini, Miss Whitton referred to two outstanding instances. One, in a country where wine is the customary and recognized beverage of the people, just as water is with us, had to do with the prohibition of wine or alcoholic beverages of any type to all children under eighteen years of age; while the second ordered that all motion pictures appearing in Italy should be stamped as for adult or child production, the pictures stamped for adults being prohibited from presentation to minors.

"Here, in Canada, it is only in Manitoba that child welfare or social welfare service has yet been raised to the dignity of a department of State."

In speaking of the effect on a Canadian of attendance at such conference, Miss Whitton said that Canada did not yet measure up as a nation, but more as a federation of provinces or districts. She felt that "as a young and scattered people, we have not yet risen far enough above our physical and economic barriers to become a real entity."

"Here, in Canada, we have potentially nine codes of child welfare administration."

Miss Whitton concluded with an eloquent plea for unity in consideration of the pressing social problems of the day, and for more information in various sections as to what is going on other portions of our country, in the way of child welfare work.

A sincere vote of appreciation of Miss Whitton's splendid address was voiced by Mrs. W. R. Morris, occupying the chair in the absence of the president, and was seconded by a standing vote from the audience.

A GREAT PUZZLE TO CAREFUL PARENTS

One of the greatest puzzles to the careful parents is to know just what medicine to give the little ones. When the child falls ill with griping pains; is seized with cold or fever, refuses food or vomits what he has taken, when he cries a great deal and cannot get the sleep so necessary to the growing child, the parents is in a quandary. What is to be done on such occasions? As often as not there is not a suitable medicine in the house. The puzzle is what to give him to set him right quickly.

It is to meet such emergencies that Baby's Own Tablets were designed. These pleasant little Tablets quickly reduce fever, break up colds, relieve constipation and indigestion and allay teething pains. They quiet the nerves and promote restful health-restoring sleep. They are guaranteed absolutely harmless and safe for even the youngest and most delicate baby.

Baby's Own Tablets are sold by medicine dealers or by mail at 25 cents a box from The Dr. Williams Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

NATIONS CLASH AT CONFERENCE

French and British Present Opposite Views at at Geneva.

ON DISARMAMENT.

GENEVA, Mar. 26 (Canadian Press)—French and British views clashed at to-day's session of the League of Nations preparatory commission on disarmament over the question of the interdependence of military, naval, and aerial armaments. The British and Japanese delegates won their point that the question of naval and air effectives should be studied apart from military effectives. Paul Boncour, French delegate, warned the commission that unless the principles governing land forces are applied equally to naval and aerial forces France will not accept them for land.

The commission to-day passed the first reading of the clauses of the proposed general disarmament treaty which provide that signatories agree to limit the number of men in service in their armed forces or other services organized on military basis.

KIWANIS LADIES' NIGHT

Giving one of the most brilliant addresses heard here in some time, Miss Charlotte Whitton, of Ottawa, Canada's representative on the Committee of Child Welfare at the League of Nations in Geneva, was the main attraction at the Empress hotel last evening, at the ladies' night held by the Kiwanis club. Miss Whitton is a speaker of a calibre quite out of the ordinary, and she held her audience in rapt attention during the course of an address which led them through many of the countries of Europe, and ended with a brief resume of conditions with regard to child welfare work in our own Dominion.

Miss Whitton, who was introduced by Jack Marshall, had the honor of being one of the very few women on the League of Nations' commissions. She adapted her discourse to the spirit of the audience and of the occasion by incorporating many little flashes of humor in her brilliant, thoughtful mode of presentation of ideas. Commencing with a bird's-eye view of conditions in various European lands, as encountered by herself and her companions when travelling through to Geneva, she spoke of the nervous tension of France, and of the necessity of that country making some settlement of her foreign indebtedness, in order to attain a definite recovery from war losses. "One sees where her young men are when one looks at all those cemeteries where the flag flies at half-mast."

Of Germany, Miss Whitton regarded her admission into the League as absolutely essential to the peace of Europe, and of Italy she spoke of the wonderful re-creative measures undertaken by Mussolini, "who has given to the Italians a country. He has given them a land and a vision of Imperial Rome and all it stood for. He has made them think in terms of Italy. The Neapolitan no longer looks with disgust at the Piedmontese.—But, after building up a place of unparalleled power and insularity for himself, it looks at times as though he might be inclined to kick over the ladder of Fascism, by which he ascended." Miss Whitton went on to speak of the need in Italy of a bureaucracy strong enough to take over the reins of power, should anything happen to its dictator.

Of the British, the speaker spoke in terms of enthusiasm of their unfailing spirit of tolerance, clear perception and understanding, manifested so strongly in moments of national crisis, such as the coal strike and the following general strike, which were taking place at the time of her visit to England last year.

"The English have not the involved logic of the Scot, which makes him the greatest sermon-taster in the world, nor yet the irresponsible lovableness of the Irishman, which makes him the world's eternal child and an eternal thorn in the side of England," but they have a singleness of perception and a fundamental trust in one another that makes them a very free people. Several anecdotes of English humor, as observed during the strike days, were related here.

Miss Whitton described, also with touches of humor, some of her experiences with male colleagues on the League of Nations' Commission, and went on to give an outline of Canada's work in social welfare ways. "We have beaten down the rate of infant mortality within the past few years," she said, "but we have a great need for alleviation of the maternal mortality rate, for pre-natal care and for better obstetrical services. We are not justified in asking women to do pioneer work in the outposts of empire, in isolated areas, without guaranteeing them medical and nursing care."

Canada had done much, said the speaker, through voluntary organizations, in the way of alleviating conditions among crippled children, also in the field of child employment, much of the latter, however, being nullified by long hours of child employment in seasonal occupations.

With regard to technical education, Miss Whitton was not so satisfied. She spoke of the small percentage of pupils who take advantage of the courses in higher education provided for them in Canada, and of the lack of adequate opportunity or provision for those seeking education in technical lines.

"In the field of neglected dependancy we are ahead of many other countries. We have set our faces like flint against the breaking up of the home until we are absolutely assured that this is the final and only hope of solution. And in the field of the unmarried mother and child, no part of the British Empire has better laws than five of our own Canadian provinces possess.

"In the Juvenile Delinquency field, we are plowing new ground. It is not the machinery of the courts that we need, but it is to have the Juvenile Act put into force, so that all magistrates may make use of its beneficent clauses with regard to the child-life of the community."

With regard to mental defectives, Miss Whitton made a strong plea for a better understanding of the aims of those interested in such legislation. She said that a misunderstanding had arisen along this line. "We are not asking for the care and segregation of all feeble-minded persons, but only for the confidential registration of idiots and imbeciles, for custodial care for the difficult cases, and for the establishment of auxiliary classes in the schools where mental defectives may get the type of training which would, in so many instances, permanently benefit them and the community to which they belong." The segregation into colonies of extreme cases was also recommended, where they could be self-sustaining. "Unless Canada takes some action in this regard, she is going to continue to pour into her own veins a terrible racial poison."

Miss Whitton concluded a magnificent address with an earnest appeal for the acceptance of the responsibilities of the day.

"We must in Canada rouse ourselves from the materialism that is pressing down upon us from every side and we must look upon ourselves as the custodians of the Canada that is to be."

The speaker alluded to the fact that the kernel of the pact drawn up between the assembling nations, in the first days of the formation of the League, was the British North America Act, the constitution of the Dominion.

At the conclusion of the adderss, Miss Whitton was accorded the long-continued and hearty appreciation of her audience, and the thanks of the club was voiced by W. F. Huycke, who also presented the speaker with a lovely bouquet of roses, as a mark of appreciation by the members.

The banquet last evening was marked by the usual spirit of good humor and camaraderie that characterizes all the social functions of the Kiwanis club, and was attended by about one hundred and fifteen people, including members, their wives and friends, and various guests of the club, including members of the graduating class at Nicholls hospital, who were guests of Dr. F. C. Neal. Guests present were: Mr. and Mrs. Adrian Macdonald, Mr. and Mrs. L. J. Pettit and Miss Shirley Pettit, Mr. and Mrs. A. A. Perrin, Mrs. J. Harkness, Mrs. R. M. Leeson, Mrs. T. Jones of Emily, Mrs. Kendall Doll of Toronto, Mrs. A. Jobbitt of Hamilton, Mrs. G. M. Reazin, the Misses Elleda Walsh, Edmondson, Russell, White, Medcalfe, Wood, Watson, McCallum, Stocker, and Miss Gladys Coon, also Colonel J. W. Miller.

President Isaac MacNabb occupied the chair, and kept the ball of fun rolling during the service of dinner and the social hours which followed Miss Whitton's address. Mark Bredin acted as sergeant-of-arms, and Verne Morphet led the community singing, with M. B. Chenhall at the piano. The special soloist of the evening was Mrs. A. A. Perrin, who delighted her hearers with two songs, charmingly rendered, in "Gay Butterfly" and "Song of Waiting." Little Miss Shirley Pettit made a strong impression on her audience with a beautifully rendered oration on "The Poetry of Eugene Field." This small lady's extreme self-possession, exceptionally good memory and very fine enunciation of the pleasing sentences of her oration, which was the first prize effort at a recent oratorical contest held at the Queen Alexandra school, made her rendition very attractive, and she was accorded much applause, also being presented by J. J. Turner, on behalf of the club, with a large box of chocolates and a kiss. Mr. Turner made the presentation to Mrs. Perrin of a lovely bouquet of roses.

The booster of the evening was Frank Dawson, who took up his time with a recommendation of attendance at the forthcoming production of "Cinderella," being produced at the Grand Opera House next month by Mrs. Perrin. Prizes for the evening were won by Mrs. Hugh Niven, Mrs. John Meyers and Miss Gladys Coon.

The evening concluded with cards and dancing, the programme for the latter part having a jolly variation in the old-fashioned dances which alternated with modern steps. Music for both was provided by the Selwyn Orchestra, and favors of tissue paper caps, dollars and parasols were distributed during the numbers. Dr. J. J. Craig acted as booster for the card games, and J. John was in charge. Prizes for bridge were won by Mr. and Mrs. Carl Browne, the consolation award going to Mrs. John Comstock.

She Failed to Dissuade Him

ONE pleasant summer evening I was discussing Mutual Life Insurance with a farmer, seated under a tree in front of his house. The farmer's wife kept coming to the door to call him.

She was averse, he told me, to his taking insurance, having other and, in her opinion, more pressing uses for the money.

Fortunately, his own better judgment prevailed. Two years later, he died of pneumonia, leaving his widow with a mortgaged farm, several small boys and a fair-sized Policy in The Mutual Life of Canada.

That Mutual Policy was the anchor which saved the farm and kept the family from drifting apart. By its aid, she was able to keep the farm and educate the boys.

Let a Mutual Agent show you how to safeguard your family's interests.

BUSY MORNING FOR BOYS AT 'Y'

Juniors and Beginners Have Glorious Time Every Saturday.

VALUABLE TRAINING.

"Are we in it? Well, you should see," is the shout of 125 boys who gather in the Y.M.C.A. every Saturday morning for games, study periods, calisthenics, swimming, and plenty of fun.

Douglas Loomis, athletic instructor, always has a very busy Saturday morning when he has these 125 young charges to look after. The boys range in age from nine to fourteen years, and are composed of two groups, the beginners and the juniors. Often there are from 75 to 80 boys from all parts of the city present for the beginners' group.

The junior class commences the morning with Bible study, the leader being Fred McNeely, boys' secretary of the Y.M.C.A., after which they join the beginners in calisthenics. The beginners are on the job early, often being there one hour before classes commence.

When visited this morning by a representative of The Examiner, the boys were playing a game of softball, with about twenty boys on each side. Others were running around on the raceway in the gallery, while others were busily engaged in making a noise and having a good time.

After the softball game they were given marching practice, which teaches them to walk correctly with their heads erect. Then followed a series of physical exercises, after which each boy went to the swimming pool and the showers.

The work done at the Y.M.C.A. for the boy of this age is of inestimable value to the boy and the country as a whole. He is taught how to be a good sport, his body is developed along the physical lines, and he learns how to look after himself. He is taught how to swim and how to save others from drowning.

The boys thoroughly enjoy themselves, and would much rather miss their breakfast than the morning at the Y.M.C.A. On Saturday night a movie show is generally put on for the boys, which they enjoy very much.

TORONTO, March 26.— (Canadian Press.)— Irregular price movements featured the trading on the Standard Mining Exchange to-day. Losses outnumbered gains, with an 85 cent drop to 20.90 by Noranda, the largest loss. The Quebec issues were active and strong. Duprat advanced 1 1-2 to 12 1-2. Laval Quebec gained 3-4 to 26 1-2. Teck Hughes provided the feature strong movement when it sold up 12 cents a share to 6.44. The balance of the dividend paying gold stocks were dull. Wright Hargreaves dropped 10 cents to 10.60.

Upward Move Continues On Wall Street To-day

NEW YORK, March 26. Canadian Press. — The main trend in to-day's brief session of the stock market continued upward. Public utilities, industrials and railroads gave the best demonstrations of group strength. Motors were mixed but the firmness of Willys-Overland in the face of the publication of a 1926 earnings report, showing only 22c a share earned on the common, was a feature. Steels held fairly steady. Oils were quiet with the exception of Lago, which crossed 30 to a new high, and Pan-American Petroleum, which was in brisk demand. Shorts in Kelsey Wheel drove the stock down to 4 new low record at 65. The closing was irregular. The total sales approximated 750,000 shares.

Smaller Wheat Shipments Result In Higher Prices

CHICAGO, March 26 (Canadian Press).—Unexpected upturns in wheat quotations at Liverpool and much smaller world's shipments this week led to an active early demand to-day here for wheat. Profit-taking on advances, however, tended to hold the market in check. Opening at ½ to 7-8 cent gain, wheat kept near to the initial figures. Corn and oats were also firmer, corn starting 3-8 cent to 5-8 cent higher, but then reacting somewhat. Provisions showed a slight downward trend.

Opening prices were: Wheat, May 134 5-8, July 129¼; corn, May 72 3-4, July 77 3-4; oats, May 44, July 44½.

Toronto Exchange Quiet; B. A. Oil Again Leader

TORONTO, Mar. 26 (Canadian Press) — Trading was quiet and prices steady on Toronto Stock Exchange to-day. British American Oil continued to dominate the market. It remained firm throughout the session to close unchanged at 26 3-4. Massey Harris was second in activity and a strong feature, selling up to 117, a gain of one. The Traction group was dull, with a loss of 1 1-8 to 127 by Brazilian being the feature. Distillery stocks were active and unchanged. City Dairy sold off one to 108 1-2, while Smelters dropped 1-2 to 256. Noranda declined a dollar to 20.80. The and unchanged.

MOTOR LEAGUE REPORTS SHOW SPLENDID YEAR

is expected that special service memberships will reach a total this year sufficient to warrant the appointment of a Motor League solicitor in the City of Peterborough.

"The treasurer's statement for the period ending December 31, 1926, showing a small cash surplus, indicates that the financial position of the Peterborough Automobile Club has been sustained. Our assets, taking in equipment, office furnishings, supplies, maps, signs, etc., exceed current liabilities by several hundreds of dollars.

Signs and Maps.

"Our personal service to members and to tourists is being rapidly developed annually. Hundreds of inquiries from the United States are attended to by the staff, and valuable maps and other literature distributed gratis. Our connection with United States and other visitors has become so well established that may companies are now offering us free of charge unlimited supplies of their tourists' maps, in consideration of our undertaking to give the proper distribution. To the Sales Service Company, Limited, we are indebted for quantities of Peterboro County and Trent Waterway, Central Ontario Tourist maps. We are particularly pleased to co-operate with this company in the distribution of their attractive and useful maps, because of there being a local Peterboro organization, with a local manager and directorte comprised of well-known citizens.

"Our Road Sign Committee, under the able chairmanship of J. A. Bertram, with Thomas Dutton and R. J. Sutherland, advanced the signing of Peterboro City and District very materially during the year just passed. This is, perhaps the best known branch of the Peterboro Automobile Club's activities, and is certainly the most popular with the members, as with the travelling public generally. Residents of Peterboro and district are supplied with signs on application to these offices, and in many cases these people, public spiritedly, affix the signs themselves at points where signs are known to be needed.

Road Construction.

"The Honorable George S. Henry, Minister of Public Works and Highways, with his department, has lent a very attentive ear to our suggestions along lines of road building and maintenance, etc. We are gratified to note that the following matters, which we took up with his department, have been embraced in the legislation produced, and to be produced, this year:

"(1) The compulsory carrying of lights at night by vehicles of all kinds.

"(2) The raising of the speed limit in the country from 25 to 35 miles per hour.

"(3) The extension in this district of the Provincial Highway System, by the addition of approximately 30 miles, connecting the City of Peterboro with the Town of Lindsay via Fowler's Corners; also the improvement of Highway 12-A by some ten miles of paving from Peterboro to Fraserville, and from Bewdley five or six miles towards Port Hope.

"Our requests to the Department that a safety railing be placed around the Bewdley curve at Rice Lake, and that snow fences and use of the snow plough be extended to the Peterboro-Port Hope Highway, were also given favorable consideration along with many similar matters. The Peterboro Automobile Club is now making representation to the department for better roads in the well travelled sections of the Kawartha Lakes area. The Honorable Mr. Henry has intimated that the situation will be very carefully gone into this coming summer.

"Quite early in the 1926 season the club went on record as being opposed to re-arrangements affecting the policing of the highways. Under the Department it was noticed by motorists that reckless driving was the condition upon which summons were issued, rather than speeding. That our contention was correct is now borne out by the extension of the speed limit from 25 to 35 m.p.h., and we are happy to state that the policing of our highways is still under the influence of the Minister of Public Works and Highways.

Publicity Work.

"Two very important publicity schemes were undertaken by the club last term and were proven to be of considerable benefit to the district from the tourist standpoint. We were represented at the Cleveland-Canada Celebration last June by our Secretary and H. O. Fiske. While in Cleveland our representatives formed intimate contact with the Cleveland Automobile Club, and arranged for further distribution of unlimited supplies of Kawartha Lakes literature. The Club co-operated with the Kiwanians at the Kiwanis International Convention in Montreal last June, and insisted in the distribution in Montreal and Kiwanis clubs in the adjacent states of twenty thousand (20,000), specially prepared pamphlets advertising the City of Peterborough and the Kawartha Lakes. This was a joint effort of our Kiwanis Club, Chamber of Commerce, Trent Waterway Development Association, and Automobile Club, all of Peterborough.

"The signs east and west of Port Hope, advertising Peterborough and the Kawartha Lakes, having become dulled by weather conditions, we suggested to the City Council that they be repainted, and, last fall, at their request, obtained estimates on the work. This was held over until 1927, and it is expected that the Council will take the matter in hand early this spring. In view of the prominent location of these signs, visible to motor and rail visitors alike, it is very important that we present as bright a front in Port Hope as possible.

Diamond Jubilee.

"If I might be permitted in summing up to suggest a few activities for the incoming executive and season, I should like to call attention to the need of co-operation between all citizens, and the committee in charge of the Diamond Jubilee celebration in Peterborough, July 1. I feel that the Peterborough Automobile Club will do everything in its power to carry out its proportion of the work entailed, and I earnestly recommend that organizations and individuals get behind the central committee in order to facilitate plans, and make our demonstration as much of a success as possible.

"There is also need of closer co-operation between the Automobile Club and the Board of Works and Engineering Department of the City of Peterborough. Motorists, this past winter, have been blamed for the rutty condition of our city streets, supposedly on account of their refusal to distribute traffic. In some centres, signs are prominent on all streets advising motorists to keep out of the ruts. Propaganda of this matter is perhaps worthy of consideration, and should provide common ground on which the Automobile Club, as the representative of the motorists of Peterborough, could meet the aforementioned city officials.

The Tourist Camp.

"That the City Fathers are appreciative of the benefits accruing to the City from tourist traffic is evidenced by their maintenance of Peterborough Tourist Camp in the Fair Grounds. The present camp is no doubt one of the finest in the province and requires but one or two additions to bring it up to date. Shower baths and cooking equipment, etc., should be installed, and this is an urgent matter which should be given early attention by the incoming executive.

"It would not be fitting to close this report without making reference to the Automobile Ferry Service to be established between Cobourg and Rochester this summer. This will prove a convenience to Central Ontario motorists and, in addition will have a tendency to increase tourist traffic to the Kawartha Lakes. There is also the matter of extension of the tourist permit, which, this year, has been extended to ninety (90) days. In both these matters the Peterborough Automobile Club, in collaboration with the Ontario Motor League, the Chamber of Commerce, and Trent Waterways Development Association, Peterborough, has been active for some years past, and we are now very pleased to contemplate the fruition of their plans.

"I am deeply appreciative of the support accorded me during my presidential year by the officers, directorate, and members of Peterborough Automobile Club. As this report indicates we have worked harmoniously together and with a very fair measure of success. A word of appreciation to the Press, our staunch supporter, is also in order. As to the future of the Club, I have every confidence that each year it will become more representative and continue to improve its many services to members and the motoring public generally."

ONTARIO

WARNING!
to truck owners and drivers

DURING the months of March and April, it is against the law to load certain trucks and other vehicles on the highways of Ontario above one half of their rated capacity.

This applies to all vehicles having a carrying capacity of one-half ton or more if equipped with solid tires and of one ton or more if equipped with pneumatic tires, whether motor driven or horse drawn. It applies on every highway in the Province outside cities and towns.

The Government requests owners and drivers of trucks and wagons to obey this reasonable provision, but warns them that the penalties of The Highways Act will be vigorously enforced against those who neglect to do so.

Frost heaves the soil, and leaves it soft, porous and wet. For these reasons, it is at once the greatest fertilizer of the land and the greatest menace to the road.

Foundations of hard-surfaced roads are wet and spongy in spring, even when the top is dry. Heavy loads "churn" them. Fractures take place in the foundations. The surface thus is left weak because unsupported. On stone and macadam roads, heavy loads cut the surface as well. The "metal" is forced down into the sub-grade through the spongy earth.

Expensive repairs follow the abuse of any road in spring time. In an hour one single truck may cause damage which will cost thousands of dollars and take weeks to repair.

As contributions to road building come from local municipalities as well as the Province, such abuses are a particular offence against enterprising communities which provide good roads. In their interest, as well as that of the public at large, the Government makes this request and issues this warning.

They Do Turn to Admire

Reception of the new Hudson Super-Six has been instantaneous, overwhelming all past Hudson triumphs in interest, enthusiasm and sales.

Not only the center of every Automobile Show—not only the delight of thousands who have bought and driven it—but it is equally the focus of admiration as it parks at the curb, threads through traffic or flies across country, in easy supremacy.

The Super-Six principle freed to the limit now admittedly excels any development thus far known. There is nothing with which to compare it in performance, stamina, safety and economy of operation.

At any speed, and for any distance you demand, you will never feel the slightest effort is exerted in motor or chassis. You pass and hold the lead at will. You level hills as if they did not exist. And its four-wheel brakes with the flexibility of the motor permit a flashing nimbleness you will like.

Its seven beautiful new bodies share with its brilliant performance in the greatest reception of all Hudson history.

OWEN SOUND WINS FIRST GAME OF MEMORIAL CUP SERIES

GRADS AND FORT WILLIAM TIED 2-2 IN OVERTIME PLAY

OVERTIME FAILS TO BREAK TIE IN ALLAN CUP SERIES

Grads and Fort William Engage in Rough Contest at Vancouver.

SCORE TWO ALL.

Thunder Bay Champions Are a Faster Team—Grads More Finshed.

VANCOUVER, B.C., March 26. — Canadian Press. — Before a crowd of ten thousand people, Toronto Grads and Fort William battled to a 2-all tie in the opening game of the Allan Cup hockey finals here last night, after 30 minutes overtime play.

The regulation time game was finished with each team having a goal to its credit. The first overtime period went scoreless, and in the second each team counted once, while the third period was goalless as was the first.

The tie means that a third game will be necessary. The second game is scheduled for Monday night, and the third for Wednesday next, all in this city.

McLeod scored for the Forts in the second period, Trottier, immediately after scoring for the Grads. The goals in the overtime were scored by Cook for Fort William and Trottier for the Grads.

In each case Fort Wiliam scored first and the Grads equalled later. Both teams used stick and body freely and penalties were fairly frequent for tripping and slashing.

The Grads took the ice two to one favorites. The teams were evenly matched, and it was only breaks that counted.

Fort William were faster but the Grads played more finished hockey. Trottier, Plaxton and Hudson, were the best of the Grads, while Davis Tuckwell and Ward were the pick of the Forts. Both goalies gave great exhibitions of net tending.

WHAT ABOUT IT, TY?

TARPON SPRINGS, Fla., March 26.—Billy Mullen, who will start at third base for the St. Louis Browns, says he intends to prove that Ty Cobb was a poor picker when he released him because he couldn't hit. He batted .357 for Toronto last season and says he will hit .290 or better in the American if played regularly.

LAUDER SCORES WINNING GOAL

SCORE IS 5-4.

TORONTO, March 26—Although Martin Lauder, captain of the Owen Sound Greys, had had a very active participation in the scoring of three of the previous four goals, the West Ends of Port Arthur made the costly mistake of ignoring him in the closing minutes of last night's struggle, the first of the two-out-of-three series between the Junior champions of Eastern and Western Canada at the Arena Gardens for the Canadian title and custody of the O.H.A. Memorial Cup. Although Lauder was given the cold shoulder from society for just a moment, it proved just sufficient for the Grey's left-winger to pick up a pass and drill it into the twine behind Spooner, the West End custodian. The defensive lapse by the Ports over the O.H.A. Junior titleholders a 5 to 4 victory and the edge in the series, although the team from the head of the Great Lakes is still very much in the hunt and there is little likelihood that the take-a-chance lads will make the Greys 9 to 5 favorites for the second game on Monday night.

There was a certain amount of excuse for the Ports neglecting to cover Lauder as Friday, their right defence man, was serving a penalty for an offence just after the tying goal had been scored and this weakened the right side of the losers' defence. Play was ranging up and down the ice with lightning rapidity and neither team had a chance to assume a defensive formation before the opposing attack arrived.

Greys Were More Finished

There was little to chose between the two teams, although on the play the Greys seemed a little better, they appeared to know a little more about the inside game and although each man that started played the sixty minutes, they had a little more left at the finish than had the losers who made full use of their two spare forwards. The long railway journey, with two nights on the train, could not but take a certain amount of dash out of the West Ends' play and with a good rest between now and the second game they have a good chance of evening up the series.

The Greys were the quicker breakers, once they secured possession of the rubber after an opposing attack had been broken up, speeding away for the Port Arthur goal and generally the puck-carrier was accompanied by one or two team-mate which made his task of working in closer much easier. Sometimes the losers broke quickly, but as a rule they circled back towards their own goal and this gave the Greys just enough time to swing back into their defensive positions. The difference in the two styles helped the winners as they did not have to skate as far on an attack and had an easier way towards the Port's goal and they needed every ounce of reserve strength to pull out the victory.

While defeated, the Ports showed all quantities of heart, three times coming from behind to tie the score and each time having it taken away from them. Even the winning goal coming within four minutes of the end of the game did not shatter their hopes of victory and they stormed in on Grant in a futile effort to gain the egalized for the fourth time in the sixty minutes, but while they forced the Greys to lift the puck to kill time in the close minute they were unable to beat Grant.

You'd Be SURPRISED!

BY BILLY EVANS

To Bill Carrigan, who returns to the majors this year as manager of the Boston Red Sox, goes the unique if not altogether enviable distinction of breaking up a batting rally in record time.

Sent into a game with New York as pinch-hitter in the first half of the ninth, the bases filled and Boston needing two runs to win, Carrigan ended the day's festivities on one pitched ball.

Dangerous in the pinch, having a penchant for picking on the first good ball, Carrigan must have decided on that plan of battle as he walked to the plate. This, despite the fact the opposing pitcher seemed to be weakening fast and showing a tendency to be wild.

The pitcher laid the first one right over and Carrigan took a healthy cut at the ball. Just prior to the pitch the shortstop made a dash for second to drive the runner back. The pitcher erred in not delaying the pitch slightly, until the shortstop had a chance to return to his position.

As later events proved, it was one of those breaks of the game that decided the issue. Carrigan hit a line drive through the box that nine times out of ten, with the infield playing its regular position, would have gone safe.

Instead, the short stop actually ran into the ball, making a clever catch, retiring the batsman. The runners were in motion with the hit and it was an easy matter to touch second, then throw to first, completing a triple-play and ending the ball game.

It is one of the few games on record where the pinch-hitter on one pitched ball broke up the game, but unfortunately with a "REVERSE ENGLISH."

Inside Sporting Dope

By A Wise Cracker

Mister Sporting Editor:

Well, Mac, about the only sport this week has been watching Mister Ferguson and Mister Raney battle in the Legislature over the new liquor bill. Mister Raney ain't got a chance to win that argument, but I guess he figgers they ain't no law against trying.

I am writing this before Ft. William and the Grads tangle at Vancouver, so I can't say nothing about that serious, except that the Grads ain't lost none of their horsehoes. The Forts went into the finals minus their star centre, which had a hand broken playing against Traill, so that Mister Connie Smythe's lads got the first break of the serious anyway, and judging from the season's record, they're likely to get 1 or 2 more before she's over. However, I for 1 am pulling for the Grads to win, for they come outa our own group, and if they grab the big honours, well, that naturally makes our own lads look that much better.

Some of the customers has asked me about next year. Well, if they'll tell me, I'll tell them. Near as I can see, the management which has been keeping things running the last 3 or 4 years and has give Peterborough i championship and had a bunch in there fighting all the time, giving this burg a whale of a lotta free advertising, ain't got no hankering to carry on no longer. It ain't the most pleasant thing in the world running a hockey team, seeing the management gets all the blame when anything goes wrong and the players all the credit when things is moving smooth. And right now it looks like the old guard was through. What'll happen next ain't any easier to guess than who's going to boss Mister Ferguson's Peterborough branch of the Government's chain store liquor business.

The softballers is organized for the season, Mac, and I see where ex-Prexy Sullivan give the ball tossers an earful good advice about sr. hardball players keeping outa the picnic brand baseball. Mister Sullivan is 100 per cent. right. They ain't nobody I ever seen who could take a wallop at 1 of them big soft balls 1 night and next night do himself justice playing hardball. The 2 games don't mix, and the bird which is good enough for sr. company in hardball should keep outa the other stuff.

Central Ontario League moguls is meeting today at Belleville, trying to unscramble the situation down in this neck of the woods and get a sound league going. The Central loop has provided a lotta good baseball since Mister Jake Solomon immigrated here from New Liskeard and awoke this end of Ontario outa a long sleep. Baseball was as dead as the O.T.A. in these parts until Mister Solomon arrived on the job with a pullmotor, and it begins to look like there is going to be another job for the baseball-bowling promoter to get the old machine running again. At that Mister Solomon got little credit for what he done for sport in the whole section east of Toronto, but a lotta folks here and elsewhere what used to practise on him with their hammers is getting wise to the fact that the same Jake was the dynamo what kept the whole machine going.

Well, Mac, the only people what can keep on talking when they ain't got nothing to say is members of Partiament, and as I ain't even never been nominated for dog catcher, they's no use me trying to keep going when they's nothing to discuss.

Sportfully yours,

JINX PURSUES COONEY.

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla., March 26.—Johnny Cooney of the Boston Braves is surely the victim of some unkind jinx. For the third year in succession he has been the victim of a tough break in spring training. Now it is a chipped bone in his pitching arm.

NO HOME-TOWNERS.

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla., March 26.—Not a single member of the Boston Braves hails from Boston proper and only two of the players, both rookies, come from the suburbs of Beantown, Catcher Hogan from Somerville and Infielder Gautreau from Cambridge.

OLD AGE PENSION

after the prorogation of the Federal parliament to take the matter up with Hon. James Robb, Minister of Finance.

CONTROL BILL.

TORONTO, Ont., March 26. Canadian Press. — Premier Howard Ferguson stated last evening that the Liquor Control Act which passed through the committee stage of the Ontario Legilature on Thursday night, and is now on the order paper for the third reading, will likely become effective the second week of May.

Better progress than was anticipated was made on the bill in the committee stage and Premier Fergoson hopes to be able to present the measure to the House for the third reading about Tuesday next, or as soon as the several minor amendments which were made in committee, have been embodied in the bill.

"Would it be correct to say that the measure will be effective by May 15?" the Premier was asked.

"Yes, I think around that time would be a good guess, but so far, the government has not set the date for the act coming into operation."

The premier added that with the progress made in the legislative programme during the last week he hoped to be able to prorogue the house at the end of next week.

DECLINES NAMES.

TORONTO, Ont., March 26. — Canadian Press. — Replying to questions by members of the opposition in the Ontario Legislature yesterday afternoon, Hon George Henry, Minister of Highways, declined to state the names of gasoline firms who have been permitted to retain commissions during the past year in connection with the collections of the gasoline tax. It was the government policy, he added, to withhold the identity of the firms. The amount of money retained by them, however, was $71,976.99.

The house was notified by Premier Howard Ferguson that the bill creating township school boards to replace the section school boards, would be up for discussion on Monday next. After discussion the premier will withdraw the bill.

Five government bills passed the committee stage of the House yesterday afternoon. The second reading was given to three government measures and to five private bills.

DODGE BROTHERS MOTOR CAR

Facts

that Draw Crowds and Sway Buyers

Little wonder Dodge Brothers Motor Cars today are accorded such widespread and enthusiastic commendation—

Smart new body lines

A new seating arrangement that provides still more roominess and comfort—

A new clutch, simple, sure, silent—

Softer pedal action, easier gear shifting—

Quicker acceleration, still greater steering ease—

More rigid engine support—and smoother performance—

Sturdiness and dependability made still more pronounced by vital betterments in body construction and in the propeller shaft, differential and axle shafts.

Add to these the new five-bearing chrome vanadium crankshaft, with its remarkable improvement in engine performance, the excellent new starting and lighting system and many other recent betterments, and you understand why owners proclaim today's car—

"The finest Dodge ever built!"

TRUTH VERSUS ERROR.

The parable of the rich man and Lazarus—a parable is an allegorical method of conveying instruction by means of a fable, or short fictitious narrative. In a parable the thing said is never the thing meant. We know this from our Lord's explanation of His parables. When He said "wheat," He meant "the children of the kingdom; when He said "tares," He meant "the children of the devil"; when He said "reapers," He meant "His servants," etc. So in the parable of "the rich man and Lazarus," the rich man represents a class, and Lazarus another class. The reader must expound this parable to the best of his ability, but never take it literally, as that would involve immense absurdities. For instance—the rich man went to "hell" because he enjoyed many earthly blessings, and gave nothing but crumbs to Lazarus. Not a word is said about his wickedness. Again, Lazarus is blessed, not because he was a sincere child of God, full of faith and trust, not because he was good, but simply because he was poor and sick. Taken literally, we must conclude, unless we are poor beggars full of sores, we shall never enter into future bliss; and that if now we wear fine linens and purple and have plenty to eat every day, we are sure of future torment. Again, Abraham's bosom would not hold very many of earth's millions of sick and poor. Why consider such absurdities? Why not seek for and accept the priceless treasure of "truth?" — M. T. Butcher. 1d-73-3978

REV. MR. SPENCE APPOINTED J. P.

Receives Commission and Takes Oath—Wolves Seen at Apsley.

ONE WOLF SHOT.

APSLEY, March 26.—The Rev. C. A. G. Spence has been appointed a Justice of the Peace for the County of Peterborough, and received his commission on Tuesday, when he was sworn in by the Crown Attorney, and filed the necessary papers in connection with the appointment.

Tracks of a pack of thirteen wolves were seen where they crossed the Jack's Lake road, about a mile from the village, and on Thursday Norman and Jim Lean went out hunting and succeeded in shooting one, which they brought to the village, where it was photographed. The hunters reported having seen numerous fresh tracks of groups of four, five and seven, which they followed, but the wolf they shot was the only one they saw.

Sap is flowing very slowly, and maple syrup will likely be a scarce commodity this season. This is due old-timers say, to there being so little frost in the ground.

Miss Hazel Mason of Campbellford, the popular teacher at Loon Lake School, has had to relinquish her post owing to ill health, and returned to her home on Wednesday.

Miss Gorman, who teaches at Clydesdale, has been for the last ten days a patient in the Red Cross Hospital, but is now convalescent.

GOOD RECEPTION.

Local radio fans report last night as one of the best nights for reception in many moons. Stations near and far came in clearly and with unusual volume.

STRIKE BALLOT MAY BE TAKEN

C.P.R. Freight Handlers and Clerks Break Negotiations With Company.

SEEKING INCREASE.

MONTREAL, Mar. 26 (Canadian Press).—A strike of freight handlers and clerks of the Canadian Pacific Railway looms large. Final negotiations between the men's committee and the company officials have been definitely broken off and the men's committee has instituted the necessary proceedings for the distribution of a strike ballot among the employees affected. Five to six thousand men are directly affected, while if the strike is called a similar number of non-union clerks will be indirectly affected.

The present crisis is the outcome of the award of the Federal Board of Conciliation which granted the men four cents an hour increase. The company refused to accept the award, but expressed willingness to re-open negotiations.

These, however, were of no avail and the men finally took the matter up with President Beatty. The men agreed to accept an increase of three cents an hour, but the company refused to grant this. Negotiations were then broken off.

Frank M. Hall, Canadian vice-president of the International Brotherhood of Railway and Steamship Clerks, Freight Handlers, Express and Station Employees, who is in charge of the men's committee, stated that as soon as President Fitzgerald of the Brotherhood sanctions his move, strike ballots will be issued to the men.

Telegraphers Ask Increase.

MONTREAL, Mar. 26 (Canadian Press). — With a 25 per cent. increase as the chief objective, the inner executive committee of the Canadian Pacific and Canadian National Order of Railway Telegraphers will enter into negotiations on Monday with officials of the company. This follows upon the termination yesterday of the triennial meeting of the full council of the telegraphers' organization.

In addition to higher salaries, the committee will discuss the revision of certain rules at present in force affecting railway telegraphers.

Will Travel 100 Miles To Serve Hour's Term

TULSA, Okla., March 26. — A Tulsa mother of five children must serve a penitentiary sentence of one hour in prison today.

Mrs. Myrtle Lancaster, found guilty of assault with intent to kill, must journey to McAlester, 100 miles south, be "dressed in," photographed, inoculated and walked around corridors of the state prison.

She will be accompanied by a deputy guard, be paid transportation expenses, receive $5 for a prison release fee and be returned home.

Mrs. Lancaster was accused of assaulting another woman in a quarrel.

WEDDING BELLS.

BURGESS—FAULKNER.

A spring wedding of much interest was quietly solemnized on Wednesday, March 23, in the United Church Parsonage, Omemee, when Della Elizabeth, youngest daughter of Mrs. Rachel Faulkner and the late Andrew Faulkner of Emily, was united in marriage to William John Leslie Burgess, eldest son of Mr. and Mrs. William Burgess, Omemee. Rev. E. W. Roland was the officiating clergyman.

The bride was becomingly attired in a gown of French georgette in a beautiful shade of ashes of roses, embroidered in gold, and wore the gift of the groom, a platinum bar pin set in diamonds.

The bride and groom were attended by Mr. and Mrs. Smithson Nurse of Fowler's Corners.

After the ceremony the happy couple motored to Peterboro, and left amidst showers of confetti and good wishes, on the 3.40 train for Toronto, Detroit and Muskegon, Mich. The bride travelled in a dress of black crepe-faced satin, trimmed in sand, and a coat of black baronet satin with squirrel collar and hat and shoes to match.

On their return they will reside at Maple Grove Farm, Omemee.

Proof of ever-increasing public preference

In the beginning a fascinated public bought the Chrysler "70" for the charm and freshness of its new performance and appearance.

Behind that first Chrysler, and the public's first enthusiasm for its new qualities, are now more than three years of experience.

During those three phenomenal years—years in which public preference swept Chrysler from 27th to 4th place—motor car buyers have come more and more to know its substantial and solid qualities.

They have found a dependability and long life in the "70"—proved by hundreds of thousands of enthusiastic owners—combined with those elements of progressiveness through which Chrysler has steadily maintained the speed, dash, beauty, luxury, economy and safety of the finer Chrysler "70" of today, as far in advance of its field as at the time of its introduction.

Asthma

results from a narrowing of the air passages leading to the lungs. These passages become narrowed when the circular muscle fibers of the bronchial tubes become excessively contracted. All muscle fibers contract and relax, dependent upon messages conveyed from the brain through the spinal cord and nerves. An improper supply of nerve energy to these muscle fibers cause them to tighten up and decrease the size of the air passages thus reducing the amount of oxygen reaching the lungs.

KING PROMISES ANNOUNCEMENT IN FEW DAYS

Give Stand in Connection With Salaries of Civil Service.

C.P.R. STRIKE.

Senate and Commons Have Intensive Schedules For Week.

OTTAWA, Ont., March 28 (Canadian Press).—"An announcement within a few days" was promised by Premier King Saturday in connection with the revision of salaries of the Civil Service. The Cabinet, which met Saturday in the morning and afternoon, gave several hours to the consideration of the report and recommendations made to it by the Civil Service Commission. This report recommends a general upward revision affecting many classes of the Service. It is understood that the Cabinet's final decision has not been made yet but, as the Prime Minister stated, something definite could be expected before long.

Hopes to Avert Strike

OTTAWA, Ont., March 28 (Canadian Press).—The Federal Government hopes to be able to avert a strike of freight handlers and clerks on the Canadian Pacific Railway system, as threatened Saturday when steps were taken by the men's committee to make arrangements for the distribution of strike ballots. Hon. Peter Heenan, Minister of Labor, will be in Montreal to-day with the intention, it is understood, to make an effort to have the men and the company resume negotiations.

The employees are members of the International Brotherhood of Railway and Steamship Clerks, Freight Handlers, Express and Station Employees.

Intensive Schedule.

OTTAWA, Ont., March 28 (Canadian Press). — Both Senate and Commons have intensive schedules of work before them this week. Marks Millionaires Drop 75 Per Cent. Since War

BERLIN, March 28 (AP)—The number of millionaires in Germany has decreaserd 75 per cent. since the war, the Reich's Finance Ministry reports.

There were 15,547 persons in 1913 who were worth 1,000,000 marks (about $250,000) or more, while only 4,000 are in that class today.

Only fifty-four persons, including the former Emperor William II and the heads of several provincial ruling houses own property and securities valued at 10,000,000 marks or more. In 1913 there were 367. The former Emperor is conceded to be one of the nation's wealthiest men, with an income of more than $1,000,000 a year from estates and investments.

The inflation period not only wiped out large fortunes, but reduced by more than 50 per cent. those amounting to 10,000 marks (about $2,500) or more.

LOCAL UTILITIES PROTESTS RAISE IN POWER BILLS

Asked To Pay November and December Bill at New Rate

SOLD AT OLD RATE.

Commission Joins Protest Against Renewal of Georgian Bay Canal Charter.

At the meeting of the Peterborough Utilities Commission on Saturday the power account for November and December from the Hydro Electric Power Commission of Ontario was thoroughly discussed. This bill amounts to $9,593.33, which includes the raise in rates. The commission takes the stand that it should not have to pay this increase in rates until February, as it was not notified of this raise until Febraury 7, and in no way is it possible for the commission to collect from the consumers the increase before that date.

The following resolution was passed:

"That the secretary write the Commission and point out that this commission did not get notice of the increase in rates until February 7 of this year, and that the increased rate for the consumers did not come into effect until after that, and furthermore, that the increase in rates in the towns in the Central Ontario system did not take effect until some time this year and that this city should be treated the same as these other towns and that under the circumstances this commission should not be billed at the new rate for the two months of 1926."

Oppose Charter.

A letter was read from the Ontario Municipal Electric System with reference to the bill before the Dominion parliament to extend the time for the Montreal, Ottawa and Georgian Bay Canal Company to commence work. It was resolved, "That this the Utilities Commission of City of Peterborough respectfully urges the parliament of Canada not to renew the charter of the Montreal, Ottawa and Georgian Bay Canal Company, known as bill 78; as in our opmion this bill is not in the interests of the people, as it is an attempt to deprive the people of this province of their right to the power to be developed from the waters of the Ottawa river, and furthermore that the charter has been in existence for 33 years and no actual construction has taken place, and we believe the renewal of the charter would be contrary and prejudicial to public interest."

Birds, Like Humans, Have Housing Problems These Days. Squirels Have Appropriate Shelters Built By Local Man

That our feathered friends, the birds, have their housing problems, the same as human beings, is illustrated by the following incident which was related to The Examiner by an Engleburn Avenue resident.

For several years it has been his custom to place a number of small bird houses on the trees in his back garden, so that the nests would be free from the danger of being destroyed by any prowling felines. These houses have always been inhabited by the birds and as yet no season has passed that has seen one unoccupied.

However, this year the birds have been forced to give way to the demands of some members of the squirrel family who have taken a fancy to the little houses and have occupied them. Some of the houses are suspended by pieces of wire about twelve inches long, but this has not deterred the squirrels, who climb up and down the wires with amazing dexterity.

In addition to purloining the homes of the birds they have also made raids on the back verandah and appropriated the crusts and other dainties that have heretofore served as food for the birds when it was scarce and hard to obtain.

OCCIDENT SECURE FROM REVOLUTION

Chinese Word Has Not Universal Significance Says Lewis Gannett

NEW YORK, March 28 (United Press).—The Western world is safe from Chinese "revolution" despite the manifesto of the Cantonese Nationalist commander at Shanghai, Lewis S. Gannett, an authority on China and a member of the staff of the Nation, told the United Press Saturday.

Gannett is associate editor of the Nation and has just written a pamphlet, Young China, in which he interprets the situation, which is attracting the interest of the world to the Yangtze valley.

Despatches printed in the United States quoted the Cantonese commander at Shanghai as saying that this recently captured city would become a base for world revolution, but Gannett explained that revolution in the Chinese sense does not mean what it does in western minds.

"When Gen. Pei Ching-Shi," said Gannett, "says that 'Shanghai will become a strong base not only for Chinese nationalism, but for world revolution,' he is thinking of the only continent he knows—Asia. He thinks of the freeing of the yellow and brown peoples from domination by the white race. Revolution to him means primarily driving the Europeans out of their dominant positions in Asia.

"Chinese nationalism is fiercely anti-imperialistic," Gannett continued, "and it has no patience with the argument that one people may govern another for the latter's good. Chiang Kai-Shi, the Nationalist generalissimo, once told me that America could not really be a democracy, otherwise she would

ROWDIES BREAK UP ELECTION MEETING

Lloyd George Gives Address For Candidate at North Southwark.

LONDON, March 28 (Canadian Press Cable).—Organized rowdyism marked the appearance of David Lloyd George, former Premier, on a Liberal platform in North Southwark Saturday night in support of the candidacy of E. A. Strauss, Liberal, in the by-election made necessary by the resignation of Dr. Haden Guest, former Labor member. Dr. Guest is contesting the by-election as an independent constitutionalist. He broke with the Labor party as a consequence of a disagreement over their attitude on the Chinese question.

The disturbance was so menacing it was doubtful at one time if the meeting would continue. "If these organized efforts to prevent free speech are persisted in," declared Mr. Lloyd George, "you will find before long a measure in the Commons making it possible to set aside the result of an election in which candidates did not have a fair opportunity of presenting their cases. When these gentlemen find judges insisting that as there was no opportunity of free speech the election is void, they will soon alter their attitude."

Polling takes place in North Southwark to-day. Bernard Shaw has written Dr. Guest: "You were entirely right on the Chinese amendment, and if Baldwin had had the gumption to go to the country he would have been safe for another five years."

Sir John Simon, prominent Asquithian Liberal, speaking at Clockheaton, Yorkshire, expressed profound gratitude to the Government for sending a defence force to Shanghai. He would despise himself, he said, if he registered tepid approval of the British precautions.

French Devise Silent and Invisible Plane With Muffled Engine and Night-Color Paint

PARIS, March 28.—Silent airplanes, painted the color of night, which can neither be heard nor seen after dark, will soon be a practical accomplishment of the French Aviation Service, it was reliably stated Saturday.

Recent French experiments with new wonderful silencers have demonstrated that the airplane equipped with them could not be heard at a distance of 300 feet from the ground. Within a short time, absolutely silent airplanes will be a feature of the French Aviation Service, according to the same reports.

The laboratory has also been working for many months on the question of the color of planes and the experts have decided upon a new dark paint which has the effect of so successfully blending the plane into the night atmosphere as to make it invisible even within a few hundred feet of the landing field.

With the so-called "disappearing" paint and silent engines, the death-dealing qualities of the airplane will be increased enormously, in the opinion of aeronautical experts. They cite as an example a night attack by several hundred armored planes, including bombers, upon an enemy city or position.

The enemy anti-aircraft defences would be immediately placed at a great disadvantage, for about the only means of detection left would be searchlights.

Paris Poet Advertises For Wife To Support Him

PARIS, Mar. 28 (AP)—Poets receive their share of popular acclaim in France, but not enough money to keep the wolf from the door, says one of them, decorated by the French Academy, who has advertised for a wife with sufficient income to keep him at his scribbling.

A business woman, "even a foreigner," would do, the advertisement in the agony column of a newspaper says.

The poet asserts that when recognition finally comes he is assured of immortality, and might even become a member of the Chamber of Deputies.

MAYOR DENIES SIGNING PAPER

Has Never Seen Petition For Release of Percy Cowan.

JOKE INTENDED?

"I have never seen the petition nor have I been asked to sign it," His Worship Mayor W. T. Holloway told The Examiner this morning. He was speaking of an article which appeared in Saturday's paper which credited him with being one of the signatories to a petition which had been forwarded to the Department of Justice appealing for the release of Percy Cowan of Bowmanville, who recently was sentenced at Cobourg for manslaughter arising out of the death of a girl who was struck by the car which he was driving.

His Worship was at a loss to explain how his name came to be connected with the petition and is inclined to think some person gave his name to The Examiner's informant as a so-called joke.

GUNMEN SHOOT THREE FATALLY

Trap Them in Corridor of Detroit Apartment House.

USE MACHINE GUN.

DETROIT, March 28 (Canadian Press).—George Cohen and Joseph Bloom were killed and Frank Wright, alias Burke, was probably fatally wounded as they walked down the corridor of an apartment building early to-day.

Wright told the police he and his companions were summoned to the apartment in Alexandrine Avenue to release "Fish," an acquaintance who had been kidnapped.

"As we were walking down the corridor a steel fire door swung open and three men began shooting at us," Wright said.

"One man with a machine gun was in the middle, and on each side of him was a man firing away with a pistol."

GANDHI VERY ILL.

MADRAS, British India, March 28 (Canadian Press). — Mohandas Gandhi, leader of the Indian Nationalists, is ill from overwork. His condition is not serious, but doctors advise a complete rest. Gandhi, known to his followers as 'Mahatma' or wonder worker, is 57 years old.

BUT THE CANTONESE INVADERS ARE MOBILIZING BIGGER ARMY FOR RENEWED MARCH TO PEKING

Plans Yet Indefinite, But Compromise With Northerners Refused.

DANGER SPREADS.

Shanghai Defensive Strength Increased By New Battleships.

(By Francis Misselswitz, United Press Staff Correspondent.)

SHANGHAI, March 27—Foreigners in Shanghai are absolutely safe so far as the Cantonese army is concerned, Chiang Kai-Shek, youthful Commander-in-Chief of the Nationalist forces, told the United Press in an interview today, in which he also outlined the Southern plan to drive on towards Peking at the earliest possible time.

"My army is ordered to preserve order in Shanghai," he said, adding that he had telegrapher Eugene Chen, Foreign Minister of the Southern Government, to come to Shanghai to negotiate with the foreign diplomats over the status of the settlement and concessions. He said he did not believe the Communist-Centrist split in the Kuomintang (Nationist) Government was serious.

No Peace for Northerners

But for the Northern faction Chiang had no such words of peace as he offered to foreigners.

"The Cantonese will not compromise," he said. "We will drive on to Peking as soon as possible, to attain our goal of a united peaceful China."

Plans for the punitive expedition northward are as yet indefinite, said the plain-spoken commander, who has led the Southern army on its sweep northward through the rice fields from Canton to Shanghai, Nanking, and the Yangtse River in a campaign which seasoned military observers said could not be successful.

"But I have given the order for mobiliation for our final campaign, and it will start soon," he added.

"Three columns of troops will push northward on three fronts, one will follow the coast through Shantung; one will go through Honan, clearing out the sector held by Wu-Pei-Fu. The third will follow the Nanking-Peking railway to the northern capital."

The unbearded Commander-in-Chief of the Southern armies greeted me without ostentation. He was clad in the plain uniform of a private, which habitually he wears, and he wore no decorations or insigna, unless a necktie of red and blue—the Cantonese colors—could be called such.

"I am cognisant of the friendly sympathy of America," Chiang said, "and needless to say, it is deeply appreciated." The incident at Nanking was most unfortunate and if reports are true that Americans joined the British in the bombardment of the city, I fear the news may cause misunderstanding and doubt of the good will of Americans toward the revolutionary party.

Blames Northerners

"The stories of refugees of atrocities at Nanking may possibly be true. I am investigating thoroughly. It must be remembered, however, that China is in the midst of revolution. The enemy constantly is seeking to spread ill feeling abroad against the revolutionists. Our policy has always been against hostility toward foreigners and all my subordinates have from me personally definite instructions to protect lives and property regardless of nationality. The Northern retreaters often dress in Nationalist uniforms when they are engaged in looting to spread distrust of the Southern cause."

After giving his assurance of the safety of foreigners in Shanghai, Chiang said the Southerners were trying to restore peace and tranquility from anarchy.

"We are cleaning out the lawless element and the gunmen who cause trouble to foreigners everywhere," he said.

"We will leave the problem of the Shanghai foreign settlements to Diplomacy, for I am a fighting man, but I will back the Cantonese Government's policy to the limit."

CABINET CALLED.

LONDON, March 28. Canadian Press. — A special meeting of the Cabinet was called because of the rapid growth of the anti-foreign propaganda in Shanghai, the principal point of refugee for foreigners in Nationalist China. The decision to call the Cabinet together was reached last night by Premier Baldwin, who was at Chequers Court for the week-end.

COMMISSION TO INVESTIGATE DISTILLERIES

Expected To Conclude Examination of Port Oficials This Evening.

LONG SESSION.

Plan To Hold Sittings at Windsor and Niagara Falls.

TORONTO, Ont., March 28. — Investigation into breweries and distilleries of Toronto will be undertaken by the Royal Commission on Customs during the present week. Thus far the Commission has touched on this phase of the investigation only to the extent of examining officers of the O'Keefe Beverages, Ltd., in regard to the disappearance of certain books and documents which are required by the auditors. The first week of the Ontario sittings, which concluded here last Friday evening, has been devoted very largely to examination of the port officers of Toronto. This will continue to-day, but it is hoped to conclude it by the evening. Then, according to present plans, inquiry into the breweries and distilleries will follow on Tuesday or Wednesday.

There is so much material for the commission to deal with in Toronto that it is now practically certain that the sittings here will last through the present week end into the next. In addition to the port of Toronto, a number of other western Ontario customs officers are to be looked into during the sittings here. The business handled by some of these ports is quite extensive and they cannot be disposed of in a day. The only other points which the commission plans to visit in Ontario, with the exception of Ottawa, are Windsor and Niagara Falls. The Windsor sittings will follow those in Toronto and will occupy at least a week and probably longer.

Smuggling Complaints.

In addition to the investigation of brewerier and distilleries of Toronto, it is understood that the commission will look into a number of complaints of smuggling or under-valuation covering individual firm in the city. Investigation of Sales Tax collection, which revealed considerable arrears among firms in Toronto, is understood to be practically complete excepting as it will enter into the examination of individual firms. It is not unlikely that the importation of silk as well as some other commodities into Ontario will receive attention either this week or next.

Economy Cook Book Excites Whole of Norway Happy Husband, Angry Wives Thronged At Test

OSLO, March 28 (A.P.).—All Norway is in a ferment over a cook-book.

No society scandal, political intrigue or diplomatic revelation is recalled which created a furore equaling that provoked by a plain little book of recipes written by Mrs. Ester Meidell, a native of Sweden, who married a Norwegian and lives at the inland town of Kongsberg.

Mrs. Meidell has stirred Norway by a cook book which, she maintains, contains menus for a family of four at a total cost of 100 kroner (about $25) monthly. This statement has infuriated the good Nordic housewives of Norway.

She was immediately challenged to prove it.

The cook book author came to Oslo and gave public demonstrations. Probably for the first time in the history of cookery, mounted police had to clear the streets of eager husbands and housewives who clamored to hear those secrets about cheap and wholesome food.

Four doctors were appointed to supervise the experiment and ascertain the nutritive value of Mrs. Meidell's dishes. The verdict was in her favor.

One of the judges in the test told The Associated Press that there was no doubt that the dishes contained ample food value and plenty of calories for persons doing average work. This expert also agreed with Mrs. Meidell that Norwegians eat too much meat and ought to substitute more vegetables for animal food.

MORE BLOODSHED IS FEARED AS WAVE OF ANTI-FOREIGNISM SPREADS OVER YANGSTE VALLEY

Protected By Guns Of Navy, Foreigners Begin Complete Evacuation.

SEIZE FREIGHT SHIPS.

Scores of Refugees From Interior Overflowing Quarters at Shanghai.

SHANGHAI, March 28.—(Canadian Press.)—Under the protecting muzzles of British and United States' war vessels, an almost complete foreign evacuation of the great Yangtse valley was under way to-day in the midst of a rising tide of anti-foreignism all along the river.

From virtually every Yangtse port and from many inland stations the waterways and landways are dotted with gruops of foreigners fleeing from Nationalist territory to the now uncertain haven of Shanghai.

The evacuation is under official supervision and is impelled by the fear of the anti-foreign wave now sweeping the Yangtse Valley as a reaction of the Nanking bombardment to protect the foreigners on Socony hill.

ConsulGeneral Clarence E. Gauss has asked the department of state at Washington to advise the home mission boards to bring some of the missionaries home to relieve Shanghai's refugee congestion which is growing more acute daily.

Overflow Quarters.

During the past 48 hours more than 500 refugees, most of them missionaries, have reached Shanghai and have overcrowded the emergency quarters. To-day nearly 500 more are expected and beds are being placed in the navy Young Men's Christian Association's gymnasium, in churches and schools.

Five river boats lie fogbound outside of Shanghai with nearly 500 refugees aboard. Scores of foreigners coming from Kiangsu and Chekiang are swelling the totals and the tide is only in mid-flow. Missionaries who hitherto had refused to leave their posts, or having once withdrawn had returned are coming out with the rest. One of the five ships now lying off Shanghai, the Suiwo, brings 250 refugees, mostly women and children, from Hankow, whence the evacuation was hastened by the attitude of labor there.

Under Escort.

About 100 refugees from Hankow arrived Sunday morning aboard the Lungwho. Three steamers are bringing approximately 150 refugees from Nanking, while 31 Britishers and 30 Americans embarked on a steamer at Chingkiang and are en route to Shanghai under escort of H. M. S. Dauntless and the U. S. destroyer Paul Jones.

Propaganda, emanating from Hankow, is demanding revenge for the Nanking incident, and is widespread. At Wuhu, where all foreign women and children have been evacuated, anti-foreign agitation is rampant, and soldiers are mounting guns on a hill overlooking the river for the alleged purpose of obstructing foreign shipping.

Arrest Officers.

Cantonese troops seized the Jardine and Matheson Company's steamer Kiangwo at Wuhu yesterday for the transportation of 2,000 soldiers down river. The British cruiser Wild Swan, replying to the Kiangwo's distress signals, went alongside. The Cantonese were disarmed and put ashore, and the three senior Chinese officers detained.

At Chinkiang, Chinese servants, loyal to their foreign employers, urgently warned them to leave the city. Only five foreign men remain in that city.

Yangtse travel is growing increasingly hazardous and a majority of the refugee ships are being conveyed by naval vessels. Naval officers report that both sides of the river are now in Nationalist hands and that there is firing by Nationalist troops.

Arrive From Interior.

Sunday evening a military train brought forty refugees from Hangchow and Eashing, while others came from Soochow. The Hangchow refugees reported that Nanking was the climax to a steadily rising anti-foreignism, even those those who had a life-long confidence in their safety, expressing the belief that it was perilous to continue to live among these people.

WORK FOR LEGISLATORS.

Much To Be Done If Prorogation Is To Come Before Easter.

OTTAWA, March 28.—(Canadian Press).— Three intensive weeks of work are ahead of the Commons and the Senate if there is to be prorogation by Easter. It is apparent, however, that the Government and Opposition are working toward the conclusion of business by the middle of next month.

Lyrics Of Life

(By Douglas Malloch.)

LIFE'S LOG

A day seems little in life's span,
But every day an older man
Take up the task, life slips away,
Although today was but a day.

Yet every captain on the seas
Each day must keep account of these;
And every night the day's report
Must show some progress of some sort.

Oh, let us keep a log of life.
Not drift with winds, not run from strife,
But make some progress, after all,
However hard, however small.

Then, even when the day departs,
'Twill leave no sadness in our hearts,
If we may know it was not lost,
That some meridian we crossed.

THE LIFE OF CHRIST : Other Parables of Jesus

Synopsis Arranged by Dr. Wm. E. Gilroy, D.D., Sketches by Kroesen.

Through the story of an Unjust Steward, who by fraudulent sagacity served his own interests, Jesus teaches the lesson of zeal and sagacity in the right use of wealth. "Ye cannot serve two masters . . . God and Mammon." (Luke XVI : 1-13)

Jesus emphasizes the lesson of the obligations of charity and brotherhood by the story of Lazarus the beggar, sitting neglected at Dives' gate. (Luke XVI : 19-31)

Jesus rebukes the sin of ingratitude, when only one of ten lepers, whom he healed, returns to give thanks. (Luke XVII : 12-19)

Through the striking contrast between the proud, self-righteous Pharisee, thanking "God that he is not as other men," and the humble Publican crying, "God be merciful to me, a sinner," Jesus teaches the true spirit of prayer, saying, "He that humbleth himself shall be exalted." (Luke XVIII : 1-14)

WORDY BATTLE AT PORT HOPE

Ensues After Objection To Adjournment in Sculthorpe-McIntyre Case.

AWARDED FEES.

PORT HOPE, March 28. — G. N. Gordon, K. C., Peterboro, and D. H. Chisholm, K. C., Port Hope, engaged in a wordy legal battle in Division Court here Friday morning before County Judge J. E. McGlade in the case of Sculthorpe and Son, vs. F. D. McIntyre.

The matter was adjourned. In this case, Sculthorpe and Son sued F. D. McIntyre, Peterboro, for $119.50 in connection with a pea contract, Mr. Chisholm acting for Toronto lawyers who are conducting the case for Sculthorpe and Son, asked for adjournment in view of the fact that an alleged contract between Sculthorpe and Son and defendant, was not available, and that transcription of evidence taken in Master's Chambers at Cobourg verifying the existence of the contract, was not obtainable.

"He is just suffering as a great many other country town lawyers with Toronto principal lawyers, who think every case should be stopped just because someone has not got the case prepared," commented Mr. Gordon. I object to the adjournment because there is no contract, and he cannot get a contract. Sculthorpe and McIntyre will both swear to that. In fact the Sculthorpe Company owe Mr. McIntyre over $5000, and Clarkson's show him to a preferred creditor for $8000."

"There was no contract but a clerk in the Sculthorpe office marked "F. D. M." at the bottom of a record which was assumed to mean that my client had a contract for some 15 bushels of peas. These Toronto lawyers promises that they would be here to-day and if they are not ready to go ahead I don't think they are entitled to consideration and I ask for dismissal of this action."

Recalls no Contract.

Judge McGlade, who presided in a previous case involving Sculthorpe pea contracts, etc., had a hazy recollection that it had come out at that hearing that there was no contract.

Mr. Gordon stated that he would agree to the reopening of the case at any time if verification of a contract was produced. His objection to adjournment was that his own fees for two hearings would exceed the mount of the claim. He asked that $25 be set as counsel fees for the sittings.

Judge McGlade felt that he would have to adjourn the case but stipulated that counsel fees and costs of the day should go to defendant in any case. He thought that $25 would be excessive as counsel fee.

Mr. Chisholm was asked if he agreed.

"I can only agree with your Honour," said Mr. Chisholm. "I do not blame my learned friend for asking $25 counsel fee. I would ask for a similar fee in the same position—but I would not expect to get it."

SALVAGING CRUISER MOLTKE

With the passing of winter salvage operations have been resumed in Scapa Flow on the German battle ships that were sunk during the world war. One hundred men are engaged in recovering the battle-cruiser Moltke, which lies bottom up in 70 feet of water.

Nearly 175,000 automobiles of American type were sold from foreign branch plants last year.

Labor disputes in Germany caused a loss of 1,250,000 working days last year, 17,000,000 in 1925, and 36,000,000 in 1924.

ENVOYS CLASH IN DEBATE AT GENEVA COUNCIL

Land Arms Should Be Studied Apart For Naval and Air.

DELEGATES WARNED.

Fifth and Most Important Section of Phase Be Discussed To-day.

GENEVA, March 28—Never have the difficulties on the road to disarmament been better exposed than Saturday morning when, after a two-hour debate, the Preparatory Committee accepted in the first reading half of the first phase concerning the limitation of effectives, but only after the French had made reservations.

This phase is divided into five parts, the first four, which combined read that the high contracting parties agree to limit the number of men on service to their armed forces or formations organized on a military basis.

Discussion of the fifth and most important section of the phase, which in the British text, reads "who could within a —— time from the outbreak of hostilities be available for dispatch to the firing line," will be taken up on Monday.

After a demand from Rumania for a preamble in order that no delegation might be embarassed at the end of the discussion had been withdrawn, Lord Cecil opposed the words "on service" saying that they were vague and might exclude reserves from consideration.

After assurances from M. De Brouckere, Lord Cecil waived objection and the real debate opened on the British thesis to limit the discussion of this point to the military forces and on the French thesis to extend it to military, naval and air forces.

Lord Cecil pleaded that all consideration of naval and air effectiveness should be considered later in their proper headings, at which time the commission could make a return of effectives and insert its decisions.

He said it was embarrassing for him at the present moment of the discussion to open the naval debate in order to make a point on only one section. He declared, however, that the best means of limiting naval personnel was by limiting naval material.

Boncour Opposes British

M. Paul Boncour bitterly opposed the British attitude and, taking up a particular remark Lord Cecil had made, he declared that as the navy could use all its merchant marine personnel there was no manner of limiting the reserve forces on which a navy could call. Lord Cecil disagreed and continued to press the point.

M. Paul Boncour, after declaring that if the principles agreed to regarding land effectives was not adopted, said that he would not be able to accept them with regard to naval effectives.

Taking up the next section of the phase, "Who could within —— time from the outbreak of hostilities be available for dispatch to the firing line," Lord Cecil stressed the importance of agreeing upon a plan which would effectively limit trained reserves.

Pointing to the difficulties quoted by M. de Brouckere that trained reserves cannot be limited, he said that there exist two opposing theses of limiting, the first by reducing service and the second by reducing the number of men trained.

The first method he held did not really limit the number of men and the French proposal for limiting service to one year would not limit efficiency, as good soldiers could be turned out in a year.

Britain and Belgium Clash

The second method was difficult, he continued, as it went against law and equality, and all he could say was that he considered a direct method better than an indirect.

Replying to a question previously made by M. De Brouckere, concerning the meaning of "available for dispatch to the firing line," and using M. De Brouckere's example of the machine gun, Lord Cecil said that it was obvious that only the actual crew in the trenches with a machine gun was affected. M. De Brouckere replied that it is going rather far to say that those serving a machine gun are not at the front.

Cliff Dwellers' Cemetery 1,000 Years Old Is Found

LOS ANGELES, March 28 (AP)—The long sought burial grounds of the Casa Grande (Ariz.) cliff dwellers, probably a thousand years old, have been found by the Southwest Museum's field expedition, it was announced to-day by Dr. James A. B. Scherer, director of the museum here.

A funeral urn of beautifully shaded red on buff coloring and containing bone fragments and ashes of the dead was brought to Los Angeles by Dr. Scherer on his return from Arizona. The urn, the first finding of the expedition in charge of Harold S. Gladwin, revealed that two forms of burial—cremation and earth interment—were used by the cliff dwellers.

The complete skeleton of an adult, lying prone and facing the sunset, was unearthed near where the urn was discovered.

OLD MASTERS

Ah, love, let us be true
To one another! for the world, which seems
To lie before us like a land of dreams,
So various, so beautiful, so new,
Hath really neither joy, nor love, nor light,
Nor certitude, nor peace, nor help for pain;
And we are here as on a darkling plain
Swept with confused alarms of struggle and flight,
Where ignorant armies clash by night.

TAX METHODS CONDEMNED BY SINGLE TAXER

Present Taxation System Is Attacked By James R. Brown.

TALKS TO ROTARY.

Head of Manhattan Single Tax Club Is Speaker To-day.

That an average land tax of $25 upon every lot in Peterborough would yield a revenue of $847,500 was one of the interesting statements made at to-day's luncheon of the Peterborough Rotary Club when James R. Brown, president of the Manhattan Single Tax Club of New York City, addressed the members on "Foolish Things That Wise Men Do."

A speaker with a ready wit, and happy faculty of selecting apt illustrations, Mr. Brown scored the present taxation methods in a manner that made his address full of interest.

"You need not laugh at the farmer who bought an eight-day clock and would it up every day for twenty years, and then discovered it was an eight-day clock," he reminded his hearers.

"Nor do you need to go to the theatre to get a laugh. Just step down to the tax office, and after you have made a thorough survey of our methods of doing business there, if you have any sense of humor, you will go out back of the City Hall and laugh your head off."

Mr. Brown condemned the present system of taxation because it was he said, based on the ability of a person to pay rather than on the sound basis of payment for service rendered. It taxed a man for what the town did for him, based on what a man did for himself. Taxation, he maintained, was payment for social service, and should be charged accordingly. A system that caused a citizen to pay higher taxes because he painted his house or put in a bath tub was nothing but a system of fines, and it would be much more logical to fine the people who did not paint their residences or put in sanitary conveniences.

As an illustration of the way in which the present taxation worked out, Mr. Brown compared the case of two citizens, the owners of lots that adjoined each other, and each had a value of $1,000. Citizen No. 1 built a $9,000 house and immediately the tax department raised his assessment to $10,000, upon which he paid some $300 tax. He was an asset and he had to pay $300 a year. Citizen No. 2 simply held his land without doing any building and his taxes remained at $30 a year.

Referring to Peterborough, Mr. Brown said that this city had an area of some 2,825 acres. Allowing for streets, this means 33,900 lots, 25 by 100. By abolishing all taxes upon the value of improvements and products and an average tax of $25 a lot would yield a revenue of $847,000, while the budget this year amounts to $786,000.

The thanks of the Rotary Club were expressed to Mr. Brown by Past President V. J. McElderry.

At to-day's meeting Past President Fred L. Roy, for the nominating committee, recommended the following directors for next year: A. L. Killaly, Andrew Brown, Gordon S. Matthews, Walter Blackwell, and Tom Dutton.

The election of directors will be held next month.

A letter from the Rotary Annes announcing their intention to purchase a skiff and an outboard motor for the boys' camp, and stating that a further sum of $395 was available for use in connection with the camp was received with applause, and the secretary was instructed to convey the thanks of the Club to the Rotary Annes.

BUT THE CANTONESE

ese reports that two hundred thousand Chinese were killed when British and United States warships opened fire at Nanking. There is no mistaking the relief of the refugees as they come within the confines of the International settlement, for they are confident that the large combined army of foreign defence forces will serve to prevent any organized attempt at attack.

Prepare for Trouble.

Meanwhile those entrusted with the protection of the International settlement, are preparing for all eventualities, as a strong feeling against foreigners is evident everywhere in the native city. Anti-foreign posters and fiery speeches by the students kee the Chinese in such a frame of mind that anything is likely to happen. So in anticipation of possible trouble the barriers of the International settlement are being strengthened and the various generals are arranging for closer co-operation in the event of untoward incidents.

A virtual state of war exists between the Nationalist soldiers and foreign vessels traversing the Yangtse River. Nearly every ship is fired on, making it perilous for merchant men to proceed without naval escort. Naval vessels themselves are targets for southern snipers. Three United States and seven Japanese destroyers arrived to-day to reinforce Shanghai's naval concentration.

Settlement Crowded.

Emergency quarters in the International settlement are crowded. Beds are being set up in churches, schools and the Navy Y.M.C.A., for the care of foreigners, 500 of whom (for the most part missionaries) have arrived in the last 48 hours.

The next few days will probably see a greater influx, as it is learned that large numbers of missionaries, who had refused to leave their stations now are making ready to come to Shanghai.

Boxers Still Active

VANCOUVER, March 28 (Canadian Press).—The murder of his wife on the streets of Chengtu, Szechwan Province, last June 7, by a Boxer swordsman, was described by Rev. W. E. Sibley, missionary, who arrived here yesterday on the Canadian Pacific liner "Empress of Asia," as a "sacrifice for the rest of the white people in the province."

"The same Boxer organization responsible for the 1900 war is still active in China and is at the root of the present strife," said Mr. Sibley.

VESUVIUS AGAIN ACTIVE.

Resumes Eruptions After a Few Days of Quietness.

NAPLES, Italy, March 28 (Canadian Press).—Mount Vesuvius has resumed activity after a lull of a few days. The eruption, while spectacular, does not threaten to become dangerous.

Cough Caused Constant Coughing

Mrs. D. M. Nolan, Douglastown, N.B., writes:—"Two years ago I had a terrible cold which settled in my bronchial tubes and caused constant coughing, and I could not sleep day or night. I read about and thought I would give it a trial. After taking three bottles I was completely rid of my cough, and have never had a cold since."

"Dr. Wood's" has been on the market for the past 38 years, and its timely use may save you from suffering from some serious bronchial or lung trouble.

A GOOD CAUSE.

Not a money-making proposition, but rather an opportunity to strengthen the morale and to brighten the outlook of men who have suffered much for Canada, is the sale of work made by disabled Canadian soldiers which will be held in the Canadian Legion Hall on Thursday and Friday of this week under the auspices of the Thursday Club.

A liberal patronage means a great deal to the crippled veterans whose handicraft will be sold—not so much from a dollar and cents angle, but in the evidence that it will afford that the people for whom they fought have not forgotten their services, and that although they came out of the great adventure disabled, the world still offers them a useful field of service.

The good people of Peterborough rarely turn a deaf ear to an appeal on behalf of a worthy cause, and The Examiner is confident that in the present instance the response will do justice both to the city's reputation along this line and to the merit of the appeal itself.

Remember the dates, March 31 and April 1, and the place, the Canadian Legion (G.W.V.A.) Hall.

THE STORY OF THE C.P.R.

Decidedly in keeping with the fact that Canada is this year celebrating the sixtieth anniversary of Confederation is the series of distinctive and attractive advertisements by which the Canadian Pacific Railway is reminding the people of this country of the very important part that great transportation system has played in the development of the Dominion.

Canadians are proud of the Canadian Pacific as a model of efficiency that throughout the world testifies to Canadian enterprise shrewdness and ability.

It is well, therefore, that in this jubilee year the Canadian Pacific Railway should bring before the country it has served so well the fascinating story of the construction, under the greatest difficulties and in the face of a strong opinion that the project could not possibly prove a commercial success, of the line across the continent that linked the Pacific Coast with Eastern Canada and opened for development the rich wheat lands of the Prairie Provinces.

Without the C.P.R. the fruits of Confederation would have been meagre indeed, and it is but simple justice that at this time when Canada proposes to celebrate the achievements of the past sixty years that some acknowledgment should be made of the great share in the growth of the Dominion that has been contributed by this great system.

There is in every one of these unusual advertisements a true Canadian spirit that is most inspiring and, especially in jubilee year, of great interest to every Canadian.

THE BOY WILL BE KING.

The week of May 9-15 in Peterborough is to find the boys of this community the rulers of the city, the programme launched by the Peterborough Rotary Club and supported by other local organizations being designed to give the son a place in the sun, with father in the picture, too, but in the background.

It is to be an unique demonstration intended to show Peterborough what a splendid asset she possesses in her boy life, and to convince the boy that his elders are interested in his development and success.

Beginning on Monday, the boy comes into his kingdom.

That is son-and-father day, and the boy is expected to bring dad down to the Grand Opera House to hear Taylor Statten, Canada's most famous boys' work leader, give one of his characteristic addresses.

Tuesday is circus day, featured by a parade of the city's boyhood in the evening and a circus in the Brock Street Rink, the Tuesday night performance being for the public.

Boys' day in citizenship is Wednesday, when some of the boys will see the local municipal bodies in action, and all who participated in the Tuesday parade will be guests at a complimentary circus performance in the rink.

Boys' day in industry will be observed on Thursday—but will be carried on throughout the week as well to give the boys a chance to inspect local industries.

Friday will be boys' hobby day, with a hobby show in the evening; Saturday, sports day; and Sunday will be son-and-father day in the churches, every church in the city being invited to participate in the closing feature of a most unusual week.

SOUNDING THE "FALL IN."

A resolution, moved by Premier G. H. Ferguson and seconded by Hon. W. E. N. Sinclair, Liberal Leader, will be passed by the Ontario Legislature this week calling upon "all public bodies, including municipal councils, school boards, patriotic, business and fraternal organizations, to utilize every available means for commemorating the diamond jubilee of Confederation so that it may be accomplished in a manner that will worthily express the patriotism of the people of Canada and will serve to impress the world with our devotion to our country and in our abiding faith in its future and in the permanence of our liberties and institutions."

This is a veritable mobilization call that should drive home to the people of this Province the very great importance of the jubilee celebration.

That they have not as yet realized that the diamond jubilee is to be the biggest national demonstration in the history of the Dominion is apparent for nowhere has there been that rally of the whole community that is necessary to make the celebration as complete as possible.

This is not to be the usual fireworks-and-sports affair, with the planning and the arrangements to be done by three or four committee men, but a national observance of the birth of the Dominion, staged in a manner that will, as the resolution puts it, "impress the world with our devotion to our country."

Every organization in Peterborough should do its part.

The same spirit that in the war years put the Patriotic Fund campaign over the top and made the Victory Loan drives a remarkable success must be enlisted in the jubilee celebration.

For once Canada is going to let herself go.

We're going to tell the world that we are proud of our history, proud of the statesmen whose vision made the Dominion possible, proud of our country.

We're going to celebrate in a way that will make every nation on the map get a new view of Canada.

And to do the thing right it's got to be everybody's job—there must be no slackers or shirkers here or anywhere.

So far as Ontario is concerned, the Legislature is sounding the "Fall in"—and let us hope that the people of Peterborough will answer as one man.

THE MAPLE SUGAR INDUSTRY.

Maple sugar making holds a place of importance in Ontario and Quebec, and to a lesser extent in the Maritime Provinces, which is little realized by most Canadians.

The annual production of this toothsome product of the maple tree amounts to between 15,000,000 and 25,000,000 pounds annually, with an average of 18,000,000 pounds, according to "Natural Resources." The major part of this big production comes from the Province of Quebec, where the census figures (for it seems that the census takes note of such details) give the number of trees tapped in an average year as 4,760,000 as against 1,600,000 in Ontario and approximately 150,000 in the Maritime Provinces.

The census also reveals that some 55,000 owners of woodlots in Eastern Canada, including Ontario, are engaged in the industry and last year's crop, according to the Bureau of Statistics, was 1,137,303 pounds of sugar and 1,746,570 gallons of syrup, representing a total value of $4,895,375.

Large as the output seems, it is less than a quarter of the total which Canada is capable of producing every year, authorities on the subject state. In the Provincial forests of Eastern Canada there are still vast numbers of untapped maple trees awaiting the sugar-maker, and already enterprising members of that fraternity are beginning operations in the Crown forests of Quebec under a system of permits.

The Dominion Forest Service estimates that there are about 60,000,000 maple trees in the Dominion from which to draw future supplies of the succulent sap which is the basis of both the sugar and syrup.

The industry is one of the oldest on the continent and has an interesting historical background. Maple syrup was made by the Indians long before the advent of the white man in Canada, and it was from the aborigines that the early settlers learned the art. It has proved a profitable undertaking on a large number of farms, for it fits in well with other farm work by occupying what is usually a slack season in the agricultural industry. It is a profitable crop and the demand for good maple syrup and maple sugar is steadily increasing in this country, in addition to which there is a growing export market. It is probably the most distinctively Canadian product which the Dominion has to offer to the world.—Lindon Advertiser.

A CATALOGUE OF LOVELY THINGS.

In one of his most attractive poems Richard Le Gallienne gives a list of the lovely things that he is going to set down in memory against the days of darkness and trouble that may come. His might seem a strange list to some people, and I would not suggest that every one make the same selection that he does, but the thing he does every man ought to do for himself. We all ought to have a catalogue of lovely things to which we can turn in our hour of need.

Memory is the most wonderful of all the wonderful gifts that has been bestowed upon man, and yet it is a question if very many of us put it to the high and holy and helpful uses that we might and ought to put it to. It is not merely that we can remember, that in itself is marvellous beyond all description, but as well as that we can cherish memories, we can actually lay them up as one would hang pictures upon the walls of a lovely room, and then go to them and refresh and cheer our souls with a sight of them, when such a sight might be the thing of all things needed at the time. A wonderful thing to be able to do but wonderful most of all in the way it ma ybless and brighten and cheer our lives if we will only do it wisely.

What are some of the things that we might put into our catalogue of lovely things that would serve us in good stead as we might turn to them in some evil day of lonesomeness or trouble or wearying care? Mr. Le Gallienne mentions some that he believes will serve him—a lovely woman's face, a great-eyed virgin star, a water lily in a reeded pool, dew-drenched lilac sprays, the sea, a sunset, books, and others. All of them good, no doubt, but you and I can add to that list things of our own that will serve our need in their own peculiar way, for such a list to serve our need must be our very own.

Are there not memories of fair days and fair deeds that have come into our lives that it would greatly refresh us to think upon? Are there not great deeds upon the pages of the history we have read that it would be a pity to pass over and forget when the memory of them would help to make all things better! Isn't the whole world and all life and every page of man's experience crowded with lovely things, and yet so many of us are content to cherish the mean and the unworthy and the unlovely. We ought to begin making our catalogue right away.—The New Outlook.

MONTREAL GRAIN AND PRODUCE

MONTREAL, March 28 (Canadian Press)—There was an improved demand from both the United Kingdom and the Continent for Manitoba grades of wheat on Saturday here and a moderate amount of business was done for nearby shipment. The trade in coarse grains was slow.

A stronger feeling developed for Canadian Western oats on the domestic market and prices were marked up 1-2c per bushel.

A moderate amount of business was worked in Spring wheat grades of flour, and the undertone was firm. The movement of Winter wheat flour continued slow, but prices were unchanged.

An active business was done in eggs and prices ruled steady. The receipts were 2,992 cases.

The strength that characterized the local butter situation last week was more pronounced Saturday and prices were market up another 1-2c to 1 cent per pound.

All the top grades were quoted at 46c per pound. The receipts were 270 packages.

Extreme dullness marked the cheese trade, and the feeling was irregular. The receipts were 44 boxes.

MONTREAL, March 28 (Canadian Press). — Sterling exchange rates were quoted here yesterday as follows:

Sterling demand $4.84 3-4.
Sterling cables $4.85 5-16.

CHICAGO GRAIN

CHICAGO, March 28 (Canadian Press).—Increased tension over warlike developments as to China, together with an unexpected upturn in Liverpool quotations, did much yesterday to lift the wheat market here. Export purchasing of North American wheat was larger, totalling 750,000 bushels or more. Wheat closed firm, 5-8c to 1c net higher; Corn 1-8c to 5-8c down; Oats at a shade to 1-4c advance, and Provisions unchanged to 7c decline.

Corn weakened at the last on account of selling against purchases of wheat. Besides the cash corn basis was easier despite smallness of receipts. Eastern shipping demand here for corn remained slow, commission houses bought future deliveries of oats, basing the action on expected reduction of stocks.

Timely Warning Results in Their Leaving Burning Hotel.

Saskatchewan Men Say Unemployment Should Be Solved First.

DR. CRANE'S DAILY EDITORIAL

WILLS

The Mercantile Trust Company of Baltimore has issued a little booklet called "Studies in Wills."

This book is not for sale, but is distributed among interested parties.

The making of a will is a very old idea. It is the effort of a man to impose his desires upon his followers after he is dead.

The making of wills has furnished great work for many romantic tales and many of the facts of history in regard to it are quite interesting.

Sir Rider Haggard once wrote a story called "Mr. Meeson's Will." In it is the young heroine who was shipwrecked on a desert island allowed a will to be tatooed across her back on the skin in the absence of paper or parchment. When she returned to civilization she learned that the will required the filing of the original document in court. Touched by the spectacle of beauty in distress however, the registrar allowed a photograph of the will to be filed and the girl went happily away.

Many curious wills have been recorded. At one time it was claimed that Noah made a will, and one writer pretended to give his exact words.

Ptolemy the 13th of Egypt borrowed a lot of money and in order to protect his creditors made a will appointing the Roman Republic as his heir, thus bringing his dynasty to a close with his own decease.

When he died the Romans acknowledged the genuiness of the will, but contented themselves with "seizing", by virtue of the document, as much of the private fortune of the testator as they could lay hands on."

In former times the church men were entrusted with the duty of looking after the estates.

The law in regard to wills is pretty thoroughly fixed, but it takes a lawyer to understand it.

The will of some very learned men have been quite faulty.

It behooves every one to consult an attorney and make his will and make it law proof. It is a good plan to name a Trust Company as one's executor because such a company is experienced and cannot die. This plan avoids much unnecessary litigation and saves the legatee from danger through unscrupulous stock promoters.

Every one should make a will and put his property in the hands of a Trust Company to administer. Then there would be less unnecessary litigation in regard to various testaments.

STARCHES WHICH ARE "NOT GOOD."

My readers have, no doubt, noticed that I do not use as much space in condemning those foods which are "not good" as I do in recommending those I consider to be "good."

However, it is necessary, occasionally, to remind you that certain foods are never desirable, from a health standpoint.

The following foods I never recommend unless it is absolutely impossible for you to get better food:

YEAST BREAD is always unwholesome compared to bread or muffins made without yeast. The yeast cells are not entirely destroyed in baking, but continue to produce fermentation in the intestines. It is a difficult thing to make bread at home without yeast, but many companies are making real whole-wheat bread with an aeration process. Such bread can be secured in any of the large cities.

BUNS and ROLLS should not be used unless they are cut open and thoroughly dextrinized by toasting.

GRAHAM BREAD, as it is purchased in the store today, is a mixture of middlings and white flour. This bread is not a good food unless it is made into toast.

GRAHAM CRACKERS are made from graham flour with the addition of sugar. Sugar and starch should never be combined together. The feeding of these crackers to young children is a pernicious habit which will be the means of starting digestive disturbances.

CAKES, COOKIES, GINGER SNAPS, MACAROONS and LADY FINGERS are all unwholesome cookies and should not be considered suitable food for young children.

DOUGHNUTS can never be considered a good food as they are made of white flour and literally soaked in grease.

PUDDINGS are always made from a combination of sugar and starch. Rice puddings, and all of the other puddings made with this combination, are always harmful dishes just as other bad combinations of foods.

TAPIOCA, CORNSTARCH and SAGO are composed entirely of starch and cannot be made tastily unless mixed with sugar.

NAVY BEANS will always ferment and produce excessive flatulence and should, therefore, never be used when any other food is available.

MOTHERING SUNDAY.

The fourth Sunday in Lent has many titles. To mention but a few of them, it is Laetare, Mid-Lent Sunday, Refreshment Sunday, Simnel Sunday, the Sunday of the Five Loaves, the Sunday of the Golden Rose. These names, representing various aspects of the day, and depending to a great extent on local customs and ceremonies, are gathered up, comprehended and expressed in the beautiful title, "Mothering Sunday." From the earliest days of Christianity, and throughout Christendom, it has been customary to observe the Fourth Sunday in Lent as a day of rejoicing, a day set apart for the special honor of Mother Church. The name and idea of "Mothering Sunday" probably sprang from the epistle for the day, where occur the words, "But Jerusalem which is above is free, which is the mother of us all." (Gal. 4, 26).

Thus the idea of "Mothering Sunday" arose, and in olden days it was the custom in many places for priest and people to go in pilgrimage to the Mother Church of the diocese, or parish, i.e., the oldest church in the locality. Their offerings were the dues now known as Easter offerings. The pilgrimage to the Mother Church was an occasion for sons and daughters living away from home to visit their parents and to join with other members of the family in paying special honor to their mother. The good old custom of visiting both the House of God, and the home of earthly parents, of paying special honor to the Church, our spiritual mother, and for her sake honoring all mothers, was called "going-a mothering." After a time the pilgrimages were discontinued but the service of the day remains, and the custom of paying special honor to mothers on this day has been kept alive in many places. It is in one sense an "Old Home Day," and during the past few years successful efforts to revive the beautiful old custom of "Mothering" or "Mid-Lenting," have been put forth in the Motherland (England), and all parts of the Empire. In connection with the social side of the day various customs arose, chief among which was the making of presents to mother. Sons and daughters went a "Mothering" with gifts of flowers and cake. No Mothering Sunday posy was complete without the violet, "that beautiful emblem of the perfect mother"; its fragrance symbolical of the love which increases when it gives itself to another; its leaf suggestive of the sheltered home where in humility and lowliness the true mother reigns, known to the outside world only by the sweet influence she sheds on all who approach her dwelling. There is a very old proverb which runs, "Who goes a-mothering finds violets in the lane." A simnel cake always adorned the festive table, and the poet Herrick mentions the custom as a well established one when he writes:

"I'll to thee a Simnel bring,
'Gainst thou go'st a-mothering,
So that, when she blesses thee,
Half that blessing thou'll give me."

Mothering Sunday, the Fourth Sunday in Lent, is full of the deepest significance. Mother Church calls to her children to enter into the House of the Lord, there to rejoice together as members of one family and to join in intercession for the unity of Christendom. "Pray for the peace of Jerusalem, they shall prosper that love thee." "The Jerusalem that is above is free, which is our Mother." "Mothering Sunday" becomes a family festival, a day in praise of earthly mothers, and observance of it tends to preserve the association of family life, and gratitude for a mother's love and care. "It is the home which makes the nation and which builds the Empire"; so said our gracious Queen Mary on July 26, 1924, to some English women about to sail for social work in India.

It is indeed the home which makes the nation, and it is the mother who makes the home.

BEAVERBROOK NAMED BY WRITER AS ONE OF 'SPLENDID FAILURES'

Author Includes Newspaper Owner In His Own Series of Sketches.

NOTHING TO DO.

Finds Himself In Middle Age With No Worlds To Conquer.

LONDON, Mar. 28 (Canadian Press) — Lord Beaverbrook has for some time been writing a series of articles for his Sunday Express on "Splendid Failures." These comprised word sketches of prominent men who, while having achieved the heights of celebrity or ambition, may still perhaps deem their full desires unsatisfied.

Yesterday Charles Masterman, editor and writer and former Liberal member of the House of Commons, contributed a sketch of Beaverbrook himself as a "splendid failure." For many years, Masterman says, power was more attractive to Lord Beaverbrook than wealth.

"We had been entirely disenchanted," Masterman writes. "The disenchantment has removed some of the 'splendor from his power. One splendor, however, I would freely grant him—he has a genius for friendship. Many prominent men to-day but for his opportune assistance would be in the gutter. But for his friendship, exercised with reckless and unscrupulous energy, Andrew Bonar Law would never have been prime minister.

"Lord Beaverbrook has done everything he wanted to do and cannot see anything else worth doing. At comparatively early middle age he finds no more worlds to conquer worth conquering. He could easily have been a minister again in the Conservative government but was so bored with his previous experience that he had no desire to repeat it. In any case he has no sympathy with the stupidities, squalors, and sentimentalities of the Conservative party."

C.P.R. RUNNING JUBILEE SERIES

History of "Child of Confederation" Being Given in Special Ads.

TWELVE IN ALL

The Canadian Pacific Railway has been aptly termed the "Child of Confederation."

It is a fact that British Columbia joined the rest of the Provinces on the express condition that a railway should be constructed over the Rockies to the Pacific Coast to end her isolation from the rest of her sister provinces. The government itself sought to build such a road and failed.

Then a private syndicate, the Canadian Pacific Railway, undertook the task and did its work so well that it was completed in five years instead of the stipulated ten. This achievement was made possible by the great personalities which this undertaking brought to the fore. It is very likely that the exigencies of the situation, as in other cases, created the necessary personalities to meet them for it would seem inevitable, the great undertakings should produce just the men to perform the task—men who would lay aside mere private gain and their own personal reputation, and risk all for the sake of an ideal.

The Canadian Pacific Railway has seized the opportunity offered this year by the Diamond Jubilee celebration of Confederation to call the attention of the readers of this paper to some of the salient facts which connect the road so closely with the history of Canada.

They have done so by recalling the personalities of their three Past Presidents— Lord Mount Stephen, Sir William Van Horne and Lord Shaughnessy, and then by weaving around them additional advertisements covering the principal events of their respective tenures of office. This publicity, as a whole, has touched on so many points of the development of Canada that the Series has been aptly named "Pages from Canadian History."

There are to be twelve announcements in all, the last one running just after Dominion Day. So far we have seen five and invite the attention of our readers to the rest of the Series as they appear from month to month.

FINAL DECISION ON PRAYER BOOK

Convocation To-morrow Will Pass or Reject Revised Form.

STATEMENTS MADE.

LONDON, Eng., March 28 (Canadian Press)—The Anglican Church representatives meet in convocation to-morrow to pronounce their final "Yes" or "No" upon the new Book of Common Prayer, now published in its revised form, and unalterable either by Church or by Parliament. It is to be "introduced" to the members of the House of Commons by the Archbishop of York in the committee room on Wednesday, at a meeting presided over by Premier Baldwin, supported by leaders of the Liberal and Labor parties.

During the week-end, the new Prayer Book was the subject of statements either in public or in the press by Church leaders. Bishop Barnes of Birmingham, leader of the Modernist Anglican element, again expressed opposition to the revised book, while Bishop Gore, formerly Bishop of Worcester, Birmingham and Durham, now retired, and Bishop Henson of Durham supported the book.

BOY SCOUT NEWS

Third Peterborough "Vimy" Troop

Something new was tried at the meeting of the Third Friday night. P. L. Archie Inch of the Hounds was in charge of the meeting having had a week's notice to prepare a programme of instruction. His second, Percy Ellison, was in charge of the Hounds for the evening.

The meeting got off to a poor start. We had no lights. Through some mishap, our light could not be turned on, and it took half an hour to get an extension cord connected to one of the lights in the hall. A five minutes to eight, the meeting began with Flag Break.

The following announcing was made: There will be a "Hobby Show" at the Y.M.C.A. in connection with the Boys' Week to be held in May. There is a Scouting and Campcraft section of the Exhibition and every Scout and Scout Patrol in the city should have something on exhibit. The following is a list of entries which may be made:

1. Collection of knots and splices correctly labelled and mounted.
2. Map of route of good hike in vicinity of Peterborough, showing roads, railroads, water and landmarks.
3. Correctly drawn Union Jack—coloured.
4. Model not less than 3 by 4 feet of ideal camp, attention being given to site and sanitary details. Model to be marked north, south, east and west. Any number of boys up to six may work on this model.
5. Temporary bridge model. No larger than 45 by 18 inches. No meccano models.

P. L. Inch gave instruction in knotting, taking several advanced knots, which were practised until all understood how to tie them.

"Who Sir? Me Sir? was played for ten minutes and proved plenty of fun. This game was introduced to Peterborough Scouts by Mr. Irwin on his last visit here.

In the second period of instruction, some work was done on the Pioneer Badge. The square and diamond lashings were demonstrated and each Scout had to make one lashing. A trestle was made from six staves, which proved strong enough to hold a man's weight easily. Emphasis was laid upon the fact that every lashing must be made tight. If even one was loose, the whole structure would quickly work loose and fall.

At the Council Circle which followed the meeting, two songs were sung: "Mary had a William Goat" (Tune: London Bridge) and "Do a Good Turn Daily" (Tune: Keep the Home Fires Burning). Both of these songs were sung with a swing and vigor which has been lacking in most previous attempts.

A short story was read from "Scouting for Boys" explaining what a Scout is.

Flag Lower followed and Troop was dismissed.

Court of Honour was called and routine business gone through. The paper collection on Saturday was put in charge of P. L. Jack Gray of the Hawks.

The paper collection has proved a good success as far as we went. We hope to hold one every two weeks, and have made arrangements with several of the boys' parents to hold all paper for us. If every boy does this and then gets all his friends to save paper for us, we should make quite a steady income from the collection of it, and payment of our rent will be assured.

In the Patrol Competition, the Hounds still hold the lead by a narrow margin with the Hawks and Chickadees in second and third places. Come on Chickadees let's hear from you. Hawks buck up and give the Hounds a real race.

In last week's record, an error was made in the name of one of the recruits who was present at the meeting. George "Toots" Lowe should have been Toots Biggs. Toots is working hard on the tests and we hope to invest him in a short time.

Theatres

AT THE REGENT.

THE GREATEST OF ROMANTIC ACTORS AS THE GREATEST LOVER OF ROMANCE.

"Don Juan!" What adventurous and romantic fancies that name conjures up in the minds of the literature lovers of all nations!

John Barrymore! What a very incarnation of the spirit of romance and adventure that name represents to all lovers of the stage and screen the world over.

Therefore, it is with pardonable pride that Warner Brothers present their super-production of "Don Juan," starring John Barrymore, which comes to the Regent Theatre to-day.

This inimitable love-chronicle artfully combining intimacy, action and splendour, loosely adheres to the tradition of Don Juan Tenorio, grandee of Spain, upon which Moliere, Balzac, Byron, Zorrilla and many others have based enduring contributions to the world's classics. The source-character of Don Juan possesses the characteristics of irresistible charm, grace and masculine comeliness. He is accomplished, aggressive, audacious in affairs of honor of the heart. Men instinctively acknowledge his natural prevedence in the kingdom of intellect and power—women his mastery in the realm of emotion and love.

In the photodrama "Don Juan," Bess Meredyth, adaptress of "The Sea Beast," has created in collaboration with Barrymore and Alan Crosland, the director, an original treatment of the legend, a culmination of all the Don Juans that have gone before, a personification of the arrogant, strutting, boastful, daring, eventful, romantic, colorful, fifteenth century. An age when rapiers leapt as quickly and easily from their scabbards as a glance from the eye.

BRITISH WON'T WITHDRAW UNTIL CHINA SETTLED

May Send Reinforcements, Rather Than Meet Cantonese Demands.

MUST SHOW ABILITY.

Control of French Concession By British Troops Is Arranged.

LONDON, March 28. — (United Press.)— British troops will not be withdrawn from Shanghai until the Cantonese have established an absolutely stable government, but on the contrary may be reinforced, the British United Press learns in authoritative quarters.

The demands on the Cantonese for withdrawal will be resisted, the Government is impressed by the nation-wide support given its policy of holding the international settlement at Shanghai and it is convinced that only an element of force can protect that city from the horrors at Nanking.

In this connection it is reliably stated that the Cantonese will have to demonstrate a capacity for governing and a willingness to control their troops before any change in the status of the settlement can be made which would leave it open to attack.

Moreover the Government is disappointed that the victorious Nationalists have not exercised more authority over their troops, as this lack of control hinders all negotiations with them. It is recognized, however, that some agreement will have to be made later on.

Nevertheless the Cantonese must first survive the test by which the British can judge their power to carry out their promises.

Duncan In Command.

LONDON, March 28. — (United News.)— Control of the French concession by British troops under direction of General Duncan, senior military commander of the Allied troops in Shanghai, has been agreed to by the French Consulate, according to the Shanghai correspondent of the Daily Express. American marines, acting under the direction of General Duncan, will take over from the French all defences along Siccawei Creek. It is understood that they are equipping some positions with tear gas projectors.

France oT Hold Own.

PARIS, March 28.— (Canadian Press.)—France intends to defend her concession in Shanghai against any Chinese aggression. It was made clear at the foreign office to-day that there is no thought of evacuating the concession as reported. No secret orders for abandonment have been given, and no arrangements made for the evacuation of French nationsl. On the other hand, reinforcements have been ordered from Tonkin, Annam.

BULLETINS ON CHINA

AMERICANS LEAVING.

AMOY, China, March 28. — All Americans in the interior of Fukiang province have been ordered to concentrate here as a precaution against possible anti-foreign outbreaks. The United States' destroyer Bulmer arrived here yesterday. The local situation remains calm but there is much agitation.

CANTONESE PLAN REPRISALS

HONG KONG, March 28. — The Nationalist government at Canton, it is learned here is threatening measures to deal with "British violence" as a consequence of last week's raid by a British punitive expedition on the Chinese villages around Bias Bay, headquarters of one of the world's worst pirate gangs.

The people of Canton are said to be stirring up popular sentiment over the punitive expedition, spreading exaggerated stories and alleging wholesale killing of the villagers.

BRITISH DENOUNCED.

SHANGHAI. — Leaflets and handbills passed about to-day by agitators in Shanghai fix the responsibility for the Nanking incident on the British and making no mention of the Americans.

A boycott of British goods and the calling out of all employees of the Britishers are among the reprisals advocated by the agitators.

A growing anti-foreign feeling was noticeable in the native districts where Nationalist soldiers and others made speeches denouncing the foreigners, particularly the British.

Trouble at Wuhu.

LONDON.—Increasing agitation at Wuhu over the Nanking incident is reported in an Exchange Telegraph despatch from Hong Kong. A large number of Northern troops have crossed to the south bank of the Yangtse River, and Cantonese troops have arrived at Wuhu, where they distributed anti-foreign posters. They also demanded passage to Nanking on British river steamers, which was refused.

At Ningpo, the situation is quiet but strained. The British warship "Keppel" is remaining in the neighborhood.

The despatch says that the evacuation of foreigners from Chingkiang is complete. The Silver Island and Kinkgyin forts have been firing on passing steamers.

Japan Expects No Trouble.

TOKYO.—No further trouble is looked for by the Japanese Foreign Office, either at Shanghai or Nanking. It was announced to-day that the Japanese Government does not intend to despatch troops, but that it expects to begin negotiations soon with the Nationalists for apologies and reparations in connection with the Nanking incident.

Cabinet Summoned.

LONDON.—The British Cabinet was summoned in special session today to consider the Chinese question.

Propagandist Arrives.

LONDON.—The Shanghai correspondent of the Daily Express says that William Brosme, head of the Nationalist Press Bureau at Hankow, and described as an American Communist, was expected to arrive at Shanghai to-day to take charge of Nationalist propaganda there.

To-day the Commons will debate on the Georgian Bay Canal Bill for the tenth time. There is every indication that the House will reach a division on this bill during the course of this evening. The first division will be on the amendment to the bill which was moved by Hon. Hugh Guthrie, Conservative leader. This amendment has the effect of completely killing the bill. Should the amendment be defeated the bill will stand for second reading and reference to the Commons Committee on Railways and Canals. The balance of the week will be taken up with Government business, with Tuesday set aside for the debate on Imperial relations.

THE SKEPTIC.

He wants knowledge born of sight
For at college, faith was slight.
Laboratories satisfy—
Olden stories they decry.

Instinct versus microscope,
And resulting misanthrope;
Buds a chuckling 'neath the snow,
Stars their message flash below.

No destruction anywhere—
Only changes on for e'er.
Full provision all the way
Men must see, in God's great sway.

Puny minds that analyze,
Wait your answer in the skies.
Ev'ry day you trust in men—
His creations; trust Him then.

Buds in laughter 'neath the snow;
Migrant birds that come and go—
Stars a-shining; sun and moon,
Moving season, all in tune.

Life a pulse in soul and flower,
Testifying ev'ry hour;
Signs and tokens round galore,
God is now and evermore.

Uncle Wiggily

To-day's Bedtime Story.

By Howard R. Garis

(Copyright, 1927, McClure Syndicate.)

UNCLE WIGGILY'S PLAY HOUSE

Uncle Wiggily hopped along the counter in the Sugar and Spice Grocery where the dog gentleman clerk was tying pink string around bags of sugar.

"What'll it be this morning, Mr. Longears?" asked the grocery dog, looking on the shelf behind him to see if any of the dill pickles were playing tag.

"Have you any boxes?" asked the rabbit gentleman with a twinkle of his pink nose.

"Boxes of what" asked the grocery dog.

"Nothing," answered the rabbit.

"Oh, excuse me! I thought you said something," and the dog, with a surprised bark lifted a dried herring out of the cracker barrel and sent it out to play marbles with the goldfish.

"I did say something!" chuckled the

There was Baby Bunty in the empty box.

bunny gentleman. "I said have you any empty boxes."

"And I asked you boxes of what and you said nothing," whined the grocery dog, "so then—"

"Well, that's exactly what I want—boxes of nothing—empty boxes," explained Mr. Longears. "I want some empty pasteboard boxes."

"Oh, of course. I have lots of them. Help yourself." Opening the back door of the store, the grocery dog pointed to piles of empty pasteboard boxes that had held oatmeal, crackers and different things.

Uncle Wiggily gathered his paws full of empty boxes and hopped back to his hollow stump bungalow. There, a little later, his wife and Nurse Jane Fuzzy Wuzzy saw him piling the boxes up curiously.

"What in the world are you doing?" asked the muskrat lady housekeeper, who had a bunch of feathers tied on her tail, for she was dusting the piano that morning.

"I'm making a play house, if you please," answered Uncle Wiggily.

"Oh, Wiggy! Will you ever grow up?" sighed his wife. "The idea of a rabbit at your age making a play house!"

"Nonsense! It isn't for me! laughed Mr. Longears. "I am making this for Jingle and Jangle, Baby Bunty and all the other little rabbits to have fun in when they come from school."

"Oh, that's different!" squeaked Nurse Jane. So she went into dust the piano with the bunch of feathers on her tail, and Mrs. Longears began to give the breakfast dishes their morning bath, while Uncle Wiggily piled the pasteboard boxes one atop of the other, cutting doors and windows in them and fastening the whole together with safety pins until he had a cute little play house.

"What fun the little bunnies will have with this when they come from school!" thought the rabbit gentleman. And no sooner did Jingle and Jangle, Tingle and Tangle, Buster and Custer and Rumble and Stumble—to say nothing of Baby Bunty—no sooner did they spy the play house than they shouted with joy.

"Oh, what fun we'll have!" sang the little girl rabbits.

"We'll help you play!" offered the boy rabbits.

So they began. Uncle Wiggily watched them, his pink nose twinkling faster than ever. He got some pieces of cake and cookies from Nurse Jane so the little bunnies could have a play party in the play house. Then, all of a sudden, the March Wind, which had not blown much that day, began to howl and puff and rage about until all of a sudden, the March Wind blew over the play house, upside down and crossways.

"Oh! Oh!" cried Uncle Wiggily! "Hop out all of you before the play house falls on you. "Hop out!"

Out hopped about forty sixteen little rabbits and then the Wind caught hold of one of the boxes that had been part of the play house and whirled it high in the air, tossing it into the low branches of a tree near by.

"Are all my little bunnies safe?" asked Mrs. Longears, hopping out of the bungalow with Nurse Jane.

Uncle Wiggily began to count their noses.

"All here but Baby Bunty!" he said. "Oh, where can she be!"

"Maybe she's under that pile of broken boxes," said Nurse Jane.

But just then, all of a sudden, a voice in the tree called:

"Here I am!" And there was Baby Bunty in the empty box that the March Wind had caught up and tossed into the branches. "Here I am!" laughed Baby Bunty. And so she was.

Uncle Wiggily helped her down out of the tree and then he built the play house over again and the little rabbits had plenty of fun until it was time to go to bed. So if the clothes wringer doesn't pinch the tail of the shirt when it's trying to squeeze through to go out in the yard to play, I'll tell you soon about Uncle Wiggily's frozen apple.

SELF EDUCATION

Many young people who for various reasons do not intend going on to a university when they leave school seem to think that they must give up all thought of a higher education. There never was a greater mistake. Education must be given by oneself to oneself. There is no royal road to learning as the old proverb has it. Every man and every woman, young or old must dig out the gold of the mine of knowledge for themselves. That is the fundamental principle of education. Degrees are only badges which give the wearer a certain prestige because people think "he must know something" or they could not have been acquired. Degrees are no guarantee of knowledge and they are not necessary to the acquirement of knowledge. There is not a student at a university who after graduation will not tell you that he has learned very little. This however applies to the theory of knowledge, that is to say the fundamental principles of knowledge. Practical knowledge — of chemistry for example—is given at a college and the technical knowledge of mathematical physics is taught, chiefly by experiments. Things that must be acquired by experiment are usually best taught where the instruments for teaching them which are usually very costly can be found for every purpose as at a technical school. I am therefore really speaking in this paper of the acquirement of the theoretical principles of knowledge, principles which are not acquired by experiment but by thought and the ultimate basis of all knowledge experimental, practical or theoretical is the theoretical principle underlying it and every department of it. For example: A machinist must recognize the theoretical principle of cause and effect or in other words, that certain causes applied by him will produce certain effects. When he knows that he proceeds to apply them and if competent both theoretically and practically he will be a success. Some I know are accustomed to say "Give me a practical man and you may keep your theory." These critics do not recognise the fact that the practical man to whom they refer is greatly hampered by being afraid to branch out or improve for fear of making a mistake.

Had such a man a knowledge, like Edison, of the principles (or theory) underlying his work he would be able to know, to do and to understand much that he never dreams of and knows nothing about, missing his opportunities as he works along simply because having no immediate bearing on what he is doing he does not recognise the enormous value of the things he is missing.

Take the case of the Leiden jar so often referred to in electricity as an instance. This experimental jar might very readily have been discovered by an ordinary mechanic but it took a Hertz to notice that there was something escaping attention in the Leyden jay and these were the waves afterward called Herttzian waves from which sprang wireless telegraphy, wireless telephony and even the radio itself. In a word the knowledge of the theory of causes and effects prompted him to investigate further and he found that certain effects were being produced which escaped notive because other investigators had not recognised them and sought out the causes.

All great discoveries and all knowledge depend upon this principle and the first lesson the young should learn and must learn is that the basis of all things is the principle of cause and effect. In my next paper I will begin to branch out in the various departments of knowledge, showing why it is possible for a young man or woman to acquire this greater half this basic half of knowledge which can only be acquired by reading and thinking and in no other way.

This is by far the most important part of knowledge and being the basis of knowledge, real knowledge cannot be acquired without it. Knowledge, and the power which knowledge affords, as in the old saying, "Knowledge is Power", must be acquired by the student by his own efforts and his own brains and can be acquired in no other way. He must be his own teacher. Therefore where it is acquired, whether at a university, college or at home does not matter. There is no monopoly of education, as it is called, at a college. Great men make colleges not colleges great men. Colleges sometimes teach glaring errors. From the time of Aristotle to Galileo they taught a wrong theory of falling bodies which when connected by Galileo revolutionised the idea of the universe.

PRAYER: Thanks for life.

Pray for—missions, home and foreign (this is the interdenominational Day of Prayer for Missions).

Collect—Lord of all truth, whose mind is quick and powerful, we praise Thee for the universe, so vast, so orderly, so dependable. We bless Thee for the persons of men and the powers of friendship in them and us, but yet more for friendship with Thyself, for fellowship with thy Son, and for Thy pervading presence with us in the Holy Spirit. Precious are the moments of intimate intercourse with Thee. Reprove us, we entreat Thee, for the pursuit of things to the forgetting of friendships human and divine. Give us the discriminating mind which detects the subtlies of sin and the beauty of holiness. So shall we know victory in the conflict. Therefore we covenant with Thee to put first things first by the grace of Christ. Amen.

MOVING PICTURES OF GREAT CONGRESS

Films of Eucharistic Congress To Be Shown Here This Week.

A theatrical production of unusual interest and out of the ordinary type will be given in the city this week, when the official motion pictures of the twenty-eighth International Eucharistic Congress, which took place in Chicago last year, will be given at the Grand Opera House on Thursday, Friday and Saturday, March 31st and April 1st and 2nd, with evening performances during the three days and matinees on Friday and Saturday.

This picture affords a realistic view of the greatest pilgrimage possibly that the world has ever seen. It presents on the screen a reproduction of the most colorful, inspiring, and devotional religious demonstration that the world has ever seen, in an international congress of pilgrims with representatives of every nation and race of the world's peoples; the most stupendous congregation ever assembled, and the greatest gathering of the hierarchy of the Church ever assembled outside of Rome. It shows great meetings in the huge Stadium at Chicago with more than half a million pilgrims in attendance, the special meeting at night of 300,000 men, each with a lighted candle, the largest trained chorus ever assembled, and the choir of 62,000 children. One stupendous scene depicts the gathering of a million people in the Soldiers' Field, and the Eucharistic Procession on the closing day of the Congress, is believed to have been the most deeply impressive and inspiring devotional spectacle since the Crusades. More than a million men and women knelt in the rain and mud while the Blessed Sacrament passed by.

The press of American cities where these pictures have been given unites in praise of their splendid presentation. William J. Clark, in the "Chicago American," says: "So realistically did it grasp the audience that filled the theatre last evening that at its close the thousands of men and women present burst into the "Te Deum" with a spirit as devotional and fervent as might have been registered had the actual ceremonial of the final benediction at Mundelein been enacted before them."

James O'Donnell Bennett, in the Chicago "Daily Tribune," characterized the picture as "a corking good show, which was also a series of tableaux richly fraught with poetry, splendor and spirituality. All that the Congress held of the spectacular and much that it held of devotion was revealed in this great historical document."

The "Daily News," of New York City: "The ceremonies bring a reaction that no ordinary film could bring. There are, happily, occasions for honest and harmless laughter, the close-ups of some of the children who formed the gigantic choir of 62,000 voices stirring sympathetic chuckles here and there."

The Brooklyn "Daily Eagle": Aside from any religious interest in this picture, the film is unquestionably a beautiful cinematographic creation. It is, as seen through the non-partisan eye, not without an element of drama. As mass effects go in the cinema, not even D. W. Griffith could have achieved so tremendous a tableau. Certainly, no preconceived spectacle could have been half so magnificent."

Prices for this picture are on a popular scale, at 25, 50, 75 cents and $1.00, with a special rate of 15 cents for the school children's Francisco, radio messages said.

Clearing Film from Teeth Whitens Surprisingly

Restores cloudy teeth to clearness

Please accept full 10-day tube of this new dental achievement, urged by world's authorities. Note the difference in the color of your teeth and health of your gums when film is cleared off.

Don't think your teeth are naturally off color and dull. You can restore them to amazing whiteness in a new way leading dentists advise.

Run your tongue across your teeth and you will feel a film. A slippery coating that covers them, hides their color and invites tooth and gum troubles. Ordinary pastes and dentifrices will not successfully remove it.

That is why, in old days, so many smiles were ruined by ugly teeth and toneless gums. Now, thanks to modern science, there is a way to combat that film.

Just obtain a tube of the dentifrice called Pepsodent at your druggist's. Clear off that film tonight; clear white teeth are beautiful. Note the amazing difference in your smile.

You'll be thankful for the suggestion. For thus you can change your whole appearance.

Topic for the Week.
"GOD IS A SPIRIT"
Friday
"God Is Immanent."

SCRIPTURE: Read—Psalsm 139. "In him we live, and move, and have our being" (Acts 17:28). "Surely Jehovah is in this place; and I knew it not" (Gen. 28:16). "Thou knowest my downsitting and mine uprising; thou understandest my thought afar off" (Ps. 139:1).

See—Nehemiah 9:20; Hosea 14: 5; John 14:16-23.

MEDITATION: We live in a marvelous world. Wonderful are our physical bodies; still more baffling are our personalities, with self-consciousness and all their spiritual expressions. It is possible to gaze on these wonders themselves until we have no eye for God; contrariwise, it is possible to gaze until we adore God, their author.

"Be it mine to detect thy hiding place . . . to discover thy beauty sleeping in the grass, thy glory in the dust . . . to see thy presence in struggle and in sorrow . . . in Galilee and in Gethsemane."

No laundry—discard like tissue

SAINT and SINNER

When Bob Hathaway come later that afternoon, his arms filled with paper bags of delicatessen foods and fruits, and a tissue-wrapped cluster of purple and gold pansies for Joy, Faith met him at the door with a finger at her lips and fear in her great brown eyes.

"Im terribly frightened about Joy," she whispered. "I think she's asleep now, but be very quiet, darling. Her temperature is over a hundred and three, and she cries if I leave the room for a minute."

"I'll fix supper myself," Bob told her, after he had stooped to kiss her over the bundles.

As Faith left the room, she raised her brows significantly to Bob, who followed her into the hall.

"Did you find old Phil?" she asked, in a careful whisper, her eyes fearfully on the closed door of the room where Joy lay sick.

Bob shook his head. "I went to the address he'd given on his peddlar's license and the old couple there—named Peterson—had never heard of him, or so they said. Claim they've been living at that address for five years. And since it's only a two-room shack it's pretty certain old Phil didn't live there as a boarder. But I've not give up hope yet—"

"Listen!" Faith commanded him in a startled whisper.

Faintly at first, then in a crescendo of fear, came Joy's shrill, childish voice, pleading: "Don't let them kill Cherry, God! Don't let them hang her or 'lectrocute her, Jesus! You can take your spite out on me, God! Please, God! I'll die, so's you won't be mad at us no more! O-oh!"

"What in the world is she doing?" Faith cried, as she ran to the closed door beyond which a child was trying to make a bargain with a wrathful and jealous God.

Bob followed her into the room, dropping his bundles to the floor as he ran. Joy, in he faded pink canton flannel nightgown, was kneeling on the floor beside her bed, her little bare feet startlingly white again the dark painted floor, her small hands clasped and raised heavenward, tears slipping from her closed eyes down thin cheeks painted poppy-red with fever.

"Oh, darling!" Faith moaned, as she stooped to gather the body of the delirious child in her arms. "Didn't Faith tell you not to get out of bed? You're sick, honey! You'll make yourself worse. There, now! Faith's here, precious. She won't leave you again. I'll lie down beside you and hold you tight in my arms."

But Joy writhed out of the clasp of those comforting arms, staring up at Bob with horror-haunted, pale, grey eyes. "I want to die," she gasped, her breath coming raspingly from her congested lungs. "God's mad at us. Cora Parsons said so. He's mad and He's going to let 'em kill Cherry to get even with us. I been praying all night for Him to let Cherry out of jail. And it was so cold on the bare floor—"She began to sob then, relaxing in Faith's arms.

"That's why she so much worse," Faith groaned. "And the doctor told me to watch her so carefully. Oh, Bob! I'm no good for anything! I can't save Cherry or keep Joy from making herself sick—oh, Bob!"

"You're becoming hysterical yourself, dear," Bob warned her, as he knelt beside the bed. "You couldn't possibly stay awake all night to watch her. And no one would have dreamed that she'd take it like this. Listen, Joy, honey," he coaxed, taking one of her hot little hands and holding it against his cool cheek. "Cherry's not going to be killed. God isn't mad at the Lane family at all. You believe Bob, don't you? God is helping Bob to save Cherry. He's showing Bob and Faith the way, but we'll have to be patient just a little longer."

By mysterious and devious ways, known only to newspaper reporters, the full story of Joy's delirious bargaining with God for the life of her beloved sister, Cherry, about to be put on trial for the murder of her fiance, Ralph Cluny, was given to the public the day before the trial opened. Feature writers, gathered in the city from all parts of the country, made the child's desperate illness and delirious prayers the "lead" for their special stories on the eve of the trial's opening, and again the Myrtle Street house was under seige by the indefatigable reporters and photographers. All day Sunday the phone and doorbell rang, and all day Aunt Hattie waspishly refused interviews. Junior ducked out the back door after breakfast and sprinted for the alley, where Fay Allen awaited him in her roadster.

"I'm afraid Junior's going to be married today," Faith told her aunt.

"Reckon he might as well be married," Aunt Hattie sniffed, as she rubbed bacon grease into sweet potatoes for baking. "Never seen a youngun have it as bad as he's got it in all my born days. Ain't happy if he's away from that little hussy for a minute. But it beats me how he's going to support the two of them. Be here on your hands, I reckon.

"Fay's a very nice girl," Aunt Hattie," Faith protested. "And I think she's very courageous to line up with the Lane family under the circumstances. I hope Junior does marry her and bring her here. I need help until the trial is over—"

"Act like I ain't good enough," Aunt Hattie snorted, but Faith saw there were tears in her eyes.

When Faith arrived at the jail at three o'clock that afternoon, she found Cherry in conference with her lawyer, Stephen Churchill.

"How is Joy, Faith?" Cherry rushed into her sister's arms, her golden eyes wide with fear. "Those awful stories in the papers—"

"She's very sick, honey," Faith answered. "But she's not going to die. Don't worry, darling. How—how do you feel yourself?"

Churchill laid a hand heavily on Cherry's shoulder. "She's the pluckiest little devil I ever saw," he told Faith. "In a way I'm glad this story broke about Joy, for it will be a big help in clinching public sympathy. And it's made Cherry as pale as a ghost, which is what we wanted.

"Still got that bug in your head about the crippled beggar?" Churchill grinned at Faith with what he meant for good-natured tolerance.

"My little sister has been so sick I haven't had time to work on my theory," Faith answered evasively. "Oh, Mr. Churchill, you're not going to fail, are you? You're not going to let them send Cherry to prison when she's innocent."

"Sure I'm not" he boomed. "This little girl could get herself out of a worse scrape than this just by being herself—the prettiest little defendant that ever wrung the hearts of a jury."

DRESS

By MARY MARSHALL

A long pink and green printed chiffon scarf was used to make this frock which is worn over a green slip. The slash made across the scarf to serve as neck opening is finished with picot edge.

Society folk in London recently found an evening's diversion in a shawl ball, given at one of the fashionable hotels—really more than an evening's diversion for the women invited spent many hours for weeks beforehand choosing the shawls they were to wear. Those with an artistic talent went to much pains to paint their own shawls so that they might be really individual. In effect it was a costume ball, with all of the trouble of having a special costume left out. Every woman was expected to wear some sort of shawl—or a scarf—and much ingenuity was shown in the way some of the women arranged their graceful drapery.

Shawls and scarfs are as much in favor as they ever were—and they are not only worn in the usual way as a light wrap over the frock, but are sometimes actually incorporated into the frock or are used to make an entire frock. A frock recently shown by Martial et Armand of Paris consists of a beautiful vari-colored scarf slit in ingenious fashion to make a dress. One of the French dressmakers has been making frocks with what she calls "movable drapery," which consists of a scarf attached at the shoulders of the frock that can be draped about the body in various ways.

The sketch shows a very simple way that a scarf may be made into a frock. The scarf is folded across in the middle. A crosswise slit is made large enough to form an opening for the head and this slit—slightly cut out at the front—is finished with a picot edge. Two or three tucks are taken at the shoulders on the wrong side to draw the width of the scarf up over the shoulders. The sides of the scarf are left open to the slightly lowered waistline where they are joined for a few inches and then left open down the sides of the skirt portion. A silk slip to match one of the colors in the scarf is worn beneath and a ribbon of the same color is tied around the low waistline and knotted at the left side.

HOROSCOPE

The Stars Incline, but do not Compel.

Tuesday, March 29, 1927.

(Copyright, 1927, by The McClure Newspaper Syndicate.)

This should be a fairly fortunate day, according to astrology. Benefic aspects dominate, but there are adverse influences.

There is a good sign for industry and workers may expect a period of intense activity in this country.

There is to be much building this spring when the people of the cities will be inspired to see smaller towns or farm lands.

All the signs presage for writers, editors and publishers profit as well as increased activity.

This is read as a lucky day for signing certain contracts and leases, but it is well for actors to delay, if possible.

Under this rule it may be easy to find fault, so the wise will avoid criticism.

Restlessness and depression may be prevalent under this rule of the stars. For that reason, activity should be cultivated. Men and women should be too busy to think of what the misguided old world is doing.

Most travelling men and small merchants should profit under this rule of the stars.

Farmers may have much to discourage them in bad storms and cattle diseases, but they are to prosper later in the year.

Again astrologers warn that the cost of clothing is to increase and for that reason the thrifty will repair depleted wardrobes.

Chicago may be the scene of outbreaks of crime and serious clashes between policemen and lawbreakers.

Water contamination should be avoided for under this configuration disease is forecast as probable due to the importation of cholera.

Persons whose birthdate it is will find this a happy year, though it will be necessary for them to guard against hastiness in making decisions.

Children born on this day will be full of ambition. They should be trained to looked upon the bright side of things.

Key To Treasure House.

How To Obtain First Aid To All Helpful Information.

Just think of the vast treasures of words full of rich and rare meaning that lie locked up in our language, hidden away from common use and enjoyed only by the learned few! It is as if, possessing the mineral wealth of the world, ready for the mint, we scornfully turned aside to remain in poverty.

The dictionary constitutes the treasure house of our language. As a people we needlessly deprive ourselves of the great helps at our command. In our daily tasks, not on of which can be performed without the use of words, we possess only the most primitive tools while we might be equipped with the keenest and most efficient.

As the dictionary is the barred and bolted treasure house, then the coupon printed elsewhere in this issue is the key that unlocks it. It is now possible for every reader to own this new dictionary.

AN INTERESTING THREE FAMILY HOUSE

AN INTERESTING THREE FAMILY HOUSE

By Alcide Chausse, Architect

The building is 27' x 55' and was erected in Montreal on a lot 27' by 79' for slightly under $25,000, exclusive of land.

The plan of the ground floor flat shows this suite has the advantage of an individual walk but the entrance itself, while desirably private, is ardly more so than those for the other two flats, to which a mutual walk and semi-outside stairway lead to two distinctly separate entrances. The rooms are arranged in much the same way on all three floors, the only appreciable difference being caused by the inside stairway from the first to second floor. This reduces the size of the front bedroom on the first floor while the corresponding room on the floor above have been made much larger by extending it partially over the balcony below. Another change on this floor will be noticed in the plumbing as there is a two piece bathroom and also a two piece toilet room.

All rooms on the right side of the hall, looking toward the rear, are exactly the same in each suite. The living room is 11' 3" x 16' and is made quite attractive by the large full width bay and the fireplace. Between the living room and dining room is a bedroom, 11' 3" x 11', with two clothes closets. In the dining room, the recess which is designated as a closet may be used for either a china closet or a buffet alcove. The kitchen is 10' 9" x 13' and provides for every convenience, particularly the incinerator method of refuse disposal.

Readers desiring further information regarding the plans and specifications for this building should communicate with the architect direct, Alcide Chausse, 70 St. James St., Montreal, Que. Copyright 1027, MacLean Building Reports, Limited.

Question: Certain of the walls in our newly plastered house remain dark and damp. The plaster is soft. Will it harden in time?

Plasterers call this condition a "sweat out." If the plaster does not set up hard in less than a week it will never set properly. Call your plasterer in. Hold out his compensation until he makes suitable repairs.

Question: Will a folding bed go into an ordinary closet?

Most forms of closet beds require space in excess of that usually provided for a closet. However, requirements of closet beds are very easily accommodated to the plan.

W. R. SKITCH 85 YEARS OLD

Father of Peterborough Man Has Lived in Lindsay For 70 Years.

PROMINENT CITIZEN.

Eighty-five years old and a resident of Lindsay for seventy years, is the boast of Mr. William R. Skitch, William street north, who on Friday celebrated his birthday with members of his family.

Eighty-five years is a good age to reach, and many friends of Mr. Skitch will be pleased to hear that he is still in excellent health and blessed with good eyesight, good hearing and good health. Every day he takes his usual walk down town, even in the coldest days of winter.

W. R. Skitch is a citizen the town might well be proud of. He landed in Lindsay when a mere youth, established a carriage business, suffered loss in the big fire of '61, re-established himself in business in another location, continued to prosper, built several houses, and then retired from business. He is a highly respected citizen of the town and it is the wish of all his friends that he continue to enjoy excellent health and contentment.

Mr. Skitch is a Cornishman, born at Cornwall, England in 1842 on March 25th. He was brought to Canada by his parents and settled in Port Hope, where his parents passed away. When very young he learned the carriage business in Metherall's Carriage Shop, Peterborough, and in 1857 went to Lindsay, starting up for himself in a building, which was then located in the vicinity of Horn Bros.' office on William street north. This shop was burned to the ground in the big fire which swept over Lindsay in the sixties and Mr. Skitch then purchased the old Methodist church and parsonage on the corner of William and Wellington streets, where Mr. John O'Leary to-day has a blacksmith shop.

Business was good and Mr. Skitch was thrifty. He was also ambitious and as a result purchased additional property, namely, the old Bell Hotel and Bell Opera House hall, which was located on William street. Here Mr. Skitch built a very fine and substantial terrace comprising five houses. He also erected a large, beautiful homestead for himself at the south end of the terrace, where he lived for years.

On February 15th, 1869, he married Miss Elizabeth Thurston, of Dunsford, and were blessed with the following children, all of whom are still living, namely: Herb Skitch of Toronto; Walter Frederick Skitch, Peterborough; Albert E. Skitch, of Vancouver; Mrs. (Leita) Herb Henley, of Winnipeg, and P. H. Skitch, of Thurstonia Park, Sturgeon Lake. Mrs. Skitch, Sr., passed away on August 12th, 1923.

Mr. Skitch has also three brothers, namely, Edward of Campbellford, John of Toronto, and Albert of Welland. He has been a life-long Methodist and Union church member, has never been identified with any fraternal society, and attributes his good health to the fact that his conscience is clear, that he has worked hard all his life, and that he neither drinks, chews or smokes.—Lindsay Post.

MOTHERS ATTEND GUIDES' BANQUET

Fathers Act as Waiters at Enjoyable Evening in Campbellford.

CAMPBELLFORD, March 28—The first Mother and Daughter Banquet ever held in Campbellford, was held on Friday evening in St. John's Sunday School room. Over two hundred mothers and daughters sat down to a sumptuous supper served by the fathers of some of the Guides. This banquet was under the auspices of the Local Girl Guide Association and, although a new innovation will, owing to its success, no doubt be an established precedent for following years.

Mrs. C. W. Turner, president of the local Girl Guide Association, presided over the programme, and in a few well chosen remarks, bade welcome to all present. The programme was as follows:

Toast to the King was proposed by Miss Hazel Bibby after which all joined in singing the National Anthem.

Toast to Princess Mary, Sir Robert Baden-Powell, and Lady Baden-Powell, was proposed by Miss Essie Cassan.

Toast to Mrs. Forrest, Divisional Commander of the Association, was proposed by Miss Elsie Smith. Mrs. Forrest replied to this toast in a few suitable words.

Toast to the Guides all over the world was proposed by Miss Muriel Kingston.

Toast to the Mothers was proposed by Miss Helen Thomas, and replied to by Mrs. Harry Townsend.

Toast to the Fathers was proposed by Miss Irene Stephens and replied to by Mr. C. W. Pallister.

Recitation—"Please Be Careful Where You Tread," by Miss Jerrine Malcolm.

Address by Mrs. E. Forrest of Port Hope; guest of the evening.

Mrs. J. H. Bell, District Commissioner, then favored the audience with Sir Henry Newbolt's, "Play the Game."

Mrs. Forrest then led with three cheers and a "tiger" for the Commissioner.

Chorus by the Guides of the 1st Company.

Recitation—"Girl Guides," by Miss Enid Richardson.

Chorus by the 3rd Company.

"Taps" by all Guides.

Mrs. Turner moved a special vote of thanks to all present, also the adopted mothers of the evening who took such a great interest in the evening's programme, and to the husbands who helped serve the banquet.

Splendid Address

Mrs. Forrest gave a splendid talk to both the Guides and the mothers present. In speaking to the mothers, Mrs. Forrest said she was overjoyed to see such a splendid gathering present and to know that they were interested in the Guide movement, and she hoped that they would be so enthused as always to be a help to the Guides.

Mrs. Forrest briefly outlined the starting of the Guide Movement. In 1908 Sir Robert Baden-Powell was addressing a Scout meeting, when a number of young girls pushed their way into the throng to listen to the address. Immediately Sir Robert conceived the idea if there were meetings for boys, why not for girls. Therefore in 1910, assisted by his sister, Miss Powell, the first Guide meeting was held, and in 1920 Lady Baden-Powell became Chief Guide, while Princess Mary became President. There are now 23,000 Guides in Canada. The laws of the Guide are:

A Guide's Honor is to be trusted.
A Guide is loyal.
A Guide's duty is to be useful and help others.
A Guide is a friend to all and a sister to every Guide.
A Guide is courteous.
A Guide is a friend to animals.
A Guide obeys orders.
A Guide smiles and sings under all difficulties.
A Guide is thrifty.
A Guide is pure in thought and in deed.

A Guide's Promise

On my honor I promise that I will do my best: To do my duty to God and to the King; To help other people at all times; To obey the Guide laws.

In closing Mrs. Forrest said it was with deep regret that she would no longer be Divisional Commander for this district, but she felt she could say that her successor, Mrs. Fullerton of Cobourg, would ably come up to standard.

Pictures were shown of Princess Mary; the different knots the girls learn to tie for various purposes; and Foxlease, England, the beautiful home given by Princess Mary to become the Imperial Camp for the Guide movement of the world. This home was given to Princess Mary by Mrs. Archibald for a wedding gift. All the Marys of the Empire also contributed to Princess Mary's wedding in the form of contributions amounting to six thousand pounds. The gifts were placed on view and four thousand pounds were realized. Princess Mary then gave this ten thousand pounds to the Guide leaders for the renovation of Foxlease, this to become known as the Imperial Camp of the Guide movement.

To Present Play

Campbellford is abounding in her display of local talent. An original Western drama, four acts, will be given by local talent next Thursday and Friday evening in the High School Auditorium under the leadership of the Loch Lomond Rebekah Lodge. This play is under the supervision of Mr. L. J. Elliott, and as Mr. Elliott's talent has become a favorite with the town, the play shou'd be well received.

N. H. L. Concludes Last Scheduled Game For Season

MAROONS LOSE THE LAST GAME TO SENATORS

Record Three Wins, Two Draws and One Defeat in Six Games.

SCORE 3-2.

Players Utilized Game as Workout For Championship Tussles.

MONTREAL, March 28 (Canadian Press).—The long preliminary campaign of 220 games in the two sections of the National Hockey League has ended and six of the ten teams to survive for the winter's grind—the first three in each section—are ready for the start of the play-downs for the section titles and league championship, which commence Tuesday with the third teams meeting the second teams of their respective groups in the semi-finals, a two-game series, total goals to count, the winner to earn the right to meet the first place team of their division for the group honors.

Referees Lou Marsh and Bobby Hewitson, of Toronto, will be in command of play when the Canadiens receive the champion Montreal Maroons before a packed crowd at the Forum here. Canadiens will enter the two-game series strong favorites over the present titleholders and are conceded the better chance of meeting Ottawa in the sectional finals.

Referees Billy Bell and Dave Ritchie, of Montreal, will handle the two games between Chicago Black Hawks and the Boston Bruins, the first to be played at Madison Square Garden Tuesday, as Chicago's home game, the Hawks being unable to utilize their home rink at the mid-Western city; the second tussle being at Boston Thursday night. Boston are the favorites for semi-final honors in the United States group and the right to meet the New York Rangers in the sectional finals.

Before a crowd of 8,000 pro hockey fans, Maroons and Ottawa wound up the scheduled N.H.L. season locally at the Forum Saturday night, the Senators winning the tilt, 3 to 2, and walking off with the season's jousts between the two teams with a record of three wins, two draws and one defeat in six games.

The game was all that a final fixture is likely to be. Both teams used their substitute material freely and neither side took any chances of overdoing matters, but at that the rivalry which has existed between the two clubs for the past two years cropped up half way through the game, budding feuds started to show signs of developing into something worse, and the upshot was fifteen penalties, the majority coming in the middle session and the early part of the final period, Ottawa collecting nine and Montreal six.

While the players utilized the game as a brisk workout in preparation for the impending championship tussles and there was a fair amount of speed displayed, the tilt as a whole lacked that earnestness and vital spark which is characteristic of a battle in which something definite was at stake.

Ottawa started without George Boucher on the defence, the Senator captain being held in the background that no chances might be taken on aggravating an injured knee which has been bothering him for almost a month. Montreal, likewise, kept players out of action. Babe Siebert, after a five-day sojourn in hospital with an injury to his forehead, did not get into the fray, while the big surprise for the supporters of the local team was the appearance of Flat Walsh in the nets in place of Benedict. Walsh has been the sub goalie of the Maroon team for the past four months, but had not been previously used in a tussle. The former Soo Greyhound star found himself behind a defence that was not working steadily. He was caught on the wrong foot early in the play and was apparently nervous. It was no fair test for the sub goalie.

Ottawa had taken an early lead of two goals on scores by Hooley Smith, which was enough for the Senators to work on for the time being. In the last second of the final period, Oatman sniped a tally behind the unsuspecting Connell from a face-off near the Senators' goal.

In the middle frame penalties started to fly fast and thick and in which session Finnigan put the game away for Ottawa with a goal on his own efforts. Finnigan found Munro and Broadbent doing defence duty at the moment. He rounded Broadbent, drew out Walsh and tallied into an empty net.

But the big moment of the evening for the Maroon supporters came in the final session when Dunc Munro and Dinny Dinsmore combined for the best goal of the game. Munro, who had been playing well throughout the game, led the rush. Not renowned for his passing he gave Dinsmore the season's best and Dinny, noted only for his defensive hockey, suprised the crowd by a neat backhand to the far corner of the Ottawa net. Maroons were a goal in arrears, but the five minutes remaining were not enough. The line-up:

Montreal.—Goal, Walsh; defence Munro and Noble; centre, Stewart; wings, Broadbent and Rathschild; subs, Dutton, Donnelly, Phillips, Carson, Oatman, and Dinsmore.

Ottawa.—Goal, Connell; defence, Clancy and A. Smith; centre, Nighbor; wings, H. Smith and Denneny; subs, Kilrea, Finnigan, Gorman, Halliday.

Referees—Lou Marsh and Bobby Hewitson.

First Period:
1—Ottawa, H. Smith 2.00
2—Ottawa, H. Smith 10.10
3—Montreal, Oatman 7.49
Second Period:
4—Ottawa, Finnegan 5.10
Third Period:
5—Montreal, Dinsmore 14.55
Penalties:

JOE BOLEY IS GREAT SHORTSTOP

Dan Howley Says Best He Has Ever Seen in Action.

FT. MYERS, Fla., March 28. — "Joe Boley is the greatest shortstop I have ever seen in action," says Manager Dan Howley, of the St. Louis Browns, about Connie Mack's new infielder.

Boley hails from the Baltimore team of the International League. For three years Dan Howley, as manager of the Toronto Club of the same league, has had plenty of chances to observe his play.

It was Howley who last season broke Baltimore's record of seven consecutive pennants.

"I know I am making a broad statement when I say Boley is the best shortstop I have ever seen play the position but I am willing to stand back of it.

"What is more I have been in baseball about two years and during that time I have seen every great star at that position.

"Boley was a big leaguer five years ago. He could have stepped in then and set either of the majors on fire. He is such a graceful player, who makes all chances look easy, that it is hard to appreciate his remarkable ability.

"He will have the American League talking plenty about him this summer."

ELECTED CAPTAIN.

"Herb" Kirkpatrick, the sterling defense player of Toronto Varsity seniors, who has been elected captain of the Blue and White hockey team for the season of 1927-28. Kirkpatrick has taken part in two Allan cup play-offs with the Varsity team and should prove a capable leader.

TRIO OF VETERANS WILL OPEN SEASON

Cobb, Collins and Wheat To Play in First Game.

(By NEA Service.)

FORT MYERS, Fla., March 28.—What disposition does Connie Mack intend to make of his trio of recently acquired veteran stars — Ty Cobb, Eddie Collins Zack Wheat?

The taciturn manager of the Athletics, who seldom speaks out of turn and always says a mouthful when he opens up, has definitely set to rest all rumors and doubts.

"Collins will positively start the season at second base," says Mack. "He has reported in fine shape, says his leg is not troubling him at all and is confident he will not only start but finish.

"If Cobb and Wheat are in shape when the season opens, both will play regularly, Wheat in left, Cobb in right, with Simmons in centre.

"I have no desire to rush either. I am allowing them to condition themselves, feeling that each knows what is best for him and how much work he can stand.

"Both look fine and feel sure they will be fit to answer when the bell rings. If either isn't I have French and Lamar in reserve. The latter is such a fine hitter that there is always the chance that he may crowd any one out of a berth.

"Probably neither Cobb or Wheat will be able to go the full route, but what a help they are going to be when in there, with those big bats they swing."

CHAMP HELD TO A DRAW

Tony Canzoneri Battles Buddie Taylor, World's Bantamweight Champion.

SLIGHTLY OUTBOXED.

CHICAGO, March 28 (Canadian Press)—Buddie Taylor, recognized in Illinois and seventeen other states as worlds bantamweight champion, was held to a draw by the youthful Tony Canzoneri, of New York, rated as the leading bantamweight of the east, in a furious ten round fight in the Coliseum Saturday night.

The decision of referee Joe Choynski, the old time heavyweight and two judges were unanimous. They agreed that Canzoneri slightly outboxed Taylor with his long, willowy lefts, but that the Terre Haute terror forced the fighting and landed the cleaner and harder punches. Canzoneri surprised Taylor by slugging him in their furious exchange and refusing to yield ground.

Canzoneri scored with amazing speed in popping left hands into Taylor's face. Taylor tried to do the same thing but gave up in disgust in attempting to hit his elusive target and centered his attacks to the body.

He occasionally switched his attack, nailing Canzoneri on the head with hard rights. Both sustained cuts over the eyes before the end of fight. Abel Attel Goldstein, former world's bantamweight champion, had no trouble defeating Pete Sarmiento, of the Philippines, in the eight round semi-final.

Johnny Vacca, of Boston, twice conqueror of Fidel La Barba, of Los Angeles, the flyweight champion dropped an eight round bout to Archie Bell, shifty New York 118 pounder.

JONES WINS ANOTHER TITLE

Captures Southern Open at East Lake Country Club.

72 HOLES IN 281

ATLANTA, Ga., March 28 (Canadian Press)—Bobby Jones, open golf champion of Great Britain and the United States won another title Saturday when he captured the southern open at East Lake Country Club, his home course.

He played the 72 holes in 281, eight strokes ahead of Johnny Farrell, New York, and John Golden, Paterson, N.J., who tied for second place and the $4,000 money award for the leading professional. They had scores of 2829 and will play off an 18-hole match for first money Monday afternoon, the loser to take second money of $1,750.

Al Watrous, Grand Rapids, was close behind Golden and Farrell with 291, followed by Leo Diegel New York, who had 292.

DEFEAT RANGERS.

Bruins Celebrate Last Regular Game By 4 To 3 Victory.

BOSTON, Mass., March 28. Canadian Press. — The Boston Bruins celebrated their last regular game of the National Hockey League season here on Saturday night by defeating the New York Rangers 4 to 3 in a fast, rugged encounter that took seven minutes of overtime play to decide.

COMPLETES ROUT OF TENNIS STARS

Wins Final Round Doubles Victory in National Indoor Championship.

NEW YORK, March 28 (Canadian Press) — Smashing through Dr. George King and Francis T. Hunter for a final round doubles rout of the United States tennis victory, Jean Borotra and Jacques Brugnon Saturday completed the ranks in the national indoor championship. The match was decided in straight sets at 7-5, 6-3, 6-3.

The picturesque French pair then took the court as rivals in the third consecutive all-French singles final on United States soil, with Borotra carrying off the title by 6-2, 6-4, 6-3. Spectacular stroking, teeming with sparkling rallies at the net, swept the Basque back to the peak he occupied in 1925. It was France's third straight national indoor singles triumph, Rene Lacoste having taken the title a year ago.

By their dash through both singles and doubles, the Tricolor Davis Cup stars brought off France's first twin triumph in one event on this side of the Atlantic. Never before has an exclusively French team captured a United States double crown, although Borotra, paired with A. W. Asthalter, of New York, won the indoor honors two years ago.

TAKE HEART

By W. D. Packwood.

It never is too late to mend,
And darkest clouds have brightest end;
Just strive afresh with manly heart
To bravely act a nobler part.

Take courage, brother, while 'tis day;
Let the part of yesterday
Lead thee on a little higher
Towards the goal of true desire.

Keep on plodding, and with zest
Make your life an earnest quest,
Seeking ever all that's true,
With one purpose fixed in view.

'Tis oft a bitter weary way,
The road that leads to endless day,
But keep on climbing its ascent;
'Tis the road our Saviour went.

Soon we'll hear the words "well done'
When our race of life is run,
And we'll not have lived in vain,
Though we've won no earthly gain

If we hear those words at last,
When the last waves crest is past
"Thou good and faithful servant" art;
So courage, brother, just take heart.

Prospects are bright for a new Pacific Coast Hockey League next year, with teams in Vancouver, Victoria, Seattle and Portland. If conditions warrant San Francisco and Los Angeles may be added to the circuit.

ENVOYS CLASH

On the other hand, if the front is limited to the actual gun crews, one would reach the singular result that all artillery men are to be considered as not being on the firing line.

From this conclusion M. de Broucker made a plea for the limitation of effectives by the limitation of materials.

Hugh Gibson, the American delegate, again announced his inability to participate in the present phase of the discussions because he had not received instructions.

Mr. Gibson is the only delegate to the Commission of Ambassador's rank, and yet he is the only man who has no plenipotentiary powers. Many delegations apparently think it ridiculous that the envoy of a nation, which has only a friendly and no direct interest in the question of land armaments, cannot, despite his eleven months of work on the Preparatory Commission, speak until a man who has only followed the armaments question from a distance of 3,000 miles has sent him instructions.

The world record of 9 3-5 seconds for the 100-yard dash made by D. J. Kelly twenty-one years ago has never been beaten, although Charlie Paddock has since equaled the mark four times.

A sport which has always had many attractions for women, and which is becoming increasingly popular among them, is fencing. Many American college girls are taking it up with enthusiasm.

MILLION DOLLAR TEAM INFIELD

Do you remember the world famous infield of Connie Mack's million dollar team, made up of Barry, Frank Baker, McInnes and Eddie Collins? Connie broke up the team and its record went down in baseball annals. Here are, from left to right, Freddie Lindstrom, Travis Jackson, Rogers Hornsby, and Bill Terry, the 1927 Giant infield, who by their known versatility bid fair to surpass Mack's famed quartet.

STRATFORD OUT MONEY ON PROS

May Remain in League, However, With Holway at Helm.

BROTHERS OUT.

STRATFORD, March 28.—Unless unforeseen circumstances arise between now and next October, Stratford will retain its franchise in the Canadian Hockey League,despite the retirement of Roy Brothers, manager, and one of the chief financial supporters of the team this year.

This is the encouraging announcement made by one of the rink directors. He declined, however, to permit his name to be used in this connection until after the meeting of the directors.

While nothing definite has been decided on it, the way of selecting a successor to Roy Brothers, Albert Holway, defence player,is being mentioned in this connection. He would act as a playing manager.

While the exact figures are not available from a source close to the team management it was stated today that the operating expenses of the team were in excess of $30,000. The club did not break even on the season.

When questioned in this connection, Roy Brothers said it was impossible to operate professional hockey team in Stratford without the assistance of an N.H.L. club. "Any one who will attempt it will lose money," he said. It was also intimated that his arrangeemnt with the Montreal team this year had been a personal one. Whether Montreal will care to co-operate with the new management next year is conjectural.

C.O.B.L. NEEDS ANOTHER TEAM

Will Disband If Four Team Group Can't Be Arranged.

MEETING HELD.

BELLEVILLE, March 28. — At the semi-annual meeting of the Central Ontario Amateur Baseball League, held Saturday in this city, it was decided that should no fourth club be secured prior to April 9, that the league suspend operations for this year.

Last year the league was run with three teams—Belleville, Kingston and Peterborough—but was not a success.

Most likely Kingston will play exhibition games this year, while Peterborough and Belleville will link up with Deloro, last year's intermediate champions, and Point Anne, and form a strong intermediate series. If the league disbands, the money now in the treasury will be divided among the three clubs. H. T. McFadden, president of the league, presided.

Early Upturn In Wheat Quickly Followed By Drop

CHICAGO, March 28 (Canadian Press).—Despite the big decrease in wheat on ocean passage and notwithstanding consequent price upturns at the start, wheat to-day soon underwent a sag. The bears made much of assertions that the United States wheat exports are averaging only about half what the surplus would permit. Starting at 1-8 cent to ¼ advance, wheat receded to well below Saturday's finish. Corn and provisions were also easier, corn opening unchanged to 3-8 cent up, but then declining.

Opening prices were: Wheat, May 1.35; July 1.30. Corn, May 72 1-8; July 76 3-4. Oats, May 43 3-4; July 44 3-8.

Massey Harris Preferred In Demand At Toronto

TORONTO, March 28 (Canadian Press). — There were several features to an interesting session of trading on the Toronto Stock Exchange to-day, the chief of which was an unprecedented demand for Massey Harris Preferred stock. This issue was the active leader and it sold unchanged at 109. British American Oil was also active and stronger, reaching the new high of 27¼ at the noon close, a gain of 3.8. The distillery stocks were active and weaker. Seagrams declined 1-8 to 23,1-8 in active trading. G. and W. was the weak feature, declining 1¼ to 55 3-4. Walker dropped ½ to 37. Industrial Alcohol was unchanged at 25 7-8. Consolidated Smelters featured the mining section, advancing 5 1-8 points to 261 1-8, while Noranda sold up 1.00 to 21.80.

Mining Trading Broad; Stronger Feeling To-day

TORONTO, March 28 (Canadian Press).—A stronger feeling developed in the trading on the Standard Mining Exchange to-day. The market was fairly broad, with gains and losses being about equally distributed. Coniagas provided the feature price movement when it advanced 30 cents a share to 3.90. Dome Mines strengthened ten cents to 8.65, as did McIntyre to 25.00. Premier sold up four to 2.15, while Duprat and Gold Hill Mines each gained one to 13¾ and 36 respectively. Castle Trethewey dropped two to 96. Hollinger was off 10 to 20.90, and Laval-Quebec declined one to 26½. Nipissing dropped to 7.65, a decline of five cents. Noranda advanced 85 cents to 21.75, while Central Manitoba Gold was unchanged at 117.

Many New High Records Made In New York To-day

NEW YORK, Mar. 28 (Canadian Press)—Establishment of new record high prices by the common stocks of some of the premier railroad and industrial corporations of the country overshadowed all other developments in to-day's stock market. The long list of new highs included United States Steel, American Telephone, General Motors, Dupont, National Biscuit, Baltimore and Ohio, and Delaware and Hudson. Early gains, which ran from one to eight points, were interspersed with a few weak spots uncovered by the aggressive tactics of bear traders.

The buying movement appeared to have received its inspiration from Secretary Mellon's optimistic forecast of business and credit conditions last Saturday. The rally was temporarily halted after mid-day by an outbreak of selling in the oil shares and the marking up of the call money rate from 4 to 4 1-2 per cent, but speculators for the advance quickly regained control of the price movement.

The special strength of General Motors was in further reflection of Vice President Raskob's prediction of record breaking first quarter earnings. Dupont, which has large General Motors holdings, naturally advanced in sympathy. Willys-Overland was in brisk demand despite the relatively poor 1926 earnings report published last week. Other motors were mixed.

Further accumulation of steels followed reports of steady expansion of mill operations on the part of the independents and the revival of rumors that Bethlehem Common would be placed on a dividend basis before the end of the year. National Biscuit and Fleischman were bought on merger rumors. Kelsey Wheel, in which bear traders received severe punishment last week, when the stock scored an extreme advance of over 14 points, jumped another five points to-day. Expectations of a stock split-up contributed to the strength of Commercial Solvents 'B.' Noon day selling of the oils centred largely in Houston, General Asphalt, Lago, Pan American 'B', and Pan American Western, the first named subsequently staging a sharp recovery.

PIGEONS EXHIBITED.

A picture show was presented to the Junior and Beginner groups at the Y.M.C.A. on Saturday night. After the show J. L. Young, the director of the pigeon exhibits at the Hobby Fair, gave an address to the boys on how to look after and how to be a good judge of pigeons. He had present with him a pair of Jacobins and a pen of Homer pigeons. It is expected that a flying club will be formed among the boys of the city this summer when boys will be trained how to care for pigeons and races will be held with their pigeons from outside towns to Peterborough.

AROUND THE CITY

A second test was given the new fire pumper at the George Street wharf on Saturday. It was operated by the local firemen and a capacity of 1,217 gallons per minute was obtained.

In the past few days there has been a great demand at the Government Employment Bureau for men to go out on the farm. Last week there were 36 placements, 33 new applicants and at present there are 122 on the list.

The fire department received a call to a chimney fire at 333 Rubidge Street on Saturday.

THE CHURCHES

ST. GEORGE'S ANGLICAN.

The services of St. George's church yesterday were marked by the special significance of "Mothering Sunday," one of the old names for the 4th Sunday in Lent, also called Mid-Lent or Refreshment Sunday. The services both morning and evening were well attended. At the nine o'clock Choral Eucharist— when a large number made their communion — the rector, the Rev. J. L. Hughes, dedicated a silver plated altar bread box, suitably inscribed, this being a "mothering" gift to the church from "mothers." A pleasing feature of the presentation was the fact that the idea originated with, and was carried out solely by the mothers, the handsome gift coming as a great and pleasant surprise to the rector. Lovely flowers adorned the altar, placed there by members of the congregation in memoryof mothers who had passed to the home beyond the veil.

During the services the rector made touching reference to the flowers, and expresed his sincere appreciation to the mothers for their valuable and appropriate gift. Suitable hymns were sung, including one specially written for "Mothering Sunday."

Taking as his text for the sermon, words from the epistle for the day, "Jerusalem which is above is free, which is the mother of us all," the rector gave a short history of "Mothering Sunday," and from the religious and social customs connected with the day, he pointed out its spiritual significance as a "day in praise of mothers."

MAN KNOWN HERE DIES IN SYRACUSE

Thomas H. Mather Has Often Visited Relatives in Peterborough.

News ewas received in the city on Thursday of the sudden death of Thomas H. Mather, of Syracuse, son-in-law of Mrs. Edmund Layfield, Charlotte street. Mr. Mather passed away suddenly with acute dilation of the heart at 11.00 o'clock on Wednesday night at his home, 229 Cambridge street, Syracuse. Prior to his decease he seemed in good health and had engaged in his business that day.

Mr. Mather and his wife are well known in Peterborough, having visited the city frequently, and have a host of friends. He was born in Glasgow, Scotland, sixty-seven years ago and obtained his education and engineering degrees in that country. He came to Canada and worked on the construction of the Canadian Pacific Railway in the west and central districts, also in the east. Of particular interest to the older people of Peterborough, Mr. Mather during the years 1882 to 1884 was resident engineer of ten miles construction and forty miles of track laying from Crow River to Peterborough. He returned to Scotland, where he was engaged in building an underground railway in Glasgow. He then went to New Mexico as superintendent of some large irrigation reservoir. He then returned to Canada in 1891 as construction engineer and from thence he moved to West Virginia and worked in several southern states. He went to Syracuse in 1892 and continued in civil engineering work on electric and suburban railways. In 1916 he was appointed commissioner of public works for the city of Syracuse. During the World War he volunteered his services to the United States' Government and was active in the construction of docks for that government. In 1922 he was appointed city engineer for Syracuse and held that position for four years. He was then appointed chief engineer on the Grade Crossing Commission and also a member of the Intercepting Sewer Board of that city.

Seldom indeed did individual have all the qualities of heart and mind he possessed. He was a sincere, loyal friend, honest in purposes and dealing. He was a tireless worker, modest and unassuming in the extreme and yet his ability was recognized by lal. He had a happy, lovable disposition and a pleasing and winning personality.

The survivors are his wife, Mrs. Isabelle Layfield Mather and two daughters, Mrs. Harry H. Motheral of Brooklyn, and Mrs. John Adams of Jersey City, N.J.

The funeral services took place in Syracuse, N.Y. on Saturady and were conducted by Central Lodge A.F. and A.M. of which he was a past grand master.

His relatives in Peterborough, Mrs. Edmund Layfield, Miss Jane Layfield and Mr. R. E. Layfield, will have the sympathy of their mutual friends in Peterborough.

Thomas H. Mather, chief engineer of the grade crossing commission and former city engineer and commissioner of public works, Syracuse, N.Y., died suddenly shortly before 11 o'clock at his home, last Wednesday, while preparing for bed. Death was caused by acute dilation of the heart. He was 67 years old.

Returning home from his office late Wednesday afternoon, Mr. Mather appeared in his usual good health and spent the evening at home with his wife and friends. About 8.30 o'clock, he complained of feeling slightly ill and a physician was called. He told the engineer there was nothing the matter with him, and left.

Later Mr. Mather felt ill again and asked his wife to get him some medicine before he retired. When she went in his bedroom with the medicine, she found him dead.

Mr. Mather spent his entire lifein after completing his work in high school in the study and development of engineering problems.

During his employment by the great railroad corporations, the late James Hill, western railroad magnate and president of the Great Northern railroad, declared Mr. Mather, "the greatest locating engineer in the country."

Born in Glasgow, Scotland, May 2, 1859, he was a pupil five years for the firm of Kyle, Dennison & Frew, civil engineers of that city. For three years during his connection with this firm he followed supplementary courses in evening classes at Mechanics' Institute, Glasgow University.

He remained in Scotland two years after graduating from the Institute, and then in 1882 went to Canada, where he was engaged as engineer of construction and track-laying for the Canadian Pacific Railway.

In 1884 Mr. Mather journeyed to New Mexico as superintendent of a waterworks in that state, to return shortly to Canada as office engineer for the Canadian Pacific. He continued here until 1886, when he sailed back to his native land to assist in the construction of an underground railway at Glasgow.

After spending a year in Scotland he returned to Canada and remained in this country as construction engineer for the Canadian Pacific, engineer for a mining company, and chief of several surveying parties into the interior of Canada.

In 1891 Mr. Mather went to the United States and had been a resident until his death. He was naturalized as a citizen in 1899 while a resident of Syracuse.

His position in that country was as inspector of the erection of steel bridges for a railroad company in West Virginia. He stayed in that state for one year, going to Syracuse in 1892, where he remained.

Mr. Mather became a member of the civil engineering firm of Mather & Allen in May, 1872, and supervised work on sewers, street pavements, and general engineering for the firm three years, leaving it to become chief engineer of a system of high speed electric railways in charge of construction and maintenance of all suburban and interurban railways running out of the city.

He was appointed commissioner of public works January 1, 1916, and the same year established an office selling civic and contractors' supplies. During the war he occupied positions as civilian attache in the United States army in charge of construction and docks, supervising engineer in the ordnance department, and superintendent of utilities.

Mayor Walrath appointed Mr. Mather city engineer, January 1, 1922, and he held that position throughout the Walrath administration, and upon his departure from that office became chief engineer of the grade crossing commission. He was also a member of the intercepting sewer board.

His work in recent years has been devoted almost entirely to the study of the present grade crossing situation in Syracuse and Onondaga county, making frequent trips to other cities to investigate their problems and to report to the commissioner in Syracuse what he had discovered and how the experience of those cities could help Syracuse.

His death came almost upon the eve of the final report of Frederick H. Fay of Boston on his recommendation for elevation or depression of the railroad tracks running through the city, following a survey in which Mr. Mather played a large part.

Mr. Mather has been a member of the American Society of Civil Engineers for more than 20 years. He was a past master of Central City Lodge, A.F. and A.M., and a member of Central City Commandry 25. He also held membership in the Chamber of Commerce, and the Citizens' Club.

Surviving are his wife, Mrs. Isabelle Layfield Mather, and two daughters, Mrs. Harry H. Motheral of Brooklyn and Mrs. John Adams of Jersey City, N.J. He was the son-in-law of Mrs. Edmond Layfield, Charlotte Street, Peterborough.

REFUGEES POUR FROM INTERIOR SEEKING SAFETY

Flee Before Rising Tide of Anti-Foreignism Towards Shanghai.

FIRE ON VESSELS

Agitators Continue to Arouse Ill-Feeling by Distributing Handbills.

SHANGHAI, March 29 (Canadian Press). — Fleeing before a rising tide of anti-foreignism, foreigners in Nationalist China yesterday were moving steadily on Shanghai, some of them running a virtual gauntlet of Cantonese fire on the Yangtse River and others working their way to the coast from other directions through a hostile population.

Shanghai itself was the centre of a growing anti-foreign feeling in the native district where leaflets and handbills were distributed blaming the British for the Nanking bombardment on Thursday and calling for a boycott of British goods and a strike of employees of British firms.

In the face of this agitation, the barriers about the international settlement were being strengthened steadily.

The Yangtse River, chief means of flight from the interior, has become the scene of a virtual state of war between Nationalist soldiers on either bank and foreign vessels carrying refugees. Shots have been fired on nearly every ship proceeding down the river, naval vessels themselves escorting merchant ships being the targets for snipers.

Answer Call.

Remote districts of the interior which have been out of wire communication with Shanghai have gradually been picking up the evacuation notice sent out by radio last week by United States Consul-General Gauss, with the result that foreigners, in increasing numbers, are flocking to the coast.

Foreigners are being evacuated from Nanking, Nanchang, Yangchow, Swatow, Hangchow, Chinkiang and various other smaller cities. The United States destroyer Preble has completed a tour of the smaller ports along the lower Yangtse, where 15 men, 14 women and 18 children were picked up.

Held Meeting.

The French Municipal Council yesterday held a meeting to consider the defence of the French concession. Consul-General Naggier, who presided, said that there was no reason to infer that the French concession was less prepared for defence than the rest of the foreign settlements. According to the French naval authorities, he added, sufficient forces were available for any emergency. The Consul-General also said that complete defensive co-operation existed between the French concession and the rest of the foreign settlement.

A mass meeting was held yesterday afternoon by Japanese residents of the foreign settlement. A resolution was adopted thanking the foreign forces for the protection afforded the Japanese.

Refugees coming from Nanking brought additional stories of the rioting there last week.

Harrowing Tales.

Dr. Frank Price of Richmond, Va., 62-year-old professor of theology at Nanking Theological Seminary, who was taken to a hospital suffering from ptomaine poisoning, gave a graphic account of his narrow escape from death at the hands of Nationalist soldiery at Nanking.

He said that the looting began Thursday morning and continued all day. He himself, after being robbed, was threatened with death by a young soldier. His cook interfered and wrestled with the looter for possession of a sword, while an old coolie, long employed by the professor, knelt weeping and begged for his employer's life.

Later the professor was taken in hand by a squad of soldiers, who ordered him to kneel to be shot. A neighbor intervened and arguments began over money payments. A Nationalist doctor then took him from the hands of the soldiers, but the respite was short, for the professor was seized again.

"This was the closest call of all," Dr. Price said. "One soldier said that although I was an American I was his enemy. He drew his gun. I seized it and we struggled. With the help of two students danger was averted."

After nine hours in the hands of the soldiers, Prof. Price was released and made his way to the Nanking University, where other refugees had concentrated.

Worse Than Boxer.

Mme. Caplain, French wife of an official in the Chinese post office, who remained at Nanking a day later than the other refugees, also went through harrowing experiences but escaped with her life

Shrapnel Is Removed After Eleven Years

PORT ARTHUR, March 29 —After carrying a piece of shrapnel in his hip for 11 years, H. A. Johnson of the Government Steamship Inspector's office here, has just had it removed, and is already feeling an improvement in health. He received the shrapnel at Hooge in June, 1916. From August, 1916, until August, 1921, the wound troubled him by discharging. Dr. Gardiner of Winnipeg succeeded finally in extracting the shrapnel.

BODY OF BABY FOUND IN DITCH

Mutilated Remains of Newborn Child Discovered Near Orland.

CORONER INQUIRING.

ORLAND, March 29.—The finding of the body of a newly born infant, mutilated and apparently burned with acid, has given local authorities a mystery to solve, and Dr. Dure of Brighton, coroner for the district, is investigating the case.

The gruesome find was made yesterday by George Lawson, who noticed an unusual bundle on the roadside on the Orland-Codrington road about a mile from this village.

An investigation revealed the body wrapped in towels and cheesecloth, and with visible signs of an attempt having been made to destroy the body by rude surgery and the use of acid.

Mr. Lawson summoned J. L. Loomis, who lives nearby, and the two notified Township Clerk Wade, who advised them to inform Coroner Dr. Dure of the circumstances.

Dr. Dure is endeavoring to-day to secure further information that will throw some light upon the case.

HOUSE TAKES NO ACTION ON PREMIER'S BILL

Ferguson Aims To Improve Cultural Opportunities of Farm People.

LAID OVER.

Rural Education in Sparsely Populated Centres Too Expensive.

TORONTO, Ont., March 29. Canadian Press. — Practically the whole of yesterday afternoon's sitting of the Ontario Legislature was taken up with discussion of Premier Howard Ferguson's bill providing for township boards of public school trustees to replace the present section system, and while the members of the opposition were in sympathy with several features of the measure they were of the opinion that it did not offer any material improvement, and that in the main, the system now in operation was more satisfactory, and more economical.

On the other hand Premier Ferguson claimed that the system he proposed would not only make for advanced education but would effect a very substantial decrease in the cost of maintaining the schools. However, he had not any fixed purpose in putting the bill through at the present time and preferred to delay its passage in order to obtain more general sympathy of the people. Accordingly he intended to withdraw the bill when discussion ended and re-introduce it next year.

W. E. N. Sinclair, Liberal leader, adjourned the debate.

Extends Benefits.

Explaining the bill, Premier Ferguson said the purpose was to make an earnest effort to extend the benefits of higher education to the rural communities and "to enable the people of the farms to enjoy good literature and a proper home life." It was hoped to overcome some of the obstacles which handicapped sparsely settled communities in educational matters as compared with the urban centres. In addition it would introduce a new system of financing the rural schools on the number of pupils in attendance and on the standard of the institutions.

Mr. Ferguson pointed out that in 200 schools in the province there were less than five pupils in attendance, and in one case in his own riding of Grenville only one pupil attended the school. The average cost per pupil of these schools was $250 while the average cost for all rural schools was $87. This showed, he contended, that rural education was in a serious condition and should prove to everyone that the time had arrived for a radical change in the system.

Some of the advantages to be gained by the system, he continued, would be greater facilities for higher education, greater economy and decrease in the maintenance cost of the schools; in this connection he said it should be borne in mind that in the final analysis the cost of education must be paid by the parents of the pupils.

Save in Building.

In addition the system would mean a saving in building equipment, the elimination of the work school, equalization of the assessment over the township and the location of the schools where they would best serve the pupils.

With the advancement of scientific agriculture and domestic science, Premier Ferguson said the demand for more intensive training in rural communities was becoming almost acute, and he thought that this situation could be met by the provisions of the bill. To-day in order to equip boys and girls for life on the farm it was necessary to send them to the urban centres for training because the facilities were not provided in the rural schools. Under his proposal the school board would cover a larger area, and it would be enabled to concentrate on higher education and change the curriculum to meet requirements.

Franchise For Women Is Due This Season

LONDON, March 29.— It is likely that legislation giving the vote to 5,000,000 more women at the next election will be introduced at the present session of parliament, according to opinions in government circles. Many Tories contemplate the change with the greatest fear, but Premier Baldwin has pledged his word to extend the vote, making voting equal between men and women.

At present, women in Britain are not allowed to vote until they have reached 30 years of age. The new legislation would permit them to vote at 21.

Fire Alarm Is Given By Screams Of Child

ST. CATHARINES, March 29. — Police Constable Charles Harvey, walking his beat, was attracted by the screams of a child, who informed the officer his home was on fire and two other children were in the burning house. It was found a curtain in the house was blazing, one of the three children having set fire to it with a candle. The children belonged to Mr. and Mrs. Charles Cooper, colored. They had left the youngsters in the house alone. A few pails of water put out the fire, and the children were only badly frightened.

FOUR HI-JACKERS POSE AS POLICE

Hold Up Vehicles North of City and Search For Liquor.

MANY COMPLAINTS.

Stating that they represent the Provincial Police, four men have been searching all manner of buggies and automobiles for liquor. They have been operating on the Chemong Road and also in the neighborhood of the Bonner-Worth Mills.

Using the name of Provincial Constable Norman F. Maker as a lever to permit the search, they have forced several travellers to get out of their vehicles while they ransack the interior.

They stopped one man who knew Constable Maker slightly, but owing to the darkness he was not able to identify his assailant. As a result of the hold-up he got into communication with Constable Maker today.

Constable Maker told The Examiner that in future any people who are held up in this manner should demand to see his badge. "Invariably when I search vehicles on the roads I am in uniform, but if not I always carry my badge to show my authority for my actions," he declared.

He also added that he had been given good descriptions of the men, also the car in which they travel, and that the arrest of the gang was imminent.

STAND ON CHINA COSTS HIM SEAT

Labor M. P. Who Protested Party's Policy Loses By-Election.

LIBERAL ELECTED.

LONDON, March 29.— (Canadian Press.) — Dr. Haden Guest's stand against the Labor party on the Chinese question has cost him his seat in the House of Commons. He was Labor member of the House for the north division of Southwark, but announced his resignation from the party when he found it was opposed to the sending of a defense force to China when the situation there became acute. This necessitated a by-election and Dr. Guest submitted himself for re-election as "Independent Constitutionalist.' The Conservative candidate withdrew in his favor, but the Liberal candidate, E. A. Strauss, won out when the election was held yesterday, polling 7,334 votes. George Isaacs, Labor, was second with 6,167 votes and Dr. Guest third with 3,215 votes.

INOCULATE 7,000 AGAINST FEVER

Doctors of One Company Are Administering Serum Free.

NEW HOSPITAL.

MONTREAL, March 29. Canadian Press. —More than seven thousand people have been innoculated at the office of an insurance company here as a protection against typhoid which is still epidemic in this city.

The company has opened its medical staff and serum at the disposal of any who desire to take advantage of them free.

To-day the company inaugurates a system of vaccinating workers in the factories. Another free clinic will be opened this afternoon in the City Hall.

Work was being rushed to-day on a third emergency hospital for the care of patients. It is hoped to be able to open it to-night. A staff of doctors and nurses is ready to receive cases.

CANTON FORCES PLACE CANNON ALONG YANGTZE

Command River Down Which Refugees Must Travel.

PRECAUTIONS TAKEN.

U. S. Forces To Be Independent Command, Acting in Cooperation.

SHANGHAI, March 29 (Canadian Press).—Foreigners are continuing to pour out of the danger zone in the Yangtze Valley to points protected by the guns of foreign warships. The removal of citizens of the United States from that section of Central China held by the Nationalists now has been extended to the districts threatened by the Nationalist advance. Refugees are moving out of Southern Shangtung, Anhwei, and Southern Honan Provinces.

The steamer 'Suiwo,' with a normal capacity of only 25 first-class passengers, arrived from Hankow to-day, with 285 refugees from the interior near Hankow.

Cantonese troops are reported to be placing heavy guns at points along the Yangtze down which ships loaded with refugees must pass on their way to the international settlement at Shanghai.

The foreign naval commanders here are exerting all precautions and the international settlement is being guarded carefully against a mob attack. The activities of the so-called 'Labor Corps' has prompted some alarm in foreign settlements. These men are of the loafer type and many are armed.

U.S. Forces Independent.

WASHINGTON, March 29 (Canadian Press). — The United States forces in China will not be merged with the forces of the other powers.

President Coolidge considers the United States has its own commander in the field, with an establishment under his direction, so that independence of action on the part of the United States military groups can be maintained. Nevertheless, the President feels that the United States forces will co-operate with the troops of the other powers, especially since reports have indicated that United States refugees are scattered throughout the foreign concessionary area, particularly at Shanghai.

Withdrawal Demanded.

SHANGHAI, March 29 (Canadian Press).—The withdrawal of British warships from Changsha, on the Siang Kiang in Honan Province, was demanded to-day, following a slight encounter between a number of Chinese and a party from the British gunboat 'Woodcock.'

A commissioner further demanded that the British sailors involved in the incident be turned over, to enable the Chinese authorities to take "drastic action" against them.

Despatches also report that the commissioner has withdrawn the extra-territorial rights of all Britishers at Changsha and that in consequence the British authorities are evacuating all their nationals from that city.

Agitation Continues

SHANGHAI, Mar. 29 (Canadian Press)—Agitation in the native city of Shanghai and Chapei continued to-day, but quiet prevailed within the International Settlement and the French concession area. Several attempts to enter the concessions were made by Chinese individuals and small mobs, but these were repulsed without difficulty by the border patrols and sentries.

The zone in which the lives of foreigners are imperilled is moving northward and has penetrated Shantung. In view of the increased troubles and uncertain future of the province, missionaries in Eastern Shantung are proceeding either to Tsingtao on the southeastern coast, or to Chefoo, Shantung province.

GUNNISON, Col., March 29.—(A.P.)—A kiss shortens human life three minutes, students in the department of psychology at Western State College here have decided.

A survey in genetic psychology showed that a kiss causes such palpitation of the heart that the extra beats of that organ amount to the normal number taking place in three minutes.

Figures that are interesting, if true, show that 480 kisses would shorten life by one full day and that 2,350 kisses would eliminate one week.

Canadian Dollar Reaches New High Level For Year

NEW YORK, March 29 (Canadian Press).—The Canadian dollar, which was at a discount of 13-64 of one per cent early this month, necessitating the shipment of gold from Montreal to New York, was quoted in the foreign exchange market here yesterday at a premium of 1-8 of one per cent, a new high level for the year.

Yesterday's rate is within 1-16 of one per cent of the point which would make profitable the return flow of gold to Canada.

The heavy demand for Canadian bills arises from the unusually early opening of Great Lakes navigation and the flow of investment capital across the northern border.

REDUCTION OF DUTY ON LIQUOR WOULD LESSEN NUMBER OF STILLS

Says Excise Preventive Officer at Sitting of Customs Probe.

ARE NUMEROUS

Session Dealt Largely With Examination of Toronto Officials.

TORONTO, March 29 (Canadian Press).—Illicit stills have been quite numerous in Ontario. During the past three years, a single Customs and Excise Preventive officer has unearthed 86 stills of all shapes and sizes—"some very large and some as small as a tea-kettle."

During the last few minutes of yesterday's sitting of the Royal Customs Commission, the officer in question, Edward Floody, took the stand. He expressed the opinion that if the excise duty on liquor was reduced from $9.00 to about $4.50 a gallon, there would be a reduction in the number of illicit stills. He said, however, that there had been a good deal of illicit distilling in Ontario even before the duty was raised to its present figure.

Little Information

Officer Floody said that reluction in the amount of moieties paid to informers from sixty per cent to twenty-five per cent of the seizure, made it much more difficult to get information.

"Now we get very little information, and what we do get we have to find for ourselves nearly always," he said. "We used to get information from all kinds of people—parsons down to men in sewers."

"Even the parsons have stopped?" asked Chief Commissioner Brown.

Mr. Floody expressed the belief that it would be a good thing to raise the moieties to informers. He agreed to produce some statistics in regard to illicit distilling both before and after the increase in excise.

He will be recalled to the stand to-day.

Brokers Examined

Once more yesterday's sitting was devoted largely to the examination of officers of the Toronto Customs Department. There was some variation from this when two customs brokers of Toronto were called to the stand. One of them, William R. Harper, advised strongly that the Collector at Toronto should be given a freer hand in dealing with his port. "For goodness sake give the Collector some authority," he said to the Commissioners. Again the contention that Toronto is hampered very much because of inadequate facilities for examination of customs importations was put forward and emphasized.

Collector J. H. Bertram of Toronto was examined by Hon. N. W. Rowell, K.C., counsel for the Commission, in regard to the appraisal methods at this port. He was asked about evidence which has been taken showing that the regulation in regard to ordering up of packages for appraisal and designation of the particular packages for examination, are not obeyed here. He agreed that officers failing to observe these regulations had erred, and that in some particulars they had "been very, very lax." Necessary steps had been taken to see that the law was observed, he assured the Commission.

Discuss Permit

There was passing reference during the examination of George E. Dunbar, chief clerk in charge of the excise branch of the Customs here, to a company which formerly did business under the name of King's Wine and Vinegar Company, and which enjoyed a permit from the Ontario Government to keep alcohol. Later this permit was cancelled, Mr. Dunbar said, but he understood that papers were being prepared on behalf of a man called Koenig in the form of an application for another permit. No application had come to him yet, the witness stated.

RUMORS THAT TWO MINISTERS HAVE THREATENED TO RESIGN OVER RUSSIA STARTLE BRITISH

Birkenhead and Churchill Said To Desire Diplomatic Break With Soviet.

NOT CONFIRMED.

Favor Stronger Action, But Never Thought of Threatening To Quit.

LONDON, March 29. — (United Press.)—London is startled to-day at rumors that the Earl of Birkenhead and Winston Churchill, Chancellor of the Exchequer, threatened to resign at yesterday's meeting of the Cabinet because of the reluctance of Sir Austen Chamberlain, Secretary of State for Foreign Affairs, to break off diplomatic relations with the Union of Soviet Republics, but the British United Press learns in government circles that although both ministers believe a stronger attitude should be adopted toward the Soviet Republic, they never thought of going so far as to threaten to resign.

Responsible For Stand.

It is obvious, too, that Churchill would hardly be likely to take drastic action on the eve of his budget. At the same time, however, there is no doubt that the Chancellor of the Exchequer and the Earl of Birkenhead are primarily responsible for the stern front Great Britain is presenting towards the Nationalists in China as well as toward Russia, and that Sir Austen Chamberlain is forced to accommodate their wishes in this respect by taking a firmer line than he otherwise would.

The Russian problem is still very serious.

Several members of the Government firmly believe that the tactics of the Cantonese and the violent anti-British propaganda throughout China are dictated by Soviet emisiaries who control the left wing of the Nationalist party, and it is even asserted that the outrages at Nanking were inspired from Moscow.

Still Waiting Evidence.

Whether this is true or not it is impossible to tell, but the obviously organized rejoicing in Moscow following receipt of news concerning the Nanking killings is pointed to by the anti-Russian members of the Cabinet as evidence of Russian intrigue against Great Britain. In this connection it is only fair to say that the foreign secretary is waiting for evidence to this effect before taking any reprisals. He still clings to the belief that Soviet influence is not predominant in the ranks of the Cantonese and that their movement is purely Nationalist in origin with Nationalists objects.

The fact, however, that the British have sent F. A. Wallis, former vice-consul at Canton, to Nanking, to inquire into the outrages in that city and to draft a bill for damages, shows that they are determined to probe the affair to the bottom. If Wallis finds evidence that there was Russian particiaption, it is certain to create a fresh crisis with the Soviets in London, which would be almost sure to lead to the severance of diplomatic relations.

Large Bald-Headed Eagle Is Shot Near Georgetown

GEORGETOWN, March 29. —A bald-headed eagle, an unusual visitor to this district, was shot at the quarries, three miles north of Georgetown, yesterday. It is a splendid specimen, and measures nine feet from tip to tip of its wings. It has been put on exhibition in one of the shop windows.

Man Shoots Himself With a Lawn Mower

BERKELEY, Calif., March 29. (A.P.)—John Haggerty shot himself with a lawn mower. Someone had dropped a 38-caliber cartridge in the grass. The mower picked it up, squeezed it just right and the shell exploded with a loud report. The bullet struck Haggerty in the forehead, clipping off some skin. Haggerty, a school janitor, quit for the day.

START INQUIRY INTO G. AND W.

Customs Commissioners To Investigate Business of Distillery.

SEEK SALES TAX.

TORONTO, March 29. Canadian Press. — Investigation of the Toronto distilling firm of Gooderham and Worts, was opeend before the Royal Customs Commission to-day.

Before calling H .C. Hatch, president and general manager of the Company, R. L. Calder, K. C., counsel for the commission, stated that the investigation would revolve around the question of sales tax on shipments of liquor ostensibly to the United States.

Mr. Hatch informed the commissioners that his company shipped liquor to China, Japan, Uruguay, Cuba, Nassau, Great Britain, Panama, Jamaica and other places.

He had evidence that goods from his company were actually landed in Havana, said Mr. Hatch, because he had visited that point during the winter months.

The Volstead Act, Mr. Hatch said, did not prevent his company from exporting to the United States. It was supposed to prevent persons in the United States from importing liquor.

ONTARIO K. OF C. PLAN FOR JUBILEE

J. J. Duffus Attends Meeting of Districts Held in Toronto.

TORONTO, March 29—The utmost co-operation of the Knights of Columbus throughout Ontario was offered the Dominion Committee in connection with the celebration this July of the sixtieth anniversary of Confederation, at a meeting of the thirteen Ontario District Deputies in the King Edward Hotel last night.

It was decided that the committee should be approached with a plan to allow the Knights of Columbus to organize and take full charge of one day of the week of celebration. This day, it was suggested, would be known as "Knights of Columbus Day."

It was also decided to secure for the committee the co-operation of every Ontario Council of the order. In places where no general celebration is now planned, the Knights will organize a committee to ensure a fitting observance of the anniversary. Another decision was to have printed summaries of the British North America Act, which will be distributed among the children attending the separate schools of the Province.

Methods of stimulating enthusiasm and competition for the matriculation scholarships offered by the order were also discussed.

The Chairman of the meeting was R. A. Jeffery, of Arnprior, State Deputy of the Province. Others present were: State Secretary T. E. Brown, Ottawa; State Treasurer J. J. Duffus, Peterboro', and District Deputies A. E. Corrigan, Ottawa; J. P. Duff, Pembroke; A. B. Collins, Belleville; T. J. Begley, Lindsay; G. E. Bush, Guelph; J. E. McPherson, Niagara Falls; James McManus St. Thomas; A. F. Fuerth, Windsor; T. M. Mullingan, Sudbury; M. J. Macdonald, Port Arthur; F. J. Keehoe, Timmins; J. A. Sheedy, North Bay, and J. M. Hammond, Orillia.

DARING THIEVES STEAL CLOTHING

ESCAPE IN CAR.

TORONTO, March 29. Canadian Press. — A daring robbery was committed here to-day when burglars smashed the front door window of the premises of the Steinhouse and Greenbaum, merchant tailors, and in a swift raid carried away between three and four thousand dollars worth of clothes.

The thieves looted nearly all the stock and made a fast getaway in an automobile. The cloth was piled in a car, and some of it tumbled off and into the street as the marauders sped away.

MILK EMBARGO CARRIES LESSON

Will Bar 25,000 Pounds of Milk From Entering Morristown, N. Y.

KEEP STRICT WATCH

NEW YORK, March 29 (Canadian Press).—The embargo on Canadian milk and cream declared on shipments originating within an area of 200 miles of Montreal will cut off a daily delivery of about 160,000 quarts of milk to New York City, said Thompson, acting director of the New York Bureau of Foods and Drugs.

The embargo declared by the Customs Department because of the typhoid epidemic in Montreal will bar 25,000 pounds of milk daily from entering Morristown, N.Y. Other Northern New York stations are affected only slightly, reports state.

Milk dealers at Springfield, Mass., said the embargo would not affect the market there since no Canadian milk is received. It is said that in the summer cream from Canada is used there by ice cream manufacturers, but not at other seasons.

Until Satisfied.

WASHINGTON, March 29 (Canadian Press).—The order forbidding the entry into the United States of milk from a large part of Quebec and Eastern Ontario will remain on the books until the Bureau of Public Health is satisfied that the source of the typhoid infection in Montreal is segregated and the epidemic definitely under control. This may mean several weeks after the last new cases are reported because of the period of typhoid incubation.

Officials of the United States Department of Public Health now in Montreal, and United States Consul-General Foster in Ottawa are keeping the Government here informed of the progress of the epidemic. It is not likely that the embargo will be extended beyond the present area of two hundred miles radius from Montreal unless typhoid breaks out elsewhere, officials say. They justify the extension of the embargo to this area on the ground that the source of contaminated milk found in one distributing plant might come from farms anywhere within this radius, and that they must be certain no possible source of germs is still engaged in shipping milk, and also that infection is not carried back from Montreal to outlying districts. Pasteurization, they say, would not be sufficient precaution unless it was carried out under supervision of the United States Government at distribution centres.

All things considered, it would seem that the embargo will last for some time.

Prince George Wins Honors In Charleston Contest With Lady Milford Haven at Sporting Casino, Cannes

PARIS, March 29.—Many persons are wondering what the Queen of England may have to say to her youngest son, Prince George, who distinguished himself, and incidentally attracted the attention of all European society, by winning the Charleston contest in the Sporting Casino at Cannes in competition with dozens of expert dancers.

The Prince's partner was the Marchioness of Milford Haven. However, this will not help him at Buckingham Palace, for it is recalled here that the King and Queen have frowned upon the eccentricities of the Charleston and have forbidden it at court functions.

The identity of Prince George and his pretty partner were not known to the judges until after the award was made.

Later the Prince and Marchioness gave an exhibition dance, holding the floor alone.

A certificate stating that Prince George is the winner of the International Dancing Federation competition was presented to him.

The Prince is spending several months in France to perfect his knowledge of French.

SHOWERS GIVEN HAVELOCK GIRL

Miss Janet Wright is Leaving to Enter Training as Nurse.

HAVELOCK, March 29. — Mrs. (Rev.) G. E. Lougheed was the hostess at a very delightful afternoon tea and handkerchief shower on Tuesday in honor of Miss Janet Wright, who left on Wednesday to assume her duties as nurse-in-training at the General Hospital at Smith Falls. About thirty girl friends who have been associated with Miss Wright in the young people's work of the church were present to wish her Godspeed. Mrs. Stanley Barlow poured tea and the tea room assistants were Misses E. Martin, V. Rorke and R. Buchanan.

The first prize, in a contest for making a Chinese doll of peanuts and also making its costume of tissue paper, was won by Miss W. Greer, the second prize by Miss Barbara Watson, the consolation award going to Miss Janet Wright.

Following the evening service in Knox church on Sunday Miss Wright was also presented with a French ivory toilet set by the choir, in token of their regard and appreciation of the faithful services she has rendered.

Mrs. David Vansickle had the misfortune to break her hip on Friday when she slipped on a piece of ice and fell on the cement platform at the pump.

Albert Quentin, a Canadian, who has been a resident of China for thirty years, gave an address in the United church on Sunday evening on his experiences as a missionary.

SAD ACCIDENT AT HAVELOCK

Ilean Grace Rountree, 2, Falls Into Well at Home.

HAVELOCK, March 29 — Ilean Grace Rountree, tiny daughter of Mrs. Ira Rountree, was drowned under peculiarly pathetic circumstances near here yesterday.

The little tot, aged 2 years and 3 months, wandered out from the house and by some means fell into the well with fatal results. She was missed within five minutes and the mother on investigating discovered a loose board at the well. The body was recovered within a few minutes but life was extinct.

The parents reside on the Blairton road about three miles east of Havelock.

Lyrics Of Life

(By Douglas Malloch.)

THE OHMIGOSH GIRL

The ohmigosh girl goes to town
And has a most terrific time.
Or else it's perfectly sublime.
She sees a simply gorgeous gown,
Or has a dinner that's a crime,
Or else relates, when home from thence,
Some sickening experience.

The ohmigosh girl never had
An ordinary thing occur:
It's always horrible to her,
Or else it drives her fairly mad.
A show, an auto, or a fur,
To her is always ravishing
Or else the most intriguing thing.

The ohmigosh girl can't find words.
And yet she seems to find a lot,
That may express a thought or not,
Her darlings, awfuls and absurds.
In fact, I often wonder what
That girl would say to let us know
If something really happened, though.

OLD MASTERS

Upon a cloud among the stars we stood:
The angel raised his hand, and looked, and said,
"Which world, of all you starry myriad,
Shall we make wing to?" The still solitude
Became a harp whereon his voice and mood
Made spheral music round his haloed head.
I spake—for then I had not long been dead—
"Let me look round upon the vasts, and brood
A moment on these orbs ere I decide . . .
What is yon star that beauteous shines
And with soft splendor now incarnadines
Our wings?—There would I go and there abide."
Then he, as one who some child's thought divines;
"That is the world where yesterda y you died."

THE LIFE OF CHRIST : Jesus Blesses the Children

Synopsis Arranged by Dr. Wm. E. Gilroy, D.D., Sketches by Kroesen.

Little children were brought to Jesus that he might put his hands on them and pray, but the disciples rebuked those that brought them, not understanding the spirit of Jesus. (Matthew XIX : 13)

But Jesus said, Suffer little children and forbid them not to come unto me; for of such is the kingdom of heaven. (Matthew XIX : 14)

A rich young man of fine moral character inquired of Jesus the way to eternal life, asking, "What lack I yet?" (Matthew XIX : 16-20)

But he went away sorrowful, when Jesus, loving him, said, "Go and sell all thou hast and give to the poor, and thou shalt have treasure in heaven: and come and follow me." (Matthew XIX : 21-22)

SAPIRO TAKES WITNESS STAND IN LIBEL SUIT

Relates Story of His Life in Suit Against Henry Ford.

LEFT ORPHAN

Had Won Internationally Recognized Success From Unpromising Start.

DETROIT, Mich., March 29. — (Canadian Press).—Aaron Sapiro, sleek-haired, 42-year-old Chicago Jew, who does not look his age by a dozen years, took the witness stand late yesterday to relate the story of his life in his $1,000,000 libel suit against Henry Ford.

It was a picture of a most unpromising start which culminated in internationally recognized success, which he left with the jurors. His narration was broken by adjournment before he reached any of the story of alleged personal harm and injury to his efforts as an organizer of farmers' co-operatives done by articles printed in Ford's weekly, the Dearborn Independent.

An hour and a half to-day will suffice for the last part of the story, William Henry Gallagher, counsel for Sapiro, said at adjournment.

Sapiro, keenly blackeyed, alert, slim and swarthy, leaned far forward in the witness chair, hands grasping a roll of paper in his lap. A vivid flush spread over his face as he crackled answers to his counsel's volley of questions.

They seemed well drilled and question and answer piled into the trial record at such a pace that United States Senator James A. Reed, chief of Ford's counsel, appealed to Judge Fred M. Raymond to enforce more deliberation.

"Do you mean deliberation on our part or more speed on that of Senator Reed?" challenged Gallagher, racing ahead with another question while the court stared at his bench. Reed glanced hastily at the jury.

Worked Through School.

Bereft of paternal care at the age of 9, testified Sapiro, he was placed in a San Francisco orphanage, where he remained six and a half years. He seemed not to boast as Gallagher led him through San Francisco common and high schools, Hebrew Union College at Cincinnati, Cincinnati University, and Hastings Law School of the University of California. Mixed in was two years' teaching of history at Cincinnati University, work in a San Francisco law office and a year as assistant superintendent of the orphanage which formerly housed him.

Interest Aroused.

His first interest in co-operative marketing was aroused in 1908 by Col. Horace Weinstock, later California's State marketing director. Sapiro was appointed counsel to Weinstock.

Weinstock's library was stocked with English, German and French authorities on co-operative marketing, Sapiro testified, and he read them all. He studied in addition every book on the subject in the University of California's library.

With that as a background, his first bit toward actively organizing the farmers came in 1916 when the California poultry raisers were drawn together in a co-operative enterprise.

Organizations.

In rapid fashion Gallagher and Sapiro raced through these organizations by Sapiro.

California prune and apricot growers; California pear growers; California berry growers; California bean, tomato, fruit and milk groups; Portland, Oregon, dairymen; Washington wheat growers; Idaho wheat growers; Mississippi cotton planters; North and South Carolina and Georgia cotton planters; Kentucky tobacco men; wheat growers of Kansas, Oklahoma, Texas, North Dakota, Nebraska and, possibly, Sapiro said, the Colorado wheat growers.

He added the dark tobacco growers of Western Kentucky, Tennessee and Indiana; the burley tobacco growers of Kentucky, Tennessee, Ohio and Indiana and skipped into Ontario.

He was called into the province by the Minister of Agriculture to study the daitying and fruit growing problems. That was in 1922. He counselled with the wheat growers of Alberta, Saskatchewan, and Manitoba in 1924, during which year he also organized the wheat growers of Indiana.

He organized the potato growers of Maine, Minnesota, Colorado and Idaho in 1922 and 1923.

Since 1924, Sapiro testified, he has organized very few co-operatives. That remark came just at adjournment, leaving for to-day his delineation of reasons why.

Fear Series Of Crises In Crude Rubber Market

NEW YORK, March 29.—(Canadian Press.)—Possibility of a series of crises in the crude rubber market next fall was suggested yesterday by Grayson M. P. Murphy, director in a large number of corporations, in giving his deposition in the $15,000,000 accounting suit brought by minority shareholders of the Goodyear Tire and Rubber Company against Clarence Dillon, Dillon Read and Company and others.

Murphy attributed possible disturbance in the rubber market to the Stevenson plan of Great Britain restricting the export of raw rubber.

ONTARIO HYDRO SHOWS SURPLUS OF $565,413

Annual Report Tabled in Legislature Gives Power Distributions.

STEADY GROWTH

Total Revenue for the Fiscal Year Was $20,555,179.

TORONTO, Mar. 29 — The net surplus of the Ontario Hydro for the year ending October 31, 1926, is $565,413, according to the annual report tabled in the legislature yesterday afternoon, after providing for all expenses and necessary fixed charges.

The distribution of power exceeds by 120,000 horsepower that of 1925, the report shows. In 1925 the figure was 808,398, which increased to 928,000 in 1926.

The total revenue for the fiscal year was $20,555,179 from municipalities and other power consumers.

Shows Steady Growth

"During the past year," the report reads, "the work of the Hydro-Electric Power Commission has been characterized by a steady growth. The generating capacity of the commission's plants were increased by about 100,000 horse power, an increase which somewhat exceeds the growth in load during the year, and had given for the time being a reasonable margin between the capacity available and the demand for power. This has resulted in an improved service and enabled the various generating plants to be maintained in a high state of efficiency.

The operation of all the systems has been carried on very successfully and without serious trouble. The class of equipment provided in the commission's generating plants and on its transmission networks, and the care with which it is maintained and operated, has enabled the commssion to provide a remarkable continuity of service. This is indicated by the fact that power was never entirely off the Niagara system for a single minute during the year.

Distribution of Power to Systems

20-minute peak horsepower:

Niagara System and export	683,646	800,060
Georgian Bay system	18,261	17,109
St. Lawrence system	5,350	6,790
Rideau system	2,533	3,076
Ottawa system	14,260	16,354
Thunder Bay system	44,086	40,977
Central Ontario and Trent system	37,762	41,166
Nipissing system	2,500	2,560
Total	808,398	928,032

Total Reserves

"Taken as a whole," the report continues, "the financial results of the commission's operations for the year are very satisfactory, particularly so as regards rural power districts. The revenue for the year from the customers of rural districts amounted to $743,133.47, and the cost of power supplied, including operating expenses, fixed charges and reserves, was $604,931.30, leaving a balance in the hands of the commission amounting to $138,202.17.

"The total reserves of the commission for sinking fund, renewals, contingencies and insurance purposes amount to $24,751,411.22, made up as follows:

Niagara system, $18,625,079.71.
Georgian Bay system, $1,163,189.74
St. Lawrence system, $287,539.18.
Rideau system, $154,504.21.
Thunder Bay system, $315,590.45.
Ottawa system, $7,304.95.
Central Ontario and Trent system, $2,134,171.74.
Nipissing, $106,744.04.
Bonnechere storage, $7,217.21.
Service buildings and equipment, $433,473.05.
Insurance—Workmen's compensation and staff pension insurance, $1,516,596.94.

Total reserves of commission, $24,751,411.22.

"It is interesting to note the very rapid increase that has taken place during recent years in the reserves of the co-operative municipal undertaking administered by the Hydro-Electric Power Commission. In 1923, these reserves aggregated $12,013,237.81; in 1926, they totaled $24,751,411.22, an increase in three years of $12,738,173.41, or more than 100 per cent.

The net results of the commissions operations may be briefly summarized as follows:

"The total investment of the Hydro-Electric Power Commission of Ontario in power undertakings and Hydro-Electric railways is $203,442,757.09 made up as follows:

Niagara system, $155,760,665.07.
Georgian Bay system, $5,259,240.53
St. Lawrence system, $1,062,444.88.
Rideau system, $1,161,658.24.
Thunder Bay system, $12,724,571.03
Ottawa system, $46,843.55.
Engineering power sites, St. Lawrence and Ottawa systems, $262,655.18.
Central Ontario and Trent systems, $14,067,963.23.
Nipissing system, $1,036,000.84.
Office and service buildings, construction plant, inventories, etc., $2,661,806.34.
Hydro-Electric railways, $9,389,899.00.
Total—$203,442,757.99.

Collect Over Twenty Millions.

"The commission collected from the municipal utilities and other customers, for power sold, a total sum of $20,555,179.19. This sum was appropriated to meet all the necessary fixed charges and reserves and to pay for the expenses of operation and administration. After meeting all charges there was left a net surplus of $565,413.34.

"The following statement summarizes the commission's collections from municipal Hydro-Electric utilities and other power customers for the year and shows how the collections have been appropriated.

Revenue from municipalities and other power customers, $20,555,179.19.

Appropriated as follows. Operation, maintenance, administration, interest and other current expenses, $15,693,871.55.

Reserved for sinking fund, renewals, contingencies and obsolescence, $295,894.30.

Net surplus after providing for all expenses and necessary fixed charges $565,413.34.

Gatineau Deal

There are no large power developments under construction by the commission at the present time to serve the Niagara system, but in order to take care of the immediate future demands for power the commission, in the early half of 1926, entered into an important agreement with the Gatineau Power Company whereby the commission eventually will receive 260,000 horespower of Gatineau river power. Of this power 80,000 horsepower is to be delivered in 1928. This power will be received at the inter-provincial boundary on the Ottawa river and will be transmitted over a special 220,000 volt transmission line to Toronto. In connection with this transmission line, aerial surveys have been carried out during the past year. These have greatly facilitated the work of planning the route to be followed by the transmission line. Constructional work on this line will be actively carried on during the coming season. The power received from the Gatineau river will be 25-cycle power similar to the supply at present given in the Niagara system of the commission. The requirements of eastern Ontario, however, are being given earnest consideration and studies were made and are still in progress for providing additional large blocks of 60-cycle power for the eastern districts of the province.

Temporary Power

From the Niagara system a large amount of surplus or off-peak power was sold under temporary agreements and produced a substantial revenue for this system. The power sold under these temporary agreements may be withdrawn as and when required for use by the municipalities or industries of Ontario.

On the Georgian Bay system the continued combined operation of the various generating plants has been very satisfactory and has resulted in an improved service with a margin of power over and above the immediate requirements. The Hanna chute plant, rated at 1,120 kw. and situated about one-half mile about the South Falls plant on the south branch of the Muskoka river was placed in commercial operation on October 5, 1926.

Rapid Strides.

Future supplies of power for the various systems are ever a matter of serious consideration to the commission, and on the Georgian Bay system and the Central Ontario and Trent system, special attention has been given to the problem of conserving and increasing the flow of streams by the installation of dams and the creations of storage reservoirs. The completion of a new storage dam on the Hollow Lake storage reservoir in December, 1925, added substantially to the storage available for the Georgian Bay system during the past year.

During the past two or three years very substantial progress has been made in Ontario in the field of rural electrification. There is now more than $4,750,000 invested in the rural power district system established by the commission. About 2,300 miles of transmission lines have been constructed to date, of which more than 750 miles were erected during the past year, this mileage exceeding that constructed in any former year. There are now nearly 19,000 customers supplied in the rural power districts.

HOUSE TAKES NO ACTION, ETC.

cussion were J. C. Lethbridge (Prog. Middlesex West); C. A. Robertson, (Lib., Huron North), Leopold MacCaulay, (Con., York South), Charles Fletcher, (Lib., Essex South; R. H. Kemp, (Prog., Lincoln; Hon. Geo. S. Henry, Minister of Highways, and F. G. Sandy, (Prog., Victoria South.) The members of the opposition stated that the bill had many good points, but it would not solve the present problem of keeping the boys and girls on the farm. The people in the rural communities, they said, were "dead set" against any change in the present system, but they were willing that the government should try out the new system in several townships, and if in a few years it prove successful they would have no objection to the provisions of the bill being made general.

Mr. Henry and Mr. MaCaulay spoke strongly in favor of the measure.

SECOND READING FOR CANAL BILL

Commons Votes By 103 To 88 To Send It To Committee.

AMENDMENT LOST.

OTTAWA, March 29. — Ontario and Quebec heat, light and power users last night lost the first round of their fight to retain a million and a quarter horsepower of their potential electrical energy along the Ottawa River when the Georgian Bay charter renewal bill was given second reading by a vote of 103 to 88.

The Guthrie amendment, which would have declared the canal bill ineligible as a private measure, and instructed the Government to take responsibility for it as a public bill, was first voted down by 105 to 87. Party lines were strictly followed on the first division, Conservatives, U.F.A. and Laborites voting solidly for the amendment and the Liberals against.

Two Bolters.

On the next division, however, on the main motion to give the bill second reading, Edgar D. R. Bissett, Springfield, and Gordon C. Edwards, Ottawa, Liberals, bolted the Government ranks and voted with the Conservatives against second reading. As Hon. William A. Black (Conservative, Halifax) was not in his seat for this division, the bill was declared carried by 103 votes to 88. Bissett a few days ago sought to introduce a public ownership amendment, but it was out of order.

There were 52 absentees.

Premier King pleaded for second reading of the canal bill last night, declaring that, unless the "broad principle" of a private bill was bad, all the authorities agreed that the principals should have an opportunity of explaining their case before committee.

Says Details For Committee.

Faced with a question by James S. Woodsworth (Laborite, Winnipeg) as to whether the "principle" of the private ownership and operation of a canal and a wealth of public power resources was not bad, the Prime Minister still held that the details were for the committee to consider. The Government, he said, had no interest in the bill. Government members could vote as they saw fit when and if the bill survived the Railway and Canals Committee.

An astonishing development in the debate, which again raged from 3 o'clock in the afternoon until late at night, was the declaration of Hon. William D. Euler, Minister of Customs, that, although utterly opposed to the bill, he would vote to give it second reading. He came from a pioneer Hydro constituency, he said, and could hardly tolerate the consideration of a privately owned power project on the Ottawa. And he had received wires and letters from at least 50 municipalities urging him to vote against the bill. But none of them had said anything against sending it to committee. So he would vote for its second reading, but if it ever survived committee and came back for third reading he would oppose it and vote against it.

Slaying of Two in Latest Outbreak of Detroit's Bootleg War.

ANSWERED CALL

DETROIT, Mich., March 29 (Canadian Press).—The fate of a kidnapped gangster, police believed last night, holds a possible solution of the slaying by machine gun fire of the two men and the wounding of a third in the latest outbreak of Detroit's bootleg gang war yesterday.

Entering a third-storey apartment hall before daybreak in answer to a telephone summons, Joseph Bloom, George Cohen and Frank Wright, alias Edward O'Brien, were shot down from behind a steel fire door by a volley of machine gun and revolver bullets. The bodies of Bloom and Cohen were riddled. Wright is in a critical condition at a hospital. Wright, also known as Frank Burke, is a former convict and is said to be wanted in Chicago in connection with a $100,000 diamond robbery.

Police attempts to locate Meyer "Fish Bloomfield, who, they said, was kidnapped Saturday night with his brother-in-law, Albert Albright, and driven out of town, were unsuccessful. It was in answer to a call to rescue Bloomfield, Wright said that he, Bloom and Cohen entered the apartment house.

Albright late yesterday told detectives he and Bloomfield were compelled to enter a car Saturday night and were driven several miles from Detroit. Bloomfield, he said, escaped while he was released after a long drive. Bloomfield's car was found later, apparently abandoned.

Wright, from his hospital bed, described yesterday's fusillade as "awful." The assailants fired at least 100 shots, police said, leaving the floor of the corridor and the rear stairway littered with shells.

Police records show that Wright was arrested in Santa Barbara, Calif., for larceny and has served a prison term in Ogden, Utah, on a similar charge.

According to the apartment manager, the room sought by the three men was rented several months ago by four men, Abe and Simon Axler, brothers; Sam Miller and John Tolzdorf, Miller is wanted in connection with the killing of a patrolman at Kent, Ohio, March 23, 1925.

Eddie Fletcher, said to be a boxer of Trenton, N.J., also an occupant of the apartment, is sought.

BETHANY UNITED SCHOOL MEETING

Officers Elected for Ensuing Year—Bethany News.

BETHANY, March 29.—The annual executive meeting of the United Sunday School was held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. A. H. Monk on Monday evening. The pastor, Rev. A. H. Poulter, was chairman for the occasion. Reports were received from secretary, treasurer, librarian, the superintendents of the different departments, and from the superintendent and teachers. These were all interesting. Some showed increases while others were not so favorable but on the whole, considering sickness and removals, the school had a great deal to be thankful for. The supplies were all paid for and $50 was voted to missions.

Election of officers followed with the result as follows:
Superintendent—Mr. A. H. Monk.
Assistant—B. A. Monk.
Secretary—Helen Byers.
Assistant—Marian Fallis.
Treasurer—Edward Bray.
Librarian—Mrs. B. A. Monk.
Assistant—Stanley Whiteside.
Teachers—Adult Bible Class: A. H. Monk; Young Men's Class: Walter Rowland; Young Ladies: Mrs. Otto Spencer; Intermediate Boys: Mrs. T. J. Jackson; Girls: Miss P. Howden; Junior Boys: Miss Lily Weaterilt; Graded Juniors: Mrs. A. H. Monk; Primary Class; Miss Verna Belle Lee; Beginners Class: Mrs. J. Porteous.
Cradle Roll Superintendent—Miss Violet Jackson.
Pianist—Mrs. Ona Thorndyke.

A vote of appreciation was extended to Miss Hazel Jackson, who so ably taught the primary class for the past six months and who tendered her resignation on Monday evening as she is about to enter Nicholls Hospital, Peterborough, to take a course in nursing.

Plans were talked over and discussed whereby the Sunday School might be helped in different departments. Music, flower and temperance committees were appointed. The meeting closed with prayer by the superintendent, Mr. Monk. Refreshments were served and a social hour enjoyed.

On Wednesday afternoon the Ladies Aid Society of the United Church held its annual meeting and election of officers at the home of Mrs. A. H. Monk.

The meeting opened with Mrs. A. Poulter in the chair. The treasurer reported a very small balance in the treasury. It was decided to give a supper in the basement on the 24th of May and to continue holding monthly teas until the garden party in June. Several other items of business were arranged for.

Rev. Poulter took the chair for the election of officers which was by ballot with the result as follows:
President—Mrs. F. C. Dawe.
First Vice—Mrs. Ona Thorndyke.
Second Vice—Mrs. Walter Rowland.
Secretary—Mrs. Jones.
Treasurer—Miss Jackson.
Pianist—Mrs. B. A. Monk.

A dainty tea was served by Mrs. Monk, who was assisted by Mrs. Bert Monk. The next meeting is to be held at the home of Mrs. Ona Thorndyke.

An interesting programme was given at the young people's weekly meeting on Wednesday evening in the Sunday school room of the United Church. The programme was in charge of Miss Verna Belle Lee. The Rev. Mr. Poulter gave a short, interesting, and instructive address on the life and work of Major the Rev. Charles Gordon (Ralph Connor) whose books are so widely read.

Misses Elsie and Ada Richardson sang a duet, accompanied by the autoharp, "When I Survey the Wondrous Cross". Two other items were a solo by Miss Hazel Jackson and a reading by Mrs. Thorndyke.

Next Wednesday's meeting will close the season and a set of missionary slides will be shown.

Lenten services are being held each Wednesday evening in St. Paul's Anglican Church. Splendid addresses are given by the Rector, the Rev. Mr. Fierheller.

MY IRISH ROSE

MADOC, March 29.—One of the most successful amateur plays that has been staged in Madoc for some time, was presented on Tuesday evening by some members of the Young People's Society of the United Church. Each of the members of cast did particularly fine work in interpreting and acting the play, which was entitled "My Irish Rose." It would be difficult to mention any of the players as being more outstanding than the others as, owing to the careful judgment shown in choosing the parts, each one seemed especially fitted to play the character alloted to him, and did so with a skill and spontanity that made the play a particularly enjoyable one. A splendid audience greeted the actors and showed warm appreciation of the play and the manner in which the young people handled it.

Between acts music by the orchestra and vocal solos by Mr. C. Ross were much enjoyed, while the Irish dances of wee Billy Hawthorne, in costume, as usual brought down the house.

The cast of characters was as follows:
Colum McCormach, a prosperous Irish farmer of County Kildare, played by Barney McCoy.
Maurice Fitzgerald, a rich young Dublin artist—Don Whytock.
Terry Creigan, McCormack's nephew, a young Irish patriot in exile—Ross Hennessy.
Mr. Archibald Pennywitt, a wealthy English tourist—Charlie Phillips.
Mr. Michael Pepperdine, an eminent Dublin barrister—Herb Caskey.
Sawn McGilly, the laziest man in County Kildare—Archie Ashley.
Ann Mary McCormack, Column's sister, with a true Irish heart—Mrs. Wellman.
The Widow Hannigan, with money in the bank and an eye on Colum—Alice Rogers.
Eileen Fitzgerald, a Dublin heiress—Edna Pettit.
Lady Agnes Barricklow, who hesitates at nothing—Georgina Phillips.
Fegeen Burke, a servant on the McCormack farm—Alice Hale.
Rose Creigan, a wild Irish Rose—Muriel Rousehorn.

NEW BLACK BOTTOM DANCED

The Black Bottom, tamed to suit the English taste, has been introduced in London by a London dancing instructor. It is called the Ballroom Black Bottom, and is said to be very quiet and peaceful member of the family of shuffling feet. One difference between the Ballroom Black Bottom and the flat Charleston is that in the first the knees are bent alternately, while in the Charleston they are bent in unison.

Local Druggists Have Modern Remedy for Colds

A Vaporizing Salve which is Rubbed Over Throat and Chest for Colds.

When Vicks VapoRub, the "external" method of treating sore throat, bronchitis, deep chest colds, or croup, is applied over throat or chest, the ingredients are released as vapors by the body heat.

These vapors, inhaled with each breath carry the medication directly to the affected air passages, loosening the phlegm and relieving the congestion. At the same time Vicks acts as a counter-irritant, stimulating the skin, and thus helps the vapors inhaled to break up the inflammation.

Colds are usually relieved over night.

COTTESLOE BOY LOSES FINGERS

Pete O'Connor Was Playing With Cousin, Using Axe.

WARSAW NEWS

WARSAW, March 29. — On Thursday afternoon little Pete O'Connor, near Cottesloe, and a little cousin were playing with an axe. The little girl was chopping at some grass and twigs, and the lad was pulling it away, when the axe came on little Pete's right hand severing the first two fingers. Neither of the children is seven years old.

What is Scouting? It is a game through which a boy develops character, the means of developing the use of handicrafts and hobbies, the knowledge of one's physical make-up, and how to care for it, and last of all the means through which a boy learns to serve others.

After the flag raising and inspection last Thursday night at the meeting of the 4th Peterboro Troop of Boy Scouts, two games were played, known as Chain Tag and Foot in the Ring. The Troop Leader was in charge of the first game, and it certainly proved a success. For the next game a chalk ring, three feet in diameter, was drawn on the floor, and at the signal from the Scoutmaster every Scout was to get his foot in the ring and keep it there at the same time trying to put the rest out of the ring. At the end of a minute's time, whoever had his foot in the ring won. This game certainly brought out the qualities of good temper and perseverance.

For a period of twenty minutes, instruction was given on badge work by the patrol leaders in their respective corners, while two Scouts passed their second class test, on the points of the compass, under the examination of the Scoutmaster.

A game including knot work was then played, known as Elephant and Whale. Two patrols stood in a single line, the two centre boys grasping a five foot piece of rope. The boy on either end had to tie a certain knot on to the end of the long rope while the centre boys were pulling and shoving each other around. It surely was mirth-provoking as well as instructive.

Near the end of the meeting, a Mock Trial was held, in which the prisoner was held on a charge of bootlegging. After all arguments were set forth, interspersed with many breathless moments, the jury gave the verdict of guilty. The prisoner was sentenced by His Honor, the Judge, to pay a heavy fine, and a short imprisonment. The foreman of the jury was sentenced ten days sojourn in the local calaboose for disorderliness and contempt of court, while the policeman was fined for tasting the evidence.

The weekly hike on Saturday afternoon was a trip to Scott's Corners on bicycles. Two Scouts passed their test on Tracking (following a trail of Scout signs, a half a mile in twenty-five minutes time.) They also added to their knowledge of woodcraft, by the making of a lean-to.

Only one mishap happened, when one of the boys, who had brought a slice of beefsteak to pass his cooking test, found that after testing, it was so tough that it would have made a good substitute for shoe leather.

...DEFENDER OF CIVIL LIBERTY... STRENGTHENER OF LOYALTY ... PILLAR AND STAY OF DEMOCRATIC GOVERNMENT.

STOPPING THE LEAKS.

The fact that Hon. W. D. Euler, in his effort to make the customs regulations effective against smuggling, has encountered strong opposition on the part of a number of Government suppporters is surprising.

It is apparent that some members of Parliament have not as yet realized the serious nature of the revelations made last year.

That seems the only explanation of the attempt on their part to block changes that are considered necessary to bring about an improved situation.

Hon. Mr. Euler has taken hold of a big job in a business-like manner that has impressed the people of this country, and newspapers of all shades of political colour have commended the firmness and determination he has displayed.

The customs scandal was a nasty mess.

It led to the resignation of the Mackenzie King administration last year, and it might easily have been fatal to the success of that party in the last election.

Mr. Euler is doing his utmost to clean house and to stop the traffic.

In that endeavour he surely should have the support of his own side of the House.

THE COST OF GOVERNMENT.

Do you realize that the Federal Government expended in the fiscal year ending March 31st, 1926, $39.16 for each man, woman and child in Canada's population?

That is the estimate of the Citizens' Research Institute, and it is interesting to note how this amount is divided.

To meet debt charges, for example, takes $15.12 for every person in the country.

Other per capita expenditures are as follows:

Subsidies to the various Provinces	$1.41
Subsidies and subventions, mail and steamship services	.12
General government (overhead, departments, miscellaneous, etc.)	4.88
Military and naval	6.86
Public works	2.29
Railways, canals, highways	.65
Post office	3.65
Administration of justice	.76
Immigration and colonization	.30
Agriculture, fisheries and mines	1.04
Lands and parks	.42
Deficits on Canadian National Railways and Merchant Marine	5.59

THROUGH CANADIAN EYES.

Among the most interesting books that has come to the attention of The Examiner is "Russia in 1926," an intensely intriguing resume of Russian conditions as seen by two Canadian observers last year.

So much has been told about Russia by all sorts and conditions of men that there is naturally a keen interest in learning just how affairs in that country appear to "home folks," as it were, and it happens that the authors of this fascinating book are that in every sense of the word, inasmuch as they are R. F. McWilliams, of Winnipeg, ex-Mayor of Peterborough, and his talented wife, Margaret S. McWilliams.

Mr. and Mrs. McWilliams attended international conferences at Helsingfors and Amsterdam last summer, and took advantage of the opportunity to see for themselves the experiment in Russia.

They had no intention of writing a book on what they saw, but so much interest has been displayed by Canadian audiences since their return that they have acted upon the suggestion of J. M. Dent & Sons, the Toronto publishers, and the result is "Russia in 1926"—"the result," as a foreword by the authors explains, "of our observations in the form of a woman's impressions of what she saw and heard and a man's effort to estimate what is happening and what is likely to happen in this rapidly changing Russia."

Mrs. McWilliams has recorded in graphic detail the story of their trip through Russia, of visits to Leningrad, Moscow and Kiev, discusses questions of education, of divorce, of the position of women, of measures of social welfare and child-care, and there is not a dull paragraph in the whole recital.

Mr. McWilliams' contribution is a historical and geographical resume as an introduction and an estimate of probable developments in Russia, and he concludes with these significant remarks:

"The only parallel which history offers to what has happened in Russia is that of the first French Revolution.

"So far the parallel has been singularly close.

"Both grew out of similar conditions—bitterness between a small, highly privileged wealthy class surrounding an autocracy and the mass of the people, poor, degraded, oppressed, illiterate.

"In both countries statesmen who saw the storm coming and tried to remedy abuses were foiled by the influence of those who would yield nothing.

"In both the revolution began in the hands of moderates, but passed, in the fury of passions once let loose, into the hands of extremists and culminated in a reign of terror.

"Out of that came government by a committee the directors in France.

"That is the stage which the Russian revolution has now reached.

"Will it last, will it be capable of guiding the country through the crisis it must still meet, or will it also bring forth a Napoleon?

"My guess is that a superman will emerge, but it does not follow that he will be a military conqueror.

"What the attitude of the reorganized Russia which will come out of all this strife will be to the rest of the world will depend more on the course taken by the other nations than on anything that happens within. The policy of the American Government, and in a less degree, the attitude of the present British Government, are well calculated to produce a Russia which will be a menace to every western nation."

NOT A FAIR TAX.

Prof. J. C. Hemmeon of McGill University does well to protest against the levy of municipal income taxes in Canada. There are two very serious objections to this tax. One is the fact that it duplicates the income tax levy of the Dominion Government; duplicate taxation is to be avoided at all costs. The second objection is that municipalities are very limited in their powers of checking the income tax statement submitted by an individual. As a result, the tax, where it is levied—as in Ontario cities—becomes a most discriminatory imposition. Salaried earners, whose incomes are reported in full to the city assessment department by employers, pay the limit of the tax. Those who derive a considerable income from investment, particularly from investments outside the city where they live, can only be reached with difficulty.

The temptation to deliberate evasion is too great; the tax is, in short, unworkable. Even Toronto, which has set up an enormously expensive system of checking up on income tax returns, has not been able to make the tax bear equally on all.

The machinery for getting rid of the municipal income tax where levied exists. Occasional conferences between the Dominion and Provincial Governments take place to consider ways and means of dividing up revenue sources. The municipalities derive their power to tax incomes direct from their Provincial Legislatures, and such Legislatures as have given them such power should not hesitate to take it away.—The Financial Post.

BUILD IT NOW!

It was a great message that former Governor Harding, of Iowa, brought to the people of the Border Cities yesterday—an inspiring description of the Great Lakes-St. Lawrence canal and power project, a message of optimism as to the possibility of its being carried out and a convincing review of the advantages to be derived by Canada and the United States.

Mr. Harding—a distant relative of President Warren G. Harding, a former chief executive of the State of Iowa, and now a prospective senatorial candidate—is President of the Great Lakes-St. Lawrence Tidewater Association. It is this body that has organized public opinion in the United States for the St. Lawrence scheme. That its job has been well done was fully shown in Mr. Harding's address last night. Nearly half the States of the American Union have been lined up and are contributing approximately $100,000 a year toward the cost of carrying on the work. This association has made an intensive study of the whole project from all standpoints, including finance and engineering. So thoroughly has the task been undertaken that the association has been able to place before the authorities in Washington a brief that permits of no real opposition. Even the Rivers and Harbors Committee of Congress, of which Mr. Dempsey of New York is Chairman, has approved the plan and declared that the New York substitute, enlarging of the old Erie canal, is not practicable.

As things stand now, the American end of the preliminary work is practically complete. The joint board of engineers has reported favorably. Secretary of Commerce Hoover is for the project—hook, line and sinker. And it is expected that President Coolidge will shortly made overtures to the Canadian Government looking toward the negotiation of the necessary agreement between the two countries.

There is, however, much work to be done in Canada. Montreal has taken the selfish attitude that ocean shipping should not be allowed to go any further inland than that city. This opposition corresponds to the objections raised by New York, but the latter have not made much headway in face of the unanswerable arguments presented by the project's friends in the United States. Nor should the attitude of Montreal be allowed to stand in the way of Canada's progress in this matter. The St. Lawrence plan means too much to the great Middle West of both countries and to national development as a whole.

Most of the international lakes-to-sea route is ready now. Canada has spent between forty and fifty millions on St. Lawrence development to date and has laid out or obligated herself for 114 millions in connection with the Welland Canal. There remains only about 25 miles in between to be treated, and the financing arrangements unofficially suggested by the United States leave no room for doubt as to the complete feasibility of the scheme from a monetary standpoint. It is well to keep in mind, also, that unless we go through with the St. Lawrence plan we shall lose the chief value of the heavy expenditures made on the new Welland.

Most of us think of the Panama Canal as one of the world's greatest engineering projects, and it is. But Mr. Harding pictures it as a mere peanut in comparison with the elephantine St. Lawrence scheme. The time has come for action. The United States is ready. Canada must fall into line at the earliest possible moment. The project is too big, too important, too vital, to be delayed one moment longer than is absolutely necessary. The efforts of the Great Lakes Tidewater Association and its corresponding body, the Canadian Deep Waterways and Power Association, deserve our heartiest support. We must press forward to the goal.—Border Cities Star.

CATTLE, GRAIN AND PRODUCE

Peterboro—Toronto—Montreal

TORONTO LIVESTOCK

TORONTO, March 29.—A light run of fresh cattle, but supplemented by several hundred stale cattle left over from last week. The total offering, however, was still light for a Monday's opening market, and with a good demand for butcher steers and heifers of the best qualities, there was at least a partial recovery of the 25c decline of last week. The advance was on choicest butcher offerings only. Other grades remaining steady. There was not much doing in export business, the usual buyers in this class requiring only about 50 cattle of the best store type for Glasgow. Local packers took care of the few heavy steers, paying up to $8.25 to $8.40.

Choice finished butcher steers, handy weights, 950 to 1,000 lbs., $7.50 to $8.25. Good medium butcher steers going at $6.75 to $7.25. Extra choice heavy beef steers, $7.75 to $8.40.

Fat cows, $5.50 to $6.25; medium, $4.25 to $4.50.

MONTREAL GRAIN AND PRODUCE

MONTREAL, Que., March 29 (Canadian Press) — The export trade in grain in the Montreal market yesterday was quieter owing to the somewhat limited demand from foreign buyers over the week end and only a few loads of wheat were worked for May loading.

The domestic market for cash grain yesterday was also quiet, but the undertone was steady.

The demand for spring and winter wheat grades of flour was inactive, but prices were steady.

Prices for all lines of millfeed were well maintained under a good demand from all sources. The market for standard grades of rolled oats was quiet but firm.

There was a fair enquiry for eggs and values were unchanged. The receipts were 2,364 cases.

The market for potatoes was without any new feature to note, prices being steady under a moderate demand. Sales of car lots of Quebec varieties were made at $1.25 per bag of ninety pounds in bulk, ex-track.

The undertone to the wholesale butter market was strong, but there was no further change in prices. All grades of finest creamery butter were quoted at 46c per pound. The receipts were 132 packages.

Extreme dullness again marked the cheese trade, but there was no further change in prices. The receipts were 32 boxes.

CHICAGO GRAIN

CHICAGO, March 29 (Canadian Press) — Bright prospects for the new domestic crop brought about liberal selling of future deliveries of wheat yesterday and consequent lower prices. Export demand was disappointing. Wheat closed heavy 1 1-8 to 2c net lower; corn unchanged to 1-4c off; oats 1-8 to 3-8c down, and provisions showing 10 to 50 cents decline.

Investment buying of corn developed after word came that the corn visible supply had decreased. Earlier, the corn market was depressed by absence of any improvement of shipping demand here. Oats followed corn.

A CORRECTION

Dear Sir, — The Sunday School referred to in my letter was that of St. Paul's United Church of Orillia. Their objective in attendance for next year is one thousand.

FOR THE CAT'S SAKE

Dear Editor,—Please print this letter for the cats' sake.

It seems to me there should be a law to force people who own cats to either feed them and give them a warm bed at night or else to despatch them. I have a cat and I treat him as I'd like to be treated myself, but there are other cats round the neighborhood who rush in and gobble up his food as soon as the door is opened. Now I'd like to be kind to these animals but it isn't my desire to harbor other people's property.

Protests Condition of Road

To the Editor of Peterborough Examiner:

Dear Sir.—As a traveller leaving the city and district I would like to refer you to the management of some of the county roads in the surrounding country. Less than six miles north of your city I encountered roads where in two or three places gravel had been drawn with sleighs and left unspread for stretches of from 50 to 75 yards in length. Buggy gears could not but scrape in travelling over, and for auto traffic it would either have to travel on its side nearly or take a greasy rough ditch. I read where scoundrels had cut trees to cross the Cobourg highway and what worse is that than leave roads in the condition I have quoted within five or six miles of Peterborough. If this is your common system, whether under municipal or county control, would suggest that the engineers of the system might earn immense wealth by getting in touch with the Cantonese army in China for participation in the wrecking of foreign armored tanks.

Yours respectfully,

AN AUTO DRIVER.

REFUGEES POUR FROM INTERIOR

and arrived here yesterday.

She said that when the attack on the foreigners was at its height the Chinese soldiers yelled, "We want to kill. We want blood." An old French priest, she said, who had been 40 years in China, told her that the Nanking outbreak of anti-foreign feeling was worse than that of the Boxer uprising in 1900.

Mme. Caplain said that everything was quiet after the bombardment by the British and United States warships, but that on the next night there was a wholesale looting of the better class Chinese houses. She declared that the lowest types of Chinese seemed to be armed.

Invaded Concessions.

LONDON, March 29 (Canadian Press).—A Shanghai despatch to the Westminster Gazette says that Cantonese pickets have been reported to have invaded the Japanese and French concessions in Hankow and to have subjected the residents there to indignities.

The despatch adds that the supposed motive of this was to force the surrender of the concessions and thereby to establish a precedent for demanding the surrender of the Shanghai settlements.

DR FRANK CRANE'S DAILY EDITORIAL

CONFISCATION

By Dr. Frank Crane.

A man is supposed to have a right to his property. When he owns a thing he is supposed to have control of it and enjoy the use of it.

The United States is prepared to go to war to enforce this grand and glorious principle upon foreign nations.

This sounds very pretty, but the United States is not going into this business with clean hands. It is confiscating property and robbing its own citizens at home and furnishing them no reasonable compensation.

Suits have recently been instigated against Henry Ford and Charlie Chaplin and goodness knows how many other people for taxes running way back to 191 or so. These people made returns at the time upon their property that was taxable and swore to them. The returns were accepted by the government and now four or five years after the whole thing is over the government comes along and says that these gentlemen did not adhere to the truth in their statements.

The income tax system is a tremendous obstacle in the way of prosperity. It was conceived on the Robin Hood theory of government, a theory as old as Alexander the Great, and that theory is that government being all powerful should pounce upon rich men and take away their property under any pretext.

A change has come over the mode of thought in modern times and rich men are considered as being a benefit to the country and not a drawback. They are not rich because they rob the poor, but rich because they help everybody else to become rich.

Mr. Ford never robbed anybody. He gives employment to thousands of people at super wages. He is the kind of man that has put America in the front in the economic world.

In England he would be created a knight and in France he would get the legion of honor. In this country the bolsheviks in Congress want to soak him over the head when they get a chance.

Charlie Chaplin has furnished amusement to millions of people. For this he has been paid as he should have been. The government, however, saw a good chance to take a slice of his profits and proceeded to do so.

Five years after date the government can come along and some $40.00 a month clerk can say that whereas during that year you paid $2,000 for a secretary, you ought to have paid but $1,000. Consequently you are a liar and a horse thief and the government will tax you.

It also says that when you travel in the courseof business and take a steamer costing $1,000 it was too much and you should have paid but $500.

You are not allowed to spend your money as you please and incur such expenses in transacting your business as may seem proper, but it is all subject to supervision by some man you wouldn't pay the wages of an ordinary clerk.

It is all a process of penalizing thrift.

Those who by their industry, economy and enterprise accumulate a little money must be robbed for the benefit of those who are too shiftless to lay anything by.

The high income tax business is a species of governmental appropriation without compensation and has no foundation in justice.

A simple sales tax levied equally upon all sales would accomplish the same purpose, laying the burden equally upon all people and not be oppressive.

But such a tax would not suit the grouch of those people who regard other men with more money than themselves as a criminal.

As a war measure the income tax may have had some excuse. Everything goes in war. But in time of peace it has no excuse.

STARCHES WHICH ARE "NOT SO GOOD"

In the last lesson I gave you a list of starchy foods which I consider the best of the sixty or more foods which contain a large amount of starch, and in this lesson, I will name about fifteen other starchy foods which may be used if the "best" ones are not available.

RYE FLOUR is very hard to secure in the pure form, but is usually mixed with white flour. Pumpernickel bread should be made from pure rye flour, but most of it, now being sold, is made from a mixture of rye and wheat flour, together with molasses. The use of this bread, made out of such a bad mixture, will cause more harm than if plain white flour bread is used.

FRESH LIMA BEANS are relished by many. When they are small they have a small amount of starch, but cause a great deal of flatulence if used after they become large.

GREEN PEAS may be used when young and small, but are gas-forming after they become large.

POP-CORN is a form of starch which is easily digested when it is cooked in the usual manner, that is, by heating the pop-corn until it pops open, which splits the kernel wide open and explodes the starch cells. It may be used as the principal part of a meal, but should never be used between meals.

ORDINARY, WHITE FLOUR may be made into baking-powder biscuits and is harmless if used in this manner and only a small number of biscuits used at any one meal.

FRIED POTATOES should not be used when any other starchy food can be procured, but if they are used, the French fried potatoes are the best.

LENTILS Contain a large proportion of starch, but because they also contain considerable protein they are liable to produce excessive stomach and intestinal gas in about the same amount as that produced by navy beans.

COCOANUTS, PEANUTS and CHESTNUTS are really not nuts, and contain a large proportion of starch. Raw starch is very hard to digest, so these foods should be cooked by boiling or roasting and used as the principal starchy part of a meal. Roasted peanuts may be used at any time with any type of meal as the starch is thoroughly dextrinized.

HOMINY may be used as a good starch if it is soaked in water for several hours, and then washed in two or three washings of hot water so as to remove the irritating element used in its preparation.

SWEET POTATOES are not as good a starch as Irish potatoes, but if they are used, the best way to prepare them is to bake them a long time in the oven.

In the next article I will name the starchy foods which I consider "not good."

FRIEND SAVES MAN FROM FIRE

Extinguishes Flames When Wiarton Man's Clothing Is Ignited.

GASOLINE EXPLODES.

OWEN SOUND, March 29.—But for the prompt action of Capt. Craigie, of Lion's Head, John S. Cook, of Wiarton, would have been burned to death on Sunday afternoon when a can of gasoline exploded when Cook was pouring gasoline on the fire in the stove. The flames ignited the flames and they exploded, throwing flaming gasoline all over Mr. Cook. Capt. Craigie whipped off his overcoat and wrapping it around the blazing clothing of the man hurried him outside, where he completely extinguished the flames. As it was Mr. Cook was very badly burned about the arms, legs and chest, and his condition is serious.

Wiarton firemen prevented the spread off the flames and the greater part of the loss was occasioned by water.

BRADBURN CUP PRESENTED TO Y.M.C.A. TEAM

Inter-Alley Bowling League Winds Up Fine Season.

HOLDS BANQUET.

Individual Prizes Are Given the High Scorer.

A fitting climax to a season marked by keen but friendly competition, fine sportsmanship, and good fellowship, was the banquet of the Inter-Alley Bowling League, at the Y.M.C.A. last evening, when the Bradburn Trophy was presented to the Y.M.C.A. team, the winners of the first season's campaign.

At the same time the individual winners received tokens of their skill in punishing the pins.

Members of the four teams representing the Water street, Duffus', Knights of Columbus and Y. M. C.A. alleys comprised the gathering, with Max Sloan, secretary-treasurer of the league as the toast master.

Community singing, led by Trevor Miller with Eric Fawcett at the piano, featured the early part of the programme, while the excellent and well served repast was receiving proper attention.

Chairman Sloan in beginning the second part of the proceedings, referred to the splendid success of the league and paid a tribute to Tom Curvin, captain of the Y.M.C.A. team, who was responsible for the organization of the league.

Mr. Curvin in reply spoke of the good fellowship that existed during the season and declared that the competition had been a splendid thing for bowling. He was of the opinion that an inter-alley league for ladies could be successfully organized.

Ald. Roland Denne, acting for W. H. Bradburn, M.P.P., in the unavoidable absence of the donor, presented the Bradburn trophy to the Y.M.C.A. team, congratulating them upon their fine showing. Peterboro, the speaker thought, was entitled to congratulations upon the splendid bowling alleys and the manner in which they were conducted.

Tom Curvin received the trophy on behalf of his team, and also was called upon to receive a fine pipe as the holder of the high average for the season, his average being 221.

Nelson Routley, of the Y.M.C.A., with a high three score of 806, and Harry Forler, of the Water street alleys, with a high single of 344, were also presented with souvenirs, to mark these fine performances.

Harry Forler, for the Water street team, M. J. Duffus for the Duffus team, and Lew LeBarr for Knights of Columbus, all expressed satisfaction with the splendid season enjoyed by the league, and warned the Y.M.C.A. to look out for themselves next season.

The next meeting of the society will be held on the last Monday in April, at the home of Mrs. J. M. Gemmell, Burnham Street.

LEGION NOTES

Last night the regular monthly meeting of the local branch of the Legion was well attended, there being a large number of members present.

A considerable amount of routine business was transacted. The feature of the evening's business was the splendid report submitted by the chairman of the social entertainment committee, who spoke highly of the efforts of Comrades Everett, E. G. Graham and H. Fisher, who constituted the Concert committee, and who had been responsible for the various concerts during the season, reminding the members that another concert and dance would be held on Monday, April 11th.

The activities of the Euchre committee, which has been the greatest success of any season, was also outlined by the chairman, who eulogized the work of Comrades Hurlle, Payne and McGill, whose efforts had been a large factor in the success obtained. This committee is working incessantly to make the euchre and dance of April 20th the biggest event yet. Tickets for the chesterfield suite, library table and bridge lamp, are still on sale at the office and from the agents.

Arrangements are under way for the Provincial convention, which will be held in Peterborough early in June. It is expected that some two hundred delegates will be present.

Members are reminded that Sunday, April 24th, is the date of the annual church parade to George street United church.

During the past week the branch has lost by death one of its members in the person of Comrade A. E. Underwood. The sympathies of all veterans will go out to the sorrowing widow and children.

The increase in membership in the local branch was very gratifying during the past month, the average being one per day.

At the conclusion of last night's meeting, the members enjoyed the remainder of the evening in watching a number of scenes shown by the courtesy of officials of the Canadian National Railway Co. At the conclusion the thanks of the members of the branch were conveyed to these gentlemen by the President, Col. Ackerman, through whose efforts the evening's entertainment was provided.

GUARD OFFICER TRIES SUICIDE

Japanese Lieutenant Felt Responsible For Looting of Consulate.

CONDITION SERIOUS.

SHANGHAI, March 29. Canadian Press.—Lieutenant Kamo Araki, who was in command of the guard at the Japanese consulate at Nanking, at the time of the outrages there last week, attempted suicide aboard the Japanese flagship this morning. He is in a grave condition.

Araki was apparently weighed down by a sense of responsibility for what occured at the consulate, where he was on guard with seven blue jackets. That he forebore to fire on the mob of undisciplined Cantonese soldiers who attacked and looted the consulate, was solely because he feared the firing would mean the massacre of all the consular officials and their families.

Under the ancient Samurai code of honor, officers who felt they had failed in carrying out the duties assigned to them committed suicide.

ELECTRIC WELDING LECTURE SUBJECT

Address To Be Given On Recent Progress in This Work.

There will be a meeting of the local branch at the Chamber of Commerce rooms, Thursday, March 31st, at 8.15 p.m., which should also be of interest to a number who are not members of the branch, but who will be most welcome at the meeting.

The subject is "Recent Progress in Electric Welding," and special reference will be made to the application of electric welding in machine and repair shops, to the use of structural steel and the substitution of welded steel plate, etc., for cast iron.

The speaker will be F. J. Smythies, vice-president of the Lincoln Electric Co., Toronto, whose paper will be illustrated by lantern slides.

Great Britain Leads Offensive for Limitation for Reserves.

GENEVA COUNCIL

GENEVA, March 29.—(Canadian Press.) — The delegates advocating limitation of trained army reserves lost a gallant fight on that point at yesterday's sessions of the League of Nations preparatory commission on disarmament which is trying to draft a general plan for world disarmament.

Viscount Cecil for Great Britain led the offensive for limitation of reserves and was supported by the delegates of Germany, Holland and Sweden. But they met united opposition from countries practising conscription, including France, Italy and Japan, with the result that Lord Cecil admitted defeat and moved the acceptance of the first reading of the French proposal that limitation of troops should be restricted to those who are mobilized and can be employed immediately. Final decision went over until to-day.

Training Important.

One sensational incident of the session was a protest by Count Bernsdorff, Germany, that, while other countries possess reservists, Germany is disarmed by the treaty of Versailles and allowed no effective military organization. He insisted that the training of reserves constitutes the most important phase of the modern army.

Still another interesting point brought up was the question raised by the Italian delegate of whether limitation of reserves would apply to the Fascist militia in Italy. He was assured that it was intended only to apply to troops with the colors.

The day's developments are interpreted as tending to restrict the scope of the eventual conference, so fas as land armaments are concerned, by failing to touch the many millions of reservists.

NEILL TEAM WINS.

The Neill-Grafton trophy, which has been presented as a challenge cup by Mrs. R. J. Kidd to be competed for between teams of the two named firms in a series of six games, the winners of the first four games out of the six to have the cup, but the losers to have the privilege of challenging at any time to regain the coveted prize. The first of the series was played last evening, resulting in a win for the Neill team. This gives the boot and shoe aggregation a fairly good lead over their opponents, the employees of the clothing establishment.

JOHN BARRYMORE AS THE GREATEST OF GREAT LOVERS

John Barrymore in "Don Juan," at the Regent Theatre for a run of four days, is an attraction that has been road-showed in the principal cities of the country at $2.00 prices and acclaimed by critics everywhere as one of the most notable photoplays ever screened.

The story, founded upon the legend of the greatest lover of all the ages, has back of it a three-hundred year tradition that has inspired poets, dramatists, musicians and artists. From this wealth of story material, Bess Meredyth, the scenarist, has built a tale that brims with the splendour of the Rome of the Borgias, and is alive with flashing action.

Barrymore, who is acknowledged the greatest romantic actor of his day, fairly revels in the silken fascinations of the role of the great romantic lover. Amid scenes that range from an old Moorish castle in Spain to the glorious pageantry of Rome, the character finds the beautiful ladies of his heart's desire, and loves them exquisitely.

Among the beautiful ladies who appear with Barrymore are Mary Astor, Estelle Taylor, Helene Costello, Jane Winton, Helene D'Algy, Phyllis Haver, June Marlowe, Helen Lee Worthing, Hedda Hopper, and Myrla Loy. The men, in the memorable cast, include Willard Louis, Montgau Love, Lionel Brahm, Nigel de Brulier, Gustav von Seifertitz, Josef Swickard, Gibson Gowland, and Warner Oland. The picture was directed by Alan Crosland.

"SUMMER BACHELORS."

A revelry of joy and laughter was the treat for the first night audience who witnessed the showing of Fox Films version of Warner Fabian's novel, "Summer Bachelors," at the Capitol Theatre yesterday.

"Summer Bachelors," which first appeared serially in McClure's Magazine and has since become a best seller, is a sensational revelation of this jazz age in which we live, and, Allan Dwan, the director, chose to handle it, and very successfully, from a humorous angle. The story has for its premise the idea that husbands do not languish home nights when their better halfs are away on their summer vacation. Quite the contrary, and the results as shown in the film are mirth-provoking in the extreme.

An all-star cast with Madge Bellamy in the leading feminine role and Allan Forrest in the principal summer bachelor part, give fine performances. Such noted players of the screen and stage as Olive Tell, Matt Moore, Walter Catlett, Hale Hamilton and Charles Winninger support the leads and the result is a combination of acting story and direction that has been seldom equalled. A truly fine entertainment.

This picture is one that should be seen—and will be appreciated—by all bachelors, all spinsters, all husband and all wives—at least once.

SAFEGUARDING MILK

BY PASTEURIZATION

(Report of M.H.O. Toronto, Continued from Saturday)

The proteins are the albuminous compounds as found in the casein or curd. They correspond to lean meat and the white of the egg. They are the muscle repairing elements.

The fats, which rise to the top as cream, correspond to the fat of meat and oil, and supply heat and power, and it is well to note in this connection, that butter fat is superior to all other fats for man.

Carbo-hydrates are present in the form of milk sugar, and correspond to the starch in cereals, and like fat, yield heat and power.

The mineral matter is for the most part composed of combinations of lime, potash, sodium, phosphorus and other chemical elements essential for the development of bone.

It is worthy of note, however, that while milk alone constitutes a perfect and efficient food for the infant, yet it would not be an economical food for adults, as it does not contain a sufficient proportion of carbo-hydrates. Milk with the addition of cereals or bread or potatoes, however, constitutes a perfect mixed diet.

The statement that milk is our most valuable single article of diet, and the most economical can be better understood when a comparison is made with other articles of food. It is then that the economical aspect of milk as a food for the human can be best appreciated. For instance, one quart of milk (40 ounces) is equal in food value to:

1 lb. of steak, of which the average cost is.....$ .33
11 eggs, of which the average cost is..... .41
3½ lbs. of fresh codfish, of which average cost is .53
2½ lbs. of chicken, of which the average cost is.. .85
1 quart of oysters, of which the average cost is... 1.20
1 lb. of loin of pork, of which the average cost is.. .36

In comparing the cost of these different articles, we readily see the economic advantage of milk and when we add to this the fact that in most instances the cost of cooking and serving food is equal to, or greater than the cost of the food itself, the economy of milk as a food in institutions is still more important.

FOUR ENTRIES IN ORATORY CONTEST

Four Campbellford Students Give Addresses on "Canada's Diamond Jubilee."

CAMPBELLFORD, March 29.— A large number were present in the High school auditorium on Thursday evening, when four young High school pupils, Miss Marjorie Ackerman, Miss Rosina Clarke, Mr. Stuart Carr and Mr. Cecil Stephens entered the ranks for the oratorical contest offered to all pupils of the High schools of the Dominion, by the Toronto Daily Star. The audience got a rare treat, for each contestant in their own individual manner, spoke remarkably well. The programme opened by two choruses by school, after which Miss Irene Stephens, vice-president of the Literary Society, extended a welcome to Mr. J. O. Herity, secretary of the Chamber of Commerce, Belleville, and who would act as judge for the contest. Miss Stephens also spoke of the prizes, the first prize a book and $5, and the second prize a book. The winners of the first prize would then have the honour of trying for the district finals, which will probably be held in Port Hope in the near future. The subject of the evening's contest was, "Canada's Diamond Jubilee, Her Achievements Since Confederation."

The first speaker was Miss Marjorie Ackerman. Miss Ackerman drew a vivid picture of the ploughman in the field as the Canadian pioneer, his courage, strength, invincible spirit, sometimes encouraged, often discouraged, but never conquered or dominated. So as the waters ever flow on, just so the waves of time, these sixty years go on and from the wonderful pioneers of 1867, come many of the wonderful improvements of to-day. She spoke of the wonderful railway systems of Canada, opening up the once large hunting grounds of the Redskin, into marvellous wheat producing lands. Natural resources, Canadian mines, fisheries, forests were all brought as proof of Canada's progress since Confederation, large water power and greatest commercial trade of the world. Education was also advanced, until now Canada stands foremost. One event stands out preeminently —the attitude of Canada in the world war, showing no hesitation and taking up the struggle for the cause of principle and freedom. Out of this war of carnage Canada emerged with fame, honour and glory and emerged with a birthright, a Nation among Nations. Canada's representative now sits in the vast assembly of the League of Nations, and Miss Ackerman asks the question, "To what use does Canada put her achievements? "She is striving to wipe out all wars and enter the valley of peace."

Mr. Cecil Stephens was the second speaker. He outlined in figures the vast differences in 1867 and 1927 in Canada's popuation, territory, railways, water development, introduction of the telephone, and the speaker thought that the year 1926 was the beginning of a banner period for Canada when trade and commerce would flourish. He dealt with the agricultural parts of Canada, the granaries of the world, her dairy products, a leading farm country, high in finances and the national debt lower per capita of any other country; Canada's national resources, her mining industries, lumber, pulp and paper, fisheries, water power, furs. He spoke of Canada's character in her people, and when war was declared in 1914, she proudly said, "England's war is Canada's war." The speaker said Canada ws bound to become a great nation for it was a land of golden opportunities, and as the fathers of Confederation were men of action and great vision, so may we continue to ever hold those visions of progress before us. Mr. Stephens fittingly ended his speech with an "Ode to Canada's Confederation," by Charles R. Roberts.

The third speaker was Miss Rosina Clarke. She said as in 1867 the country did honor to the late Queen Victoria, so this year a similar tribute would be paid to Canada. With the dawning of Confederation, racial and religious differences were buried, there was no railroad, now there are three transcontinental railways, thus opening the great North-West for commerce and transportation. She dealt with her granaries, asbestos, nickle, leads and other minerals, coal mines, fisheries, lumber, water development, power plants and canals, also the finer arts, and in order to make Canada a land of intelligent people, education has been improved and education made compulsory. Miss Clarke also spoke of Canada's part in the great war, thus proving herself a nation among nations.

The fourth speaker for the evening was Mr. Stuart Carr. He outlined the growth of Canada from 1867, the union of the four provinces, the others joining later, their form of government, and later the forming of the provinces. The speaker portrayed the splendid part Canada played in the great war, thus attaining a position in the world and enabling her to vote in the League of Nations. He spoke of the interprovincial trade, the efficiency of the Royal Mounted Police, economic changes, both commercial and industrial, large number of acres under cultivation, minerals, pulp and paper supply, water development, manufacturing and the increasing of Canadian exports, the advancement in the education of her youth, and the speaker ended with the idea of Canada as a prosperous, law-abiding nation, showing ability to deal in the affairs of the Empire. He said: "There is no reason Canada should not be proud of her achievements, for they are many."

The fifth speaker, Miss Reta Palliser, was unable to speak.

Miss Mary Fowlds then favoured the audience with a piano solo; Miss Cherrie Turner sang a solo, Miss Jean Nelson gave two recitations and Ted Blute gave a violin selection after which Mr. Herity was called to the platform to give his decision.

He said: "I feel as if I am far more popular now than I will be later on. I am feeling disappointed not to belong to the privileged class of men who hold easy positions and have a fat salary attached, for to-night I do not hold an enviable position and have not heard the word salary mentioned. This is one of the most difficult tasks to ever come within my experience when all do so well and come so near an equation of excellence — who dare say which is best?" Mr. Henty congratulated the people of Campbellford in having such a wonderful school and he said he felt sure that all the pupils would always look back with a feeling of pride to their High School days. Mr. Herity paid a glowing tribute to the Toronto Daily Star in holding this contest, also complimented the four orators, all of whom acquitted themselves so creditably. The judge took the plan used in the inter-collegiate debates among universities allowing one-half the value for methods and one-half for materials. He also congratulated the teachers for the perfect pronunciation used by the pupils. In giving the prizes, Mr. Herity said there really was no criticism offered, there being only a difference of four per cent in the four speakers. Miss Marjorie Ackerman secured the much coveted first prize a cheque and book of poems by Robert Burns, and the second prize, a selection of poems from the great poets of the English speaking world, was awarded to Cecil Stephens. Mr. Herity congratulated these two young people on their successes, and wished for them every success in future. As a fitting close to a successful evening Mr. Herity recited, "Our Country, 'Tis a Glorious Land," as a finale.

Jack McAvoy, on behalf of those present, extended a hearty vote of thanks to Mr. Herity for his kindness in acting as judge for the evening, and also extended to Miss Ackerman, the hearty wishes of her colleagues and friends in her entry in the District finals.

Miss Ackerman is now in the entry for the district finals and we may feel convinced that she carries the best wishes of all to capture the much coveted Dominion prize. Campbellford should feel highly elated to have so much wonderful local talent and stand ready to give appreciation whenever opportunity offered.

OMEMEE TO HAVE NEW SKATING RINK

Funds Being Raised for Closed-in Structure—Omemee News.

OMEMEE, March 29.—Indications are pointing to a covered skating and curling rink for the village before another winter. A subscription list to raise the first $1,000 opened this week and those in charge have met with wonderful success. A miniature plan is on exhibition in Mr. C. L. Morcombe's store window and the younger folk are so hopeful they can almost see its erection in the place of the old open air rink. A meeting of the Athletic Association has been called for Monday night to decide the matter.

A.Y.P.A. Meeting.

The regular meeting of the A.Y.P.A. of Christ Church which was held on Monday evening was well attended. After the business had been completed, the missionary committee took charge.

Miss Carrie McQuade, the chairman had arranged short papers on "Heroes of the Cross". After these papers had been given a contest arising out of the papers was enjoyed by all. Miss Marion Dickson and her partner won nineteen points out of a possible twenty. Everyone voted it the most interesting evening ever given.

Ladies' Aid Meeting.

A meeting of the Ladies' Aid of Trinity United Church was held in the Sunday school room on Thursday for the purpose of winding up the business of the year and also to elect the officers for the ensuing year. The membership numbered thirty for the past year but only a small representation present.

In the absence of the president, Mrs. W. Henderson, the chair was ably taken by Mrs. E. W. Rowland. After the opening exercises, reports were given by the secretary and treasurer, the latter showing a substantial balance in the treasury.

Several expressions of gratitude were received from members who had been remembered by the Society during illness. A contribution from the sister Society at Bethel towards the renovating of the parsonage and property was received with thanks, and the secretary requested to acknowledge same.

The Society decided to bear the expense of repairing the slate roofing on the sun porch of the parsonage.

Many other items of business were discussed after which the resignation of the president was read by Mrs. Rowland. However it is the wish of the Society that she retain her office and she was re-elected for the present and the secretary was requested to notify her and also convey the appreciation of the Society for her faithfulness during her term of office.

The election of officers resulted as follows:

President—Mrs. W. Henderson.
1st Vice President—Mrs. F. G. Sandy.
2nd Vice President— Mrs. D. Weir.
3rd Vice President—Mrs. J. Bushnell.
Secretary—Mrs. L. Mahood.
Treasurer—Mrs. R. H. Williamson.
Parsonage Committee—Mrs. Henderson, Mrs. E. Bradburn and Mrs. C. L. Morcombe.
Flower Committee—Miss L. Parsons and Mrs. Henderson.
Pianist—Miss N. Rutherford.

The work of repairing the small dam, east of the grist mill, which gave way last week, is progressing rapidly. Many loads of gravel, cinders, and stones are being drawn to fill in the gap before the logs are replaced and it is expected that grinding will soon commence again.

PRESENT PLAY AT CAVANVILLE

Capacity Audience Greets Presentation of "Valley Farm" On Friday.

UNDER LOCAL TALENT.

MILLBROOK, March 29.—The Cavan Community Hall was filled to capacity on Thursday evening for the supper, and play, "Valley Farm" given by the local dramatic club, the proceeds, totalling over $124.00, being more than sufficient to wipe off the remaining debt on the Hall.

Every character in the four-act play took his and her part remarkably well.

The play opens in the yard at "Valley Farm", the home of Silas and Holcomb (W. H. Swain) and his sister, Alvira (Miss E. Pritchard), a neighbor, Liza Ann Tucker (Mrs. G. M. Carr), having come over on a hot afternoon in August to "borrow a bit of M'lasses in this tea cup" as she was making a spice cake for her husband's supper.

Mrs. Tucker, who asserts that "I make it a pint never to repeat nothin'", is still eager to go over current gossip in the neighborhood relating the love affair developing between Hetty Holcomb (Mrs. R. M. Carr), a very sweet country girl, and Harold Rutledge (Charles Thacker), a young man from New York, who has been coming to Mullenville for the past three years and paying marked attentions to Hetty.

Silas and Alvira are much disturbed over the "common talk" reported, in detail, by Mrs. Tucker, especially as Verbina (Miss Irene Howson), the hired girl at the farm, says, "Say, I seen her too", referring to a scene between the lovers, culminating in a kiss, on a recent evening, in the orchard.

The act concludes with Hetty happily announcing her engagement to her father, who has some misgivings, and the keen disappointment of Perry Deane (R. A. Sutton), a fine young "son of the soil", who has loved Hetty since childhood, and who resents the city folks coming into her life, with decided bitterness, yet, has been taking too much for granted and has made no previous declaration of his affection.

Transplanting the 'country flower' to city soil does not prove a happy experience for Hetty, as subsequent acts prove. Mrs. Rutledge, Senior (Mrs. A. H. Tinney), a proud, aristocratic woman, and her guest, Isabel Carney (Mrs. I. Woods), who secretly loves Harold, and who is mother's choice for her son, unscrupulously plotting to wreck the happiness of the little bride.

Isabel's uncle, Mr. David Hildreth (James Douglas), a clever, New York lawyer, strongly opposes his niece in the course she is taking, and does his best to help Hetty out of the predicament arising from the unexpected arrival of her father and aunt, Silas and Alvira Holcomb, at the Rutledge mansion for a week's visit. Their country ways, and talk, are the cause of much amusement, even Jennings (Clifford Elliott), the well-trained butler, having some difficulty in preserving the correctly impassive countenance which his position demands.

Harold also does his best to make the visit of his wifes relatives a pleasant one, but without conspicuous success, and Hetty and her mother-in-law quarrel outright over the latter's orders to put the visitors in the servants' quarters on the third floor, and her insinuation that Mr. and Miss Holcomb have been secretly invited by their niece to come to New York for an extended stay.

The plot to humiliate and hurt the little bride, and to plant seeds of distrust in the hearts of both Hetty and Harold, leading to an ultimate separation, reaches success in the third act. Perry Deane, desperate because of losing Hetty, secretly follows her to New York, is led into bad habits, and company, and finally, thinking he has killed a man in a gambling brawl, is forced to appeal to his old time sweetheart for money to leave the city.

Stung to the heart by her own unhappiness, Hetty decides to leave her city home with Perry, and together they go back to Mullenville. "I will go away; if he loves me still, let him come for me. When he comes, promising me a real home I will return with him. If he loves me, the test will not be too severe", is her final reply to Perry's remonstrances, and she leaves a note explaining her course of action.

Unfortunately Miss Carney is the first to find the note, reads it, tells Harold's mother, and they seem to succeed in making Harold believe the worst of his wife.

Act four introduces the folk at "Valley Farm" once more, and bring again into the play, Azariah Keep (George Cobley), a clock tinker, very deaf, who was first introduced in the opening scene, and whose repeated "I got something to say to Alviry", creates plenty of laughter in view of the fact that, though he is a daily visitor at the farm, he never gets courage to say the fateful words.

Liza Ann Tucker comes in once again with her inevitable gossip this time retailing, with apparent hesitation, a back number of the New York Daily Times containing news of the divorce which Harold is alleged to be securing from Hetty, because of her supposed elopement with an old lover from the country.

Hetty inadvertently overhears the cruel story, and is heart broken, yet indignant that Harold could believe such a thing of her.

However, through the good offices of Mr. Hildreth and Perry Deane, who is now restored to self respect through learning that the man he was supposed to have killed has recovered, Hetty and Harold are united once more, past mistakes forgiven and put away. Azariah, having written down his declaration of love for Alvira, succeeds in handing her the letter. Verbeny is left undisturbed with the novel she is so fond of reading in face of Miss Alvira's stern disapproval. Silas and his sister are delighted to see Hetty happy once more, and the play ends happily for all concerned.

The Moncrief orchestra furnished music while the audience was gathering, and between acts, as well as for the dance which followed the conclusion of the entertainment.

A sale of baking disposed of all the good things left from the supper, the ladies of Cavanville, with their accustomed generosity, having provided so lavishly that after the tea tables had been filled again and again with hungry folk, yet there was a considerable quantity still on hand when all appetites had been fully satisfied.

In Peterborough Churches

ST. PAUL'S PRESBYTERIAN CHURCH.

The large congregation in St. Paul's Presbyterian Church Sunday evening revealed the keen interest being taken not only by members of the congregation, but by others as well, in the series of addresses being given by the pastor, Rev. Wm. Allan, on the Jews. These addresses have shown the marvelous manner in which prophecies written thousands of years ago about the Jews have been fulfilled. They have shown them also to be a race which God has selected for a special purpose, which purpose is still not complete, with the result that there are prophecies concerning them whose fulfilment is still in the future. There will be two more addresses in this series. Next Sunday night the subject will be, "The Jew, and the Most Dramatic Thing in his long History; in this connection the stage is now being set and at any moment may take place." A week from Sunday night a unique feature will be introduced when a Passover Table as set by the Orthodox Jews for their Passover Feast will be used to show how all the features of this table, as established hundreds of years before the Birth of Christ, were symbolical of Christ, and connected with Him.

"The Long, Long Trail."

Sunday night's address dealt with Jacob as a type of the Jewish nation. Rev. Mr. Allan explained that it is necessary to distinguish in the reading of the Scriptures between the references which relate to individuals and those which are connected with nations. While the Jews as individuals are disliked by many, the fact is there is nothing that could be said about them as individuals that cannot be said with equal truth about individual Gentiles. After showing that the New Testament justifies the seeking of types in the Old Testament, Rev. Mr. Allan stated that the history of Jacob is a most interesting type of the history of the race to which he belonged. God speaks of Himself in the Scriptures, as the God of Abraham, and of Isaac, and of Jacob. Whenever the prophets, however, referred to the Jews as descendants of Jacob, the relationship was always one of trouble or of apostacy.

Five points in which Jacob was a type of the nation were pointed out by Rev. Mr. Allan. By defrauding his brother and his father, and thereby securing a blessing to which he was not entitled, Jacob found it necessary to leave his homeland and the place of blessing. In going to Egypt, he went against the direct will of God as this had been revealed to Abraham and to Isaac. To-day the Jews as a nation are separated from their homeland and will never be blessed as a nation until they are once more regathered in that land.

In the second place, Jacob got himself disliked by his father-in-law, Laban, and by his brothers-in-law, and decided to return to his home land. The Jews as a people are disliked by all the nations among which they are scattered. The most that can be said about them is that they are suffered by these peoples, even although not loved.

In the third place, Jacob cut himself off from the national altar. So to-day the Jews as a race, because of their sins, and strictly in accordance with prophecy, are without a king, and without a prince, and without a sacrifice.

Fourth, even although Jacob had gone against the revealed will of God, he was still under God's covenant care. This is true also of the Jews as a race, as although they have been punished by God, and scattered throughout the world, God's covenant towards them remains secure. For this reason they have never been assimilated by the nations among which they have been scattered, and will in due time be regathered to their home land.

Fifth, Jacob returned to his own land. The Jews to-day are returning to Palestine. Zionism is a purely political movement, and is in line with the prophecies in the Scriptures concerning the Jews which predict that they will return to the Promised Land in a state of unbelief. Just as an angel in the form of a man, wrestled with Jacob, so the Jews failed to recognize Christ as their Messiah. The day is coming, however, when they will accept Him, and their time of greatest blessing will then occur.

At the Wednesday night prayer meeting this week, Rev. Mr. Allan will speak on "The Glories of the Millenium."

CANADIAN GARDENS SUBJECT OF TALK

Mrs. Dunnington-Grubb Gives Interesting Address To Ladies.

An interesting illustrated address on "The Canadian Garden" was given to the members of the Women's Art Association at their meeting, held on Saturday afternoon in the studios at the Conservatory of Music. Mrs. Dunnington-Grubb of Toronto, president of the Canadian Women's Art Association, was the visiting speaker, and gave a charming address on gardens, illustrated with lantern slides which were run off by Mr. V. R. Henry.

The musical programme included two songs, sung charmingly by Miss Daisy Murray, who gave Grieg's "To a Waterlily," and "Under the Greenwood Tree," with accompaniment by Miss Gwen Donley, and a splendidly-rendered Sonato, also by Grieg, arranged for piano and violin, with Miss Donley and Mr. Arnold Spencer as joint soloists. This was played in excellent tempo and rhythm by the two young musicians, and was received with much applause.

In the absence of the president, Mrs. William Blackwell, the announcements were made by Mrs. J. E. R. Munro, the vote of thanks to the speaker being tendered by Mrs. R. Gliddon and seconded by Mrs. B. L. Barns.

Mrs. Dunnington-Grubb prefaced a showing of some very interesting slides by a brief outline of the origin of gardens, which existed, she said, many thousand of years before Christ, and were definitely known in 1500 B.C. Primitive peoples were not lovers of Nature, harboring rather a dread of trees and water, and it was not until man realized his dominion over Nature that gardens began to flourish.

The first gardens were those around the tombs and temples of the ancient Egyptians, about the Temple of Karnak, built in 1500 B.C. These, as well as the gardens of Syria and Greece and Persia, followed in their design the architecture of the buildings they beautified. During the Dark Ages, gardens were cultivated mainly by the monks and nuns, where vegetables and medicinal herbs alternated with the flowers which were used for religious ceremonies. The Italian Renaissance also brought massive gardens into the forefront, many of these being designed by such artists as Raphael and Michaelangelo and Lenotre, designer of the Gardens of Versailles. In Spain, the gardens which exhibited a decided Moorish tendency were in reality copied from the old Persian gardens by the Moors. In the United States and Canada today, the speaker declared, our system of landscape gardening is a modified version of the Chinese type of garden, and is a reaction from the old-time mode of formalism.

Mrs. Dunnington-Grubb's slides included some beautiful views of gardens, the majority taken from places in and around Toronto. They were mainly of the type that would be impossible to reproduce in a smaller community, with, in some instances, acres of ground involved in their designing, and including such extra bits of beauty as rose gardens, rock gardens, Japanese gardens with bridges and pagodas, and massive stone walls and wrought-iron gates. A garden that was a miniature reproduction of the Chinese willow-plate garden was an interesting item, and the views of the beautiful, large grounds at "Shadowbrook," originally built for the late Senator Nicholls, were particularly lovely.

A despatch of recent date from New York City records the transfer by the American Bible Society to the Canadian Auxiliary of the British and Foreign Bible Society of land in Saskatchewan valued at $30,000. Under two wills made within five years' time by the late Isaac W. Elliott, this land, comprising 10,000 acres, was willed to the British society, then later to the American Society, but the latter organization, although it was under no legal obligation in the matter, decided to transfer the land to the Canadian Auxiliary, as it had not any communication with Mr. Elliott, nor received any gifts from him during his lifetime." The late Mr. Elliott, who died in 1923, was born in Smith Township. He was the eldest son of the late James and Abigail Mann Elliott. The family later moved to Dallas, Oregon, where his mother still resides. The deceased was a nephew of Mr. G. W. Mann, Mrs. W. B. Kelly, Mrs. W. Garbutt, and Mrs. T. T. Milburn, and a cousin of Mr. Ed. Elliott and Mrs. J. K. Moore, all of this city and vicinity.

A delightful afternoon tea was held on Saturday at the residence of Mrs. B. V. Moore, Bank of Commerce Apartments, under the auspices of the Peter Robinson Chapter, I.O.D.E., the group in charge of arrangements being headed by Mrs. D. Loucks and Miss H. Buller, with Miss Edna Conner as leader. Mrs. Moore was assisted in receiving by the regent, Mrs. J. MacNabb, and the guests were ushered into the tea room by Miss Hazel Buller. Miss Eva Outram and Miss Amy Beal had charge of the Perry picture, and Miss Cora Clarke officiated at the door. The table, charmingly arranged with Indian lace, a large silver basket of daffodils, tied with mauve tulle, and yellow candles in silver holders, was presided over by Mrs. D. Loucks and Mrs. F. Hooper, assisted by the Misses Alberta Hunter, Phyllis Holmes, Helen Lamb, Viola Martin and Edna Conner.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles E. Wiley, 221 Park Street North, celebrated the twenty-fifth anniversary of their wedding, on Friday last. About forty of their friends assembled for the occasion, to enjoy a pleasant evening of cards and music, with service of a dainty supper, followed by an adjournment to the home of Mr. and Mrs. T. Sproat, Bolivar Street, where a dance was held, with excellent music provided by Bert Smith's five-piece orchestra. Their friends presented Mr. and Mrs. Wiley with a handsome set of Limoges china, in bridal-wreath pattern, the presentation being made by Mrs. T. Sproat, and the accompanying address read by Mrs. B. MacLean. Other gifts from friends included a silver pie plate from Mrs. Harold Fry; a Limoges china salad dish from Mr. and Mrs. A. McWilliams; a dozen daffodils from Mr. and Mrs. C. Friendship, and a half-dozen cut-glass wine glasses from the Misses Alice McCracken and Dorothy Worboy. A daughter in Vancouver, British Columbia, Mrs. W. H. Laugh, sent her mother two silver cake plates, with crocheted d'oyleys, and her father a pair of initialled silver cuff lings and a silver Eversharp pencil; a son in Toronto, Mr. Palmer Wiley, presented his parents with a well-and-tree silver meat platter, and a sister of Mrs. Wiley, Mrs. H. Higgs of Toronto, sent a gift of money. Prizes of cards were won by Mrs. G. Well and Mr. A. McWilliams, with consolation awards to Mrs. A. Jones and Mr. T. Sproat. Assistants in the serving of supper were Mrs. G. Worboy, Mrs. T. Sproat, Miss Dorothy Worboy and Miss Olive McCracken.

SAINT and SINNER

Against her will, but upon Churchill's insistence, Faith had agreed to wear black during her sister's trial for murder.

"Everything's got to be just right to win the sympathy of the judge and the jury," Churchill had argued.

And so, on Monday morning, January 3, Faith arrayed herself in an inexpensive but smart-looking satin dress, designed and made by herself. A vestee of pleated white chiffon and a pleated white frill at the cuffs, relieved the costume of sombreness.

Lincoln Pruitt, head of the Pruitt Wholesale Grocery, and father of George Pruitt, who had once hoped that Faith Lane would marry him, had generously given Jim Lane leave of absence, on full pay, from his new job as night watchman, a kindness which Faith knew had been suggested by George.

"Now, don't you worry about Joy," Aunt Hattie commanded, as she buzzed about Faith, helping her to get away to the trial. "Her fever's way down this morning, and I'll telephone to the courthouse if she takes a turn for the worse. And for land's sake, eat yourself a good lunc . No use starving yourself to death because reporters and meddlesome Matties watch every bite you eat."

Three reporters, two of them women, and a couple of photographers, were stationed before the Myrtle Street house when Faith and her father appeared on the front porch in answer to a pre-arranged signal from Bob's auto horn.

"Just a minute' Miss Lane, Mr. Lane," one of the girl reporters begged, springing upon the porch and touching Faith on the arm. "We've heard that your brother, James Lane, Jr., was married yesterday to Miss Fay Allen. Is the report true?"

Faith smiled into the eager eyes of the newspaperwomen. "Yes, it's true. He and Fay have been sweethearts for a year."

"May I say that Miss Allen wanted to demonstrate her loyalty and belief in Cherry's innocence?"

"If you like," Faith smiled. "But perhaps you had better ask my sister-in-law. She and my brother will be at the trial. Let's hurry, Dad. Bob is waiting."

"Have you seen Long yet?" Bob inquired, when at last the Lanes had escaped questioning and the car was headed toward the courthouse. "Darned decent of Fay, I think."

"No. They spent the night in Marlboro, but we talked to them over the phone. Long's terribly happy, and Fay says she is, too," Faith answered. "We're glad, aren't we, Dad?"

"Reckon so," Jim Lane nodded gloomily. "Think this tie is too loud, Bob?" he inquired anxiously, fingering the purple and brown atrocity that flowed across his unaccustomed white shirt. "Martha bought this tie for me last Christmas, and I sorta thought she'd be pleased if I wore it today."

While Bob was reassuring Mr. Lane, Faith stared unseeing at the congested streets through which the car was being expertly steered. She could not realize that she was actually on her way to the courthouse to take part in the greatest drama which had ever touched her life. It was all a nightmare, a long, dreadful nightmare. She would wake soon, to find Cherry safe at home again, oversleeping, as usual, one apricot-tinted cheek burrowed against a tiny, pink-nailed hand, short copper-and-gold curls rioting over a pummeled pillow.

"Good heavens! They've got the courthouse square decked out like a country fair!"

Bob's exclamation of anger and dismay brought Faith sharply to a realization that it was not a sleeping nightmare, but a waking one. She stared about her, horror-stricken, unbelieving.

The courthouse, a large and imposing building of white, rough-hewn stone, with magnificent white marble pillars was set, in lonely splendor, in the center of a city block, its terraced lawn a thing of civic beauty in the spring and summer.

But this very raw day in January found the dry stubble of the courthouse lawn trampled by thousands of feet. Men and women and holiday from school—having lost their fight for admission into the court room, which had been packed since seven o'clock, were now fighting for preferred positions near the broad flight of marble steps leading into the building, hoping for a glimpse of the prisoners' relatives and the family of the murdered man.

But it was not the sight of the familiar courthouse and jail which caused Faith's eyes to dilate with horror and Jim Lane's hand to tremble in their clasp of his daughter's arm.

Facing it, on three sides, were blocks of one, two, three and even four-story buildings, given over to garages, filling stations, cheap eating houses and hotels. And almost every business concern in the three blocks facing the courthouse was making a frantic bid for patronage from the thousands who would throng the courthouse square during the trial for murder of Cherry Lane Wiley and her husband, Christopher Wiley.

"PARK HERE WHILE ATTENDING THE BIG TRIAL," pleaded an enormous red and white bunting banner stretched across the only vacant lot on the square. Three men harangued and cajoled the drivers of the endless stream of cars seeking parking space.

A "hot dog" stand, hastily constructed of unpainted pine, occupied a corner of the hitherto vacant lot, enticing patrons with the promise, crudely lettered across the front of the shack: "BEST HOT DOGS IN TOWN AT THE CHERRY QUICK EATS STAND."

The plate glass front of a drug store had been decorated with an enormous picture done in red and white soapsuds, purporting to be a portrait of Cherry Lane Wiley, and advertising a new soda fountain concoction, "The Cherry Lane Sundae," a great dish of which the pictured Cherry was supposed to be eating with joyful surprise.

Newsstands, also hastily constructed of unpainted pine, flaunted gigantic printed portraits of Cherry and Chris, foot-high lettering assuring the mob of "DAILY SCOOPS ON THE BIG MURDER TRIAL." As Bob gave up the attempt to find a parking place and turned into the vacant lot, newsboys shrieking a new extra:

"Extra! Extra! Read Chris Wiley's own story of his life. Read all about how he come to marry the beautiful flapper murderess! Chronicle! Extra!"

"It's outrageous, Bob!" Faith gasped, as she and her father and Bob pushed their way through the crowd that had instantly collected before the parking place. "Isn't there any way to stop their using Cherry's name like this? Look! Over there, at that beauty parlor. How do they dare use Cherry's picture like that without her permission? "The new Cherry Lane bob!" Oh, how do they dare!"

"Such," Bob said bitterly, "is justice in this great free land of ours. Come on. We'll get through this jam somehow. Duck your head, darling. There's a camera aiming at you! Sorry, Mr. Lane. I'm afraid they got you that time."

ARE YOU THERE?

By Wallace Havelock Robb.

The Indian word for wild goose, "Wa-wa," is used poetically as meaning not only a wild goose, but Wild Life in general.

"Are you there, O Friend Jack Miner?
Are you there? Oh, are you there?"
Cries a far-off wounded honker,
Holding up against despair;
"Wobble-winged, I'm near a gonner;
O Jack Miner, are you there?"

"I can make it, O Jack Miner,
Wa-wa knows you will be there.
Faith in you will lift him higher,
Though he tumble through the air—
God! I'm sinking! lower, lower—
Tell me, God-man! Are you there?"

In the Dawn stands out Jack Miner,
And his voice afar is heard,
Calling kindly, giving answer,
Wild-Life hanging on each word.
There he stands, a torch-lit pillar,
Flaming Beacon for a Bird.

ECHO

Friend of Wa-wa, O Jack Miner,
Let us pledge our heart and hand;
Let us give united answer,
League on League throughout the land;
Let each wild-life, nature lover
Join the League and with you stand.

DRESS

At the right is shown a pair of ruffled georgette culottes to wear with a dance frock and those at the left have silver lace knee caps.

There is not the slightest reason in the world why the pantalette frock might not be revived. It is a safe enough assertion that anything that has ever been worn may at some other time be worn again. Twenty years ago skirts as short as those many women wear quite casually to-day would have seemed as out of the question as nose rings. To be really on the safe side, one had better not even speak of nose rings as out of the question as a future fashion. They have been worn—they may be worn again.

Just at present the pantalette frocks shown by some of the French dressmakers in the recent openings seem really absurd to most Americans—absurd and perhaps a little shocking. They perhaps forget that young girls wore visible pantalettes in mid-Victorian days when ideas concerning the proprieties of dress were apparently far more modest than our own.

Interestingly enough quite a number of the French dressmakers have hit upon the idea of the pantalette, culotte or trouser frock at the same time. Poiret is perhaps most daring—for he has an evening frock with Turkish trousers of silver cloth hidden only by long blue fringe. With some of the other dressmakers the culotte is almost entirely hidden. Sometimes it is no more than a pair of bloomers worn beneath a wrap-around skirt. This for sports wear. Sometimes a light, feather-weight evening frock will have a short ruffled pair of culottes to go with it—culottes that would show no more than any other undergarments worn instead. Then there are knee-length frocks with culottes finished with close-fitting bands that extend over the knees.

HOW TO SERVE COFFEE

Isn't it curious how difficult it is for so many people to make a truly delicious cup of coffee? And yet it is not so hard of attainment! Good coffee, a percolator and care in method of serving are the requisites. It is said that more coffee is spoiled in the serving than in the making. The proper proportions of cream and sugar, and their being perfectly dissolved in the beverage, have a great deal to do with the successful cup of coffee. Milk, generally top-milk, is sometimes used, but does not give satisfaction. Undoubtedly the most uniformly delicious coffee is that served with Eagle Brand Condensed Milk, because in Eagle Brand, a rich creamy milk, always the same, there is precisely the right amount of sugar to satisfy the taste. Another advantage of using the condensed milk is the saving on the cream and the sugar bill.

CHEAP PLATES.

A set of six cheap plates and cups will be useful in the kitchen, to save the best dishes. They can be used in cooking and for holding hot casseroles, etc.

HOROSCOPE

The Stars Incline, but do not Compel.

Wednesday, March 30, 1927.

(Copyright, 1927, by The McClure Newspaper Syndicate.)

Astrologers read this as rather an uncertain day, since there are planetary influences that tend to thwart the completion of plans.

Under this sway there may be deception and intrigue; it is not a favorable day to make investments.

The judgment should not be trusted until the aspect change, the seers declare, for the planetary government is supposed to make dishonesty and misrepresentation easy.

Women are well directed under this rule, which makes for the most unselfish effort and the most effective service.

This is read as a lucky wedding day, making for mutual understanding and real partnership.

Theatres are subject to the best possible influences and the rule indicates that the public will more and more support the spoken drama.

The seers declare that world-turmoil is to develop in the United States the most ingenious and most amazing inventions.

Art is to flourish in this country as never before and music is to receive a great impetus.

A new patriotism is to awaken in America which is to meet a test that will solidify the nation, the seers prophesy.

More heavy and unusual storms are to be expected in April, and earthquakes are indicated.

The summer is to be a period of extraordinary romance and love affairs will interfere with middle-aged political ambitions, if astrologers read the stars correctly.

Persons whose birthdate it is may have a year of unusual experiences.

Children born on this day may have a touch of real genius. They may be fanciful and should be wisely guided.

"We Should Pray in Private"

SCRIPTURE: Read—Luke 11: 1-13. "But thou, when thou prayest, enter into thine inner chamber, and having shut thy door, pray to thy Father who is in secret" (Mt. 6:6). "He went up into the mountain apart to pray . . . and he was there alone" (Mt. 14:23). "He went out into the mountain to pray; and he continued all night in prayer to God" (Lk. 6:12).

See—Ephesians 6:18; 1. Thessalonians 5:17.

MEDITATION: Jesus could pray anywhere. Yet he knew the essential value of private prayer and fled to the mountains to practise it. Private prayers favors sincerity, freedom from distraction, the sense of responsibility, the opening of the secrets of the heart and specific prayers in place of generalizations. It breathes "the heart's sincere desire." Personal interviews with God—what privilege could be higher!

"Thy wishes must themselves be prayers—golden desires that thy good may be the good of all."

HYMN:

Immortal Love, forever full,
Forever flowing free,
Forever shared, forever whole,
A never ebbing sea!

We may not climb the heavenly steeps
To bring the Lord Christ down;
In vain we search the lowest deeps
For Him no depths can drown.

But warm, sweet, tender, even yet
A present help is He;
And faith has still its Olivet,
And love its Galilee.
—John G. Whittier, 1866.

PRAYER: Thanks for true servants of God.

Pray for—grace of surrender; judges; lawyers; criminals.

Collect—Lord of all truth, whose mind is quick and powerful, we praise Thee for the universe, so vast, so orderly, so dependable. We bless Thee for the persons of men and the powers of friendship in them and us, but yet more for friendship with Thyself, for fellowship with Thy Son, and for Thy pervadvading presence with us in the Holy Spirit. Precious are the moments of intimate intercourse with Thee. Reprove us, we entreat Thee, for the pursuit of things to the forgetting of friendships human and divine. Give us the discriminating mind which detects the subtleties of sin and the beauty of holiness. So shall we know victory in the conflict. Therefore we covenant with Thee to put first things first by the grace of Christ. Amen.

Owen Sound Defeat Port Arthur For Memorial Cup

Fort William Has Edge In the Allan Cup Series

FORT WILLIAM TAKES SECOND GAME OF SERIES

Thunder Bay Champions Score Three Goals in Second Period.

GRADS PLAY LOOSE.

First Defeat of Season For Varsity Team—Score 3 Goals To 2.

VANCOUVER, March 29.—Fort William got one arm on the Allan Cup here last night when the Thunder Bay champions defeated Toronto Varsity Grads 3 to 2, in the second game of the senior Canadian amateur finals, the first contest having ended in a two-all tie after 30 minutes' overtime.

The third game will be played here Wednesday night and should the Forts come out on top again they will take possession of the trophy.

Playing a much better combination and skating faster than the Grads, the Thunder Bay team were full measure for their win.

Might Have Been Different.

Had the Grads shown as much fight in the first two periods as they did in the last one when they kept the Forts back of their own blue line the greater part of the time, the score might have been different. It was only clever headwork on the part of Kearney in the Forts' net that enabled his team to skate off the ice winners.

At one time all the Grads team, with the exception of the goalie, was past centre, driving in shots and working into the net. The only score of the period came after sixteen minutes, when Sullivan whipped one into the corner of the net. For the winners, Ward, Tuckwell and Kearney were the stars, while Hudson, Porter and Trottier were the pick of the Grads.

Grads Play Loose.

Cook opened the play in the first period with a stiff shot from the boards, but it was wide. Hudson replied and his drive also was off the mark. Both teams played defensive hockey, using only one and two-men rushes. On a dash with Trottier, Plaxton nearly took Kearney off his feet with a terrific drive.

Fort William got away on a three-man thrust with only two opponents in front of them, but Porter broke up the play. The Forts at this stage played better hockey, while the Grads appeared to be disorganized.

Plaxton went off for tripping Tuckwell and while he was on the fence Porter made a nice solo rush, but shot wide. McLeod missed an almost sure goal when Cook sent over a perfect pass. Both teams used their bodies and sticks freely and Sullivan was lucky to save on a long shot from Tuckwell, the drive nearly catching him napping. The Grads' playing was very loose the first period and Fort William broke up each attempt of the Grads to get into scoring range. Davis secured the rubber and went through the Toronto team, turning in a back-handed shot, Sullivan just catching the puck with his skate.

PLANS HOCKEY FOR FAR WEST

C. C. Pyle and "Red" Grange Planning California Hockey League.

FOUR TEAMS

LOS ANGELES, Cal., March 29.—C. C. Pyle and his red-haired football partner, Harold ("Red") Grange have added ice hockey to their professional sport ramifications.

Pyle announced yesterday plans for the formation of a California ice hockey league for four teams, with franchises in San Francisco, Oakland, Los Angeles, and Hollywood. With Grange, former University of Illinois gridiron star, as an associate, Pyle has purchased a large rink here, and plans to build one costing $220,000 in San Francisco.

Pyle also revealed that he has options on two eastern hockey teams, and probably will purchase the teams intact, bringing the players to compete in the California League.

The promoter, who recently took Suzanne Lenglen, French net ace, and a troupe of tennis players on a tour of the country, said the venture into hockey will in no way interfere with plans of himself and Grange for another professional season in the east. The pair will leave for the east within the next three weeks to reorganize the American Football League into a six-team circuit, he said.

CARDS MAY REPEAT IN THE NATIONAL

Champions Unchanged From Last Season With Exception of Manager.

NEW YORK, March 29.—Backed by experience and confidence that should fortify a young championship ball club the St. Louis Cardinals will be at least one of the favorites in the National League pennant race.

With the exception of the field generals the club is the same as it was last year.

Rogers Hornsby and Bill Killifer, who were credited with doing the heavy thinking that brought the last National League pennant to St. Louis, have departed.

But Bob O'Farrell, rated in 1926 as the most valuable player in the league, is handling the club and he is one of the smartest men in the game.

The Cardinals have a well balanced club. The infield is one of the best in the league, the outfield is strong, the pitching staff will compare favorably with that of any of the rival clubs.

The mechanical strength of the team with Frank Frisch playing second base probably will not be reduced. Hornsby, of course, is a better ball player than Frisch, but Hornsby did not have a good season last year.

The spirit of the Cardinals seems to be all that it should be desired for a championship club. Man for man it is a young ball club and the players will hustle for O'Farrell.

You'd Be SURPRISED!

BY BILLY EVANS

Ray Schalk boasts a unique distinction among catchers of all classifications.

The remarkable feat of the new manager of the Chicago White Sox in catching 100 or more games for 11 consecutive years is without parallel in the majors.

However, it is not that performance I have in mind when I speak of a distinction Schalk enjoys over all catchers, amateur or professional.

As far as I know, or have been able to learn from the records, Schalk is the only catcher who has negotiated one or more putouts at every base.

Catchers are supposed to register their outs in the neighborhood of home plate, but Schalk has journeyed to first, second and third to bask in the limelight.

When Harry Hooper played right field for Chicago, he and Schalk used a trick play that got one runner and failed to get perhaps a score of others by inches.

On balls hit to right field with the first baseman playing deep, Schalk would jog toward first in foul territory. If the batter turned first base wide and fast, Schalk, at the proper moment, would start for the bag and Hooper would cut the ball on a line to that base. It was a thriller.

Once during a run-up between first and second, Schalk left his position at the plate and got into the play, finally tagging the runner out as he slid into second.

Now for the other trick play. Noting that a runner on first had decided to go to third on a bunt handled by the third sacker, in which he retired the runner at first, Schalk raced down from his position at the plate, took an accurate throw from Hal Chase, then playing first for Chicago, and by diving at the runner sliding into third, managed to get the decision from the umpire. He has made this play twice.

Schalk, I think, is more proud of the fact he has retired a man at every base than the catching of 100 or more games for 11 successive years.

TARPON SPRINGS, Fla., March 29.—The St. Louis Browns have unearthed a rival for Babe Ruth in First Baseman Guy Sturdy, who looks the part of his name. He is better than six feet, weighs about 180 pounds and last season cracked out 49 runs for Tulsa in the Western League. He bats and throws left-handed.

JAMES QUINN CANADIAN CHAMP

Defeats Newman By 638 Points—Surprise in Billiards Finals.

TORONTO, March 29.—There can be upsets in practically all sports, but one of the biggest upsets of the season was the defeat of Stanley Newman by James Quinn in the final for the Canadian professional billiards championship at Brunswick Hall on Saturday night. The final score was: Quinn 6,000, Newman 5,362.

Newman has long been considered to be one of the best cue men in Canada, but his play against Quinn was disappointing.

James Quinn, the new champion, who arrived in Canada about the same time as Newman, came out practically considered as a "retired" champion of Scotland. He played most of the leading lights of the Canadian billiard field with varying degrees of success and on account of his present pressure of business had no serious thought of competing for the Canadian title, consenting to do so only at the urgent entreaties of a few friends.

To reach the finals he had to defeat Ernest Leigh of Montreal, one-time champion of Canada, also A. P. Woodward, who was the title-holder last year. His serious battle began at this stage, having to meet Stanley Newman, who had already earned a high reputation as a brilliant cueist, with youth on his side, and having been schooled by such players as Stevenson, Inman, Willie Smith, and his own brother, Tom Newman, the present world's champion.

Owing to pressure of business Quinn will be unable to stay over to meet Tom Tothill, who challenged the winner to a match of 16,000 points. Newman, however, has stepped into the breach and will cross cues with the North of England champion, commencing this afternoon.

OWEN SOUND WINS JUNIOR TITLE IN OVERTIME VICTORY OVER PORTS

McDougall Scores Four Goals in Speedy and Thrilling Contest.

SCORE 5-3.

Win Canadian Championship For Second Time in Four Years.

TORONTO, March 29. — Just when it looked as if the Owen Sound Greys were fading under the terrific pace that had been set and followed during the sixty minutes of regulation play, during which time each team scored twice, the Greys pulled themselves together at the start of the overtime period and within three minutes had rammed in two counters, and before the ten minutes had expired were able to match the Port Arthur West Ends' final counter, enabling them to win the second and final game of the series for the Canadian Junior championship and possession of the O.H.A. Memorial Cup by 5 goals to 3, after one of the greatest Junior classics in the history of the game in this city. The Grays' "sixty-minute men" were forced to add ten additional minutes to their title, but they finished with a burst that was unexpected by the greater number of the huge crowd of spectators.

It was a great struggle between two great little teams, and there was very little to choose between the pair, but the O.H.A. champions had the greater punch to their attacks. The West Ends were in scoring positions more often than were the winners, but spectacular work between the sticks by Benny Grant turned them aside many times, but he failed to break their hearts, and once again the Abbott Cup holders came back strong after being two goals down and threatened to tie up the count. The winners' scoring average on the number of chances they had was considerably higher than that of the Western Canada champions, but Grant certainly saved the game for the winners, especially in the first seven minutes, when the Ports were close in enough times to win the majority of games.

McDougall Scores Four

While Grant was the defensive star of the Greys, it was "Shrimp" McDougall who supplied the punch on the offensive, the centre player sniping four goals during the 70 minutes, and he also did valuable work in breaking up rushes and overtaking opposing puck-carriers. While these two men stood out in the victory, the other four were very important cogs in the great little machine which brought the Canadian championship back to Eastern Canada after a two years' sojourn in the West. It was the Grays who brought the title and trophy back four years ago, and once again they came through bearing the hopes of Eastern Canada on their shoulders, but they were forced to show their very best to turn back the Ports.

In the first game Martin Lauder was the scoring ace for the Greys, but last night he was watched closely and did not beat Spooner, but he took part in two scoring plays, the one for the first goal when he passed to McDougall and for the second goal of the overtime when he carried the rubber down the ice where McDouall secured behind the Ports' net to come out and hook it around the post into the twine. Markle, like Lauder, was unable to score, but he played a much better game than on Friday and both the defence men showed an improved standard of playing. It was Paddon who gave the Greys the lead in the overtime when he secured near his own goal and rushed down after a minute and a half's play. Just as he passed the blue line he drove one at the net and as Spooner's view was partially blocked he was unable to step in front of the rubber. This gave the Greys the needed encouragement and soon afterwards Lauder staged a rush, but he lost possession near the goal and the puck went on to the end of the rink. Taking a leaf from the Port's book McDougall raced in and secured and was allowed to ramble around and hook the rubber in.

THISTLE CLUB JOINS SOCCER ASSOCIATION

Officer-Bearers Elected and Member To Board Appointed.

The Thistle Football Club held an organization meeting, last evening, in the Chamber of Commerce rooms, when they elected the office-bearers for the ensuing year: E. King, president; R. Gilmour, vice-president; George Nimmons, secretary-treasurer, and D. Menzies was appointed to the Board.

The secretary was instructed to write the City Council in regard to the use of King Edward Park for the ensuing year.

A list of players was read who intimated, that they would participate with the Thistle Club, as follows: C. Griffen, A. Anderson, J. Scott, J. McLeod, R. Dawson, J. Bromley, J. Bellamy, T. McPhate, C. Forrest, E. McPhate, A. Lang and J. Wade.

CLUBS DISCUSS USE OF OVAL

Soccer and Cricket Officials Arranging Schedule for Coming Season.

Last evening, in the Paragon Hall, the local cricket magnates met the representatives of the local football association to discuss the use of the Oval for the ensuing season.

At the end of last season, the soccer clubs failed to function through unfavorable circumstances, which gave the legitimate right to the cricket authorities to gain possession of Nicholls Oval for this season, but they did not want to cause the soccer clubs any inconvenience, and requested an agreement before making final arrangements.

The cricket members explained the situation fully as to their proposed schedule, which would be from the 1st May until the end of August and would leave the balance of the year to the soccer clubs.

On behalf of the soccer association, Vincent Stewart stated that he would not commit himself until he had held another meeting, in the near future, and would also attend the Quaker Oats meeting to discuss the situation with them.

A motion of thanks was tendered to the soccer officials for the manner in which they had discussed the situation with them, also wishing them a very successful season.

ROUSH AND LUQUE MAY JOIN GIANTS

With These Stars Available McGraw's Club Be Much Strengthened.

ST. AUGUSTINE, Fla., March 29.—John McGraw, manager of the New York Giants, is celebrating his silver jubilee this year as the manager of the New York club and he is bearing down with everything to win another National League pennant.

The Giants will start as one of the favorites for the championship. It is a strong defensive club and probably will have one of the heaviest attacks in the league.

With Horsnby at second base McGraw feel that he has perfected him inner defense with a double play combination—Tinker to Evers to Chance.

With Lindstrom at third base, Jackson at short, Hornsby on second, and Terry on first base the Giants have a powerful offensive and defensive combination, but the outfield is still uncertain.

Eddie Roush, who has a hate against spring training campaigns, hasn't reported, but it is almost certain that he will be in centre field before the season is far advanced.

Without Pep Young in right field the Giant outfield will be handicapped, of course, because Young was one of the best players in the game.

McGraw needs one more veteran pitcher and it is probable that he will get Adolf Luque from the Cincinnati Reds.

ICE 150,000 YEARS OLD FOUND

Ice believed to have been formed 150,000 years ago when Russia and all Northern Europe were covered with the wintry coating, has been found in a cave recently discovered in the Ural mountains. The case is 26 miles long and is festooned with glistening icicles. The roof is a mass of snow crystals that reflect the colors of the rainbow, and there are many grottoes. Objects dating from the time of the Persian King Cyrus were found nearby.

Peru has a movement to abolish the present law making the President eligible as a candidate to succeed himself.

PETERBOROUGH MALE VOICE CHOIR

There is a very brisk demand for tickets for the annual concert of the Male Voice Choir to be given on Friday, April 8th, in the Grand Opera House, and every indication points to the house being sold out.

Those who wish their names to appear on the subscribers' list should secure their tickets promptly, as the list is about to be closed.

All members of the choir are requested to be on hand for the practice this evening at the usual hour.

In addition to Madame Holland, contralto, of Toronto, the committee have been fortunate in securing the services of Mr. Merlin Davies, the Welsh-Canadian tenor. Although a stranger to Peterborough, Mr. Merlin Davies comes with the highest possible recommendations as a vocalist from Dominion and U.S.A. critics. The press speaks in most laudatory terms of his singing, and The Hamilton Spectator, in a recent issue, says: "The work of Merlin Davies, whose exquisite tenor used at times with such entrancing effect, and at all times of such sweetness and purity of tone, provided, some of the delights of the evening. His solo, 'The Sorrows of Death,' from Mendelssohn's 'Hymn of Praise,' was sung with a beauty that will long remain in the memories of his audience."

CHILDREN HEAR OF FORESTRY

Lectures Given To Scholars About Preserving Canada's Forests.

Peterborough school children know a great deal more about forestry work today than they did before the recent visit of Alan Fenwick, who spent a whole week lecturing in the public and separate schools of the city on this topic. The object of the Canadian Forestry Association, which Mr. Fenwick represents, is to enlist the co-operation of the people of Canada in forest conservation, and his interesting illustrated lectures are delivered with this end in view.

Forestry practice is defined as the management of forest land as so to produce the highest continued revenue from it. So long as their is an annual depreciation of the forest of Ontario from fire, said Mr. Fenwick, it doesn't seem reasonable that other steps should be taken. The Ontario Government, recognizing this, has confined its activities almost entirely to fire prevention.

No matter how zealous the technical forester may be, he can accomplish very little without the support of the public. The association is therefore appealing to the people, not only as bush travellers, but as members of the electorate, to use care. Canada is essentially a agricultural, forestry, and mining country and the forest industries must not be further endangered.

Approximately 2,900 children heard Mr. Fenwick while he was in Peterborough. His lecture touched on methods of forest preservation and on the value of the forests to Canada.

IN MEMORIAM

CALVERT — In ever loving memory of our dear wife and mother who departed to be with Christ, March 29th, 1924.
Though the days roll on and on,
The years become more and more,
We know she is resting sweetly
On Heaven's peaceful shore.

The gates of Heaven opened
And Jesus' voice said come
To be with Him forever
She quietly entered home.

High Priced Industrials Attain High Record Levels

NEW YORK, March 29 (Canadian Press).—Speculators for the advance resumed their bullish campaign in today's stock market by bidding up a flock of high-priced industrials and rails to new high records, but they encountered stiffer resistance.

Bear traders kept up their relentless campaign for weak spots, and there was rather heavy profit-taking following the marking up of the call money rate. The credit stringency arises from the month end demand for funds, and is believed to be only temporary.

United States Steel Common, General Motors, Dupont, General Railway Signal, Commercial Solvents B, All American Cables, Delaware and Hudson, Norfolk and Western, Baltimore and Ohio and Rock Island were among the many issues to break through their previous high levels.

Selling was most effective against shares of companies whose current earnings are regarded as disappointing. These included Famous Players, Electric Refrigeration, and several rails. Union Pacific showed substantial a increase in February net income despite a drop of nearly $200,000 in gross.

Pool operators succeeded in marking up a number of minor specialties such as Walworth, By-Products Coke and Universal Pipe, but commission house buying showed little indication of any widespread public participation.

Oil Stocks Strengthen Result Of Unusual Demand

TORONTO, March 29 (Canadian Press).—An unusual demand for oil stocks featured the trading on the Toronto Stock Exchange today and in consequence these issues all strengthened. British American Oil was the active leader of the market and closed unchanged at 27 1-8. Volcanic Oil scored the widest gain, advancing 2 1-2 to 40. Imperial Oil experienced keep demand from the outset and sold up one point to 46 after reaching a high of 47. International Petroleum gained 5-8 to 32 3-8. The distillery issues were dull; G. & W. was active and gained 3-4 to 56 3-4. Seagram declined 1-8 to 23. City Dairy was a strong spot advancing three points to 110. British Columbia Fishing was up 32 5-8 to 81 1-2. Arnold gained 1-4 to 22 1-3. Massey Harris was unchanged at 117 1-2. Smelters declined 7-8 to 261, while Twin City was up 1-2 to 55 3-4.

Wave Of Strength Strikes Trading On Mining Exchange

TORONTO, March 29 (Canadian Press). — An underlying wave of strength came to the surface in the trading on the Standard Mining Exchange today and the majority of stocks to figure in the transactions gained ground. The Quebec issues were all active and stronger while the dividend-paying golds remained firm and unchanged. Area was the feature of the strong movement, advancing 9 1-4 points to 37. Argonaut sold up two to 39. Barry Hollinger firmed two points to 46. Keely was strong and sold up to 145, a gain of four. Laval-Quebec firmed two points to 28, while Nipissing recorded the widest gain of the list selling up to 8.00, a gain of 45 cents. Mining Corporation firmed three to 3.50. Amulet was up 10 to 122, and Towagmac eight to 3.48.

Wheat Averages Lower During Early Dealings

CHICAGO, March 29.— (Canadian Press.)— With favorable crop conditions reported both in this country and abroad, wheat averaged lower today during the early dealings. Talk was current that forthcoming summaries of domestic crop conditions would prove bearish. Opening unchanged to 1-4 cent off, wheat underwent a slight general sag and then fluctuated within narrow limits. Corn and oats were relatively firm, corn starting unchanged to 1-4 cent lower, but subsequently scoring gains. Provisions tended downward.

Chicago— Opening: Wheat, May, 133 5-8, July 128 1-8. Corn, May 71 5-8, July 76 3-8. Oats, May 43 3-4, July 44 1-8.

Thunder Bay District Shaken By Earthquake

FORT WILLIAM, March 29 —A good deal of alarm was caused in the rural districts early Sunday afternoon by what are believed to have been earthquake shocks. At Kakabeka Falls there was a noise like a heavy engine passing through the village, and dishes rattled on the shelves, in some cases being shaken off the shelves. Cattle in the fields in Conmee Township were so scared that they went galloping back to the barns for shelter. Similar reports are to hand from O'Connor, Marks and Flint Townships. The voltmeters at the Kakabeka Falls power station did not register any disturbance.

CANTON FORCES PLACE CANNON

stroyer "William S. Preston" has been ordered to leave here to-morrow for that point. The United States destroyer "Pillsbury" is on its way up the Yangtze river under orders to evacuate missionaries at Nantungchow and neighboring places.

Refugees from the Yangtze valley continued to arrive in the International settlement to-day. Among them was the Japanese consul at Nanking, who declared that armed women Communists led the lawless Nationalist soldiers in looting the Japanese consulate at Nanking, last Thursday.

Looting Systematic

According to the consul, the looting was conducted deliberately and systematically, apparently carrying out some pre-arranged plan. "There is no doubt," the Consul said, "That Communists, co-operating with part of the southern troops, deliberately carried out looting with the objective of creating an anti-foreign feeling."

The Consul himself had a narrow escape. He was ill in bed when the anti-foreign outbreak occurred. One Bullet passed between him and his wife, who tried to shield him with her body.

Official Reports Received

LONDON, March 29 (Canadian Press).—Reuter's Shanghai correspondent understands that the official British and United States reports on the Nanking incident now are under consideration in London and Washington, after which there will be an exchange of views as to the question of joint action.

French Troops Sail

PARIS, March 29 (Canadian Press). — Reinforcements of four hundred white Colonial troops and four hundred Annamites for the French concession in Shanghai are expected to arrive there from Tonkin Annam, within a week.

A Shanghai despatch to the Foreign Office, filed late last night, and received this morning, says, "All is calm."

Evacuating Valley Cities.

LONDON, March 29 (Canadian Press).—The Foreign Office was advised today that, because of anti-foreign feeling, local British authorities at Changsha, Chungking, and Ichang, in the Yangtze Valley, have decided to evacuate all British males from those places. Women and children were previously sent to Shanghai.

Investigating Nanking Affair.

LONDON, March 29 (United Press).—C. J. Wallace of the British diplomatic corps in China, The United Press was informed today, will visit Nanking to investigate the situation there, and the result of the bombardment of a portion of the city by British and United States warships last week. Authorities here were informed that very few persons had been killed by the gun fire at Nanking.

Police Seek Agitators.

PEKING, March 29. — (Canadian Press.)—Police are engaged on an active hunt for Nationalist agitators. Newspapers and news agencies are also being closely scrutinized for southern propaganda.

Nanking Riots Described

OSAKA, Japan, Mar. 29 (Canadian Press)—A graphic description of the mistreatment of Japanese in Nanking, published by Asahi Shimbun in a despatch from that city, has caused a sensation here.

The Asahi correspondent relates that last Thursday morning he was awakened by bullets pattering through the window panes of his hotel room in Nanking. Shortly afterwards more than forty Chinese soldiers invaded the hotel and robbed him of his belongings.

The looters tried to snatch a ring from the hand of a maid in the hotel, the despatch continues, but found it tight, so they tried to cut off the finger. They threatened to shoot all Japanese guests of the hotel, but were restrained when a superior officer arrived.

The correspondent continues that he went to the Japanese consulate where he saw more looting in which men and women were stripped of all their clothing. More than a hundred Chinese soldiers swarmed into the Consulate and attacked the staff with bayonets and rifle butts, demanding money. When told there was no money, it is asserted they brutally wounded and finally killed Major Nemoto and threw the body out of the window.

The correspondent confines his article to a description of the scenes he actually witnessed, except for remarking that, according to information that he received, the behaviour of the Chinese towards the British was even worse.

Examiner News Gatherers In Conference Here

NEWS IS WHAT IS WRITTEN BY INTELLIGENT REPORTERS SAYS EXAMINER NEWS EDITOR

No Hard and Fast Rule for Guidance of Writers.

HIGH STANDARD

Urges Correspondents to Aim at Satisfaction Through Mastering Craft.

Examiner newsgatherers from fifty points in the Peterborough district were present to-day at the first Examiner staff conference, held in the Paragon tea room. The conference opened at 9 o'clock, and adjourned at 2:30 to the Capitol theatre, where the visitors were guests of the management at the matinee performance.

The morning session was devoted to an address on news values and news writing, given by the news editor, and to a round-table conference in which all the correspondents and staff participated. At 11:30, when the mail edition of The Examiner was being run off the press, the visitors were conducted on a tour of the plant, following an item of news from its reception by telegraph or mail to its appearance as one of the printed items in the paper. "How it gets into the paper" was interestedly followed by the correspondents, and a new idea of the magnitude of the task involved in printing a newspaper was carried away by them.

On leaving the conference hall for this tour, every visitor was given a slip of paper on which was written:

"Come, Gutenberg! Come Morse! Come
Who pinned your faith to a thought!
You who dreamed so well of the things to be,
Come take a walk through the plant with me—
Come out from your winding sheets and see
What you and God have wrought!"

The description of the processes given by the news editor had prepared the visitors in some measure for the marvels of modern newspaper production, but the wonder of the almost human linotype, the uncanny production of the monotype, the painstaking but swift handling of the type-matter in the make-up room, the mysteries of the stereotype plant, and the roar of the press that heralds the completion of the day's work, are always amazing to the novitiate, and even to those whose daily contact has not lessened their appreciation of the marvellous processes involved.

The news is received in telegraph form or in mail reports from correspondents, and is edited and headed in the editorial department. A schedule is kept of all stories, and just before press-time a make-up sheet is prepared showing the positions the principal stories are to occupy in the paper.

On being edited, the copy-sheets are taken to the linotype room, where the letters and words are set in solid slugs by the pressure of keys very like typewriter keys, and requiring less effort to operate. The slugs are assembled, and a proof is "pulled." This is read by the proof-readers, and corrections are marked. An error in a line necessitates the re-setting of the line, and perhaps succeeding lines. These corrections are inserted in their proper places by the "printer's devil," the headings are placed on the stories, and the type-slugs are locked up in "chases," which then become "forms." In the stereotype room the forms are passed under a heavy roller, which presses a paper-mat over and into the face of the type so that exact reproductions of the type are made in the paper. The "matrix" is locked in a caster, and molten metal is forced into the box, hardening quickly into a semi-circular plate that has in raised form all the letters, pictures and rules that appeared in the type-form. Locked on the high-speed rotary press, its plate prints a complete page at every revolution, and every revolution of the press-cylinder prints two full pages. The papers are printed, folded, cut, counted, and trimmed at speeds varying from 10,000 copies an hour to 50,000 copies an hour, all these operations being performed by the same machine.

On leaving the press, the papers are delivered in the mailing room, where the circulation department takes charge. Labels are affixed by deft girls, the papers are bundled in districts and thrown into open mail-sacks to be carried by The Examiner truck to the several trains and to the postoffice. When unexpected news breaks late in the day, delaying the make-up of the paper, there is a rush in the mailing room, because the trains must not be missed.

These processes were explained to the correspondents in order that a greater appreciation of the time element may be obtained. Work in the editorial office is always rushed, and reports that are received early have much more chance of getting into the paper promptly than reports that come late. Every day it is necessary to weed out stories to be thrown away or held over in order to make room for more important reports.

What is News?

The conference opened with an address on "What is News?" by John R. Heron, news-editor, treating specially the question as it touched the work of the district correspondent. "None of us knows everything," he said, "and we all know a great deal that isn't so. A definition of news cannot be put into twenty-five words, though many men have tried to do so. What is news to one man is poison to his neighbor;

OXFORD, England, March 30. —(Canadian Press.)—Oxford University students are planning to help harvest the Canadian wheat crop next summer. Parties of students are being recruited and will sail in July for Montreal.

Local News Predominates In This Community Paper

In the 24 publishing days of March The Examiner has printed 160 columns of City news (3184 inches) and 202 columns of district news (4042 inches). This is a total of 362 columns, or 45¼ pages of news about Peterborough district, an average of 15 columns a day.

FRENCH SECTION NOT DEFENDED

Correspondent Claims That No Sentries Are Posted at Bridges

SOME APPREHENSION

LONDON, March 30 (United Press).—A peculiar situation has arisen at Shanghai between the British and French, which officials here are inclined to minimize but which is apparently acute on the spot.

The Shanghai correspondent of the Morning Post accuses M. Naggiar, the French Consul, of undue friendliness with the Cantonese, and asserts that the French concession, which is virtually the key to the defence of Shanghai, is left practically unguarded. He even, he declares, found the bridge facing the headquarters of the Cantonese completely open and without sentries.

There is, no doubt, considerable apprehension among the British stationed in Shanghai regarding the measures, or rather lack of measures, taken for the defence of the French concession. Other correspondents, however, are inclined to believe that the French have a way of their own of handling the prob-

TWO LONG SERVICE CORRESPONDENTS SPECIALLY HONORED BY PRESENTATIONS

Splendid Musical Programme and Brief Addresses Mark Close of First Editorial Conference — Community Singing Adds to Enjoyment—Certificates Are Presented.

The Examiner, twenty years older than Confederation, is this year celebrating its eightieth birthday. Today, as a sign of its progress, and as a gesture of friendship to all those communities that it has watched grow out of the forest that stretched around Peterborough in 1847, it entertained the correspondents who report the news from fifty points within a radius of thirty miles.

In the year of Confederation The Examiner was a four-page weekly—it now publishes 12 to 24 pages a day. Sixty years ago there was no local news to be found in issue after issue—it was not the fashion then for newspapers to chronicle anything but foreign news; today it is so well served by local staff reporters and by correspondents that it is known as the leading community newspaper in Ontario.

And at the first Staff Conference today the foundation was laid of an even greater Examiner, a newspaper that because of the increased understanding of the members of the reportorial staff will be able to render still wider service to the city and district of which it is an integral part.

The luncheon that marked the climax of the day's programme was an inspiring affair.

The luncheon, which formed a very interesting portion of the programme of the day, was served in the Paragon Grill Room, in a very excellent manner, by Mr. Coleman and his assistants. The menu was all that could be desired, and the tables were decorated daintily with cut flowers and ferns. John R. Heron, news editor of The Examiner presided over the gathering, and James Turnbull acted as song leader, with Miss Gwen Donley as accompanist. The musical programme included several splendidly sung vocal solos given by Miss Daisy M[illegible] and Mr. E. Humphage.

The toast list opened with "The King," and was followed by an appreciation of Examiner correspondents, voiced by H. T. Theobald, who referred to the respect in which the late Alex. McGregor was held. The toast was outlined further by C. J. Beaudette, and was responded to by H. D. Atkinson of Cabellford.

The toast to "The Examiner" was given by W. J. Cottrell of Marmora, and Rev. J. F. Everson of Norham, and was responded to by R. M. Glover, who made a very interesting speech, thanking the correspondents for their attendance, and speaking of the value of co-operation and loyalty in the carrying out of the affairs of a daily newspaper.

A fine address on "Newspaper History" was then given by William Edgar of McMaster University, Toronto, followed by an appreciation by F. D. Craig, worded in eloquent and humorous style.

A feature of the gathering was the presentation of cases containing pen and pencil to two of the senior correspondents of "The Examiner", Mrs. L. A. Mahood of Omemee and Miss Blanche Graham of Lakefield. The presentations were made by H. E. Mounstephen, who also presented a bouquet of roses to Miss Murray. Mrs. Mahood and Miss Graham made suitable acknowledgments of the gifts.

The afternoon concluded with a visit by the correspondents to the Capitol theatre to witness the picture programme.

Huge Ice Boulder's Fall Caused Earthquake Scare

FORT WILLIAM, Ont., Mar. 30.—Quiverings of the earth in the district around Kakabeka Falls Sunday afternoon, which caused a near panic in some localities, have been explained. It has been discovered that an ice boulder estimated to weigh 500 tons fell down from the brink of the falls to the bottom of the crash, a sheer drop of about 110 feet.

Kaministiquia Power Company engineers who made the discovery of the ice fall, state that the force of the impact with the momentum gathered equalled 160,000 foot tons when the ice smashed the flat rock bottom of the forge. It was this tremendous crash which shook the earth and mystified the dwellers in the adjacent townships. In Kakabeka village, about half a mile from the falls, buildings quivered to such an extent that occupants fled outdoors.

Explosions Cause Many Casualties in Two U. S. Pits

RESCUERS BUSY

PITTSBURGH, March 30 (Canadian Press).—More than five hundred men were entombed by a terrific explosion in the Ehrenfeld mine of the Pennsylvania Coal and Coke Corporation this afternoon, according to reports received here. The mouth of the mine was wrecked by the blast, it was said. The United States Bureau of Mines rescue car, stationed at Derry, near Ehrenfeld, has been ordered to the scene.

All efforts to get into direct touch with the mine failed. It is located in Cambria county, about 75 miles from Pittsburgh.

Eleven Casualties

HARRISBURG, Ill., March 30 (Canadian Press).—Eight men were entombed and believed to have been killed in a gas explosion today in the Salina County Coal Corporation's No. 1 Mine at Ledford, near here. Three other miners were injured by the blast. Three hundred other men at work in the mine were all accounted for.

Mine officials said gas had accumulated in a pocket near the entry and was touched off, presumably by an open light used by the miners.

HISTORY OF THE NEWSPAPER IS TOLD BY WILLIAM EDGAR AT NEWSPAPERMEN'S LUNCHEON

AT LAKEFIELD.

MISS BLANCHE GRAHAM
who has represented The Examnier at Lakefield for the past ten years.

First Real Newspaper Was Published in Paris in 1631 and Still Exists.

THE FIRST DESPATCH

Oldest Paper on American Continent, at Halifax, is 175 Years Old.

In an address that was brimful of information and interesting anecdote, William Edgar, of McMaster University, to-day told The Examiner staff conference the history of newspapers. Mr. Edgar was the speaker at the luncheon at which the management entertained fifty visiting correspondents and the staff of the local editorial office, with heads of departments also as guests.

"The historian of the press," said Mr. Edgar, "enjoys a great advantage over the chronicler of other phases of human activity, in that he finds himself right away in the modern world, for the newspaper is essentially a modern institution. I admit readily that various expedients, some of them dating back to a very remote period and bearing what we might call a family resemblance to the newspaper, were used to disseminate information among the people, but the establishment of anything which really corresponds to our periodical press was totally impossible until the invention of printing, by a German named Gutenberg, in the city of Mainz in the year 1441. I mention that date in order to emphasize the fact that our homeland, Canada, and the art of printing are relatively the same age. Perhaps, in view of the fact that Canada is so often spoken of as Miss Canada, it may be somewhat unchivalrous to mention the word age at all in this connection, but I am sure the ladies present will excuse the little slip. While the new invention was eventually used for the propagation of current information in all of the advanced countries in Europe, the most striking developments occurred in France and Great Britain.

"Printing was introduced into England by William Caxton. He had written a beautiful manuscript, entitled, 'The Recital of the History of Troy,' which he presented to a lady at Court. She was charmed with the gift and naturally showed it to others. Each lady who saw it wanted a copy, and Caxton copied and copied until, as he says, his eyes became weary with the white of the paper. This suggested the use of printing, he having learned the art when a resident of Bruges—and he had machinery installed for the purpose in London.

"At first this was used entirely for the reproduction of classical works, but, in course of time, the Government found it a useful auxiliary in the issuing of proclamations and in the publishing of official communiques in times of national excitement. In those days people had implicit faith in the printed word, especially in the printed word of Governments. It has been left to our own more knowing, and consequently more sceptical age, to place the mark of interrogation on what is issued from official headquarters. I read only the other day of an interesting news-sheet which has been preserved for many years in Calgary. It was called the 'Mercury,' and, according to a notice at the head of the page, it was 'published by the authority of Her Highness for the prevention of false reports.' It was dated July 20, 1588. 'Her Highness' was no less a person than Queen Elizabeth, and the news contained was a full and detailed account of the great sea-battle against the Armada of Spain. Even this, however, was not a newspaper in the strict sense of the term. It was rather in the nature of an extraordinary bulletin.

Newspapers in France.

"Across the English Channel, the French had marched further on the road to the evolution of the newspaper. All people are fond of hearing the news of the world, but in the French this characteristic has always been very strongly marked. Even in the earliest times, as far back as the days of Julius Caesar, this trait was noticeable, for he recounts in his 'Gallic Wars' that the Gauls, on seeing a stranger, would run after him to hear his tidings of the outside world. It was this same desire which gave the troubadours of the Middle Ages their popularity in France. These wandering minstrels were loved for their music and songs, but their greatest attraction lay in the stories they could tell of manners, customs, battles, and sieges in other parts of France and neighboring countries. It was the desire to fulfil the longings of his countrymen for reliable information regarding current events that induced a physician, Renaudot, to establish the world's first newspaper, that is, the first sheet to be printed and issued at regular intervals. Renaudot was a court physician but was one of those men who shine in many spheres. He was interested in literature as well as in medicine and he was a man who took a vast interest in the welfare of his less fortunate countrymen, doing all he could to alleviate the miseries of the poor. The idea of starting a regular paper came to him through his reading of numerous letters received from his many friends living in foreign countries. He used to make a practice of reading these letters to his patients. The pleasure manifested by the sick ones prompted the thought that those who were well might appreciate similar letters appearing at regular intervals. His first venture, however, was more in the nature of an advertising sheet. He

Ford In Own Hospital Following Car Accident

DETROIT, March 30 (Canadian Press).—Henry Ford is in the Henry Ford Hospital for treatment for injuries received in an automobile accident last Sunday and has undergone a minor operation, it became known to-day.

Prices Under Public Ownership Have Increased to Great Extent In Spite of Losses, Says R. R. Hall

The Toronto press in particular may be able to deceive themselves and vast numbers of their readers by puffing and praising the wonderful benefits of public ownership of electric power and of the exclusive control of water powers under the Hydro-Electric Power Commission. The records of the Hydro-Commission do not justify their puffing and praising.

Take the Central Ontario power system, and the Hydro Commission management of it. It found the Peterborough street railway making a profit under private ownership and now, after ten years under its public ownership, the street railway is showing a loss of over $50,000 a year.

THE PETERBOROUGH GAS PLANT

It found the Peterborough gas works a first-class paying investment under private ownership, with cheap cost to the consumer and now under its public ownership, this gas plant is showing a small profit with the price of gas to the consumers more than doubled and the use of gas becoming less and less. The loss of customers and the proportionate increase in overhead on a lessened output or turnover can only have one ending, and that is greater and greater annual losses and increasing prices to consumers until they utterly abandon the use of gas altogether.

THE CAMPBELLFORD PULP MILL

The Hydro Commission undertook to manage the Campbellford pulp works under public ownership and have made a miserable failure of the whole works from Brunton limits to Campbellford. One illustration is enough. It made a loss of $78,708 in 1925. That is a fair sample of public ownership and of its annual losses. But let not the advocates of private ownership rejoice. The blessings of rain and sunshine fall on the just and the unjust, and so does the blighting curses of public ownership fall on all alike. The people of Central Ontario are dearly paying for these Hydro blunderings through the thirteenth annual power bills. These blunderings are expensive to the taxpayers of this city. A few years ago, the Hydro Commission dipped into our Local Utilities Commission treasury to the elbows and took out $34,000 at one fell sweep, and these babies robbed of their candies did not even tell it their city fathers.

ELECTRIC POWER PRICES INCREASED

The Hydro Commission management of the sale of electric power is nearly on a par with its management of street railways, gas plants and pulp works. Under its management the wholesale cost of power in ten years has increased in Peterborough 60 per cent, in Brantford it has increased 28 per cent, in Hamilton, 60 per cent, in Niagara Falls—the blessed home of power—it has increased 65 per cent, and in Toronto where "the heathen rage and imagine vain things" of public ownership and fall down and worship the Hydro god, the wholesale cost of power in ten years has actually increased 60 per cent. The annual expenditure of ten million dollars a year by the Hydro Commission for twenty-five years will induce many to puff and toot and praise, while the common people grunt and sweat and pay.

Make no mistake about it. This Province is in the grip of a huge and enormous monopoly, that tolerate no opposition, that will not even allow a private company to transmit power across the street to its own plant; not even a mining company in the remotest wilds of this Province can transmit electric power along or across the highway of the Hydro king without its "majesty's" consent being first had and obtained. But still it has its tooters and puffers and praisers, and amongst its greatest, the Toronto press excels them all.

LARGE INVESTORS NOT DECEIVED

The people of this province may be deceived by its press but the large investors are not deceived by their headlines—"The people,' 'the people' are about to be robbed by private investors and capitalists." They are simply letting this province alone. They are simply investing their hundreds of millions in the development of industries in the Province of Quebec, and letting this province alone. "Let him alone" is one of the worst curses that can fall on the worshippers of Hydro.

How can this curse be removed? That is a problem that truth can only solve. "The people" still have sovereign power. Let us in Peterborough assert our right and cut loose from this bungling and oppressive monopoly. To do that requires earnestness and intelligence and united action. It is a difficult task. The late Lord Avebury, the great English banker, truthfully said: "Monopolies are bad, but especially government and municipal monopolies, because they are most difficult to either regulate, control, or abolish."

BUSINESS MEN OF CITY GATHER AT THIRTY-EIGHTH ANNUAL BANQUET OF THE CHAMBER OF COMMERCE

Meeting Demonstrated Organization Outstanding in Appeal to Commercial Men.

REPORTS READ

S. R. Parsons Gives Interesting Address Tracing Development of Canada.

The thirty-eighth annual meeting and banquet of the Peterborough Chamber of Commerce, held in the Empress Hotel last night, demonstrated that organization is outstanding in its appeal to business men both in the city and the county. The good-fellowship that prevailed among those present was a treat to witness, the gathering resolving into one of the most enthusiastic affairs ever held in this city.

S. R. Parsons, chairman of the British American Oil Company, and a past president of the Canadian Manufacturers' Association, the main speaker of the evening, delivered an address that was intensely Canadian in its nature, the speaker tracing the development of Canada in detail from the time of Confederation until the present day. He concluded with a stirring appeal, directed especially toward the younger men present, for a greater spirit of Canadianism; a spirit that would develop a greater unity among the different provinces of the Dominion. His address was a masterpiece, the speaker quoting statistic after statistic in proof of his ardent declaration that "Canada is the greatest country under the sun."

A splendid musical programme was rendered by E. Bartley, who sung two solos; Joseph Minicola, who played two cornet solos; also an orchestra under the direction of Fred Chenhall, which played during the dinner hour. That the music was appreciated was evident from the hearty applause that greeted the artists at the conclusion of their numbers.

A. J. Reynolds, treasurer of the Chamber, presented the financial statement in his inimitable manner, the report showing that the organization had met all its liabilities and had the modest sum of one dollar in the treasury.

Arthur J. O'Connor, special representative of the Canadian National Railways and the Cobourg-Rochester steamship route, displayed a reel of motion pictures depicting views of Cobourg, Rochester, and life on the two ferries operating between these places.

G. A. Gillespie, president of the Chamber, extended an official welcome to the guests and the members of the City and County Councils, and also extended the greeting of the directorate to the three new members, Charles Lacheur, Alpine MacNab, and Gordon S. Matthews. Introducing Mr. Parsons, he paid tribute to the eminent position which he held in the business world of Canada, stating that he was a Canadian of outstanding ability as he was the representative of the employers of Canada to the first international Labor conference of the League of Nations at Washington in 1919, and again at Geneva in 1924.

S. R. Parsons.

Assuring his listeners that he appreciated the honor of being asked to address the Peterborough Chamber of Commerce, Mr. Parsons declared: "I am not a public speaker; I am a business man like most of you, and on occasions I am asked to speak, hence my presence here." "I was very much pleased," he continued, "to hear the splendid reports of this Chamber of Commerce. It is well to remember that they convey only a very small portion of the work that has been accomplished."

Referring to the title of his subject, "Canada and Canadians," he said, "I have a great subject, so great that I could not say all about it." Canada is a great country as you all know. It is one-quarter larger than the neighboring republic, being exceeded in size by Russia and China, and is very nearly as large as the whole of Europe. Especially at this particular time, he said, I would like to pay tribute to the men who united this country when they brought about Confederation in 1867, and by a strange coincidence, this is the anniversary of the very day when the bill for Confederation first passed through the British House of Commons. In 1876 the Intercolonial railway was completed, and in 1886 the first passenger train crossed this continent.

Traces Growth.

Tracing the growth of Canada from the time of the first Canadian settlement at Fort Royal in 1604, the speaker uncovered a mass of detail that had, he said, 'even opened my eyes as to the progress that has

CAMPBELLFORD BUSINESS MEN 'SUGAR OFF' FAR FROM MAPLES

Bring Sap From Bush for Saturday Night Party.

A SCORE PRESENT

Induction of New Rector to Take Place After Easter.

(By An Examiner Reporter)

CAMPBELLFORD, March 30.—Rev. Clark Wallace, recently appointed rector of Christ Church, left today for Toronto and while there will make arrangements for his induction shortly after Easter Sunday, April 17. This will be one of the most important events in a long time in the affairs of Christ Church. Rev. Archdeacon Davidson will be present and also Rev. O'Conor-Fenton of Norwood, Rural Dean, with other clergy of the district. It is unlikely that the Bishop of Toronto will attend. His first available date is May 1st when he will come to Campbellford for the Confirmation ceremony.

Oddfellows Night.

Campbellford Lodge No. 248 I.O.O.F. enjoyed a visit last night from Otonabee lodge officers and members of Peterboro about forty of whom motored down for the occasion.

The first degree was exemplified by the team of Otonabee lodge, followed by a banquet in the Parish hall, Rear street, at which Joseph Poulton, N.G., presided. Oddfellows were present from Madoc, Stirling, Frankford, Havelock and other lodges.

They Sugared Off.

Campbellford has its "sugar papas", not exactly (perhaps) of the class this phrase denotes when employed by too wise flappers and the whole sisterhood of "gold diggers." Probably not, but the "sugar papas" who staged the innocent party in Percy Denyes' shop Saturday night deserve a passing note if for nothing more than their ingenuity. For if they could not go to the woods to boil maple sap into syrup and sugar they could bring the woods to them, at least they brought the sap and boiled it through all its processes to the final sugaring off. And they even had the snow into which they dropped some of the syrupy nectar to produce that delicious confection, which is ordinarily known only to those who have boiled maple syrup in the March woods. Among those present with Mr. Denyes were Dr. Watson, Dr. Haig, J. A. Stewart, J. R. Battisby, Reeve Bygott, L. V. Glover, Walter Wiggins and quite a number of others who, after all, like the great mass of men are only grown up boys (even when they become "sugar papas") to whom maple sap and sugar holds out the same potent appeal as in that first boyhood of wistful memory. Anyway it was a very pleasant party and certainly an unique one.

The many friends of William Clark of Meyersburg one of the old residents of Seymour township, will regret to learn that he is seriously ill with pneumonia.

Meet City Prices.

One of the policies Edward Hubble has adopted in the furniture business he recently opened on Front street is to endeavour to convince purchasers they can buy as cheaply at home as from Toronto mail order houses. To that end he has their catalogues, and with standard beds, for example, points to the prices charged by the mail order houses and then turns up the tags on the same goods in his stock. And the local prices are considerably less than those in the Toronto catalogues.

An Announcement Soon.

Lyrics Of Life

(By Douglas Malloch.)

WITHIN FOUR WALLS

We talk about the world as though
It were a thousand leagues or so,
Far over hills, far over seas.
Well, there are worlds, such worlds as these,
For men to travel, maids to fare,
And yet the world is never there.
Aye, oftentimes the wide world calls,
And yet the world's within four walls.

We talk of wealth, as though the gold
That groaning treasuries may hold
Were wealth; and yet the rich tonight
Find not their ducats their delight.
But long for one place, only one,
When westward slips the weary sun;
For, when the dusk of twilight falls,
They find their wealth within four walls.

We talk of happiness, we try
This thing called happiness to buy
In many markets. 'Tis not bought
Is seldom found when hardest sought.
It must be built of smiles and tears
And love and kindness through the years.
However loudly pleasure calls,
Joy will be found within four walls.

OLD MASTERS

The little toy dog is covered with dust,
But sturdy and stanch he stands;
And the little boy soldier is red with rust,
And his musket moulds in his hands.
Time was when the little toy dog was new,
And the soldier was passing fair;
And that was the time when our Little Boy Blue
Kissed them and put them there.

"Now, don't you go till I come," he said,
"And don't you make any noise!"
So, toddling off to his trundle-bed,
He dreamt of the pretty toys;
And, as he was dreaming, an angel song
Awakened our Little Boy Blue—
Oh! the years are many, the years are long,
But the little toy friends are true!

Ay, faithful to Little Boy Blue they stand,
Each in the same old place,
Awaiting the touch of a little hand,
The smile of a little face;
And they wonder, as waiting the long years through,
In the dust of that little chair,
What has become of our Little Boy Blue,
Since he kissed them and put them there.

LEADERS ARGUE ABOUT METHODS OF PROCEDURE

Sinclair Proteats Because Public Accounts Committee Wasn't Called.

CALLED FOR TO-DAY.

Premier Invites Full Investigation By Opposition of His Administration.

TORONTO, March 30 (Canadian Press).—Strong protest against the methods of procedure in the Ontario Legislature was voiced by the leaders of the Opposition yesterday afternoon when W. E. N. Sinclair, Liberal leader, raised the question of calling the public accounts committee and complained that although he had placed a resolution for this purpose on the order paper almost one month ago, no effort had been made by Premier Howard Ferguson to accede to his request. The question developed into a warm interchange between the Opposition leaders and the Premier, in which Mr. Sinclair charged that the failure of Hon. Mr. Ferguson to convene the committee had given the impression to the public that the Opposition in the House was "derelict." Mr. Raney asserted that "the Opposition has no right in this House," while the Premier accused both leaders of "grand-stand play made for publicity purposes." He claimed that there was nothing for the Opposition to investigate and invited the fullest enquiry into the administration of his government.

The result of the matter was that Premier Ferguson suddenly decided to call the public accounts committee for this morning at 11 o'clock and declared that he would delay prorogation of the House which is expected this week, as long as there was public business to transact.

Denies "Saw-Off."

Mr. Sinclair said that according to newspaper reports there had been a "saw-off between himself and the Premier, and there would not be any meeting of the committee this season. He wished to contradict this view going to the public as the responsibility for the committee not having convened rested entirely with the Premier. It was the first session since he entered the House that the public accounts committee had not been called and he instanced several occasions when it had sat while the debate on the Budget was in progress.

Premier Ferguson stated that the Government prepared the public accounts which were intended as an accurate record of the year's business, and the Government was thoroughly satisfied with them. If there was anything to which any member of the House took objection it was his right to move for a meeting of the committee; but, he claimed; this had not been done by Mr. Silclair. In addition to placing the resolution on the order paper, the duty devolved upon the Liberal leader to move on private members' day for organization of the committee. This had not been done, and he assumed that the Opposition did not desire to investigate any matter of record.

Grand-Stand Play

The responsibility for the committee not having been called really rested with Mr. Sinclair, said the Premier, and he regarded the action of the Liberal leader as "an attempt in the last days of the session to stage a grand-stand play which will be thoroughly understood by the people." If Mr. Sinclair had heard any rumors of impropriety and if he had any basis for charges of wrong-doing, then he had neglected his duty in not moving in the House for organization of the committee.

The Progressive leader ironically remarked that "Mr. Sinclair has proceeded on the assumption that members of the Opposition in this House have rights." He could not permit the Premier to state that he

ARE OPTIMISTIC.

TORONTO, March 30.—"I do not want to make any further comment at the present time, but, of course, we are hopeful that the bill will not survive the House," was Premier Ferguson's sole comment yesterday in connection with the action of the House of Commons on Monday in giving second reading to the Georgian Bay Canal Bill."

It is evident, however, that the Ontario Government will immediately take the issue to the Privy Council should the Dominion Government give the bill its third reading.

Ontario Government officials are optimistic that the bill will not carry in the House, and for the time being content themselves with awaiting further developments.

The Premier may make a statement in connection with the matter in the House this afternoon when the attitude of the Provincial Hydro Commission regarding leases on the Ottawa River may be unfolded.

Cave Man Vogue Dying Co-eds For Home Type

LOS ANGELES, March 30.—"Cave Men" ran far behind "Home Lovers' in a straw vote on preferred husbands by 2,000 co-eds of the University of Southern California.

Sixty per cent chose the home lover type. The "professor-intellectual" type got 25 per cent. The "cave man" was tied with the club man, each receiving only 3 per cent of the votes.

A majority of the girls agreed that money was desirable, but not necessary to happiness.

TYPHOID CASES NEAR 1500 MARK

Doctors Working Overtime and Free Clinics Thronged Through Day

CITY ALARMED.

MONTREAL, March 30. Canadian Press. — The typhoid victims in Montreal were rapidly approaching the 1500 mark yesterday evening, when at five o'clock it was reported that the number treated since the malady became epidmic had reached 1487. The public has become seriously alarmed over the spread of the fever and is insistent that the whole situation be run down to its cause. Already the city doctors are working to all hours in inoculations and the free clinics established are thronged from the daily opening to the close. The advent of the mild weather seems to have given the malady, which last week, was confidently reported under control, a new lease of life, and the list of victims continued to mount steadily and without noticeable abatement.

Urge Action.

The local newspapers are loud in urging the city government to more action in the matter of controlling the epidemic, and the present and future material loss to the city is being widely employed as an argument why greater activity should be exercised. Says the French language newspaper "La Patrie" yesterday afternoon in a feature editorial:

"As usual the stranger exaggerates a situation that is, however, already grave. The newspapers of other cities are filled with our epidemic and with comment more or less benevolent. Naturally those other cities have an interest in drawing towards themselves the tourist who would have come to Montreal."

La Patrie calls upon the hotelmen, business men, manufacturers, restauranteurs, and "all those who draw interesting profits from the visitor" to be prepared for hard times.

Hits Consumers.

The embargo on the export of milk and cream to the United States has hit the local dairymen and the farmers badly. The consumer views the situation with more equanimity, however, and points to the fact that in recent weeks prices of dairy products locally have been unusually high due to scarcity on the Montreal market. This contraction in supplies was attributable to the large exports of dairy products to the United States and the consumers feel that with this embargo the local market will now receive attention with a corresponding reduction in prices.

The malady is not of a severe form and the number of deaths has been kept down to a minimum.

PLAY REPEATED.

St. James' Mission Circle Gives Entertainment at St. Andrew's.

The play entitled "A Kentucky Belle," was repeated by the X L Mission Circle of St. James' United church in the Sunday school of St. Andrew's United church on Monday evening, with a good attendance. The bright little play was greeted with enthusiasm, which was also accorded the numbers between acts, including paion solos by Mrs. Percy Daillin, A.T.C.M., readings by Miss Jean Hamilton, vocal solos by Mrs. E. Kitney and Miss May Ritchie, a vocal duet by Miss Mary Wood and Mr. Edwin Rowe, and numbers by the Sunday school orchestra of St. Andrew's church.

PROBE DISCUSS LIQUOR EXPORT TO THE STATES

Gooderham & Worts, Ltd., First Company To Come Under Examination.

SHIP ORDERS.

Volstead Act Does Not Prevent Company From Shipping To States.

TORONTO, March 30 (Canadian Press).—The searchlight was turned on the movement of liquor from Toronto to the United States before the Customs probe yesterday. Officers of Gooderham & Worts, Ltd., of Toronto, the first Ontario distillery to be examined since the commission returned from Western Canada, were called upon to explain the methods adopted for carrying on the tremendous business in liquor which has developed between this company and customers in the United States. How orders are taken and payment made, and the procedure whereby the liquor is transmitted to the point where it leaves the shores of Canada was revealed. The examination of this distillery occupied the major portion of yesterday's sitting, and will continue today.

Fill Mail Orders

According to evidence given yesterday, the business of moving liquor across Lake Ontario to points in the State of New York continued all through the past winter. Orders flow in to the distillery company over the telephone, by mail, by telegram, and the company fills them. If it knows the man at the other end and has done business with him, it may send along the goods without first receiving payment. It it does not, it gets the cash before the goods are shipped. Sometimes orders are filed personally by individuals calling at the distillery, but the great majority come in other ways.

G. & W. Investigation

R. L. Calder, K.C., commission counsel, conducted the investigation into Gooderham and Worts yesterday. From H. Hatch, President and General Manager of the company, he elicited the opinion that the Volstead Act did not prevent the company from shipping to the United States. It had force only to prevent the person in the United States from pur-

TELLS HOUSE OF PROCEDURE AT CONFERENCE

Canada is Not Tied to Resolutions, Premier Asserts.

USUAL SITTINGS

Member Enquires Whether Any Action Taken to Lift Milk Embargo.

OTTAWA, March 30. — At the opening of the House yesterday afternoon, Premier King moved that on and after Wednesday (to-day) the House sits as usual on Wednesdays instead of adjourning at six o'clock. The motion was carried "on division." Premier King stated that he would probably move to-day that for the rest of the session Monday should be taken as a government day.

A motion by Kellner of Athabasca seconded by Kennedy of Peace River that the quorum of the privileges and elections committee be reduced from 15 to 9 created some discussion.

The mover stated that the committee, which was an important one, had not been able to secure a sitting during the session.

"Who, then," asked Hon. Ernest Lapointe, "asked for the reduction in the quorum?"

"The chairman," replied Mr. Kennedy.

Motherwell Resolution Carries.

Hon. Mr. Guthrie and Premier King could see no reason why the motion should not carry. In the opinion of Mr. Speaker Lemieux, the committee should have a chance to meet. The motion was carried by "unanimous consent."

Hon. W. R. Motherwell, minister of agriculture, moved the following resolution to be considered in committee of the whole today:

"That it is expedient to bring in a measure to regulate the sale and inspection of poisons intended as means for preventing, destroying, repelling, or mitigating fungi, weeds, insects, rodents, or other plant or animal pests collectively or individually affecting agriculture, and to provide for registration, the payment of fees thereon, and penalties for infractions of the act."

The motion was carried.

Howard of Sherbrooke enquired whether the government was taking any action through the Dominion minister, Hon. Vincent Massey, toward having the U.S. embargo on Canadian cream and milk removed. He claimed that all milk and cream from his county went direct to Boston and U.S. port and none to Montreal.

The Minister of Agriculture replied that the reason given for the embargo was that there was an outbreak of typhoid in Montreal, supposedly due to infected milk. Everything was being done to locate the source of contagion and representation had been made to the United States authorities with respect to the embargo.

Dr. Kaiser, M. P., for South Ontario, inquired whether the government was taking any steps to cope with the typhoid outbreak in Montreal. There were 1375 cases he said, and under the constitution the question was one for the federal authorities to deal with.

Keeping in Touch.

Hon. Dr. King stated that the health authorities were keeping in touch with the provincial and municipal authorities with respect to the epidemic.

Mr. Speaker Lemieux reassured the members as to the conditions in Ottawa. "I may say," he declared, "that this morning we have changed the Ottawa river water for tallyho water."

On motion to go into supply Premier King undertook to make a statement on the resolutions of the Imperial conference. The Premier outlined the negotiations leading up to the conference, declaring that by reason of the elections here little time had been available for consideration of the matters to be discussed when he and Mr. Lapointe left They had had no opportunity for considering the agenda. The government had however determined that Canada should be represented in spite of any inconvenience which might have to be encountered.

The conference was one of prime ministers of the empire discussing matters of mutual interest, but in no case was it a cabinet council. Both were present to represent Canada but had no authority to bind parliament in advance. That was made plain. "In no particular," the premier, "has this parliament been bound in any degree by the resolutions passed."

Full Discussion made.

Mr. King outlined the methods of discussion in the conference at No. 10 Downing street, and of the procedure followed. After introductory addresses the question of interimperial trade was dealt with. Foreign relations or rather interthen taken up. The British foreign

Jesus, going to Jerusalem, called his disciples aside and told them of his impending betrayal, suffering and death. (Matthew XX : 17-19)

The mother of James and John came to Jesus asking special places of honor for her sons in Christ's Kingdom. (Matthew XX : 20-21)

Boyish Bob Is Now Ruled Out Feminine Styles Paris Hair Dressers Decrees the New "Joan of Arc"

PARIS, March 30—The boyish bob and other exaggerated styles of close-cropped hair are officially declasse from tonight if the pronouncement of the International Hairdressing Exhibition, held this evening in Paris, is to be accepted as authoritative.

In all, 120 pretty mannequins paraded before the leading hairdressers of Europe, displaying the new decrees of the specialists in milady's "crowning glory."

The latest thing is the "demiwig" for evening wear. It is a light, attractive affair, which adjusts itself gracefully to short hair and, in the opinion of its creators, permits women to wear the new femnine dinner coat without necessarily being confounded with boys of 18.

The new style of short hair will be known as "Joan of Arc" and "Laninon." It will be much longer than the boyish cut and is described as practical, elegant and rational.

Experts say that there is no sign of a return of long hair despite the latet edict considerably lengthening feminine locks.

Matinee Ladies

"MATINEE LADIES," with May McAvoy, is a Warner Bros. picturization of this novel.

CHAPTER I

"It isn't a fit way for a decent man to make a living!"

Bob Ward, as sincere as stubborn, and as humble as handsome, made no conscious or deliberate effort to achieve a dramatic effect. But he was so vitally young and lusty, so alive and good-natured and real, that to his two college chums it seemed incongruous to hear from his lips anything that smacked of moralising. Their howls of derision rent the unacademic air of a University Heights boarding house.

Unaffected, undeterred, Bob spoke on quietly;

"I mean it fellows! I really don't think it's a fit, or fair, or honorable thing for a chap to make a living by acting as a clandestine escort for cheating wives!"

Once again the shabby room resounded to the unrestrained expression of the animal spirits of Fred Towers and Arch Sellen. Arch pressed his floating ribs in genuine distress.

"Oh, Bob, you old gluepot, please cut it out!" he begged, "Or you'll have to buy me a new set of buttons for this vest!"

"Yes, Bob," gasped Freddy, suffering even more acutely, "honest, if you uncork another one of those platitudes, and keep that Model Young Man look on your mug an instant longer, I'll just up and bust, that's all!"

Bob grinned good-humoredly. "Well, I'm glad you crackbrains find me amusing—"

"Amusing? Onions! We're laughing at you, son, the same way we'd laugh at undertaker ads. It ain't what you say, but how you say it, and how you look!"

"Be that as it may," rejoined Bob, pleasantly, but firmly and not at all in a bantering mood, "but I don't want my sheepskin, my engineering degree, to be tainted by the knowledge that I earned it through helping married women to get vicarious thrills!"

"Now I'm sure you're making a mistake to study engineering," taunted Arch. "You're cut out for an actor. A tank town trouper, whose virtuous ankles never trip on temptation—on the stage. Whose chaste eyes see only the gold behind the digger—on the stage. Whose—"

"Aw, lay off, before I drop you out the window!" Bob uncoiled his six-foot-two frame of football bone and muscle—two hundred and ten pounds, in the aggregate—from a decrepit armchair and clutched for his tormentors.

Fred and Arch, who knew the potency of those big hands, and the fair ability of their husky possessor to make good his threat on them, one at a time or together, dodged to safety, and resorted to argument.

"You big saphead, you're in hock up to your ears, and behind in your tuition payments. How in Hannah can you afford to turn down this job?" stormed Fred, earnest now.

"This job," put in Arch, "that we were big-hearted enough to get for an ungrateful bull cow like you!"

"Yea, a foolish move that'll probably cost us our jobs—when you flop those brick scows of yours on the floor of the Inn. Madame Leonine will think we've brought her a baby boxcar instead of a dancing entertainer!"

"But can't you lounge lizards get it into your sponge cake heads that I'm telling you I don't want to be a dancing entertainer?"

"Why not, noble knight," mocked Arch. "Some of our very best students are such. Like me and Freddy, for instance—"

"Seriously, Bob," broke in Freddy, "there's nothing wrong in it. Really. I wouldn't want to do it any more than you, if there was. You know, I come from one of those old-fashioned small town families myself. You needn't worry about these ladies who come to the Inn being straying wives. Most of 'em are so old and ugly that their husbands would be glad to give you an income for life if you'd take 'em and keep 'em. Honest, all you've got to do is wrestle these withered dames around for the afternoon—and draw down your fifty bucks every week. And, believe me, it's worth fifty times fifty dollars to even stand close enough to some of those polite old female wrecks to dance with them!"

The boys came close to Bob now, to plead with him. He relaxed, fidgetted, stared at them with an expression that was at once grateful and thoughtful but obdurate.

"I'm sorry, fellows," he said slowly, "because Lord knows I need the work and the money. Fifty dollars a week looks big as a house to me. But I just can't see my way clear to fattening my stomach and wallet at the expense of my self-respect. No offense, fellows, of course," he added hastily, noting the shades of resentment on his chums' faces, "because you see, it's all in the way a fellow looks at things. You two birds philosophize about it, and don't think it's at all out of the way. Therefore, it isn't—for you. But I just can't bring myself to look at it in an offhand manner. Well, I'm registered at the University Employment Bureau, and as a member of the football squad things are made kind of easy for me. Little jobs thrown my way. You know. But those no more than cover my books and laundry and incidentals. Here I am, with graduation only a month off, not a dollar saved to pay for clothes or a railroad ticket to someplace where I can practise my mining engineering—and right now, five weeks behind in my board bill to Mrs. O'Sully. Gosh, fellows, you can see that I'm in a desperate fix, and that I wouldn't turn the job down unless I had pretty strong convictions about it! Honest, I'm sorry. I want a job—but not just that kind of a job!"

"Unless you pay up by this coming Saturday, out you go!"

"Hmm!" It was a new voice. A most unattractive voice. A human version of the Kilkenny sounds that float up from dark alleys and back fences of nights to break the slumber of the just. A belligerent, sarcastic voice. The voice, no less, of Mrs. Roberta Emmet O'Sully, the boys' landlady. Unbeknown to them, unnoticed in their absorption in the tale of Bob's financial woes, she had stealthily opened the door and stepped into the room in time to hear most of Bob's frank avowal of viewpoint and confession of abject poverty. Sympathy was not in the lexicon of Mrs. O'Sully's business and dunning methods. Only one thing about Bob's little speech stuck in her mind; "So it's turning down a job, you are. And you owin' me money these many weeks, and me lettin' you stay on in the softness of me heart because I believed you when you said you were tryin' to get work, but couldn't. And now I hear you turn down fifty dollars— Saints be!—a week, because you think you're too good for the work, or something. Though it's not too good you are to kyp a poor, hardworking lady of her lawful money—"

"Now, Mrs. Sully, please—" Bob was genuinely distressed.

But she hushed him with an imperious gesture. "It seems to me, young man, that any kind of work that will make it possible for you to pay your debts would be honorable enough work for the likes of you. I'm sure if it's good enough for these young gentlemen—"she beamed upon Arch and Freddy, who were paid up—"it's good enough for you."

Mrs. O'Sully's face grew coarse and hard as she turned her little eyes upon Bob again, and shook a finger under his nose. "Unless you pay up by this coming Saturday, out you go!"

She gave Bob no chance to parley or plead, but turned and stamped angrily out of the room. There was grim foreboding in the flounce of her broad hips.

Bob's face was tragic, hopeless.

PROHIBITION UNION SPEAKER IS HEARD

C. I. Bell Gives Address in Campbellford on Sunday.

CAMPBELLFORD, March 30.—A meeting under the auspices of the Ontario Prohibition Union was held on Sunday evening in the Regent Theatre, the speaker being C. J. Bell, field secretary of the union. The meeting opened with a few words of welcome by the chairman, G. A. Kingston, after which Rev. Mr. Elliott led in prayer. Mr. Bell said if he were speaking on a text, that text would be "Righteousness exalteth a nation, but sin is a reproach to any people," Proverbs 14, 34. The speaker said it was to one's own interest to consider the well-being of a nation, thus bringing national life to the highest degree of efficiency and that each one should apply himself to things that would devote and make for better citizenship. The subject of his address was a "challenge of the present," and Mr. Bell traced the progress of temperance since the time fifty years ago when all the temperance forces united, up until the O.T.A. Act of 1926.

Rev. Mr. Grier dismissed the meeting with the benediction.

Her illness of four months' duration was patiently borne, and to her last period of consciousness, her considerate nature held sway. Man Saws Off Tree Limb On Which He Is Sitting BELLEVILLE, March 29. — An unusual accident occurred to Arthur Meeks, 34 Parker street, who, when trimming a tree on Station street, absent-mindedly sawed off the branch on which he was sitting, and fell with it to the ground. He was taken to the Belleville general hospital, where it was found that his left leg was broken between the knee and the ankle. The fracture was reduced and the patient is resting nicely.

WEDNESDAY, MARCH 30, 1927.

. . . VOICE OF THE LOWLY AND OPPRESSED . . . ADVOCATE OF THE FRIENDLESS . . . RIGHTER OF PUBLIC AND PRIVATE WRONGS.

ENFORCING THE LAW.

The Department of Highways has issued a warning to truck owners that the regulations in regard to the loading of trucks at this season of the year are to be strictly enforced, and point is given to the notice by the fact that the Cobourg Magistrate on Saturday inflicted a fine of $25.00 upon an offender.

The department is entirely justified in its efforts to protect the Provincial roads from needless damage.

The road system in this Province has cost the people of Ontario a vast amount of money.

It would be utter folly then to allow a small percentage of the population to play havoc with the roads by driving heavy-laden trucks and heavy cars over them at a season when such practices inevitably mean a breaking down of many roads, necessitating repairs costing many thousands of dollars.

Those who have been disregarding the regulations should read the warning published by the department in the light of what happened in Cobourg Police Court the other day.

THE PREMIER'S PLAN.

Premier Ferguson's pet measure, providing for Township School Boards, has at last received a thorough airing in the Legislature, but is being held over until next year in the hope that the Premier will be able to convince opponents of the legislation that it would be in the general interest to put it into force.

Opposition to the proposal takes the form of statements that it does not offer any material improvement over the present system, and that on the whole, the latter is more satisfactory as well as more economical.

On the other hand, Mr. Ferguson claims for his plan that it would provide greater facilities for higher education, greater economy and a decrease in the maintenance cost of the schools and a saving in buildings and equipment, would eliminate the weak schools and ensure the location of schools where they would best serve the pupils.

That rural education under the present system is in a far from satisfactory condition cannot well be denied.

When it is realized that 200 schools in Ontario have fewer than five pupils, the education of each pupil in which costs $250 a year, as compared with an average cost for all rural schools of $87, it must be admitted that the methods we have been following are far from perfect.

The suggestion that the Premier's scheme might be tried out in two or three townships before being generally adopted is not without its merit.

THE EXAMINER'S REPORTERS.

The Examiner is happy in welcoming to Peterborough today its efficient corps of correspondents, the antennae by which this paper is able to reach out into all parts of the district and present for the benefit of its readers the news of the whole countryside.

The holding of a staff conference, the first in the history of The Examiner, brings the whole field and office personnel together, also for the first time, and the result has been an occasion full of interest to all members of The Examiner family, and likely to be followed by beneficial effects so far as The Examiner readers are concerned.

The latter perhaps will be surprised to know that to bring before them the daily diet of news they find in their paper several score of reporters throughout the district, in addition to the local staff, are engaged in the task of securing, checking, sifting and writing the information found in The Examiner's columns each night.

The public as a rule knows little or nothing about how a newspaper gets its news.

As to the duties of reporters there is the same lack of knowledge.

"If you think a newspaper reporter is a nuisance, he probably thinks the same of you." That statement was made the other evening by the owner of a large Canadian newspaper during the course of an address to a group of Montreal business men.

There are a great many people who have an idea that the newspaper reporter is a sort of moron, who thrives on sensationalism. They never think a newspaperman is simply interested in the gathering of facts concerning the events of the day. They never think that the newspaperman is always willing to go more than half way towards co-operating in putting over any big question that his paper deems of vital importance to the community. They never think that a friendly reporter can often help them considerably by publishing some little story about something or other in which the particular individual may be interested. They never think that the newspaper is as vitally concerned, and more so, in the prosperity of the community as anyone else. They forget to remember that the success of the paper, and therefore the reporter, who is the "front-line soldier" of the paper, depends on the success of the community.

These people, whenever they are asked a question by a reporter, always choose to adopt a "Holier than thou" attitude and sometimes try to be nasty. Sometimes the reporters resent it, but usually they can pierce the pharasaic exterior and they pass the insult off with a quiet laugh to themselves. In every city there are certain people whom newspapermen simply hate to be assigned to see. These people think the reporter is a nuisance. What the reporter thinks of them would, if put in print, put this paper in grave danger of falling under the ban.

The good reporter always wants a story. That is his work. But he also always wants the true facts and data. He is proud of his business and his paper. He never wants to write anything that is not absolutely correct. Fortunately most people appreciate that and they help the reporters. The others don't. They always claim they don't want to be mentioned by the papers. But, my, how those same proud folks do love to see their names in print!

THE PERFECT CENSORSHIP.

Signor Mussolini proposes to give Italy a censorship law which will guarantee "100 per cent. moral and political purity of the stage, motion pictures, paintings, books, newspapers, phonographs and advertisements." It is a beautiful ideal. Once the Puritans entertained it, and put into effect their rigid principles, but the license of the Restoration followed the suppression of the Cromwell era.

The difficulty of a dictator's position is that he must keep on dictating. Should he propose to sit back and take things a bit more easily the cry goes up that he is losing his grip, the iron hand is faltering at the wheel. Naturally an efficient dictator eventually runs short of evils which cry for remedy and institutions which demand abolition or reformation. Mussolini has revolutionized—for better or worse—Italy's whole system of government, her financial and economic life, the relations of capital and labor, the plan of municipal administration. Now he is seeking new worlds to conquer, and he enters the realm of the censorship of art, literature and the drama.

Mussolini proposes to wipe out "pornography and sedition." Just why they should be linked is not clear. Sedition, in Italy, largely consists in speaking of the Fascisti in an unkindly way. Pornography ought to be struck down wherever its ugly head is reared, but censorship will not stop there. It always goes to extremes, and because opinions vary so widely on what is indecent, or undesirable, peace-time censorship always is unpopular with a large section of the population.

It may be unfortunate, but it is true that as yet it has not been found possible to legislate people into strict moral standards, or the acceptance of common conventions. Other dictators have tried it before Mussolini, and their failures are written.—Ottawa Journal.

ENGINEERS AND LEVEL CROSSINGS.

The Dominion Legislative Board of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers is once more urging upon the different Provincial Governments of Canada the advisability of adopting legislation which will require every driver of a motor vehicle to come to a full stop before proceeding across a level railway crossing. The board has done so before, but no Provincial Government has yet seen fit to carry out the suggestion and relieve the engine-drivers of some of the great nervous strain that rests upon them.

No person suffers more from the stupid and foolhardy practice, common to many motorists, of trying to beat a train to a crossing, than the man in overalls at the throttle. Before the motor car appeared upon the highways, the task of driving a locomotive was dangerous and nerve-racking enough. But since its advent, its dangers and strain have doubled. Every man who has ever occupied a seat in the cab of a locomotive knows that. Consider the experience that is almost his daily lot. As he speeds towards a crossing he sees a motor car or truck approaching it from a different angle. In accordance with regulations, he sounds the proper warning signals. He does not know whether or not they will be heard and whether or not, having been heard, they will be respected. There are always a few moments of tension when a train and a motor vehicle speed towards the same crossing. The driver of the latter may be a sensible person and come to a stop whether he is able to clear the crossing or not; or he may be a fit inmate of a mental hospital and consider that he can beat the train to it. Sometimes he succeeds in doing so, but very often the reverse is the case and the hasty application of the emergency brakes comes too late to avert a collision with consequent loss of life and property.

This thing may happen not only once but several times in the course of the engineer's run. Is it any wonder that some of them have become nervous wrecks and have been obliged to retire from service because of it, and that others positively refuse to accept Sunday runs because of the presence of so many motor cars upon the highways on that day of the week?

Acceptance of the locomotive engineers' suggestion would do much to relieve them of the strain and the responsibility which form their unhappy lot. It would also make for greatly increased public safety. No rational motorist would be unreasonable enough to resent the loss of a few seconds of time consumed in coming to a stop before crossing a railway line, and those few seconds of time might mean the difference to him between loss of his life and its preservation.—Brockville Recorder and Times.

Opening prices were: Wheat, May 134 5-8; July, 129 3-8. Corn, May, 72⅛; July, 77 1-8. Oats, May, 44 3-8; July, 44 5-8.

BULLETINS ON CHINA

(By Canadian Press.)

PARIS—Orderly conditions prevail in Hankow, says a report from the French Consul General forwarded to the Foreign Office to-day by the minister in Peking.

WASHINGTON—The United States Mission at Fuchow is reported looted in a despatch reaching Shanghai, Admiral C. S. Williams, commander of the United States' Asiatic squadron, to-day advised the Navy Department.

LONDON.—A delayed Reuter despatch from Hankow, under date of March 26, says that Communism now is in full power there and that conditions for foreigners, especially Britishers, are intolerable. The few Englishmen remaining have found it necessary to take refuge near the water front so as to be in a position to leave quickly.

TOKYO.—The Japanese Government to-day denied that its forces in China were engaging in any military activities. It also denied any intention of sending troops to China and declared that diplomatic activities were confined principally to negotiating jointly with the other powers over the Nanking affair.

The Foreign Office has amended its earlier statement that no Japanese were killed in Nanking, saying that a sailor aboard a destroyer was killed by a stray bullet.

Notwithstanding rumors to the contrary, foreign military and naval experts in Tokyo are unanimous in the belief that Japan does not intend to interfere in China except there is extreme provocation.

The press and public generally are in favor of this stand.

ASSESSMENTS.

To the Editor of The Examiner:

Dear sir:

I would like to ask, through the medium of your paper, if any of your readers could give information on the following subject:

Does the Municipal Assessment Act, relating to income assessments, affect everyone in the same income class, or has an assessor, under the Act, the privilege of picking and choosing, whom he shall demand returns from?

INQUISITIVE.

REPLY: The assessor has the right to require any and every resident of Peterborough to make a sworn return to the city disclosing his or her income and if the amount of the income is assessible under the act such resident enjoying such an income is thereupon placed upon the assessment roll and becomes personally liable for the taxes placed thereon. There is no discriminating under the assessment act and no such thing as picking and choosing.

HAS PAST EXPERIENCE NO VALUE?

To the Editor of The Examiner:

Dear sir:

I have read with interest a number of articles which have appeared in the columns of your paper recently regarding the new market by-law.

Many will remember a number of years past when alderman, with only one horse vision, undertook to enact similar laws and public opinion protested against it and it became a dead law. Can we think of our present alderman in this day of progress and enlightment discussing and uncalled for question for hours and then give us legislation which seventy-five per cent of the ratepayers of this city and one hundred per cent of the residents of the adjoining rural districts are dissatisfied with it.

Should not experiences of the past, or even horse sense been a guiding star to them.

The crying need of this city is: Give us men to represent us as alder men, not children.

Yours respectfully,

PROGRESS.

A Thought For To-day

A WISH.

This I should like to be;
Big in my little way,
Malice and envy free,
Strong through the day;
Willing my task to do,
Patient and fair,
Unto my fellows true,
Humble in prayer.

Past purse and pride I'd go,
Striving to find
More ways than now I know
How to be kind;
Faithful to every trust
True to my light,
Honest and clean and just,
Keeping the right.

When the brief race is run
This be my praise:
Whether I've lost or won,
Manly my ways;
Though in life's mire and scum
Often I fall,
God grant my soul may come
Clean through it all.

YOU WILL RUST OUT QUICKER THAN WEAR OUT

Many business men consider that an employee has lost his usefulness after 50 years of age. This is often true where an employee has not had enough ambition to do any more than hold down a job.

However, if the will to succeed has been present, a man has hardly reached his maturity at 50 and, after this age, should be able to do his best work. If he has benefited by experience, his judgment should be more valuable and his opinion more reliable, in every way. It is true that, a half century ago, men wanted to retire at the age of 50, if they could afford to do so.

The length of life is rapidly increasing, and we have many men today, active in business, who are considerably over the three-score mark.

George Bernard Shaw has just been given the Nobel Prize for literature, at the age of 70. He writes daily and his Irish humor is just as keen now as at any time in his life.

Judge Gary is the active head of the United States Steel Corporation and, at the age of 80, is working harder than ever before in his life.

John D. Rockefeller is still active in business and plays golf, although over 87 years old.

Chauncey Depew, at 92, is the head of a large company and is actively on the Board of Directors of many companies. He works regular hours every day and, apparently, is as strong, mentally and physically, as he has been at any time since 50 years of age.

These are notable examples of men who have succeeded by hard work, which has not worn them out, while many others who have retired at an earlier age have literally rusted out because of inactivity.

The man who is willing to retire shows that he has given up his interest in accomplishment, and this is probably the deciding factor which determines his probable length of life. When a man relaxes mentally, he also relaxes physically, and thus starts rapidly on the toboggan into an early grave.

Men who have stopped working, at 50, do not need to be chloroformed, as Dr. Osler recommended, for if they are entirely useless, they will usually not live very long.

Mental strength will continue as long as we continue to use our mental forces, and the same thing is true on the physical plane.

A body that is kept active, by work or physical culture exercise, will retain physical strength and be in no danger of rusting out.

PRIVATE BRIDGE ACT THROWN OUT

Canadian House Won't Incorporate "Thousand Islands" Corporation.

BRIDGE PLANNED.

OTTAWA, March 30 (Canadian Press).—The Private Bills Committee of the House of Commons today threw out an act to incorporate the Thousand Islands International Bridge Corporation.

The committee action was taken after Major Graham Bell, Deputy Minister of Railways, had stated that when the Welland Canal is completed and the lower lake terminal for large boats is decided upon, it will be necessary to construct a railway bridge from the north to the south shores of the St. Lawrence. The bridge for which authority was sought in the bill before the committee might compete with the bridge connected with the Welland Canal, and the revenue to make two bridges successful would not be forthcoming for some years.

Mr. Bell stated that the committee of experts was engaged at the present time in investigating the best location for the terminal for lake boats. The railway bridge would be necessary if the terminal was to be a success and to prevent diversion of ocean boats to Ogdensburg or some other American port. Construction of the proposed bridge at the present time might set back the building of the railway bridge and entail a loss to the country of much of the investment in the Welland Canal. The spot chosen for construction of the traffic bridge was not suitable for the proposed railway bridge and the committee investigating a suitable place for the terminal would not report for two months.

A. C. Thompson appeared for the promoters of the bridge scheme. He said that the promoters were fully satisfied that the bridge would result in thousands of tourists visiting the adjacent Canadian territory; that American capital was prepared to furnish means for the undertaking; that the United States Congress passed the necessary legislation; and that construction would be started this summer.

Representatives of the United States financial houses prepared to finance the undertaking appeared before the committee to give assurance that the undertaking would be carried out, and engineers testified to the economical construction possible at the point suggested between the village of Rockport and the town of Gananoque on the Canadian side to Collin's Landing on the American side. The bridge could be constructed for two or two and a half million dollars.

Westerners Move Rejection

J. S. Woodsworth, M.P., Winnipeg, moved that in view of the statement by Mr. Bell, the committee should not consider the bill. The large expenditure in the Welland Canal might be jeopardized and the committee should await a report on the lake terminal. E. J. Garland, M.P., Bow River, Alberta, seconded the motion.

Mr. Thompson said that to hold the matter up would be to kill a project which would certainly be undertaken in favor of a bridge which might not be constructed for two or three years.

Mr. Bell objected. This was not so. The railway bridge would have to be constructed simultaneously with the completion of the Welland Canal. It was expected that the railways would build it, but if they did not, the Department of Railways and Canals would have to do it.

TOM MIX IN "LAST TRIAL"

Tom Mix, starring as Tom Dane in "The Last Trail," Fox Films version of Zane Grey's novel, makes Ben Hur look like an amateur horseman. The film comes to the Capitol Theatre for a three day engagement, beginning tomorrow.

Ben proved himself the best driver on the world's most famous track, the Coliseum of Rome, but Ben was in a racing chariot, on a regular race course, driving thoroughly trained racing horses with only one of the contending drivers determined to best him even at the cost of wrecking his chariot.

Mix, in the race which marks the concluding scenes in "The Last Trail," drives four mustangs to a plunging, swaying stage about hairpin turns of mountain roads and the driver of each of the other nine stages in the race is a desperado who has received instructions from the leader of the gang to prevent Tom from finishing alive. It's a race which no one but Mix could have driven and any one else would have been ditched at the first hairpin, according to those who saw the film taken.

However, Mix gives the crowd a Ben-Hur finish. The last of the desperado drivers has attempted to wreck Tom's outfit. Tom's coach is badly damaged and apparently he is out of the race, but he climbs from the seat, pulls the king bolt and drops the body of the stage. He climbs on the front axle and row margin.

The finish of the race does not end Tom's troubles. The desperadoes see that they are beaten. They try to loot the express company's safe and kidnap the owner's daughter. Tom mounts Tony, his famous horse, and overtakes the robbers. In a fighting finish he subdues them, rescues the girl and recovers the treasure.

Carmelita Geraghty has the leading feminine role and the others in the cast are Lee Shumway, Oliver Eckhardt, William Davidson, Frank S. Hagney, Robert Brower, Frank Beal and Jerry Madden.

AT THE REGENT.

DID DON JUAN TENORIO EVER EXIST?

Barrymore Film Revives Controversy

The coming of John Barrymore in the Warner production of "Don Juan" to the Regent Theatre this week, has revived an old literary controversy as to whether such a character as Don Juan ever really existed. True there are records in Seville of a number of persons who were actually named Don Juan Tenorio, but the weight of authority is that the Spanish monk of the 16th century who wrote the original play upon which most of the Don Juan legends are founded, drew upon his imagination in creating the swaggering, God defying, fighting lovemaker whom he called "The Deceiver of Seville."

The claim of those who believe in an actual Don Juan is weakened somewhat by the fact that the word "tenorio," that the monk Gabriel Tellez, selected as Juan's surname, means in Spanish "lady-killer." And that is what all Don Juans of literature have been, "lady killers."

There have been two distinct sorts of Don Juans of fiction. The earlier ones were always unrepentant lovers who were consigned to eternal torture at the end of their wicked lives, and these were usually known as Don Juan Tenorio. Then sprang up a new Don Juan generally called Don Juan de Marana, who managed to repent of his sins before death.

"Don Juan" has been most familiarly known to lovers of literature through Lord Byron's unfinished poem of the youthful Spanish lover who conducted his amorous adventures all over the map of Europe. To music lovers there is only one Don Juan—the 'Don Giovanni" of Mozart's opera. The theatre in modern times has produced a long series of Don Juans—Rostand's, Bernard Shaw's and Arnold Bennett's being the most prominent. These Don Juans have tended to rob the great lover of much of his magic glamour, but the old magic returns in the screen version, by Bess Meredyth. Here is the Don Juan of romance, as played by Barrymore, a convincing portrayal of the greatest lover of all ages.

The picture was directed by Alan Crosland.

NEWS IS WHAT, ETC.

what you read with interest is passed without a second glance by hundreds."

Certain broad rules were given to guide correspondents in the writing of small news items. There is a difference, it was pointed out, between the visit to the community of the itinerant peddler and the visit of a man who endeavors to sell the community a new town hall or a new fire equipment. The casual or regular visits of salesmen are not news, but even this may be made news when the salesman is selling an article or a service that interests the whole community. When a neighboring village council urged householders to install fire-fighting equipment in an effort to avoid the expense of a municipal fire department, agents flocked to the place and gave demonstrations on the village square. That was news for all of Canada, and very few papers failed to carry it in prominent positions.

Owing to the limitations of space, the news editor indicated, every sermon and address and lecture cannot be given in full, even if such a procedure would add to the usefulness or interest of the paper. Few people will read more than half a column of news about a lecture, unless they are particularly interested. But if the lecturer spends his time in boosting or knocking the municipality where he is speaking, then that is big news because it affects every man and woman who reads the paper.

"No hard and fast rule can be given for the measurement of news values," Mr. Heron said. "Reporting would be a very poor job indeed if the reporter had only to consult a table to find that a railway accident is worth three inches while an automobile accident is worth only an inch and a chamber of commerce lecture must get half-a-column. There is no such measuring stick in the newspaper game. Reporters are allowed wide discretion in gathering news, and if they do not speedily learn to judge news values then they have chosen the wrong vocation. Newspapermen largely make news. That is a relative statement, because a declaration of war, an earthquake, a revolution in China, are news, and nothing that any newspaperman can do can alter the fact. But, on the other hand, a good newspaperman can write an interesting news or feature story on any subject assigned to him. If I said to my friend, Bill Edgar, 'Go out and get a story on bread,' Bill would have the story on my desk by noon, because he is a good newspaperman. I don't know what line he would take, but he would get a story about bread. That is the joy in this game. Looking at an event the average man sees two and two and decides that the sum is four, but the good reporter searches until he finds the missing digit that makes the sum Relative Values.

"Writing is a craft, and news writers are in fact, if not in name, divided into apprentices, journeymen, and master-craftsmen. It is admitted that the news that 'Mrs. Henry Jones is the guest of her sister, Mrs. John Brown, at 0000 Blank Street,' is news, but no labored argument is needed to show that it is not important news in ordinary circumstances. Writing that class of news is work for apprentices. The standards of the craft are not set by that. Reporting the trial of a burglar may require somewhat greater skill, but at most it is but journeyman work. The standards of the craft are not set by that. The standards of any craft are set by the work of the master-craftsmen, and newspaper work is no exception to the rule.

"I/advance as my own definition of news, 'Such an account of such events as a first-rate newspaperman, acting as such, finds satisfaction in writing and publishing.' A first-rate newspaperman may write spitefully, but when he does he is not acting as a first-rate newspaperman. A first-rate newspaperman, acting as such, makes dispassionate, impartial judgments based on reason and experience, and on nothing else.

"The cub reporter always sighs for the opportunity to chronicle a murder or a sensational fire, but these are not the standards of the craft. A first-rate newspaperman may find satisfaction in reporting such an affair if it is one where he has she opportunity to use his brain and learning. No newspaperman of the highest standing ever found satisfaction in writing sensationalism. It does not present a true picture of the human comedy, and every man above the intellectural grade of a moron knows it.

"But an intelligent man may take justifiable pride in his story of an event which he deplores. If the leading minister in a district should be caught holding five aces in a draw-poker game, the event would be a deplorable one, but the story would afford one of the thrills of a lifetime to any competent news writer. It does not follow, however, that the writer would view with favor the prospect of a lifetime spent in surreptitiously exploring the sleeves of the clergy in the hope of discovering a concealed deck.

Trivialities.

"Some of the greatest newspaper stories ever turned out have been written around trivialities. But a lifetime devoted to the discussion of trivialities is a career for a jokesmith only. A newspaper devoted mainly to trivialities is at best a comic sheet and at worst the admiration and delight of half-wits. It affords no lasting satisfaction to intelligent men, whether newspapermen or not.

"A crime is not an event in which a rational man finds satisfaction. But crime stories unquestionably have a place in newspapers simply because in this imperfect world crime is part of the show. Now and then a crime is attended by circumstances of such a nature as to make its story worthy of the efforts of the best man in the shop. But in that case the crime must be an unusual one. Don't look forward to an ultimate goal of reporting murders and robberies and family disruptions. That is part of the news, but it is not the news, and it is not the best kind of news.

"If you have good intelligence, a high moral code, and writing ability you will find satisfaction in reporting anything that exercises your imagination, your grey matter and your reportorial skill, and that will be news. Self-esteem comes to persons of intelligence in different ways, but it does not arise from the accomplishment of any task that is easy. Playing upon the follies, weaknesses, and vice of men are the easiest ways for a shrewd man to make a living. Battling against them is the hardest and most difficult. But the Book of Martyrs is proof that it contributes to the erection of a self-esteem impregnable not only to the ordinary vicissitudes of existence but also to the last extremity. And if the writing of a report fulfills these requirements, then you are writing news."

How to Get News.

Continuing, the news editor outlined the sources of news in the different communities and explained the ways of gathering it promptly. The Examiner, he pointed out, has no politics and all religions. It has no more interest in Anglican than in Presbyterian, or in Roman Catholic than in United Church; it does not support Grit or Tory or any other political party. Reporters must forget their church and political affiliations when recording news for The Examiner, and tell every story on its merits, from the point of view of those responsible for the event. If a correspondent reports a service in an Anglican Church, she must report the services at the other churches in her community, not the same week, or the same month, perhaps, but on a fair and equal basis. If she is a Liberal, and reports the Liberal meetings, she must forget her politics and report the Conservative meeting just as fully. During the recent political campaigns The Examiner won commendation from both parties because of the impartial manner in which all meetings were reported.

Wide Discussion.

In the round-table conference which followed the news editor's address, many subjects of interest to the correspondents were discussed. A questionnaire on relative news values showed the correspondents themselves divided on what is most important news. A list of news divisions was given the correspondents and they were asked to mark them in the order of importance. The list was: Health articles, telegraph news, news from the correspondent's district, Peterborough district news, Peterborough city news, comic strips, women's news and articles, religious articles, personals, church reports, farm news, sport, financial and market news, pictures, serial. Two declared that telegraph news is most important; 17 claimed news of their own district as coming first; four said Peterborough district news is first in importance; one voted church news and one the serial while four professed to believe personals most important. For second place one chose health, 6 telegraph, 4 news of their own district, 1 Peterborough district, 4 Peterborough city, 2 the comic strips, 3 church news, 5 personals, 2 farm news, and 1 the serial.

Many new ideas in regard to newspaper work were brought forward and as an outcome of the open discussion it is believed The Examiner will advance another step in its effort to give all the news of the wide Peterborough district interestingly written.

Peterboro, Mar. 29, 1927.
Mr. and Mrs. F. A. Kidd,
and Miss Phyllis Kidd.

Dear Friends,—It was with deep regret that we learned of your intended departure from this community at an early date. Since coming amongst us you have all by your kindly and affectionate manner made many friends who are sorry to see you go.

As treasurer of this church for the past eight years, Mr. Kidd, you have filled your office with diligence, honor and credit, and your advice on the Finance board has been greatly valued.

As a member of the Ladies' Aid and Mission Circle, Mrs. Kidd, you have been a valued worker, adviser and leader in the various activities of the church work.

First as a scholar and latterly as a S. S. teacher, Miss Kidd, you will be missed not only by the S. S. staff but by your class as well.

We are glad that you will be able to be with us from time to time when you will receive a warm welcome.

We would ask you to accept these gifts, not for their value, but as a slight token of our love and esteem.

Signed on behalf of the Park street Baptist church—Jas. L. Harton, pastor, Harold N. Sellon, church clerk, Alfred Follis, chairman of Deacons' Board, G. Raymore Scott, of Finance Board, Mrs. Jas. Booth, Pres. of Ladies' Aid, Mrs. Geo. Whatley, Pres. of Mission Circle E. W. Young, S. S. superintendent.

Although taken by surprise, Mr. Kidd very feelingly replied. Mr. and Mrs. Kidd leave in a few days to reside in Millbrook, where he has purchased the general store of the late J. McBride.

A vote of thanks was moved to all those who took part in the programme and to the ladies for the splendid supper put on by Messrs. O. S. Matchett and J. Pilling.

The meeting was then closed by singing God Save the King and prayer by Rev. Mr. Harton.

World's Speed Records Shattered!

Monstrous Mystery Car, Lubricated With CASTROL, Attains Stupendous Speed

WORD has just been flashed to the world from Daytona Beach in Florida that all world's records for speed were shattered by Major H. O. D. Segrave, when he drove his monstrous racing car at the stupendous speed of 203 miles an hour! The great 1,000 horsepowered car hurtled down the Daytona Sands at a speed almost too fast for human eye to follow, the fastest speed ever attained on earth!

Perfect lubrication made this new record possible, and we are proud of the fact that a standard grade of Wakefield CASTROL Motor Oil was used. Major Segrave used CASTROL because his life and the success of his venture depended so utterly on faultless lubrication. His faith was justified—it was the film of CASTROL Motor Oil separating the moving parts of the giant aero engines which prevented a seizure and the consequent disaster.

The Same Oil Is Available for Your Car

CASTROL is used by Major Segrave, Captain Campbell and the other famous drivers. It is also overwhelmingly popular in all quarters of the world for pleasure and commercial cars. All the marvellous lubricating qualities which appealed to Segrave are present in full degree in the grade of CASTROL best suited to your own car. Maximum efficiency and reliability are no less important in everyday motoring than in racing.

CASTROL is a combination of castor oil and a specially fine grade of mineral oil. One oil lubricates the other. The result is an undefeatable film of protection, a combination which stands up and gives perfect service long after other oils have lost their body and lubricating qualities.

There's 2,000 Miles to the Filling

CASTROL has superlative stamina; an endurance beyond all others. It gives 2,000 miles to the filling instead of the usual 500! The saving in a year is well worth considering.

CASTROL gives you the finest motor lubrication known. It provides smooth running, lengthens your car's life, lessens carbon, reduces repairs. If your garage does not stock CASTROL, write—been made, and I thought I knew a great deal about this country."

In the Maritime Provinces we find people largely composed of Scotch, English, French Canadians and Germans, living in beautiful valleys and fertile lands. Next came the Province of Quebec with its history, literature and art, "whose beautiful language I hope will be taught in every public school in the Province. The value of the French language to an exporting country is inestimable." The Province of Ontario, the so-called banner province of the Dominion, with its agriculture, prosperous cities and towns, the home of great industrial activity, was also famed far and wide for its marvellous scenery. The Prairie Provinces he designated as "the great loam lands transformed by the hand of man and the help of God into the greatest producing land in the world, and which in time, I hope, will be populated with our own kith and kin from the Old Land." The 600 million dollar grain crop of 1925-6, he declared, brought a new era in the developing of the West, the result of which would not only contribute to its own prosperity but to the prosperity of Canada in general. British Columbia, he described as the gem of the west with its "many Switzerlands in one." Many of you have doubtless seen the Rockies from the top of the C.P.R. Hotel in Calgary. "I wish I could describe it—its grandeur is indescribable — a person feels small indeed when he views its magnificence."

Greatest Development.

Declaring that during the next generation that the greatest development in Canada would be on the Pacific coast, he stated that out of the last year's wheat crop 54 million bushels were exported through the port of Vancouver.

Referring to Canada's public debt, Mr. Parsons said, "When we talk about it being a big debt we forget how it was incurred; when we think what might have taken place but for Great Britain, the United States and other allies, we to-day would not be sitting in the same comfort as we do to-night; our civilization would not be worth living for."

"We can bear it, and after all it is not so large—80 per cent. of it is held by Canadians, which is a most remarkable thing. It is only $258 per capita; Great Britain has a per capita debt of $791, and Australia's is 50 per cent. larger than ours. On the whole, Canada has not done badly, and we will soon reach the stage when we too will be clearing our debt. Take the products of agriculture for any one year, add the total production of the forests, mines and fisheries and you have an amount that would pay the entire national debt. In one year the total of manufacturing would pay it and leave 300 million dollars over. Canada's national wealth is estimated at 22 million dollars," he declared.

The speaker dwelt for some time on various statistics showing the development that had taken place in Canada since Confederation, declaring "with such a showing as this is there any one of us but can be hopeful as to the future of this great country."

Education Main Point.

These are the material things, he declared, but there is in the soul of a nation, things more tangible. The first thing is education. Canada stands on a high plane with its 85 colleges and 23 universities. Canada is occupying a notable place in the world to-day, he continued: It has a vote in the League of Nations. It would appear as if there were three possible futures for Canada; the first is annexation, but no one would consider that. The second was independence, and that was also an impossibility. The third is that Canada remain an integral portion of the British Empire, and that is the one with which we all agree. "Every true Canadian should determine to stand by the old flag," he declared. The solidarity that existed in the days of the war should also exist in times of peace. It should engender a desire on behalf of Empire interests as an Empire to live and prosper must live in the lives and hearts of its citizens.

In concluding, the speaker appealed for a more united Canada, closing with an outburst of patriotic fervor that made itself felt in the heart of every listener.

The thanks of the Chamber of Commerce were conveyed to Mr. Parsons by W. R. Morris, who stated that the remarks of the speaker could not but fail to make an impression upon all who had heard them.

A. J. Reynolds moved the vote of thanks to the artists who had contributed to the musical programme.

G. A. Gillespie.

"It is gratifying to me, as it must be to you, to notice increased activity in many of our industries. The prosperity and buying power of a community such as ours, is dependent to a large extent upon the depth of the order files in the offices of our manufacturing plants. More industries would help the city of course, but as many of our present ones continue to expand, the outlook becomes more favorable," declared Mr. Gillespie.

"The Chamber of Commerce is maintained with a view of helping all community enterprises, co-operating with the City Council, the Ontario Motor League, the Retail Men's Association, and the Trent Waterway Development Association for the purpose of building up a bigger and better Peterborough, and I am quite sure the officers connected with these different associations will bear tribute to the fact that our own staff has been energetic in looking after and supplying all information to our own citizens and tourists who find it useful to make use of the organization. Peterborough, at the present time, has big problems to solve, such as continuing the street railway or other transportation in the city, and also the power question which is aggravating at the present time, and while we realize this is the Council's business, the Chamber of Commerce is always ready t co-operate with the Council in an advisory capacity.

"Last year we saw a decided increase in the tourist traffic to Peterborough and the Kawartha Lakes and an increase in revenue therefrom of over $50,000. The total revenue from this source traceable through the chartered banks amounted to $307,000 during the 1926 season. Advertising carried on by the Chamber, the Trent Waterway Development Association, Peterborough Automobile Club, and the City Council has been instrumental in developing the tourist traffic from the first, and I am only sorry that we cannot attempt it on a larger scale. Certainly we have been well repaid for every dollar spent thus far. Merchants unhesitatingly state that summer trade would be much lighter if it were not for the American custom. Tourist trade has, and will continue to play a part in the development of our natural resources. In the next few years I predict that certain blocks of property in our north country will be in the hands of residents from the United States. It is all very well to bring the tourists here, and give him the best we have, but we need not stop there. The next step is to attach him here permanently by offering him cottage and camp sites which he would buy if given an opportunity. Inquiries in the hands of the secretary indicate that many Americans are desirous of holding Kawartha property. The public are invited to list properties which they wish to dispose of with the secretary. There is no charge for this service.

"Last year I had the honor to be representative of the Chamber at the Cleveland-Canada celebration, held in Cleveland last June. Over 3,500 visitors attended from Ontario and international courtesies were exchanged by prominent speakers. Undoubtedly the occasion has promoted kindly feelings between the peoples of this Province and the State of Ohio. His Worship Mayor Holloway, together with Mr. Fiske and several councillors, also formed part of the Peterborough deputation—about twenty-five persons. All visitors were entertained at luncheon by the Cleveland Chamber of Commerce, an enjoyable and interesting event.

"I shall not attempt to describe in detail the manifold activities of the Chamber during my presidential term. I have served on the directorate for a sufficient number of years to know that the staff is exceedingly busy all the year round, rendering various services to the public and our affiliations. Many resolutions have been drafted in the past and submitted to the governments of the day. As an example, last year we were successful in obtaining through the Department of Customs, Ottawa, an extension of the tourist permit to ninety days. Formerly, the very best type of tourist, those with sufficient means to remain in Canada for long periods, were handicapped to the extent that after the expiration of thirty days, they were put to the inconvenience of procuring a bond and submitting the names of five responsible persons as references. All this has been dispensed with, for a period of ninety days.

"The Chamber took this resolution before the last three annual conventions of the Ontario Associated Boards of Trade and Chambers of Commerce, and in the month of January our treasurer, Mr. A. J. Reynolds, with Mr. J. J. Duffus, on a committee from the Associated Boards, of which Mr. Duffus is president, presented the matter before the Prime Minister, during his recent visit with his Cabinet in Toronto. That their arguments were effective, and the suggestion timely, we now have no doubt.

"For some years past, in collaboration with adjacent municipalities, the City Council and local organizations, we have actively advocated for an adequate automobile ferry service between Rochester, and Cobourg. This, I am happy to assure you, will be installed this coming summer, and it is hoped that it will prove a decided convenience to Ontario motorists as it will undoubtedly to our cousins across the line.

"Our affiliations, the Canadian Manufacturers' Association, Peterborough, the Peterborough Automobile Club, the Trent Waterway Development Association and the Peterborough Horticultural Society, are undoubtedly rendering valuable services to the community. Our staff is zealous in the conduct of business, resulting from the activities of these organizations. A little better than half our yearly revenue is derived from that source.

"Your have doubtless read the report by the president, given at the annual meeting on Friday last, outlining the activities of the Peterborough Automobile Club during the past season. In some instances the Chamber and the Club worked together in matters pertaining to road maintenance and building, and the result of our joint efforts will be made manifest this summer, in the improvement of the Port Hope Highway and the building of the Peterborough-Lindsay Highway, as it was during the past winter when we were successful in inducing the Department to keep the Peterborough-Port Hope Highway open for traffic.

"The Trent Waterway Development Association, in co-operation with the Motion Picture Bureau, was successful last year in filming the Trent Waterway from Georgian Bay to Lake Ontario. This picture, titled 'Kelly's Cruise,' was shown in Peterborough and other Canadian centres, and was later shown for ten days at the Association's exhibit in New York, where it was very favorably received. Last year the Association published 15,000 very attractive booklets descriptive of the Trent Waterway and Peterborough. A large number of these were distributed at the New York Motor Boat Show, so the advertisers may look for returns this year.

"Peterborough was honored last year by the election of Dr. Holloway to the presidency of the Eastern Ontario Chamber of Commerce, and later to the vice-presidency of the Eastern Ontario Power Association. These organizations have their field of work before them and I feel that whenever initiative is need, ed, Dr. Holloway will most surely step into the breach.

"In closing, I would like to extend my appreciation of the good work done by the staff of the Chamber of Commerce. Tourists have frequently told me there was no Chamber of Commerce in the Province from which they could get more prompt and reliable information than our local Chamber. To the members of the executive I wish to say they have worked harmoniously and diligently through the whole year, and I also wish to thank the members of the Association who subscribed their money so that we might carry on the good work of the Chamber of Commerce, and I trust that everyone will do so again for the present year, even more cheerfully than before."

PROBE DISCUSS LIQUOR EXPORT

chasing and importing the liquor. He declared that he had personal knowledge that the liquor from his company was actually going to points in the United States. He denied that it was shipped to points in Ontario in defiance of the Ontario Temperance Act.

Shipment by Rail

The process of shipment by rail was explained to the commission. After the order was received, the goods were shipped to a point on the border designated, to Gooderham and Worts with a direction to notify some person or firm. This person or firm was generally an agent for the individual in the United States who was actually the purchaser of the liquor. When the liquor was handed over to the agent, the duty of Gooderham and Worts was done. The rail shipments were marked for export. Points designated today where Sarnia, Windsor, Port Colborne, Port Wright, and Maitland. Places on the other side of Lake Ontario to which it went by boat were Charlotte, and Wilson. Orders by telegraph for liquor generally appeared to come through Niagara Falls. United States consignees for liquor mentioned during yesterday's hearing were James Harris, G. A. Savard of Wilson, New York; J. Thompson, who asked that liquor be delivered at Charlotte, N.Y., and J. Penna. In the case of the latter, evidence given was that orders for him were frequently received from Hamilton, Ont., by telephone.

Toward the close of yesterday's sitting, the commission was given some first-hand information from Joseph Burke, who said that he rents boats to Americans who are engaged in running liquor across Lake Ontario.

From Mr. Burke, counsel tried to ascertain if it was not a fact that the "J. Penna" mentioned was not really Rocco Perri, of Hamilton, well-known in connection with bootlegging. This the witness absolutely denied. He knew Perri, he said, and he could swear that Penna was not he.

"Did your boats ever run from Toronto to Port Credit with liquor?" Mr. Calder asked him.

"No," the witness said positively. He had been present sometimes when his boats the "Meredith" and the "Patricia" were loaded for their trip across the lake.

"How many shipments were made this winter?" asked Mr. Calder.

"Quite a few," Mr. Burke replied.

"Did you ever go across with them?" asked counsel.

"Never in my life." He said that it would take from four to five hours for a liquor-laden launch to cross the lake.

Another man who owned and operated boats in the liquor business was John B. Kerr of Hamilton.

"Did you ever transmit any orders from Gooderham and Worts" Mr. Kerr was asked.

"Hundreds," he replied. He declared that he had never purchased liquor from this distillery for himself. "They would never sell to me," he told Mr. Calder.

Launches engaged in the liquor traffic could carry from fifty to five hundred cases, according to the evidence. In case of rail shipments, the consignment was not infrequently broken up at the export point in Canada and distributed to different places in the United States, it was stated. Mr. Kerr was on the stand at adjournment.

Her Little Boy Caught Cold While Out Playing

Mrs. F. Cade, Elmwood, Man., writes:—"My little boy caught cold while out playing in the snow. He coughed incessantly all that night and the next day, and nothing I gave him seemed to relieve him. When my husband came home he brought a bottle of with him. After the second dose my boy was greatly relieved and after the third dose he went to sleep and slept the whole night through without any coughing. I am never without it in the house, and whenever any of the children get the slightest cold it's the first thing I give them."

LEADERS ARGUE

was not under any obligation in the matter. The Premier as one "who dominates this House" should have called the resolution in its order and "not side-step his responsibility." His attitude had been contrary to practice "and it is something that will not go down."

Mr. Raney bitterly complained against the fate which had met several Progressive bills during the session. These bills, he said, had been sent by the Premier to committees of the House which had not met and as a result they were successfully "shelved."

"I have long ago come to the conclusion," said the Progressive leader, "that the Opposition in this House has no rights which this government is bound to respect."

FEMALE VOICE CHOIR MEETING

Musical Organization Has Had Very Successful Year.

OFFICERS ELECTED

The annual meeting of the Female Voice Choir was held on Saturday in the Canadian Legion Hall with a fair attendance. Reports showed that six concerts had been held during the year, three of them being sacred.

Donations were given to the following: Well Babies' Clinic $10, Canadian Legion $67, St. Vincent's Orphanage $15, Children's Shelter/-15, old couple in Belmont $100, United church $10, W.F.B.C. St. John's, $15.35, making a total of $232.35.

The choir has received many letters of appreciation from the various organizations helped, letters of sympathy have been sent to bereaved ones, also fruit and flowers taken to sick members. The choir has not been so active this year owing to the indisposition of the president, but hopes to present a concert in the near future, the proceeds to be used for two worthy local organizations. More of this will be announced later.

Mrs. Bugg thanked those ladies who have so ably assisted her during the year.

Presentations have been made to four members of the choir during the year, three of those leaving town.

Mrs. F. Rathbone occupied the chair during the election of officers, resulting in the following ladies being chosen:

Mrs. J. Mills, Hon. President; Mrs. R. Bugg, President; Mrs. S. F. Jackson, 1st Vice-President; Miss M. Allan, 2nd Vice-President; Mrs. S. Buckton, 3rd Vice-President; Mrs. F. Topic for the Week
"SPIRITUAL DISCERNMENT"
Wednesday
"We Should Cultivate Spiritual Sensitiveness."

SCRIPTURE: Read—I. Corinthians 12:1-13.

"Follow after love: yet desire earnestly spiritual gifts" (I. Cor. 14:1). "Open thou mine eyes, that I may behold wondrous things out of thy law" (Ps. 119:18). "A new heart also I will give you, and a new spirit will I put within you" (Eze. 36:26). "And ye shall know the truth, and the truth shall make you free" (Jn. 8:23).

See—John 9:39; Psalms 39:3.

MEDITATION: It is possible for our souls to remain stationary and never come to clear understanding of spiritual experience, just as an infant sometimes grows physically to adult life retaining the mind of the babe. On the other hand, there are growing souls. In the world of spiritual experience they come to distinguish the great realities with at least glimmerings of clearness. There are laws of growth in the spiritual world; they are like the laws of growth in the material world. Life must receive impression; life must give expression. In the practice of conversation with God we become more and more proficient.

"Teach . . . me that there are portals more golden than the eye or the ear."

HYMN:

Beneath the cross of Jesus
I fain would take my stand,
The shadow of a mighty rock
Within a weary land,
A home within the wilderness,
A rest upon the way,
From the burning of the noontide heat,
And the burden of the day.

I take, O cross, thy shadow
For my abiding place;
I ask no other sunshine than
The sunshine of His face,—
Content to let the world go by,
To know no gain nor loss,
My sinful self my only shame,
My glory all the cross.
—Elizabeth C. Clephane (1830-1869).

PRAYER: Pray for—sensitive spirits; success of worthy undertakings; prisoners; the profane.

Collect—O God who dwellest in the beauty of holiness, we praise Thee for the beauty of the earth, for love'iness embodied in noble men and for the revelation of Thyself in Jesus Christ the incarnation of Thy conquering love. We are covered with shame at the thought of Thy faithfulness for we have not been ever true to Thee. Keep us from infidelity to Thy friendship. Save us from treachery of soul. From the choice of evil and from the enthronement of the lesser things deliver us. Awaken in us a living sense of Thy spirit. Give us hunger and thirst for righteousness. May our hearts burn with the presence of Christ in us. So would we enthrone Thee, trust Thee, love Thee, obey Thee; all by the grace of Christ. Amen.

4 out of 5 start too late

Among the people you see today, four out of five past forty (and many younger) are victims of Pyorrhea—simply because they started too late to protect teeth and gums.

Pyorrhea starts with tender, bleeding gums. Unchecked, it undermines youth and health and often results in loss of teeth, neuritis, ulcers, rheumatism or other serious diseases.

But have no fear. If you start in time, you can prevent or check the inroads of Pyorrhea. See your dentist at least twice a year. And start using Forhan's for the Gums.

This dentifrice thwarts Pyorrhea or checks it. It is the formula of R. J. Forhan, D. D. S., a recognized specialist in Pyorrhea.

Forhan's firms the gums, keeps them healthy. It protects teeth and keeps them white.

Don't gamble with health! Start the Forhan morning-and-night habit, now. Teach your children to use it, too, as health-insurance. Play safe. Get a tube today. At all druggists, 35c and 60c.

SEVERAL FIRES OVER WEEK END

Prompt Response of Campbellford Brigade Checks Serious Blaze

STARTED IN GRASS.

CAMPBELLFORD, March 30.—The firemen have had several fire alarms during the week-end, none of which caused any great damage. They earned their reputation as fire fighters on Monday afternoon at one o'clock, when someone started to burn the grass around Ogilvie's Hill. A brisk wind was blowing and the hillside was soon in a mass of flames. The firemen were soon on hand, but it was some time before the flames were checked, for they spread rapidly through the dry grass.

WAR MEMORIAL BUILT BY NATURE

Armour's Hill Surpasses in Grandeur Wonderful Works of Man

TO BE MONUMENT

It is eminently fitting that all bitterness following the war which was over nearly a decade ago, should now be buried. A better world is being reconstructed, and it is the aim of all to help make it a better place in which to live.

It is with no feeling of bitterness, no desire to harbor resentment, but with only a wish to cherish the memories of those who laid down their lives for a cause, which to us was sacred, that memorials are erected by the people of Canada. And it is this wish which the ladies of the Patritoic League of Ashburnham have in their minds when they are beautifying Armour's Hill, a memorial already erected by nature, surpassing in grandeur anything that the hand of man could ever compass.

Ages ago the mighty forces of Nature combined to raise what we know as Armour's Hill, perhaps for the specific purpose for which the Ashburnham Ladies are using it, and it stands today as a background for one of the most glorious war memorials in the entire Dominion, a memorial which shall commemorate the gallant Peterborough boys who responded to the Empire's call to arms and went overseas—but never returned.

The plans to beautiful this hill which the ladies of the Patriotic League have in mind are going to take time and money. In addition to the thousands of trees which they are planting, they are planning a road, easy of access, leading to the extreme top of the hill, from which on a clear day you can see for miles around, and even catch a glimpse of the waters of Rice Lake shimmering in the distance.

It is a fitting work for the ladies of the Patriotic League to undertake—it is a work which everyone in Peterborough is interested, and a work which we are sure the public will heartily approve of and support.

SAINT and SINNER

A deputy sheriff, recognizing one of the three as they struggled through the mob which milled before the courthouse steps, came to the assistance of Faith, her father, and Bob Hathaway, clearing a passage for them and escorting them to the very door of the courtroom in which the trial of Cherry and Chris Wiley was about to begin.

Stephen Churchill, as chief counsel for the defense, rose from the long table where he and his two assistants had been conferring, and came to meet them.

"Glad to see you, Miss Faith. You are looking beautiful today," Churchill said in unctuous tones. "Sit here, Mr. Lane. Miss Cherry can sit between you. This seat all right for you, Hathaway?" he asked good-naturedly, indicating a seat immediately behind the chair in which he had placed Faith. "I'll sit here, at the table, right in front of Miss Cherry and Miss Faith, so I can consult my client without difficulty. All right?"

Faith was glad of his bustling cordiality, for it served to divert her mind for the moment from the appalling realization of the fact that, as Cherry's sister, she was the cynosure of all eyes.

She had hardly time to look about her, timidly, fearfully, at the crowded ampitheater, at the district attorney, Tom Banning, arriving late, importantly, attended by clerks and assistant district attorneys, bearing law books and portfolios of legal documents and suitcases, presumably filled with gruesome exhibits, when a heightening of the dull roar made by the gabbling audience made her glance toward the door at the left of the still empty judge's bench.

There, looking like a very little and very frightened child, stood Cherry, guarded on either side by a tall, rangy deputy sheriff, the badges of their office on their lapels, heavy, black-buttoned pistols protruding from leather holsters strapped about their waists.

Cherry paused as if for an anticipated cheer from her audience. It is doubtful if anyone in that courtroom had even seen a more beautiful or appealing sight than Cherry presented as she hesitated upon the threshold of her fight for life.

The plainest of the four dresses which Faith had designed and made for her made her look even tinier than she was, for it was a straight, clinging black sheath of lusterless satin-backed crepe, reaching decorously to two inches below her knees. A wide, round white organdie collar, and deep, flaring cuffs of the same crisp, sheer stuff were in startling contrast to the sheenless black crepe and gave to her exquisite, childish face a purity and pallor which should have satisfied even Stephen Churchill. The tenderly curved, baby-ish mouth was the color of coral, innocent as it was of lipstick, and between the long, curling fingers of her bronze lashes her wide, round, golden eye glowed like imprisoned candle flames.

Her glorious copper-and-gold hair, which had not been cut since her arrest, hung in adorable, childish curls about her rounded, camellia-white cheeks, so long that they almost touched the flaring, crisp collar of white organdie. She looked not more than twelve years old, as she stood there, frightened, lips parted, breathless, appealing.

Churchill beamed as he stood aside to allow the two sisters to greet each other. When Faith had kissed Cherry twice, her arms holding the little figure tight against her breast the lawyer thrust out a hand to his lovely little client.

"Well, well, Miss Cherry, you're looking a perfect picture! If all my clients were as pretty as you are, I'd never lose a case."

At the press tables, pencils raced over pads of yellow paper. Two artists sketched furiously.

Jim Lane, humble, darkly flushed with shame at his conspicuousness, stumbled toward his daughter, mumbled something beneath his breath, then, drawing a trembling hand across his eyes, he sank back into his chair. Cherry fluttered to her seat between her father and Faith.

What she said to Faith was characteristic: "Do I look all right, honey? Gee, I'm scared stiff, but nobody could tell it, could they? Isn't Churchill the old hypocrite? I had an awful fight with him last night because I told him I simply wouldn't, under any circumstances, no matter how the trial goes against me, let him try to slip in a self-defense plea. Thanks for these stockings, darling. "Aren't the little feather slippers cute? The shoe store sent over the nicest salesman you ever saw. Tried to flirt with me, the devil! Oh, by the way, I got four more proposals of marriage yesterday. Churchill wants me to give the letters to the papers, but I won't do it. Isn't he a nut on publicity? He'll simply die if they don't run his picture and sketches of him every day. Oh, that good-looking artist is sketching me now. I hope he doesn't make my nose any more pug than it is—"

Faith listened with a slight smile on her lips, slipping in a word now and then, but her eyes were fixed on the door through which Cherry had come. What was keeping Chris Wiley, Cherry's co-defendant?

"Where is Chris, Cherry?" Faith asked at last, in a whisper.

"Oh, hada't you heard?" Cherry's eyes narrowed and her voice grew cold. "He is sick, or so Churchill says. Chris" own special lawyer, Mr. Penny, is going to ask for a separate trial for Chris, because Churchill won't agree to have my trial adjourned. He feels that he has sympathy for me up to fever heat now, and he doesn't want it to cool during a long adjournment."

"But what is the matter with Chris? The papers haven't mentioned his illness," Faith protested, genuine concern in her voice.

"He was stricken with mastoditis in the middle of the night, and was rushed to the hospital," Cherry answered carelessly. "He's being operated on this morning."

"After all, Cherry darling," Faith reminded her gently, "he's your husband. Don't you care—at all?"

"I'm sorry he's sick," Cherry answered briefly, but her golden eyes held no pity.

Further conversation between them was interrupted by the court crier announcing the approach of the judge. The clatter of voices, the rustle of papers, was stilled instantly, to be succeeded by the scraping sound of hundreds of feet as every person in the courtroom rose to pay honor to the majesty of the law, in the person of stern-faced, tight-lipped old Judge Grimshaw, whose tall, heavy body was draped in the black folds of the traditional judge's robes.

The court crier chanted with the fervor of a religious devotee the age-old formula, that fearful, spell-weaving "oyez, oyez," which is the prelude to every grim drama at which the blind goddess presides.

HOROSCOPE

The Stars Incline, but do not Compel.

Thursday, March 31, 1927.
(Copyright, 1927, by The McClure Newspaper Syndicate.)

Astrologers read this as an unusually favorable day in planetary direction. It is a time to use wisely un pushing all one's affairs.

The day is a most auspicious one for women and promises for them success in whatever they desire to accomplish.

This is a rarely lucky wedding day in which the stars seem to smile and the who plight troth under this sway ar not likely to visit the divorce court.

Again good fortune smiles on theatres, both the motion-picture houses and those devoted to the spoken drama.

Through the screen, world reforms are to be instituted, the seers prophesy, and the new art is to aid in preventing the spread of war.

New books of great moment may be expected and the magazines are to flourish. The printed page is to assume renewed importance.

This is read as an auspicious day for signing contracts, especially those that relate to business expansion or development.

Manufacturers of many lines may expect a summer of unparalleled activity. Demand from abroad is to be greatly increased.

Competition is to increase in many branches of trade, the seers prophesy, but America is to enjoy commercial prosperity that is greater than at any time in history, occultists prophesy.

Women are to become more and more beautiful, if the stars are wisely interpreted and America is to lead all other countries, because of a quality belonging peculiarly to the nation of many origins.

Persons whose birthdate it is should have a successful year. Money will increase.

Children born on this day have the forecast of great prosperity. They are likely to have unusual talents.

HISTORY OF THE NEWSPAPER

issued a little paper which contained some ads which would appear quite at home in a modern paper—and some which would look decidedly away from home if they were placed in the advertising columns of The Examiner. I may give one or two examples:

"'A young dromedary for sale at a reasonable price.'

"'Lodgings to let in full view of the spot where evildoers are most justly executed.'

"Here is a personal ad which contains the germ of a touching little romance:

"'If the gentleman with a blue feather who saved two ladies wearing masks in the Rue St. Denis from the insolence of a drunkard is as tender-hearted as he is modest, he will find one of his obliged servants ready to thank him, without her mask, at the gates of the Place Royal to-morrow at four in the afternoon.'

"We can only hope that the chivalrous gentleman turned up all right, with or without his blue feather.

"Here is another ad which might well appear in the agony column of any city daily. It is short and snappy: 'From L to H; once only, but never again.'

"This venture was evidently successful and the enterprising doctor commenced in 1631 the issue of the Gazette of Paris, the first real newspaper. The first number was as might be expected, dedicated to the King, Louis the Thirteenth, telling him what a fine king he was and how happy all his subjects were to be living under such a beneficent monarch. You may be interested to hear read out the first paragraph of the world's first newspaper. It is a businesslike despatch, not at all suffering by comparison with modern news items. On the date-line it has:

"Constantinople, 2nd April, 1631," and reads: 'The King of Persia with 15,000 horse and 30,000 foot-soldiers, besieges Dille at two days' march from Babylon, where the Grand Signior has ordered all his janissaries to muster under pain of death,' and continues, 'notwithstanding this occupation, to wage a merciless war against those who use tobacco, condemning them to be suffocated by smoke.'

"Renaudot was not very long is discovering what all of us here have proved in our individual experience—that no paper can ever hope to satisfy all its readers. He said in the Gazette: 'The captains would wish to find here every day accounts of battles fought, sieges raised, and towns taken. The lawyers look for legal decisions, the devout for the names of preachers and confessors of mark. If the fear of displeasing the age has hindered many good authors from touching the history of their own times, what must be the difficulty of writing that of each week and even of the very day when the paper is published? Add to this the brevity of time which your spirit allows me (he is here addressing the King) and I am much mistaken if the most severe critic does not find some excuse for a work which must be done in the four hours of the day that the arrival of the couriers leaves me to collect, arrange and print these lines.'

Dangers and Difficulties.

"Running a newspaper in those good old days was a decidedly delicate task. Adverse criticism of the Government, or an uncautious reference to any of the King's favorites, male or female (especially the latter), who were all powerful at Court, might conceivably result in the suppression of the paper and even, if the fault were considered exceptional in a trip to the scaffold or to the Bastille for the unlucky editor. This danger Renaudot at first avoided by leaving French news severely alone. He regaled his readers with accounts of revolts, alliances and politics of other countries, turning a blind eye on events of which every one of his readers were more or less imperfectly cognizant. The necessity of 'local stories' came home to him and, after a time, he gave a little space to the news of the court, writing chatty paragraphs of the trips of the courtiers to St. Germains, praising the waters of the summer-resorts and giving news of Paris, such as recounting the return of the fever to the capital, and announcing the translation of the Bible into nine languages and bound in eight volumes. All this French news was always to be found at the end of the periodical, Renaudot humorously explaining that this arrangement was for the benefit of those who, like the Hebrews, were fond of reading from the end to the beginning. The real reason, of course, was that the the wary editor was feeling his way and he had the idea that if he did not unduly emphasize home news, its appearance would be winked at by the authorities. Many of the dignitaries of the Court, and the Queen, Anne of Austria, were opposed to the paper, and would gladly have seen it suppressed, but Renaudot had succeeded in winning the regard of the King and of his great minister, Cardinal Richelieu. The King indeed took a great personal interest in the Gazette and made its originator an official under the designation of Histriographer-Royal.

"Renaudot often found that important stories broke some time before the paper was due to appear. Stories, as a matter of fact, always break at inconvenient times. You may have noticed that. Renaudot met the difficulty in precisely the modern way. He issued extras, and he had ideas of his own in forcing the sale. When he had an extra ready he used to send out criers, brilliantly bedecked in red uniforms, blowing trumpets and shouting 'Buy the extraordinaire. All about the superb burial of the King of Denmark,' or 'Buy and read of the capture of the beautiful island of Curacoa in the Indies by the Dutch from the Spaniards.'

"One of Renaudot's great worries was the cool piracy of his news by rivals, both in Paris and in the provinces. The idea of copyright was only dimly apprehended and other printers were accustomed to reason that news belonged to nobody and that anybody who could print it should be free to do so. The Gazette editor had the king and the strong arm of the law on his side, but, in spite of several prosecutions and suppressions, the pirate printers could not be silenced, and he had to contend with their pilfering to the end of his days. The newspaper was continued by his sons, and at various periods was used as an official organ of the Government, having a chequered career under Monarchists and Republicans to the present day.

"French newspapers were particularly active during the civil wars of the Fronde, and after peace was, in a measure, restored, one of the Dukes of Orleans sent a sarcastic journalist named Marlot to the scaffold for execution. But the days of unchallenged aristocratic tyranny were over and Marlot, on his way to execution, was rescued by a crowd of excited compositors who routed the executioner and the Duke's officials to the great delight of the Parisian populace.

First Serial Story.

"The next important development was the appearance of the serial story. This was introduced in a paper established by Loret an airy, irrepressible gazetteer who recounted the gossip of the day and the wrangles in Parliament in catchy rhymes. Unlike Renaudot, who was the soul of integrity, Loret made quite a comfortable income by introducing to his paper tiny eulogies of nonentities who were willing to pay for a little newspaper boosting. A careless liberal spendthrift and gamster, Loret won the hearts of his fellow craftsmen and associates, and at his burial 300 printers threw nosegays on his coffin as it was lowered into the grave.

"Another innovator was Vise, who introduced dramatic criticism in the Press. Besides the ordinary news of the day, Vise coolly appropriated the works of many contemporary authors entertaining with selections from their works the purchasers of his paper, the Mercury. His impudent larcencies, no less than his acid criticisms, naturally, made for Vise many enemies, and a series of blasts and counterblasts was the result.

"Here is an item taken from the Mercury of Vise's day:

"'A poet who has ruined one publisher and is fast hurrying another to the workhouse came yesterday and wrote Pig on our door. We thank him for his courtesy in thus dropping his card to us.'

"Even the literary giants of his day felt the sting of his mordant criticisms. Rousseau, the eminent philosopher, ventured to complain of the rough handling his works received in the columns of the Mercury. Vise's reply was as follows:

"'Monsieur J. B. Rousseau complains that we are blind to his merits. We reply that nature has not endowed us with the faculty of seeing clear through muddy water. But we will resume the discourse when Rousseau has paid his tailor for the maroon coat which he has been sporting so proudly all the month, notwithstanding the two creases in the back which forms its most attractive features.'

"Here is a short and pithy review: 'Monsieur A., you have written a Latin treatise on the soul, and a schoolboy copied a paragraph and showed it to his master as his own. The boy has been whipped for writing nonsense and bad grammar.'

"Moliere's place in the gallery of fame has long been established. But here is how Vise regarded him. In a notice of Moliere, he wrote: 'We pronounced Monsieur Moliere's work tasteless. We were wrong. Being plagued with mice we set a copy of Moliere's plays near the hole in our flooring. Twelve mice came and ate of it. They died in great agony.'

"Vise's pleasantries might have involved him in very serious trouble had it not been for the fact that he rarely issued a paper which did not contain a flattering reference to the King and the most powerful courtiers. To the lesser nobles, he was painfully candid. A courtier came to him to arrange for a complimentary notice concerning a lady with whom he fancied himself in love. This lady was especially fond of the use of powder and rouge. 'Sit down and write the notice yourself,' said Vise. 'I am no judge of painting.'

"Under later editors, the Mercury attracted the cream of literary talent of France, and to its columns, containing more graphic than complimentary accounts of proceedings at Court, we owe much of our knowledge of the real character of Louis XIV, and his chief ministers. Louis indeed tried in vain to suppress all the journals which commented unfavorably on his Government. But it was no use. When he closed down the plants in his own kingdom, the writers and printers simply migrated to Holland and England, and from these countries smuggled their wares into Paris. One of the motives which led the King to undertake the conquest of Holland was the desire to root out all the troublesome gazettes which caused his serene soul so much misgiving. On one occasion, when he discovered that a particularly offensive journal had been secretly circulated in the city and court, he announced that any man discovered carrying a copy in his possession would be beheaded. Half an hour later, in full view of the court, in pulling out his handkerchief, had the mortification to see fluttering out of his pocket a copy of the very journal which had aroused his despotic ire. A waggish courtier had taken advantage of an opportunity to slip a copy, unobserved, into the King's pocket!

"The remaining period of newspapers in France, under the Monarchy, fall into two recurring phases—attempts at subjugation on the part of the authorities and of unbridled license on the part of the press when the time of severity was realized on discovering its futility. By the time Louis XVI. came to the throne, there were no less than 28 periodical journals in Paris, and the restless spirit of the people gathering in the rumbling that preceded the Revolution found an outlet at first in the more radical papers. A fine spray of the salt-water of criticism and ridicule swept over the people in power. Louis XVI. was a good-natured weakling, but even he felt that something had to be done to stop the saucy comments of the press. So he appointed a number of censors to exercise a vigilance over them. Censorship has rarely been successful, but never did it meet with more ridiculous failure than in France. At every stage the thick-witted officials were tricked by the more dexterous pressmen. The editor of the Journal de Verdun filled his censor with wine and, when he had him sufficiently drunk, got him to sign a paper confessing that he was a fool. The confession appeared next day on the front page of the newspaper. Over the Mercury was placed a censor who stammered. This light-hearted journal made a practice of reproducing in phonetic spelling the awkward articulations of its unfortunate mentor. He was then removed to exercise censorship over a medical journal. The Mercury, in announcing the fact, commented: 'First, the medical men will have to listen to the poor devil and then cure him.'

Newspapers During Revolution.

"When the Revolution did break out, a great part was taken in it by the numerous inflammatory sheets which sprung up like mushrooms. Many of the leading agitators were newspapermen who each issued their own special firebrand, advocating their own theories of Government. Marat, Desmoulins, Danton, Brissot, Freron, and Robespierre, to mention only a few of the outstanding names, all were editors as well as revolutionary leaders. During this great eruption of ambition, conspiracy, patriotic folly, and fury which followed the execution of the King, no fewer than 1,200 different papers appeared in Paris alone, nearly 900 editors perished on the scaffold. It may be said that, on the whole, journalism failed during this great opportunity to make a lasting contribution to the reconstruction of the country, and when Napoleon came into power he exercised a control over the Press which was much more effective than that instituted by the Bourbon kings.

First English Newspaper.

"Turning to look for a brief space at the development of the Press in England, we find that the first English newspaper was the Oxford Gazette, which came out in November 16, 1666. It was referred to simply as 'The Paper,' and, like the Gazette de Paris, was originated to meet the need of fulfilling the desires of many people for news in a way that the old handwritten sheets could not do. It was printed at Oxford because of the ravages the Great Plague was then making in London. In February of the next year the press was removed to London, and after a few months it shared the fate of the greater part of the city in being wiped out by fire.

"The freedom of the Press came in England much earlier than in France. This question was finally decided by the Revolution of 1688, which gave Britain this blessing long before it was enjoyed by its Continental rivals. At first, British papers confined themselves almost entirely to comment and it was only as the result of a slow and almost imperceptible process that they devoted themselves chiefly to the publication of news. This may be accounted for partly by the fact that news in those days was not the commodity it is today. For example, one newspaper had to pay 200 pounds a year for information about the theatres. The tables were completely turned when the British papers adopted the French practice of dramatic criticism, and theatre managers were glad to pay as high as 10,000 for favorable notices of performances in the theatres.

"One other important development in the British press is worthy of notice. This was the acknowledgment of the right of the Press to report proceedings in the Houses of Parliament, a right indispensable to the Press of a country living under constitutional government. Although no permission had been given, various journals made a practice of serving up to their readers a rehash of the debates. Rehash is, I think, the proper word, for the report was usually colored according to the political complexion of the reporter. The famous Dr. Johnson, it may be remembered, boasted that when he wrote reports of Parliamentary debates, he always 'took good care that he did not let the Whig-dogs have the best of it.' In 1771 the House of Commons awoke to the fact that the papers were taking full advantage of their opportunities in this respect and two printers of London were arrested for publishing reports of debates without permission. They were brought before the London magistrates who refused to convict them. The printers were thereupon discharged from custody, and returned to their offices in triumph. Although, technically, the publication of reports remained a breach of the law, the right of reporting the debates was, to all intents an NEVER has a policyholder suffered loss through the failure of a regular life assurance company operating under charter from the Dominion of Canada. Can as much be said of any other class of business?

The soundness of each Canadian life company is rigorously tested, and the renewal of its license each year depends upon the result of an examination into its affairs by inspectors from the Government Insurance Department. Where else are trust funds so carefully guarded?

To guarantee the fulfilment of policy contracts, the Dominion Government has fixed a minimum standard of reserves to which every company is obliged to conform. The Imperial Life maintains reserves greatly in excess of the Government standard.

Every regular life assurance company in Canada must at all times provide security of an amount at least equal to its liabilities to policyholders. The Imperial Life provides security of more than $120 for every $100 of liability to its policyholders.

A deposit is required to be made with the Receiver General by each regular life assurance company doing business in Canada. The Government deposit maintained by The Imperial Life is more than four times the amount required by law.

English Motorist Breaks World's Speed Records

DRIVES BRITISH CAR 203 MILES AN HOUR OVER DAYTONA BEACH

Major Segrave Catapults Large Racing Car at Dizzy Speed.

OFFICIAL TEST

Beats Former Mark Set by Malcolm Campbell in February.

DAYTONA BEACH, Fla., March 30—Burning the sands of the famous Daytona Beach, Col. H. O. D. Segrave, an Englishman, in a 4-ton brilliant red speedster, yesterday catapulled his way to an unofficial world's speed record for the mile straightaway of 203.85 miles an hour.

The time beat all existing speed records.

The world mile straightaway mark was set by Malcolm Campbell, also an Englishman, at 173.22 in a run on a Wales' beach last February.

A meeting of the American Auto Association officials was called for later to officially time the race.

Major Segrave, premier of European racing drivers, sent his "Mystery S" at the astounding pace of 207.015 miles down the course, after beating up the track into a quarter ing wind that threw his huge racer into skids that threatened instant death. The computed average time for the mile on the two runs was 203.841 miles an hour, 201.711 for the mile kilometre, and 203.616 for the 5-kilometres.

Is Satisfied

"I'm satisfied. Now we'll pack up and go home." Major Segrave told K. Lee Guinness, companion on the American trip and formerly one of Europe's foremost drivers, when he found that a broken brake shoe would prevent his making a third run.

"You ought to be,'" Guinness replied.

Major Segrave was steadier at the end of his two trips than at the beginning of them.

While figures given out were those Segrave himself claims to have established, clockers said the high speeds recorded were:

One mile—207.015 miles per hour.

One kilometre—205.359 miles per hour.

Five kilometres—207.507 miles per hour.

On the first trial, going north, the scarlet racer leaped through the wind at a clocked time of 200.66 miles per hour one mile; 199.729 for one kilometre, and 198.063 for five kilometers. On the tests in which the high speed was made Segrave had a high wind at his back.

Nothing Sensational

The British driver said he felt no extraordinary sensation while speeding at the 200-mile clip.

"I just put my foot on the accelerator and let her go, he said, admitting he was a trifle nervous.

Segrave appeared at the judges' stand at 9.25 a.m. His three-ton double-engined car was towed up the beach from its garage.

Airplanes hovered overhead, and the beach stretch was lined with cars.

Segrave said that on the first trial north the throttle was not opened wide, but coming south he used full power.

Three marked flags were knocked down by the record-breaking car, but its pilot said he never felt them go.

There will be a meeting of city baseball league at Holy Name Rooms on Thursday night, 8 p.m., to elect representative to attend O.B.A. meeting in Toronto on Saturday. All teams are requested to have representative present.

FIRST PLAY-OFF GAME IS DRAWN

Maroons and Canadiens Play To One All Tie in N.H.L. Series.

MEET ON THURSDAY.

MONTREAL, March 30. — The fury of the renowned Canadien attack crashed on a solid wall here last night, and the Montreal Maroons upset popular opinion by holding the dashing Canucks to a 1-1 tie. The game was the first of the two-game series, total goals to count, in the semi-finals of the Canadian sectional play offs towards the National Hockey League championship. Thus the two teams will enter the deciding game on Thursday night on even terms and with the complexion of the series considerably changed through the Maroon's great fight tonight.

Canadiens opened up the play after the first five minutes and drove with all the fire which swept them to eleven consecutive wins at the tail end of the scheduled season. But they piled into a Maroon team that had defensive poise. Maroons lived up to their reputation as a monied team. They met the dazzling charges of the Canucks with stiff but legitimate body checks. Sylvo Mantha, the rugged Canadien defence played, was laid low when he bounced off Munro early in the game and struck his head in falling.

CUPS PRESENTED TO SCHOOL TEAM

Madoc Boys Given Trophies In Honour of Hockey Success.

BY SCHOOL BOARD.

MADOC, March 29.—An enjoyable and well-attended open meeting of the High School Literary Society was held in the Assembly Hall of the High School on Thursday evening for the purpose of showing honor to the High School hockey team who again won the Whitty Memorial Cup.

Archie Ashley, President of the Society, presided, and with him on the platform were C. N. Whytock, Chairman of the High School Board; George White, trustee; C. Wallbridge representing the Council, and D. Brown, Principal of the High School.

The programme was opened with the singing of "O Canada," by the school. A popular number then followed, when Miss Norma Fair with a banjo, Miss Helen Leedbrook with a guitar, and Miss Ila O'Rorke at the piano, sang to their own accompaniment. An interesting debate, "Resolved, that unrestricted immigration would be of benefit to Canada," was given by four students in an able manner. The affirmative was upheld by Hazel Ross and Bob McCaffery, and the negative was supported by Lemoine West and Albert Caskey. By vote of the audience the negative speakers were declared the winners. While the decision was being made a cornet solo was played by Francis Smith.

Principal D. Brown then gave an enlightening talk on the subject of "Newer Movements in Education," Mr. Brown discussed the reclassification of the course to enable the brilliant pupil to take more work in a year and the slower student to take a longer time. The present system in Ontario favors the slow pupil and does not make adequate provision for those at the top who could do five times the amount of work in a year.

The event of the evening, the presentation of cups to the members of the hockey team came next. Mr. C. Whytock, chairman of the High School Board, on behalf of the Board, presented each member of the winning team with a small silver cup as a token of appreciation of the excellent work done by the team during this past winter. The Whitty Memorial Cup was held by Madoc for two years. Then Tweed succeeded in taking it for two years, and Madoc has won it back for the past two years, and in recognition of their work this year the board decided to present each member of the team with an individual cup. The winners were: Campbell Wallbridge, goal; Archie Ashley and Charlie Phillips, defence; Donald Whytock, centre; A. Rupert and Ted Nickle, wings; Jack Ross, Billie Bassett and Colin Dafoe, subs, and Hubert Nickle, sub. goaler.

Charlie Phillips, captain of the team, replied, thanking the Board on behalf of the boys. Mr. G. White then gave a short address, complimenting the boys on their excellent team work and also complimenting the school on the success of their literary society, which was started again after Christmas, after a lapse of four or five years.

The Misses Fair, Leedbrook and O'Rorke then sang and played again by special request. The school song was given by all the students, and the programme closed with the National Anthem.

The rest of the evening was spent in dancing and the social hour was much enjoyed by the students.

MAINSTAYS FOR MAPLE LEAFS

Report from the southern training headquarters of the Toronto Baseball Club are most encouraging. Manager Fohl is more than pleased with the manner in which hisa thletes are coming along and he expects a great deal of the trio show above. Lucas, at the left, is a right hander of much experience He was with the Augusta Club of the Sally League last season. Bob Lamotte, centre, isa shortstopper of proved ability and Manager Fohl is confident that he will make the fans forget Otis Miller. Lamotte, who is a six-footer, was with the Browns lastsu mmer. Bohnslaw, at the right, is a left-hander and looks the part. He is a collegian.

NOTHING WRONG WITH THE YANKS

Hugmen Stronger Than Last Spring, in Opinion of Experts.

BEST CHANCES

NEW YORK, March 30 (UP)—New York will be one of the two or three favorites in the 1927 American League pennant race, if for no reason other than that the Yankees won the pennant last season.

At this time, last spring, the possibilities of the Yankees were rated by several experts as being worth about one nickel a dozen.

The club that Miller Huggins will start this year, is just as strong as it was last season, and it has a more powerful secondary defence.

John McGraw is credited with the remark that no baseball club is stronger than its utility men. The Yankees have almost two entire teams of equal ability.

The Yankees, however, will need more than they had last year, because of the opposition of the Philadelphia Athletics and the Washington Senators.

The outfield of the Yankees—Babe Ruth, Bob Meusel and Earl Combs, is far superior to any other combination except that of the Detroit Tigers; the infield, Gehrig, Lazzeri, Koenig and Dugan is a good infield if not a great one. The catching staff with Henry Bengough, Pat Collins and Grabowski, is capable, and the pitching staff, headed by Herb Pennock, Waite Hoyt and Shocker, is as good as any in the league.

PLAYING FINALS

PINEHURST, N.C., March 30 (Canadian Press) — Miss Glenna Collett, of Providence, R.I., former national women's champion, and Miss Virginia Van Wie, youthful Chicago player, will meet to-day in the finals of the annual United north and south championship tournament.

Miss Collett yesterday disposed of Miss Edith Quier, of Reading, Pa., 3 and 2, while Miss Van Wie defeated Mrs. E. H. Baker, Jr., of Belmont, Mass., 5 and 3.

OUR BOARDING HOUSE — By Ahern

Look, Stop & Figure

You do spend the price of two good MASSEY Bicycles every year paying street car fares to and from work; besides this you are obliged to wait at street corners and lose many half hours for being late.

A MASSEY BICYCLE

will get you there and bring you back home for a hot lunch at noon. Perhaps you have a bicycle that is no more use. If so, turn it in and get the best market price for it.

Our very easy terms makes this possible—

$5.00 CASH

$2 PER WEEK

Come in and inspect the new models. The MASSEY is the Rolls-Royce of them all. Remember, Friday is the 1st of April. Will the Toonerville Trolleys stop? Don't take a chance and be fooled.

FRENCH SECTION

lem, and that if any real attempt is made by the Cantonese to capture the concession, they will not hesitate to shoot.

French Give Assurances.

Moreover, it is understood that the French Government has assured the British that there is no danger in this respect and that France will fully co-operate with the other powers in defending the rights of foreigners in Shanghai. French reinforcements, it is stated, are on the way, and officials in Paris explain that the differences occur more from the fact that the French have no prejudice against Orientals or colored people than from any slackness in efforts to adequately defend the concession. These assurances have received to some extent the anxiety here, but apparently they have had only a slight effect in Shanghai.

Refugees Stoned.

PEKING, March 30 (United Press).—A Chinese mob stoned forty-seven Americans and British, who were evacuating Anking aboard the U.S.S. "Hulburt," a despatch said to-day.

Nationalist troops have occupied the Standard Oil Building at Chinkiang without damaging it. The American Baptist Mission at Kweilin, province of Kwangsi, was looted. It already had been evacuated.

Will Hold Hong Kong.

HONG KONG, March 30 (United Press).—Great Britain will retain Hong-Kong as a colony, the Governor of Hong Kong announced today.

Acting on instructions from London, the Governor informed the community that Great Britain would not surrender either the Island of Hong Kong or the leased mainland territories in response to native demands.

The Nationalist Government in China includes in its platform Chinese control of Chinese territory, including foreign settlements and concessions. The Island of Hong Kong is owned by Britain, but the adjacent mainland territories are leased from China under treaty for defence purposes.

Few Killed at Nanking

WASHINGTON, March 30 (Canadian Press).—Doubt that any large number of Chinese were killed when British and American warships shelled the area surrounding Socony Hill at Nanking last week was expressed in a report to the War Department today from Admiral Williams, commanding the United States forces in China. The area shelled was largely owned by foreigners and few Chinese lived there, the report says.

Missionaries Stay at Posts.

SHANGHAI, March 30 (Canadian Press).—Many missionaries are refusing to leave their posts in the Yangtze Valley, notwithstanding the advice of foreign authorities and in face of a situation that is fraught with dangerous possibilities. The remainder of the missionaries are either en route to or will shortly leave for Shanghai, where the international settlement is affording a haven of refuge from the fury of riotous mobs in the ports and inland towns along the Yangtze River.

A United States destroyer called at Anking today and took off 47 British and American missionaries, who will go to Kiukiang to await the first merchant steamer. The members of the Spanish mission and Dr. Ernest Taylor of the China Inland Mission, with his wife, have refused to come out.

The United States Chamber of Commerce at Hankow has asked for more protection, but it is understood that official notification was sent that United States Nationals there should leave instead of expecting protection.

Destroyers Sent Out

In response to a consular call for protection, the United States destroyer "Preston" has gone to Chefoo, in Shantung. Late reports from Shuntung have indicated that anti-foreign agitation is creeping into that province and that missionaries in the eastern section are making their way either to Tsingtao or Chefoo, where a Japanese cruiser arrived on Sunday. As the United States destroyed "Ford" was on the way to Nanking yesterday, it was fired on by Nationalist troops and replied with its four-inch guns and machine guns.

Danger on Upper River

LONDON, May 30 (Canadian Press).—Messages received in authoritative quarters todays say it is indicated the situation in the Upper Yangtze Valley may get out of control at any moment and that it is felt the lives of foreigners there may be endangered.

Chiang Expresses Regret

SHANGHAI, March 30 (Canadian Press). — Gen. Chiang Kai Shek, Cantonese commander, sent his chief of staff and a secretary abroad the Japanese flagship here this morning to convey his regrets to the Admiral for the Nanking affair.

To Protect Colony

HONG KONK, March 30 (Canadian Press).—The British Government will give full protection to the colony of Hong Kong and leased territories on the mainland during the civil warfare in China, a district watchmen committee was assured today by the local secretary of state.

Japanese Leaving Hankow

SHANGHAI, March 30 (Canadian Press).—A telegram from a Japanese source in Hankow says soldiers in mufti, ruffians, and pickets are overrunning the city and that Japanese, women and children are to be embarked on the first available steamer.

Troops Leave Hong Kong

HONG KONG, March 30 (Canadian Press).—Further British troops left here today for Shanghai. A battalion embarked on the steamer "Vasna" and the headquarters staff of the First Field Brigade of Royal Artillery left on the "Belletophon."

Uniformed Troops Concerned

LONDON, March 30 (Canadian Press).—It has been confirmed that "uniformed troops under direction" were responsible for the outrages against foreigners at Nanking, Sir Austen Chamberlain told the House of Commons today.

The Foreign Secretary added "steps which might be proper for His Majesty's and other governments whose nationals have thus been ill treated and whose flags have been outraged are under consideration."

Presbyterians Safe

NEW YORK, March 30 (Canadian Press).—A cablegram received today from Canton by the Board of Foreign Missions of the Presbyterian Church announced that all Presbyterian ministers in South China are safe.

Ministers Discuss Protection

PEKING, March 30 (Canadian Press). — The British, American, French, and Japanese ministers are conferring daily regarding the recent sanguinary events at Nanking, discussing emergency measures to meet the situation, and considering how adequate protection for their nationals can be insured.

At a two-hour conference in the Japanese Legation this afternoon, it was decided to draw up a joint statement setting forth the attitude of the Governments concerned. The British Minister, Sir Miles Lampson, conferred with the Japanese Minister again tonight.

Marshal Chang Tso Lin, the war lord, has been visiting the various legations during the week. It is understood he discussed the question of protection for foreigners in Northern China and queried the foreign officials as to the possibility of foreign support against the spread of Bolshevism in China.

Sir Austen said his information regarding the Nanking attack was derived partly from British sources and partly from information supplied to the British Minister at Peking by American and Japanese representatives.

"Looting was carried out by soldiers in uniform under the command of General Chiang Chen," he declared. "This fact is sworn to by His Majesty's Consul General, the United States Consul, and numerous British and American residents."

HISTORY OF THE ETC.

purposes, conceded, and has never been challenged since.

Canada's First Paper.

"Canada's first newspaper appeared in 1752 in Halifax. It was the work of a New England colonist, named Bartholomew Green. This Mr. Green set up the press, but after doing practically all the work he died before the first issue. That paper still exists under the name of 'The Royal Gazette of Nova Scotia.' It is now 175 years old and is the oldest newspaper in the American Continent. In the first issue, there were only two advertisements, and the first editorial was entitled 'The Delusion of Riches.'

"The beginnings of the press in this province were of a later date. The first provincial secretary of the province, William Jarvis, finding his duties very heavy, brought a printer, named Louis Roy, to assist him in the getting out of proclamations. The press was set up first at Newark (now Niagara Falls), but later was removed to Toronto where Roy instituted a newspaper.

"Probably the greatest romance of the Canadian press is seen in the founding of the Edmonton Bulletin. Newspapers, like all the other amenities of civilization, are to be found in the West, simply as the result of the labors of men with a vision and with a determination that refused to be baffled. The postmaster of the district that is now Edmonton had undertaken to write by hand a summary of news he received from the outside world. He had to write five copies for officials in the neighborhood. He was busy at this task one day when he was interrupted by the arrival in his office of Frank Oliver, who afterwards became Minister of the Interior. The postmaster was complaining of the onerous nature of his task when Mr. Oliver, who had seen service on the staff of the Toronto Globe, remarked that he had seen an advertisement of an old press for sale at four dollars in St. Paul. They decided, there and then, to buy the press and to start a newspaper. The press was secured and, along with paper, type, and other paraphernalia, was brought by ox-team from St. Paul. When the first issue was almost complete, it was discovered that there was no type for the large title at the head of the front page. Oliver, however, sallied out into a near-by bush, cut some pieces of birch, out of which he fashioned the letters to form the name, Bulletin.

"One other incident in the history of western journalism may be worth quoting. In 1870, a Toronto man, named Coldwell, founded in Winnipeg a paper which he proposed to call the Pioneer. He was busy on the first issue when the Riel Rebellion broke out and the Rebel leader, in his quaint way, forbade the printing of the paper 'until peace was restored.' The office was raided and Coldwell, in his discouragement, sold out to one of Riel's supporters, a Major Robinson, who brought out the paper in the interest of the Riel faction, under the name of 'The New Nation.' But the front page of the Pioneer had all ready been set and an event, probably unique in the history of journalism, occurred, in the appearance of the New Nation advocating the policies of Riel, but containing the front page of the Pioneer which recommended a diametrically opposite course. A copy of this remarkable paper is preserved in the library of the Legislative Assembly of the Province of Manitoba.

"In conclusion, may I be permitted to say that the power of the press is to-day vaster than it ever was before. Figures are often dismal things and difficult to remember; a more graphic way of presenting the enormous output from the presses of to-day is to be found in the calculation of an estimating genius who informs us that if all the newspapers issued in a single day could be piled together they would form a range of mountains higher and vaster than the Rockies, and the ink used in printing would form a stream greater in volume than all the torrents that flow down their slopes. That this mighty weapon is not always used in defence of the right is a fact that no one can deny. But in the past the Press has usually been on the side of those who were fighting on behalf of the establishment of a better order of things. As Mr. C. P. Scott, of the Manchester Guardian, has well said at a gathering of pressmen held in his honor: 'In the course of a fairly long working life, I have seen the Press grow from small things to great things, and I have seen a great growth in popular government in this country. I do not think that this is a coincidence. We can not have the one thing without the other. A free press is essential to the working of the most democratic state. A democracy uninformed is a blind giant. The newspapers present to us the dawn of things, of dynasties and revolutions, and of arts and careers. The professors and the reformers have their place in the advancement of thought, but the newspapers reaching millions are the great popularizers of ideas. The greatest policies might die if the public were not reached through the Press.'

"We remember that the benevolent French doctor set out to establish an institution for the ready conveyance of news. Who can say he did not succeed?"

The eight men behind the gas and believed to have been killed were all from Ledford. Audie Lynch and Rescoe Rebo, fifteen hundred feet from the explosion, were the first to be brought from the mine. They are badly burned and injured by flying timbers.

The explosion was of such great force that when it ripped from the shaft mouth of the mine it blew down a two storey brick office building about 200 feet from the entry. Some office employees were injured when the structure collapsed. Mining men familiar with explosions said the blast was so terrific they would hold little hope for the men trapped in the wrecked workings. The mouth of the mine caved in, making rescue work difficult.

Volunteers Rushed In

Volunteer rescue crews from all parts of the entire Cambria field were organized quickly when word of the blast spread. These men, equipped with helmets, were rushed to Ehrenfeld by automobile. Within a short time they were attacking the mine mouth blockade in an effort to get into the workings.

With the rescue car "Holmes" moving toward Ehrenfeld from Derry, officers of the United States Bureau of Mines here decided that the expolsion was so serious they must send their directing heads to the scene. D. J. Parker, director, will help the Pittsburgh Bureau experts.

The rescue men were unanimous in the opinion that the explosion was one of the worst in the history of mining in Western and Central Pennsylvania.

IN MEMORIAM.

WARREN. — In loving memory of Doris, the beloved daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. Warren, who died seven years ago to-day.

March brings back sad memories
Of a loved one gone to rest,
She will always be remembered
By the ones who loved her best.

Friends may think we have forgotten,
While at times they see us smile,
But little do they know the heartache
That our smile hide all the while.

But no one knows how we have missed her,
No one knows the bitter pain.
We have suffered since she left us,
Life has never been the same.
—Ever remembered by her loving mother and father, and sister and brother-in-law, Violet a Louie.

NATIONALISTS WILL INDEMNIFY FOREIGNERS FOR NANKING LOSS IF RESPONSIBILITY BE PROVED

General Chiang Has Interview With Correspondents of Newspapers.

MAKES PROTEST.

Shanghai Was Not Fortified Against Northern Armies, He Says.

SHANGHAI, March 31 (United Press),—(6.05 p.m.).—Marshel Chiang Kai-Shek, Commander-in-Chief of the Nationalist armies, today promised to indemnity foreigners or foreign nations for the destruction of life and property at Nanking provided it were proved that Nationalist soldiers were responsible for last week's incident at the Yangtse river port. Chiang received foreign newspapermen in conference and made his statement to them.

He protested against the comprehensive arrangements for the defence of Shanghai and said that defence preparations and the presence of soldiers and warships "was causing growing tenseness between Chines and foreigners." The status of Shanghai, said the marshal, must be changed.

Preparations Humiliating

"The presence of barbed wire and sand-bags is most humiliating," the marshal said. "You had not such preparations when the northern troops were here, and why should you have them now? I feel that this represents discrimination in favor of China's militarists.

"I am able to maintain law and order, and the presence of soldiers and warships and the continued preparations with barbed wire are causing growing tenseness between the Chinese and foreigners.

Nanking Exaggerated

"The Nanking incident has been exaggerated abroad. I personally ordered the commanding officer there to deal severely with persons responsible for endangering the lives and property of foreigners. If the Nationalists were guilty, we will take fully responsibility and pay indemnities.

"If there were no display of defences and no martial law," Chiang added, "there would be no provocation to the mobs, and no trouble. We are reminded daily of trouble by these preparations, which defeat their own ends and arouse a feeling of insecurity and danger.

"The settlement authorities are taking measures usually taken by Empire builders against colonials, not measures one nation adopts toward an equal. The defence preparations in the settlement are befitting those adopted toward savages or Natonalists' leader I feel his ietetl semi-civilized colonials. The situation is most intolerable and as the Nationalists' leader I feel this indignity."

Chinese Break Through

LONDON, March 31 (United Press).—A dispatch from Shanghai to the Exchange Telegraph Company today said Chinese mobs were frequently breaking through unguarded sections of the French concession to rush weakly held barriers, despite the firing of Annamite soldiers in the French service.

Such invasions, the dispatch said, necessitated frequent coralling of the invaders in the international settlement. Many armed Chinese were arrested.

Feeling Still High.

SHANGHAI, March 31 (Canadian Press).—Anti-foreign feeling still is high at Nanking, and it is dangerous for foreigners to go ashore there. Chinese messengers assert that Nanking crowds have threatened to shoot any Britisher who lands. Nationalists have stationed artillery on a hill there overlooking the river and trained their guns on all foreign warships.

Murder Costs $10.

SHANGHAI, March 31 (Canadian Press).—Ten dollars is the price of assassination in Shanghai. Evidence to this effect was given in a case dealt with by the Provisional Court, in which a Chinese was convicted and sentenced to life imprisonment for the murder of a loyal forewoman in a British cotton mill. The prisoner confessed he shot the woman at the instance of a prominent member of the General Labor Union, who gave him ten dollars beforehand. He said the gun was loaned to him by the Labor leader.

Portugal Sending Troops.

Firemen Work For Hour Releasing Trapped Pigeon

DENVER, Colo., March 31.—(United Press).—An entire truck company of firemen worked for nearly an hour to free a blue pigeon which had become imprisoned in the coping of an office building yesterday. While hundreds of persons watched from the street, two firemen at the top of a tall ladder worked with a twelve-foot pole and finally effected the bird's release. Cheers from the crowd followed the bird as it soared away in freedom again.

C. G. E. POSITION BETTER, REPORT OF BOARD SHOWS

Net Earnings Increase 25 Per Cent. in 1926, Shareholders Learn.

BETTER BUSINESS.

Many Conditions Contribute To Increased Demand For Electrical Equipment.

TORONTO, March 31.— Canadian General Electric Company, Limited, showed gross profits after reserves and taxes, but before providing for depreciation amounting to $1,870,618. This represents an increase of $253,525 over the 1925 figures, an increase of 15 per cent., according to the report presented at the annual meeting of shareholders. The company's profits were the highest since 1930. After writing off $700,000 for depreciation as against $600,000 in 1925, there was left net profits of $1,170,618, an increase of $236,837, or over 25 per cent. The company has no interest-bearing obligations outstanding, and accordingly the directors were able to show a report in which interest charges were not affected. After paying $599,042, in dividends on the preferred there was left a surplus of $571,576, an increase of $191,367 over the preceding year.

Total assets amount to $28,732,514, including capital assets valued at $18,328,324. The reserve for depreciation amounts to $4,080,903, and the general reserve to $2,000,000.

Better Business Conditions.

A resume of the year's business and the outlook presented by A. E. Dyment, chairman of the board, and D. C. Durland, president, includes the following:

"The improvement in general business conditions in Canada experienced during the latter part of 1925 was sustained throughout the year 1926. The electrical industry has participated to a considerable extent in the increased prosperity. The expanding use of electrical equipment in the industries of Canada, the increased construction of new houses and buildings electrically wired and equipped, the more extensive use of electrical devices and appliances, the larger production of manufacturing establishments, and the building of new manufacturing plants, particularly in the pulp and paper industry, have not only augmented the purchases of electrical equipment and supplies, but have also led to the enlargement of existing power plants and the construction of several new ones, resulting in an increased demand for large generating and distributing appartus.

"The outlook for 1927 is encouraging. New business already booked is larger than during the same period of 1926. Projected power plants and industrial developments will require a large amount of electrical machinery and supplies, and as all indices at present point to a well sustained purchasing power of the public, we expect to maintain and possibly enlarge the sale of electrical merchandise, such as household appliances, lamps, wiring supplies, radio receiving sets, radio tubes and accessories, etc."

Announces Property Changes.

The directors report that during the year the shipyard property at Bridgeburg and the old electrical supply works in Toronto were disposed of, and the Hotpoint electrical appliance factory was removed from Stratford and consolidated with the Ward street works, in Toronto, this move being in line with the policy of concentrating manufacturing operations to secure the advantage of quantity production and increased efficiency.

After a careful survey of manufacturing plant and equipment, certain inactive and discontinued equipment has been eliminated from the fixed assets. The gross book value of the equipment in question exceeded the reserves held against same by $618,657, which amount was disposed of by writing off $120,918 and making a special appropriation from profit and loss account for the balance of $497,139.

New Equipment Purchased.

A amount of $635,734 was expended during the year, principally at the Peterborough Works, for new machinery and other manufacturing facilities, to improve quality, reduce costs, and increase productive capacity.

Julian C. Smith, of Montreal, who has been prominently identified with electric power and public utility enterprises in Canada for many years, was elected a director to fill the vacancy created by the resignation of F. Gordon Osler.

The retiring directors were all re-elected for another term, and following the annual meeting, the directors re-elected A. E. Dyment, chairman of the board; D. C. Durland, president, and Stephen Haas, vice-president.

PATENT ISSUED TO LOCAL MEN FOR SPONSONS

Detachable Device Invented By Messrs. Sharpe and Goodwin is Registered.

FOR CANOE SAFETY.

New Apparatus Makes Canoe Almost Untippable, It Is Claimed.

A patent has been issued to two local men on a device to make canoeing safer and to aid in rescues if a boat should be upset. The patentees are William L. Sharpe and W. Goodwin, and their invention is a detachable sponson.

The sponsons are of waterproof canvas, filled with kapok, and are fitted just under the gunwales of the canoe by means of special clamps, hinged to rods in the upper edges. As soon as the canoe starts to tip they swing out and form an air space which adds to the already great buoyancy of the kapok. A pair of the sponsons weigh seven pounds.

An added advantage is a canvas tape on the outside, which provides a grip for any person who falls into the water and needs support. With the sponsons attached, it is possible to climb in over the side of the canoe. The sponsons are also easily detachable and can be thrown to any person in the water at some distance.

Possibility of a "Locarno" Being Considered By Little Entente.

STAND TOGETHER.

VIENNA, March 31 (Canadian Press).—The possibility of a "Balkan Locarno" will be discussed at the next meeting of the Foreign Ministers of the "Little Entente" (Jugo-Slavia, Roumania and Czecho Slovakia). It is expected that the conference for the first time will define clearly the matters on which the Little Entente states can present a common front and a co-ordinated diplomacy.

REFUGEES TELL ABOUT ATTACKS BY CHINESE MOB

Party of British and Americans Stoned on Leaving Nanking.

CONDITION MENACING.

Flag On American Consulate at Chingkiang Torn Down By Crowd.

SHANGHAI, March 31 (Canadian Press). — A party of forty-seven British and Americans evacuated from Nanking by the United States destroyer "Hulbert" has reached the international settlement here with another story of excesses by mobs bent upon doing harm to foreigners. They said that before embarking at Nanking they were attacked and stoned by an angry mob.

As foreign refugees continue to find shelter within the barriers of the international settlement and the situation in the native quarter of Shanghai grows more menacing, with a new general strike in prospect, defence force authorities are impressed with the necessity of being fully prepared for all eventualities. Consequently they are steadily reinforcing the defences and are now engaged in setting up a great barbed wire barrier stretching the length of the Avenue Edward Seventh.

The general situation in the Yangtze Valley and in Shanghai is as strained as ever. Reports from up-river points show increasing anti-foreign agitation, especially in Nanking and Hankow.

American Flag Destroyed

Chinese at Chungking, on the Yangtze River in Szechwan Province, have torn down and destroyed the American flag on the United States Consulate.

Anti-Americanism there has grown to such proportions that United States business houses are being closed and Americans are concentrating near the water front. The consul and vice-consul are reported to have taken up quarters on the gunboat "Monocacy."

Six Killed at Nanking.

Chinese casualties from the Anglo-American bombardment of Socony Hill, Nanking, last Thursday were estimated by the Cantonese commander, Chiang Kai-Shek, in a statement today, as six killed and fifteen wounded, with the majority of the victims civilians. From forty to fifty houses were destroyed.

Chiang emphasized that a full and accurate report was not yet available and that these figures were subject to revision.

First Definite Report.

This is the first definite estimate of the number of Chinese casualties from Thursday's shelling, which was undertaken to protect foreigners on Socony Hill, who were menaced by soldiers in Cantonese uniforms. Fantastic figures as to the number of Chinese casualties have been circulated in China, one report saying two hundred thousand had been killed.

Chang said he had instructed the Nanking garrison commander to lodge a protest with the British and United States naval authorities against "what I consider the unjustified bombardment of the city."

"No notice was given us before the bombardment," he added, "and no time was allowed in which to take measures to protect foreign lives and property. Nationalist military authorities consider the bombardment a great indignity and our officers and men in Nanking are deeply aroused and incensed."

Changsha Evacuated.

LONDON, March 31 (Canadian Press).—All Britishers at Changsha, Hunan Province, except the Consul and the Mother Superior, are reported by Exchange Telegraph to have departed for Shanghai. One gunboat remains there.

RANEY'S BILL NOT REPORTED

Would Prevent Political Contributions From Many People.

LOST IN COMMITTEE.

TORONTO, March 31.— (Canadian Press.) — With little formality, the Privileges and Elections committee of the Legislature to-day, by a vote of seven to two refused, to report to the Legislature Hon. W. E. Raney's bill, which was designed to prevent political contributions by brewers, distillers, standard hotel keepers, public contractors, crown lessees and certain other incorporations.

Introducing his bill to the committee, Mr. Raney stated that the House was in favor of the principle of the bill and expressed the opinion that the committee should report favorably upon it.

THE TRANSPORTATION CRISIS

A curt notice published elsewhere in the Examiner to-night conveys to the people of Peterborough the news that the Peterborough Street Railway will suspend operations at 11 o'clock to-night and that the city will be without transportation facilities to-morrow, save those provided by the Cooney and Jopling company.

The sudden closing down of the system without warning, save an indefinite notice some weeks ago, is not the kind of treatment that the public expects to receive from a public body such as the Hydro Electric Commission.

On the other hand the emergency has been developing for a long time and as the Examiner has frequently pointed out the city council should have been ready with some practical means of dealing with the present situation.

Beyond making an offer to purchase the gas plant and street railway system at $150,000, an offer that was not entertained by the Hydro Commission, the city fathers have done nothing in preparation to meet the crisis created by the suspension of the operations of the street railway. They have assumed all along that there would not be a closing down of the system and the result is that they are caught now with no alternative policy.

It is a crisis that must be dealt with immediately.

Hundreds of workers have been dependent upon the street cars and buses for transportation to and from their place of employment and they and many other citizens will suffer as a result of the suspension of operations.

BRITISH NORTH AMERICA ACT UNAFFECTED BY CONFERENCE MINISTER OF JUSTICE ASSERTS

Says It Had the Principle of Unity and Liberty.

GREAT TRIBUTE.

Principle Had Been Advocated By Statesmen For Many Years.

OTTAWA, March 31. — Hon. Ernest Lapointe, Minister of Justice, resumed the debate on the Imperial conference resolution. He declared flatly that the contention that the findings of the 1926 conference could alter one jota of the British North America Act was "an utter and absolute absurdity." What the conference had done as to lay down certain premises, calculated to affirm and clarify certain principles more or less clearly recognized. It laid down definitely the principle of equality and adopted the principle of unity and liberty.

"The family," he said, "is a family of sisters, equal in their rights."

The Minister declared that it was a great tribute to the conference that the delegates had laid down the principle that the unity of the Empire was based on liberty, equality and autonomy.

Borden Avowed Principle.

He said it was not a new principle which had been placed on the conference resolution. It was a principle which had been advocated by statesmen on both side of politics for many years past, which had been put forward by the late lamented Sir Wilfrid Laurier, and which had been also advocated by Sir Robert Borden in later years.

"No man," said Mr. Lapointe, "had ever been so strongly in favor of equality of status than had Sir Robert Borden, and yet," he said, "my honorable friend, the present leader of the Opposition (Mr. Guthrie) is afraid of the word 'autonomy.'"

"I am not," said Mr. Guthrie, "nothing I have said would justify that statement."

Mr. Lapointe quoted from the expressed opinion of a former Conservative who had been present at the Versailles conference to prove that they had favored the principle of equality of status as between the Dominion and Great Britain.

He also quoted extensively from speeches of Sir Robert Borden, Hon. A. J. Doherty, Rt. Hon. Arthur

BAPTIST BILL GOES TO HOUSE

Request of Convention For Disciplinary Powers Passes Committee.

MUCH OPPOSITION.

OTTAWA, March 31. — Canadian Press. — A bill granting the Baptist convention of Ontario and Quebec disciplinary powers, was approved by the Private Bills Committee of the House of Commons to-day, after an extended discussion during which differences in convention were aired.

Opposition to the bill was led by Dr. T. T. Shields, of Toronto.

The contentious clause in the bill gives the convention power by a three fifths vote to "declare that any church, the conduct or attitude of which, in the opinion of the said convention, is not in harmony and co-operation with the work and objects of the said convention, shall cease to be entitled to send any delegates to the said convention, and thereupon any and all delegates of any such church in attendance at such meeting shall cease to be delegates and any church shall cease to be entitled to send delegates to any meeting of the said convention."

TWO RECOVERING FROM SHOOTING

Countess de Janze and Trafford Will Get Better, Say Internes.

PARIS, March 31. Canadian Press —Such improvement was shown in the condition of the Countess De Janze and Raymond V. De Trafford this morning that hospital internes believe they will recover. The Countess shot De Trafford as he was bidding her good bye at a railway station on Saturday, supposedly because his affection for her was waning, and then shot herself. For many hours they lingered between life and death.

Innocent Dog Is Victim Of Poisoner In West End Of City; Police Investigate

The dastardly poisoning of dogs has again broken out in the city, with the slaying, this morning, of a Belgian Shepherd, owned by Mrs. Gray Copping, 316 Margaret Avenue. Mrs. Copping had owned the dog for six years, and declares that it was the most innocent of pets, never harming anyone.

It went out this morning and in a few minutes came back to die in terrible agony.

Last year the atrocious laying of poison was carried out extensively in the south end of the city, and the police have today started an energetic campaign to discover the person who is now apparently operating in the west end residential section.

No Busses Or Cars On Streets Friday; Official Statement

Unexpected Blow Falls Late This Afternoon in Bald Announcement From Hydro — Street Railway Men Have No Definite Notice, They Say.

COONEY AND JOPLING WILL ENDEAVOUR TO CARRY WORKERS TO THE FACTORIES

Mayor Holloway Is Out of the City—Aldermen Have No Definite Plans, But May Discuss Matter at Meeting On Friday Night.

Peterborough will have no street car service after 11.00 o'clock tonight. This is the bare announcement made in the advertising columns of The Examiner tonight by the Hydro-Electric Power Commission, and local officials refused to say what further steps would be taken; their orders from headquarters were equally explicit and uninformative, they asserted.

"We have not information other than is contained in our advertisement. We received instructions from headquarters to stop operating everything on the Peterborough street railway system at 11.00 o'clock tonight," said J. L. Clifford, Superintendent of the Peterborough railway, when asked why this step was being taken in view of the fact that negotiation are under progress with the City Council for the taking over of the system.

Intimation that this step would be taken was given on February 12, he continued, and the men were warned at that time that their services would probably be dispensed with.

What would be done with the present equipment, Mr. Clifford could not say. Work is progressing at present in dismantling cars 14 and 15, two of the oldest cars on the system, all parts of any value being salvaged.

At any early hour this afternoon no notice had been posted in the barn nor had the men been told whether or not they would be required on duty tomorrow, one employee of the system told The Examiner.

Mr. Clifford intimated that some rebate would be allowed on tickets in possession of patrons of the system, although what steps would be taken he could not say.

The Examiner was unable to see Mayor Holloway as he was out of the city to-day, and is not expected back until sometime to-night. He is on city business in regard to the buying of road machinery.

City Clerk Armstrong did not know whether the city had made any arrangements to carry the citizen to work to-morrow.

Alderman Denne was of the opinion that the stopping of the railway to-night at eleven o'clock would bring things to a head, and that the Hydro-Electric Commission would then come across with some definite statement as to what the railway might be purchased for. Then it would be up to the citizens to say whether they wanted a radial railway system of some other means of conveyance.

Doubts Threat.

Edward Cooney of Cooney and Jopling, was somewhat doubtful that the Hydro would carry their threat into effect.

"If the street car system shuts down to-night we will endeavor as far as it is within our power to supply transportation for the people of Peterboro. Up to now we have been unable to obtain any definite information in this connection and as a result we have not as yet made arrangements for extra busses."

"If there is no street car system to-morrow we will have a bus running to Ashburnham; one on George street, and another running to Brownton. We will give a twenty minutes service commencing at 6 a.m. The George street bus will leave the north end of Water street at 6 a.m., and proceed south as far as Rye's. The Westclox bus will run on its regular schedule.

While there may be some confusion to-morrow morning, every effort will be made by us to ensure that factory employees will be enabled to reach their employment in time.

If the shut-down is carried out I will make adequate arrangements

CAVE DOUBTS PRESS REPORT

Doesn't Think Bourassa Said What He Is Reported About Privy Council.

DENIES STATEMENT.

LONDON, March 31. Canadian Press. — "I cannot believe Mr. Bourassa said anything of the sort," Lord Cave, the Lord Chancellor, said to-day, when his attention was drawn to a press despatch from Ottawa, which reported a speech of Henri Bourassa, independent member of the Canadian House of Commons, in urging abolition of the system of appeals to the Privy Council.

Mr. Bourassa was reported to have said that Lord Cave, when in Canada, had made enquiries recerning a Quebec marriage case, and to have asked: "What decision would make more trouble for the Protestants or Catholics?"

"There is no foundation for it whatever," Lord Cave added.

CONTINUE PROBE LIQUOR EXPORT

Possible That Investigation of O'Keefe Beverages, Ltd., Begin To-day.

QUESTION AGENTS.

TORONTO, March 31 (Canadian Press).—The export liquor business of the Toronto distilling firm of Gooderham and Worts, Ltd., again monopolized the attention of the Royal Commission on Customs yesterday. Investigation of this firm's export business is still incomplete. In answer to a question by one of the commissioners just before adjournment, R. L. Calder, K.C., counsel for the commission, said that he had one or two more witnesses for this morning. Then investigation of this particular firm will go over until next week when it is proposed to examine Herbert Hatch and L. J. McGuiness. These two witnesses are out of town, but will be available then. Under the name of Hatch & McGuiness, it was intimated during yesterday's sitting, they are instrumental in collecting a large part of the United States business done by Gooderham and Worts. It is possible that this afternoon, investigation of the O'Keefe Beverages, Ltd., may be started.

Further Evidence

Yesterday produced further evidence in regard to the methods adopted for transferring the whiskey distilled by Gooderham and Worts to United States buyers. From Niagara Falls, New York, came a wit-

COUNCIL DISCUSS HOME ECONOMICS

Occupies Attention of Council of Women Meeting at Ottawa.

OTTAWA, March 31 (Canadian Press).—Home economics and inter-Empire trade occupied the attention of the executive of the National Council of Women in session here yesterday. Mrs. J. A. Wilson, of Ottawa, the national president, announced at a luncheon that the text of the executive meeting was home economics. Hon. James Malcolm, Minister of Trade and Commerce, addressed the gathering on this subject and inter-Empire trade, and addresses were given at the afternoon session on "Adulteration of textiles" and "Standardization of canned goods."

Announcement was made by Mrs. W. Cowling Cullock, Regent of the Municipal Chapter, Independent Order of the Daughters of the Empire, that the I.O.D.E. will hold a British Empire shopping week in July.

Prettiest Girl Of France Seeks Job At Hollywood

NEW YORK, March 30 (United Press).—When Jacqueline Schalley, the "prettiest woman in France," arrived to-day aboard the French liner "Suffran," she told immigration officials she wanted to go to Hollywood to become a cinema star.

Beyond the definite ambition to visit filmdom's capital, the plans of the comely Jacqueline were so vague that it was decided to hold her at Ellis Island, pending further investigation. Friends are active in her behalf, and are hoping to have her released in a day or so.

In the meantime, Jacqueline must kick her dainty heels in the hard bunks at Ellis Island.

Claims Aliens Are Smuggled From Canada To U. S. In Wooden Coffins—Are Entered As Dead Bodies

HAMILTON, March 31.—Aliens, enclosed in coffins, have been smuggled into the United States as dead bodies, it was revealed in the evidence at the trial here of L. H. Michniewick, charged with theft and fraud.

Foreign witnesses in the case, touching on alien smuggling, said that these shipments in caskets were fairly common and highly successful.

Another favorite method for illegally crossing the border from Canada, it was said, was to purchase tickets for trans-Atlantic steamers sailing from New York. Possessors of such tickets had no trouble from U.S. immigration officials at the border, and on arrival in New York they sent the tickets back to Canada for a refund.

Cleveland Man Builds "Puff-Ball Inn" This Spring.

SOME WORK DONE

New Resort to be Completed by June First.

(By An Examiner Reporter)

CAMPBELLFORD, March 30.—Puff-Ball Inn is the name of the smart summer hotel which will be erected on McKenzie Island in the Trent River this Spring by Mr. Frank Dobscha of Cleveland. Much of the work has already been done, the foundation and boat houses and automobile garage having been built last fall and winter. A great deal of the material was drawn to the site while the snow was on the ground and everything is ready for the next stage of the construction which will be started on Thursday of this week, when Mr. Dobscha is expected to arrive at the island.

Mr. A. McKeel of town has been in charge of operations from the beginning last fall, and from all accounts the new resort with the airy, fanciful name will have no equal on the Trent River this summer.

It will comprise about twenty-five rooms in its two stories, The Examiner has been informed, and will have a Delco lighting system, and also a water system. Several log cabins will likely be put up this year probably for occupancy when the main buildings is to be completed by June 1st. It is understood that most of the accomodation has been booked already for this season.

The grounds, from the point of which the hotel will face out upon the river, embrace three hundred acres that invite a golf course and the other recreational features of such resorts. And it is understood that a golf course will eventually be laid out. Drives and walks already completed with an eye to the picturesque give promise of the cool pleasures they will afford the guests when the breezes from the river temper the summer's heat. It was reported that most of the prospective guests for 1927 are from Cleveland and that "Puff-Ball" will cater to rather exacting patrons.

Several transfers in the field of Agricultural Representatives were also announced by Mr. Martin. The Government, he said, had embarked on a new policy of switching these representatives from one section of the Province to another in order that they might familiarize themselves with all phases of the agricultural industry as it obtains in Ontario.

Assistant Representative Parrish of Middlesex County will succeed to the post of Representative, which he has been filling since the resignation of Representative Finn. F. S. Thomas of Fort William will be moved to Elgin County. D. E. McCrae will be moved from Glengarry County to Kenora. F. C. McCrae will leave the Peterboro Department for Glengarry, where he will be located in Alexandria. R. R. Fleming is to be transferred from Halton to Welland County. Representative Buchanan of Elgin County goes to Port Arthur.

The Peterboro County office will be filled by J. B. Nelson, and the Halton County office by D. A. Andrew. Both men have had wide experience with the Department of Agriculture in the capacity of Assistant Representatives.

ALARM SPREADS OVER EPIDEMIC

Reports Show 1573 Cases Registered For Treatment at Montreal.

GRAVE SITUATION.

MONTREAL, Que., March 31. — Canadian Press. — The epidemic of typhoid fever in Montreal continues to rage without abatement, and last evening 1573 cases had been registered for treatment in the hospitals. All the city institutions are completely filled and emergency hospitals are rapidly being occupied.

Meanwhile, side by side with the spread of the malady has arisen the controversy as to its cause. It is contended on the one hand that the typhoid had its origin in contaminated milk, and on the other hand that it was caused by impure water. No definite decision has yet been reached, and the public are as mystified as ever.

Twenty thousand inoculations have taken place within the last week or so, and the medical men are still busy every hour of the day administering these preventatives.

Hospitals Overcrowded.

A grave situation has been created in the hospitals due to their being filled with typhoid sufferers .The fever is one of the longest in taking its course, and the result of the hospital over crowding has been to check the general work of the hospitals in the way of patients suffering from other maladies.

"Picture the misery and suffering entailed by 50 or 60 patients, all in the prime of life, breadwinners or wives, suffering from early cancer the only cure for which is early operation," said Dr. A. K. Haywood, superintendent of the Montreal general hospital today. "Their names are placed on the waiting list. Their turn comes in from three to six months, and at the operation, the doctor shakes his head, curses the state of affairs preventing the sufferer from this disease obtaining an early operation, and notifies the family that it is now too late to operate."

This state of affairs applied generally in all maladies now calling for treatment, Dr. Haywood intimated, but due to the filling up of the hospitals with typhoid sufferers, no help could be expedited.

MILLBROOK C.G.I.T.

Girls Gather at Homes of President To Practice Play.

MILLBROOK March 31.—The Wide Awakes group Canadian Girls in Training held its meeting on Friday evening at the home of the President Miss Hazel McMahon, twenty of more members and friends being in attendance.

A brief business session was followed by practice for the play the group is preparing for the basket social it has in view.

The quilt the group has been making to send to a missionary teacher in Alberta was completed through the kindness of Mrs. F. McMahon, and was on view on Friday evening; the centre block is lettered in blue, on white ground, these being the official colors for the Canadian Girls in Training, "Wide Awakes C.G.I.T., Millbrook." The quilt is a handsome one, and of generous dimensions. The task of putting the blocks together, lining, and quilting was all done by Mrs. McMahon, and a hearty vote of thanks was passed and tendered to this good friend of the organization.

Music, and other entertainment, with the service of dainty refreshments, filled out a very pleasant evening, and it was past midnight when final good-nights were spoken and the guests left for home.

The meeting this week is on Thursday night, at the leader's home; practice for the play will take up the greater part of the time from now on until the public entertainment is over.

'Tame" Bear Claws Boy Who Tries To Pet Him

NEW YORK, March 31.—A 7-year-old boy tried to make friends with a wrestling bear outside a Brooklyn theater yesterday and was badly clawed before he could be rescued.

A group of children returning from school noticed the bear, being exercised by his keeper in a fenced alley. Robert Shreves climbed the gate and dropped into the enclosure.

The bear growled but the boy walked toward the animal with hand extended and the keeper, who had never known the bear to show ferocity, made no attempt to prevent the meeting. As the child came within reach, the bear reared back on its haunches and buffeted him across the side of the head. Doctors said the boy would live, barring complications.

Housetop Boulevards Proposed In New York

NEW YORK, March 31.—A boulevard on the housetops is the latest suggestion to relieve traffic. John K. Hencken, an engineer, suggests buildings of uniform height be built along the West Side waterfront, from the Battery to Yonkers, more than 30 miles. The project as outlined would cost $660,000,000 he said.

ALBERTA'S CASE BEFORE BOARD

Presented Along Line of Several Submissions Filed With Board.

HAS LARGE TARIFF.

OTTAWA, March 31 (Canadian Press).—The whole of yesterday's hearing of the freight rates investigation before the Board of Railway Commissioners was taken up by Sidney B. Woods in presenting Alberta's case for rates reductions along the line of the several submissions filed with the board in behalf of that province. At adjournment he had not completed his address.

Having dealt at considerable length with the reasons Alberta and British Columbia demanded the removal of the mountain differential Mr. Woods proceeded to point out that Alberta originated as great an amount of traffic as any other part of Canada and considerably more than most sections, and that operating cost was actually higher in some parts than in Alberta but no other province suffered as much from discrimination in the matter of rates.

It was an astonishing thing, declared Mr. Woods, that in the whole of the nearly 25 years since Alberta became a province the railways had maintained a tariff of freight rates 5 per cent less than the maximum rates they had power to levy under the rulings of the board. No other province, he maintained, had been so harshly treated and it was remarkable that the province had made such splendid progress in spite of the handicap he complained of. It was a dangerous thing to maintain such a discriminatory rate against any part, least of all against a progressive community only on the threshold of development. It was giving an undue advantage to Manitoba and other places, which was a vested interest as was very clearly shown in the Regina rates case some 15 or 16 years ago.

Result of Mileage

This discrimination, counsel claimed, existed as a result of the constructive mileage applying between Fort William and Winnipeg in the rate structure which gives Winnipeg a 20 per cent reduction from the standard rates, while the cities of Edmonton and Calgary have only a 4 per cent reduction. He argued that this construction of the rate structure was partially caused by the agreement entered into by the Province of Manitoba and the Canadian Northern Railway and was therefore considered a vested right by Manitoba; but this should not be a reason to allow this structure to be frozen into the Western rates for all time, and that the rates should be equalized, however brought about, by removing discrimination that now exists against points west.

The roads are drying a little.

So far, the frosts have not injured the meadows nor the fall grains.

Several bush owners have increased the size of their plants. The maple sap run is good.

There is still a depth of frost in the ground, but there is very little water on fields.

There really seems to be every appearance of an earlier spring than has been for several years.

The store, for ninety years known as the Choate store, did its last business yesterday. To-day it is closed for stock-taking, and when it re-opens it will be under the management of Rufus Payne and Hilliard Darling.

SENATE PASSES DIVORCE BILL FOR ONTARIO

Sponsor Says Impossible To Dispose All Applications at Ottawa.

NUMBER INCREASES.

Urged That Absolute Separation Could Be Granted By Parliament.

OTTAWA, Ont., March 31 (Canadian Press).—The bill to create a divorce court for Ontario passed the Senate yesterday. Senator Willoughby, who sponsored the bill, and who is chairman of the Divorce Committee, said that for this year there were 226 applications for divorce, and of these it would be impossible to dispose of 50. The applications for divorce had become so numerous that the Senate was unable to dispose of them, and this caused hardship among applicants. In 1920 a bill creating a divorce court for Ontario was carried in the Senate but rejected in the Commons, but at that time the necessity for such a court was not as great as now. All provinces in Canada had divorce courts but Ontario and Quebec.

In Canada publication of divorce proceedings had been forbidden, and in this reform the Senate had led the way. It had also put men and women on an equality as far as divorce was concerned.

In the five-year periods from 1867 to 1926 divorce granted in Canada had grown from two for the period from 1867 to 1871 to 607 from 1922 to 1926. The total number of divorces granted since Confederation was 1,214, of which 638 were granted to husbands and 576 to wives. Of these, Ontario had 1,002, Quebec 136, Manitoba 29, Saskatchewan 14, Alberta 21, British Columbia 4, Prince Edward Island 1, and the North-West Territories 7. In 1922 there were 1,368 divorce decrees granted by American courts to applicants who were married in Canada, and of these 462 were granted by the State of Michigan.

Senator Willoughby urged a divorce court for Ontario, as no other relief but absolute separation could be granted by Parliament. He did not propose the bill to apply to Quebec. There were strong objections in that province to divorce and these should be respected. But there was a large majority in the other parts of Canada favoring divorce. A divorce court could deal with alimony and the custody of children which the Senate could not.

Senator W. Ross was in sympathy with the bill, and on a former occasion had moved the adoption of a similar measure. The bill gave no more reasons for divorce than exist at present. The fear on the part of the public that the means of divorce would become enlarged and divorce made easier under this law were not justified.

Senator Beique said: "Under the rules of my Church I am not permitted to vote for a bill of divorce of any kind, and I have no intention to violate that rule, but I must say if it was not the rule of my Church I would gladly support this bill." He believed that divorce was becoming a menace to society. "If, however," he said, "divorce has to exist, it is better under the courts of each province than of Parliament."

Senator Barnard said he respected the opinions of those opposed to divorce, but we had to face the conditions that existed. The proposed bill created no rights for divorce but transferred the jurisdiction from Parliament to the courts of Ontario.

Hon. George P. Graham was opposed to divorce, and would therefore oppose the bill. He did not believe any civil authority had the right to separate the legally married. He looked upon the bill as making divorce easier. He would make divorce more difficult. He thought divorce was largely obtained, not because of transgressions, but because one of the parties desired someone else. The bill passed the Senate on division.

BRITISH NORTH AMERICA ACT

Meighen and other Conservatives to prove that that party had preached the doctrine laid down definitely at the last conference and which had been accepted by Lloyd George, Bruce of Australia, Milner, and other Imperial statesmen.

Status Had Evolved.

The new doctrine was the result of evolution and long written opinions of careful thought and of working out of ideals. The British crown had, in the opinion of Mr. Lapointe, increased its prestige by reason largely of its recognition of the rights of democracies.

"I have dealt with that school," said the Minister, "which declares that we have done too much and gone too far at this conference. I will now deal with that school which claims that we did nothing."

Mr. Lapointe hereupon proceeded to recount the work done with respect to treaty negotiation and other important matters.

"Now," he said, "Canadian treaties will be argued by a plenipotentiary appointed on recommendation of His Majesty the King.

"These and other recommendations of the conference the Minister said there was no need for legislation. All that was necessary was harmony and a common working out of the recommendations.

Department Subdivided.

When the House opened Premier King moved that on Monday, April 4, and on all Mondays subsequent until prorogation government business should have precedence over all other, excepting questions and motions for the production of papers. The motion was carried without discussion or dissent. This would indicate that it is the general consensus of opinion in the House That prorogation shall take place before the Easter recess.

A resolution moved by Premier King providing that "it is expedient to amend the Act respecting the Department of Marine and Fisheries to provide that the Department shall consist of the marine branch and the fisheries branch and that two officers may be appointed by the Governor-in-Council as Deputy Minister of Marine and Deputy Minister of Fisheries respectively" was passed.

A further resolution moved by the Postmaster-General to the effect that "it is expedient to amend the Post Office Act and to reduce the postage rate on certain newspapers and periodicals from one and one-half cents to one cent" was also passed.

The Minister of Justice also passed a resolution providing that "it is expedient to amend the Dominion Election Act and to provide that the chief electoral officer shall be appointed by resolution of the House of Commons and shall be paid a salary of $6,000 per annum."

In reply to a question by Garland of Bow River, Hon. Charles Dunning, Minister of Railways, stated that it was hoped that the question of the renewal of the Carillon lease would be threshed out in the Railway and Canals Committee.

CONTINUE PROBE

ness called F. H. Boyd, who said he had acted as "agent" for a United States purchaser of liquor in Rochester. The name of the buyer was given as Charles Currner, and the duties of the agent, according to evidence, covered payment for liquor and seeing it safe aboard a boat at Port Dalhousie.

Mr. Calder questioned the witness at length regarding the seizure of an automobile belonging to him when it attempted to cross the international bridge at Niagara Falls last week.

"Some years ago," Mr. Boyd replied, when asked if he had ever handled liquor across the international bridge. He admitted the seizure of his car, but claimed that he had loaned it to one McMahon, another resident of Niagara Falls, at the time of the seizure. He denied that McMahon was working either with or for him.

Deny Selling

Witnesses examined thus far have denied positively that liquor has been sold in Ontario in defiance of provincial law. George Hardy, who followed Mr. Boyd on the stand, was asked a number of questions on this point. Mr. Hardy runs a fleet of motor trucks in Toronto and said he had rented one or two of them to Gooderham and Worts to handle their business at times.

"Do you take orders for liquor yourself?" asked counsel.

"No," the witness said.

"I have been instructed that since the commission has been sitting here customers who have telephoned you for liquor have been told that condition were too difficult to let them have it," pursued Mr. Calder.

Again came a positive denial, and Mr. Hardy supplemented it by saying that he had no supply of liquor from which deliveries could be made.

An interesting sidelight on the methods adopted in connection with orders for the distillery came from L. D. Sinclair, who takes many of the orders received by Gooderham and Worts. He said that when orders were telephoned in from points in Canada for export goods, the company communicated with the Postal Telegraph Company at Niagara Falls, New York, and had them send through a wire covering the order. Mr. Sinclair agreed that this was done because the orders originated in Canada, and the company was anxious to show them as American business. The orders in question covered shipments to the United States.

John J. Fitzpatrick, a traveller who covers the Windsor district for Gooderham and Worts, informed the commission that his company now has warehouse space with Hiram Walker and Sons at Walkerville.

Mrs. Rocco Perri, of Hamilton, was one of the principal witnesses during the morning. She will be recalled again in connection with telephone messages coming from her home to Toronto which the commission counsel thinks may have covered orders for liquor.

A tramp in the rain, then—lame muscles

WAS SO STIFF AND SORE HE COULD HARDLY BEND

As good as new next morning after simple home treatment

After tramping around all day with wet feet while out gunning, a Philadelphia sportsman found himself so stiff and lame he could hardly bend. "I went to work but had to come home," he writes. "I applied Sloan's Liniment freely and went to bed. I was as good as new next morning, thanks to the quick and sure action of Sloan's."

Sloan's gives real relief because it doesn't just deaden the pain. It helps the body to throw off the cause of the pain.

Apply a little lightly, without rubbing. Right away the stiffness and pain ease up, as fresh healing blood is sent to the sore spots.

Get a bottle of Sloan's today and have it on hand for the first emergency. All druggists—35 cents.

A BRITISH TRIUMPH.

As members of the British family, Canadians naturally feel a glow of pride at the achievement of Major Segrave, the English driver, who in an English-built car has broken all motor speed records by setting up a speed of over 200 miles an hour.

The wonderful qualities of the machine he controlled and the iron nerve of the man himself were the factors that made the astounding performance possible.

There was not a moment during that wild drive—thirty miles an hour faster than a car had ever been driven before—that Major Segrave was not gambling with death, with the odds heavily against him.

His friend, J. G. Parry-Thomas, another famous English racing driver, was instantly killed just a few weeks ago while travelling at a speed of 160 miles an hour, but that terrible accident failed to daunt Segrave, who was determined to break the world's record, even though he knew that his chance of meeting the same fate as Parry-Thomas was far from being a remote one.

British workmanship and British skill and courage have combined to create a speed record far beyond the dreams of a generation ago.

THE EXAMINER'S CONFERENCE.

The Examiner's first staff conference, which brought together Examiner news correspondents from the whole district and enabled them and the local staff to establish a new and closer relationship, was an unqualified success.

The fact that so many people in this vicinity are engaged in securing news for The Examiner is an evidence of the change that has come over the business of publishing a newspaper in recent years.

The Examiner is no longer merely a city newspaper; its circulation covers a wide section of Central Ontario, and is constantly expanding as its ability to cover completely and accurately the news of the surrounding district is realized.

As a matter of fact, The Examiner's correspondence service from district points costs today exactly six times as much as did the telegraphic news service used by this paper before the war.

Splendid loyalty and keen interest on the part of the many reporters here yesterday indicate that the splendid service already contributed by the newsgatherers of The Examiner will be even more efficient in the future.

"YES, WE HAVE NO . . . ."

A publicity man for one of those progressive Florida communities which pay their overhead out of the pockets of tourists sends along for free publication in The Examiner an article primarily designed to attract attention to the charms of the city in which he is interested.

And then he adds: "I'd like to send you a box of grapefruit or oranges, but if you can get away from the old desk for a couple of weeks and come down here, I'll golf and swim and bowl with you, fill you full of grapefruit and oranges and send you back a new man."

Now, what chance has a press agent like that to get anywhere?

If he had only sent along the box of fruit and said nothing about swimming and other recreations he might have got away with it.

But when he suggests what might have been and follows up with what is never likely to be, he just naturally creates a feeling that if it comes to a choice between a blank space in the paper or publishing his article the blank wins.

His technique is bad—that's all.

THE CHAMBER OF COMMERCE.

The report presented by President George A. Gillespie at the annual meeting of the Peterborough Chamber of Commerce throws fresh light upon the manifold activities of that organization, and upon the efficient manner in which it and its allied bodies are contributing community service.

President Gillespie was able to record a splendid year's work in which in many different ways the Chamber of Commerce and its allies, the Peterborough Branch of the Ontario Motor League, the Trent Waterway Development Association, the Manufacturers' Association, and other allies, have been able to advance the interests of Peterborough and district.

Such a recital of tangible achievements should do much to make it easy for the Chamber of Commerce to increase its membership.

It has made good.

Each year has seen new evidence of its ability to serve the community.

There are in Peterborough numbers of good citizens who could add to the prestige and effectiveness of the organization, and they should be members of the Chamber.

It is hoped that their enlistment will follow the splendid reports made at the annual meeting, and the enthusiasm displayed on that occasion by executive and members.

MOVING OLD SETTLERS.

An important experiment in the remaking of Ontario will follow the recent announcement by Hon. William Finlayson, Minister of Lands and Forests, of his reforestation plans. It is proposed to assist settlers now living on poor land in the rocky portions of Muskoka, Parry Sound, Victoria, Haliburton, Hastings and Frontenac to remove to the rich lands of Northern Ontario, leaving their old holdings to be again forested. Three townships in Haliburton will be the scene of initial action this year, and on the success of the try-out will largely depend the plans for the future.

It is recognized by the Government that certain areas in Old Ontario are not suited for agriculture, owing to the poorness of the soil. Past Governments have allowed settlers to be made, but it is thought the time has now arrived to make economic wrong. Settlers were eager to occupy these townships because they came on the heel of the lumbermen, when wood for building was cheap and markets for farm produce were at hand. As the woods operations receded the market declined, and the thin soil soon proved unprofitable. On the other hand, the soil is well suited for forests, and, left to nature, a good crop of pine and other woods will spring up.

There is one township in Haliburton in which there are only twenty-five residents, and several schools have fewer than five pupils each. The machinery to maintain schools and municipal government under such circumstances is unduly expensive, and both the residents and the Province lose thereby.

It is proposed to move the 150 people in the three Haliburton townships to some point in Northern Ontario where there will be good land, a market for products, and companionship for the newcomers. They will be asked to exchange their land in Haliburton for land in the North, the Government providing transportation for all concerned, together with their furniture, live stock, implements, and such portions of their present houses as they would like to move. When the old townships are abandoned they will be sealed up against settlement to allow the forest to grow up, and forest workers and rangers will be employed to guard the trees. In the North the Government will provide such modern necessities as a community hall for local gatherings, including church services.

Already Mr. Finlayson has received endorsation for his proposal and many offers of co-operation. The plan sounds radical, but, after all, it is founded on economic justice and common sense.—The Globe.

THE RACES IN CANADA.

In a speech made at the Montreal Reform Club, Senator Belcourt spoke of the possibility or even the probability that the control of public affairs in Canada may pass to immigrants in twenty-five or fifty years.

"There are those who see that English and French should seriously reflect that the real danger is that, one day, governmental control may pass from the hands of the two founding races, to be taken up by the invading mass, whose languages have already become established in some parts of the West. Experts tell us that the country can absorb up to 1,600,000 people per year; and we have not, like the people to the south of us, thought of limiting them."

The moral which the Senator was trying to drive home was that the future would hold occasion for greater unity than ever between English and French. The advocacy of unity is statesmanlike, and Senator Belcourt is sincere in his championship of the rights of the French minority. But when he speaks of the probability or even possibility of both English and French being swamped by newcomers of other races he seems to be unduly alarmed. During the decade from 1911 to 1921 the total increase of the population of Canada was 1,581,840. The British increase was nearly 67 per cent. of the total, and the British and French increase together was 86.6 per cent., leaving only 13.4 per cent. for all other races, not a very alarming situation. It may be said that the decade from 1911 to 1921 was exceptional because it included the war years, in which the volume of immigration was small. But the percentage of the various elements of population in 1921, the result of all the immigration since 1871, tells much the same story. The British percentage was 55.40 and the French 27.91, a total of 83.31, leaving only 16.69 for all other elements of the population. Between 1901 and 1921 the British and French percentage declined from 87.73 in 1901 to 83.31 in 1921. All of this decline took place in the decade from 1901 to 1911 when the volume of immigration was very great. But even at the rate of 1901 to 1911 it would take a long time for the foreign-born element to become so large as to be formidable.

It is misleading in this respect to take the population of foreign origin in bulk. For those who are nervous about foreigners there is comfort in the fact that these foreigners—as we call them for purposes of convenience—are divided among so many different races, and the percentage in each case is small. The highest is the German 3.35 per cent., the next the Russian 1.90 per cent. There might conceivably be danger if the members of any one race were so numerous as to be able to aspire to domination, but this is far from being the case. There is no bond of union between foreigners as a whole, and no motive for any union which would endanger our institutions or our future. There is nothing in the present situation of Europe which would lead Italians or Germans or Russians to look back wistfully to the country of their origin and desire to keep up their old allegiance or that of their forefathers. The thought which must dominate their minds is that they are far better off here than they would be in the old land and far better off under British and Canadian government than under the rule of any European continental power.

Any kind of foreign European domination here may be dismissed as beyond the scope of reasonable probability. Those who are afraid that Canada will become, not more European, but more American, need be in no great fear of the European newcomers. The laws of the United States dealing with immigration are far more stringent than ours, so that European foreigners in Canada would have nothing to gain by working for annexation to the United States.

We have used the word foreigners for purposes of convenience, but the term is not fairly applicable to many persons whose origin is European in the continental sense, but who are good Canadians, and who regard this as the land of hope for themselves and their children. We agree with Senator Belcourt in his plea for the unity of the British and French races, but we would make the same plea in regard to all who are making this country their home. There was a time when the racial and religious differences of British and French were regarded by some as serious obstacles to unity. If that problem has been solved, and it is at least in a fair way toward solution, the two races together ought surely to be able to assimilate the much smaller elements to which we have referred and to make all work together for the common interests and ideals of Canada.—London Advertiser.

EDITORIAL NOTES AND COMMENT.

It will take some time for our neighbors to laugh off that 203-mile speed record set up by Col. Seagrave.

Mr. Woodsworth, M.P., thinks that Canadian citizens should leave China. And doubtless there are many of them who would like to take his advice.

The fact that T. L. Church, M.P., is in Vancouver with Varsity Grads may possibly explain the despatch with which business is being transacted at Ottawa.

The little red school house is a costly edifice when it only houses three or four pupils.

The Liquor Control Act has gone through the Legislature unchanged, except for several minor amendments. It is significant that only a handful of members was present for the final reading of the bill.

MONTREAL GRAIN AND PRODUCE

MONTREAL, Que., March 31—(Canadian Press)—A feature of the export trade in grain in the Montreal market yesterday was the marked increase in the demand from continental buyers for Canadian western barley and a very fair amount of business was accomplished for May loading. There was also some demand from the United Kingdom for Manitoba spring wheat and sales of a few loads were made for nearby shipment.

There was an improved demand from local exporters for grain in the domestic market and sales of No. 1 Northern wheat were made at thirteen cents per bushel over the Winnipeg May Option, C.I.F. bay ports, and tough No. 4 barley at 8 3-4c per bushel over the May option, C.I.F. Montreal. The trade in car lots of coarse grains was rather quiet and prices were unchanged.

The demand for spring and winter wheat grades of flour continued quiet, but prices were steady.

The millfeed market was fairly active with a firm undertone. Prices for standard grades of rolled were steady with a small trade passing.

Prices for all grades of eggs were well maintained under a steady demand. The receipts were 2,414 cases.

Owing to the very mild weather prevailing and the more liberal supplies of potatoes coming forward an easier feeling developed in the local market and prices were reduced ten to fifteen cents per bag. Sales of odd cars of Quebec varieties were made at $1.10 to $1.15 per bag of ninety pounds in bulk, ex-track.

CHICAGO CATTLE

CHICAGO, March 31 (Canadian Press)—Cattle receipts 9,000; generally steady, heavy steers active; grades slow and uneven; best heavy steers 13.50; fat cows firm, spots higher; bulls mostly 6.75 to 8.25 on weight; medium offerings; yearling vealers 9.50 to 10.50, to big packers; shippers 12.00 to 14.00.

Hogs receipts 18,000; Market closing active; light hogs generally 10.00 to 10.50; butchers steady; top 11.05; bulk 150 to 200 lb. averages 11.15 to 11.60; most 210 to 250 lb. butchers 10.65 to 11.15; top 260 to 300 lbs. 10.40 to 10.65; bulk packing sow 9.50 to 9.75; strong weight slaughter pigs upward to 11.60; bulk 11.00 to 11.40; shippers took 6,000; estimated holdover 11,000.

Sheep receipts 12,000; fat lambs closing mostly 250 lower than yesterday; late bulk wooled lambs 16.00 to 16.50; heavy lambs 15.75 to 16.00; clipped lambs 14.25 to 15.25; wooled culls 12.25 to 13.00; sheep scarce nominally strong; feeding and shearing lambs steady 14.25 to 14.75; top 15.00.

CHICAGO GRAIN

CHICAGO, March 31 (Canadian Press)—Suspicous crops conditions in this country and general expectance that unofficial estimates Friday of a probable large yield had a bearish effect yesterday on wheat. The close in the wheat market was easy 3-8c to 7-8c net lower, corn 1-8 to 1-4 to 5-8c off, oats 1-1c to 1-2c down and provisions unchanged to a setback of 35 cents.

The trade here began to focus attention on domestic predictions of future moisture and of moderate temperatures and on gossip about domestic monthly private crop summaries for April. There was also talk of probable increased clearances of wheat this week from Argentina.

Late weakness too, shown by the Winnipeg wheat market found ready reflection here, especially as earlier the current advices from Winnipeg had emphasized assertions that the backward spring in Canada might affect the size of wheat acreage. On the other hand, estimates were received that to-day's export purchases of North American wheat totalled 600,000 bushels. There were also advices which tend to confirm reported abandonment of 2,000,000 acres of wheat in Kansas.

VOICE OF PEOPLE

Letters to be printed in the Voice of the People column must be received at The Examiner office on the day before it is desired to have them published.

A LITTLE COMMENDATION

Since the Hydro-Electric put on buses in Peterboro, I have been a daily patron. The regularity and punctuality of the buses and street cars for the last year or so has been remarked by many. The scene at the corner of George and Charlotte streets each week-day morning from 6.40 to 6.45 is one of the finest examples of co-ordination and clock-work regularity that one could wish to see. In less than five minutes, three street cars and four buses arrive, each usually filled to overflowing with men and women on their way to work, and in less time than it takes to write this they are on their various ways. And this is repeated at frequent intervals throughout the day. If there is a surly or disobliging operator, I have yet to meet him. W. P.

A SERIOUS CHARGE

To the Editor of The Examiner:

Sir,—It has been for some time a question in the minds of Canadians why it is that our brightest minds go to the U.S. almost without exception. Now comes Dr. Tory, the Chairman of the National Research Council of Canada and President of the University of Alberta, who says in an address delivered under the auspices of The Royal Canadian Institute in the Convocation Hall of the University of Toronto, that the answer to that question is that "Canadians have neither the brains, courage or will to employ them." This is a serious charge and means that Canadians are so busy looking for the plums themselves that they do not want the highly-trained and capable men for positions, but prefer to keep them for themselves, regardless of consequences. Canada cannot get on if this is a fact, and on such a high authority it must be taken as a fact—that while the U.S. wants and has the "will to employ" our leading men with energy, drive and brains, our Canadian democracy has no such wish, but wants to keep the plums for themselves, though unfit to handle them. If such is the case there is no hope for improvement and we must continue to lose our highly-educated young men because numbers count and where untrained people, both male and female, can get the support from their friends, it is useless for the trained to expect preferment. There is a certain feeling in human nature which resents any form of superiority, a sort of jealous feeling, and when a position is opened from any cause, one of the multitude is almost sure to get it for that reason in preference to the better man. The very best life-blood of this country which we are paying so much to train, is literally being hounded out of Canada by the numbers of those who want the "job" for one of themselves. If this is really the case as Dr. Tory says, then the best thing we can do is to give up the immense expense that education costs us now and let "the riff-raff" run the show. Even the very people who want their sons and daughters educated—when it comes to the pinch, will vote against them, seeming unable to overcome a feeling that they do not want to be put out of the running themselves and that no "class of trained and educated" people is to be allowed to monopolise positions, even if they are the only ones fit for them. The U.S. is not the only country that knows and does better in this particular. All other countries, including even China, pays homage to its trained and educated men and women. Unless we can get over this feeling of jealousy and learn to see the great advantage we are throwing away we will go behind. It is time we make mistakes sometimes about our untrained selves as well as in having a feeling of envy. We often think we "know" just as much as "they" do. It is surprising how easy it is to reason ourselves into a feeling of satisfaction with ourselves. But our untrained reasoning powers are not good and all make mistakes we do not see. It is most important that when no less a person than the chief of our greatest and most important body, "The Council of National Research" speaks, we should listen, unless we are determined always to prefer the commonplace to those who are more capable.

—"One of the Commonplace."

FROM HAVELOCK BOYS

Havelock, March 29, 1927.

Dear Sir,—If possible I should like the accompanying letter printed in Thursdays paper. You might also add a note that of the 18 boys in the Continuation school, 13 signed or desired to sign this, I was uncertain, I could not be reached on account of quarantine and only 3 were decidedly against it.

Wilbert H. Bush.

Havelock, Ont., March 25, 1927.

Mr. Editor,—We have heard considerable talk around town and have read in your paper that there are some people who would abandon the Continuation School Cadet Corps. We wonder if these people know what the cadet corps has done for us and the school. Do they know

(1) That before the Cadet Corps was organized there was absolutely no place or club to provide clean, healthy and educational amusement for Havelock Continuation School boys.

(2) That the discipline of the school has improved almost 100 per cent since the corps was brought into being.

(3 That before the time of the cadets it was almost impossible to keep a boys' club going owing to lack of discipline.

Some people object to the time taken up by the Corps. Do they know that in the 1925-26 term only four hours of school time were taken up by the cadet work and since October 1926 not one second of school time has been used. How does this compare with other schools? In most schools about one half-hour of every day is taken up for physical training alone.

What club that boys may join will provide the benefits of the Cadet Corps in the proper hours for a school pupil? There is none which we know of that will do this between four o'clock and six p.m. and never keep a boy out later than 8.45 p.m. Now consider, if our Cadet corps is done away with, is the town prepared to replace it with an adequate gymnasium, which will cost them fifty times as much and not give better results. Not that we should not have a gym—nearly all schools of our size have. At our inspection last year people saw what Havelock boys can do if they get a chance. Now are we going to get that chance? Open your eyes and your pocket-books, and either leave the Cadet Corps alone, or better still, boost it and give us a gymnasium. Every fair-minded citizen should investigate this matter for himself, and not take someone else's work and knock the corps. Always keep in mind that cadet training entails no military obligations.

GOOD NON-STARCHY VEGETABLES

The non-starchy vegetables contain the smallest amount of food value of any foods which are used in our daily diet, and yet, in many ways, they are the most valuable foods. They contain the largest quantity of organic minerals which are as necessary to the body as the foundation is to a house. These minerals form a vital part of the nucleus of the nerve, bone and blood-building cells.

These non-starchy vegetables supply bulk material and can be used with the most concentrated foods, such as proteins and starches and, used in this way, they furnish a medium through which those foods high in calorie value can be easier digested.

The following are some of the best non-starchy vegetables:

Celery may be used with benefit, either in the cooked or raw form, at any meal in the day. This is one vegetable which seems to agree with everyone. The flavor changes according to the cooking-time. Thirty minutes is sufficient, but if celery is cooked two hours it develops a delicate flavor entirely different.

Spinach, Beet tops, Turnip tops, Mallow, Lettuce and Kale should be prepared by washing carefully and cooking in their own juices. Put a cover on the pan and allow these vegetables to cook slowly for about ten minutes, then turn the fire up and cook for five minutes more. The first ten minutes of slow cooking will draw the juice from the leaves so that they can be cooked in their own juices.

String Beans may be secured the year around, either fresh or in cans. This is a very good canned vegetable to use in the winter time, especially in the colder parts of North America where the fresh vegetables are not available.

Asparagus is another non-starchy vegetable which may be used the year around; if canned asparagus is substituted for the fresh during the winter time or whenever the fresh asparagus is not in season.

Summer Squash, Cucumber and Chayotes are all in the non-starchy squash family. Summer squash is available during the summer months only, but cucumbers may be secured nearly the whole year around even though they are more expensive in certain seasons than others. The chayotes are a Mexican squash procurable in the south-west only.

Beets, Carrots, Parsnips, Turnips and Oyster plant may be used as non-starchy vegetables if they are very small and tender. The peel should never be removed, but these vegetables should be well washed with a vegetable brush and cooked in a small amount of water.

Egg plant is a good non-starchy vegetable which is usually spoiled by frying in grease. It may be cut into small pieces and boiled or baked in the oven, but should never be fried.

DR. FRANK CRANE'S DAILY EDITORIAL

FIRE

By Dr. Frank Crane.

The most important invention of the human race was the discovery of fire.

Nobody knows who made the first fire. The Greeks had an interesting tradition that it was stolen from the gods by Prometheus and given to man. Some think that it is of volcanic origin.

Whatever its origin it has enabled man to be independent of place.

By means of it he can inhabit wintry zones and he can also use it, as in steam boilers and otherwise, as a most important tool to increase the productivity of his hands.

At any rate fires are very old in the history of the human race and go back to such time as "the memory of man runneth not to the contrary."

Some recent writer called attention to the fact that the amusements and comforts of today are based upon the necessary actions of yesterday.

That is, little girls play with dolls because for ages their mothers had been nursing babies.

Baseball is a great sport because our ancestors used to wield tree limbs, run, and throw missiles, throwing, running and batting being the elements of the game.

The earliest communal center, that is the focus about which any group gathered, was a fire.

The community fire of the Indians about which they held their pow-wows has its place deep in the instincts of the race. It is for this reason that the steam radiator or hot-air furnace can never take the place of the open fire.

There is a pleasure about sitting around the glowing coals or burning wood which appeals to our strongest instincts. In such manner our ancestors gathered around the central fire.

Even in coming days, when all residences may be heated by electricity and kept at summer temperature during winter, the open fire will have its place. It not only has a practical use, but it appeals very strongly to sentiment.

HYDRO TO UNITE THREE SYSTEMS

Amalgamation Of Eastern Ontario Branches Forecast By Commissioner.

PULP MILL SOLD.

TORONTO, March 31.—Announcement of a 20 per cent. rebate to rural power users and the forecasting of the amalgamation of the Central Ontario Power System with the St. Lawrence and Rideau Systems, the deficits of any one part to be accounted for by the whole, and the entire system to be municipalized as in the general Hydro System, was made by Hon. J. R. Cooke, Hydro Commissioner, speaking in the Legislature yesterday on Hydro estimates.

Mr. Cooke defended the recent increase in Hydro rates in areas served by the Central System, and declared that the municipalities involved are still saving hundreds of thousands of dollars, as compared with their expenditures under the Seymour Power Company.

Low Rates Increase Waste.

Describing the Hydro's ability to meet all its obligations, he stated that over three million dollars could be raised at once by the adding of one cent to the rate per kilowatt hour for lighting purposes. He also suggested that when these rates are lowered to less than two cents they tend toward a waste in current in homes and factories.

He noted that during the last year two and a half miles per day of transmission lines were built, and more than 10,000 miles of lines are now in operation, serving more than 2,000 rural people. To date, said he, more than $2,000,000 had been spent in bonuses. "That," said he, "is the most profitable investment in agriculture ever made in this Province."

He referred at length to the "Central System," where the plants are owned by the Province but operated by the Hydro-Electric Power Commission. When the Province took over this system all the municipalities were paying the Seymour Power Company 8 cents per kw.h., with the exception of Lindsay and Trenton, paying 7 cents. When the Province bought the system the Power Commission lowered the rates.

Pulp Mill Sold.

The Minister announced that the Campbellford pulp mill, part of the property taken over from the Seymour Company, had been sold. He also hoped that the Peterborough Street Railway would be disposed of soon.

In reference to the Nipigon, he stated that developments were under way there whereby 19,000 additional men would be employed and an additional population of 100,000 supported.

Referring to developments in old Ontario, he stated that rates "are so low that they are conducive to waste." He thought that the principle of lowering these rates might well be reconsidered.

In conclusion, he pleaded that in Hydro affairs the welfare of the public be considered greater than partisan politics. He hoped that the estimates would be unanimously approved.

MEN CONNECTED WITH HOLD-UP

Two Men Held in Montreal Believed Guilty of Port Hope Crime.

PORT HOPE, Ont., March 31.— By means of photographs and descriptions supplied by the Criminal Identification Bureau at Montreal, local police have positively identified Walter Rheaume, 24, and Harry Bolton, 22, who are at present awaiting sentence in Montreal for charges of hold-ups, as the men who held up Night Constable Wm. Harvey on March 17, disarmed and bound him and robbed the Pattenick clothing store.

Rheaume and Bolton were arrested by Montreal police on March 21 in connection with two hold-ups there, and pleading guilty, were remanded for sentence. At the time they were driving a sedan stolen on March 13 from Windsor, and it was by means of the license numbers that they were connected with the local outrage.

Charges of assaulting an officer and burglary have been laid, and it is possible that the pair will be placed on trial here, following disposal of their case at Montreal. Bolton also goes under the aliases of Smith and Wilson.

LOCAL MAN HEAD OF WOOL DEALERS

Gordon Monkman Elected President of Dominion Association.

The tenth annual meeting of the Dominion Wool Dealers' Association was held in the King Edward Hotel, Toronto, on Tuesday, March 29th. L. Biggin, in addressing the members, stated that he was sorry that he was not able to paint a more optimistic picture, but the cold hard facts of conditions in the textile industry in Canada at the present time were not conducive to optimism. Mr. Biggin stated that since the formation of the association they had passed through business conditions which he did not think could be equalled in any other business or trade. He expressed the hope that they would not again experience the violent fluctuations of 1919-20, or 1924-25.

The present strength of wool prices, which has manifested itself throughout the selling season in all wool producing centres, would indicate a confidence in values, he stated. "The importation of foreign goods into Canada has increased at an alarming rate, owing to our manufacturers not receiving adequate protection in the form of import duties on foreign materials, and I sincerely hope that our Government will render some assistance to the industry, which will enable it to compete more successfully with foreign manufacturers. On this alone I believe depends the very existence of our wool trade in Canada," said Mr. Biggin.

The following officers were elected for the ensuing year: President—Gordon Monkman of G. Whitaker and Co., Limited, Peterboro, Ont.; Vice-President—A. Dewhirst, Ackroyd Bros. Limited, Toronto, Ont.; Secretary-Treasurer — E. E. Firth, Toronto, Ont.; Directors — Leslie Biggin and J. H. Ledger, Toronto, Ont.

WORKMAN KILLED BY SAND CAVE-IN

James Davis, 51, Dead When Taken From Bottom of Sewer.

TORONTO, March 31.—Buried beneath about two feet of sand in the bottom of a sewer excavation in York Township yesterday, James Davis, aged about 51, of 50 Holmesdale Crescent, Fairbank, was instantly killed.

Due to the prompt action of his fellow-workers, the man was uncovered in about ten minutes, but Coroner Dr. G. W. Clendenan, who arrived a few minutes later, pronounced life extinct. It is thought that the weight of the sand broke his neck, and that he was not smothered to death.

The man was working at the bottom of a trench at Eileen Avenue and Scarlett Road, where sewers are being laid by York Township. He was on his knees working on a catch basin, it is reported, when a large section of the bank caved in and buried him.

A. Durling, forman in charge of the work, was standing nearby when the landslide occurred, and, with the assistance of several other men, had Davis uncovered in about ten minutes.

Coroner Clendenan ordered the body removed to Speer's Undertaking Parlors, and an inquest will be held on Monday evening.

Could Not Sleep Heart and Nerves Were So Bad

Mr. Geo. Meek, Windsor, Ont., writes:—"I suffered with my heart and nerves and could not sleep at night for noises in my head. I managed to keep at my work somehow, until I began to have dizzy spells which got so bad I could not go to my work. I was afraid to go out any place, for very often I would stagger on my feet, and everything in front of me would turn black and fade away. While I was home sick a friend told me to take MILBURN'S HEART NERVE PILLS. I got four boxes and by the time I had used them the pains and noises in my head ceased and I was able to get a good night's rest. Although that was six years ago I have never been troubled with that complaint again."

AT THE REGENT.

"DESTROY WOMEN" IS THE MOTTO OF SCREEN DON JUAN.

John Barrymore is "Don Juan!" That is the treat promised for local picture-goers at the Regent Theatre, a Warner Brothers production.

Barrymore plays a dual role. First he appears as Don Juan's father, Don Jose; a courtly, punctilious, subtle Spanish aristocrat, who, discovering his wife is unfaithful, dies with this warning to his boy, Juan: "Destroy women or they will destroy you."

Barrymore's magnetic personality has never, according to all reports, been more effectively projected than in this picture. Excellent as were his performances in "Beau Brummel" and "The Sea Beast," these achievements are said to fall into insignificance beside that of his "Don Juan"; the god-like pagan who made of his life the most glamorous romance.

CIRCUS FREAKS ARE LOVERS IN BIJOU PICTURE.

In "Spangles," the Universal-Jewel shortly to come to the Regent Theatre, you will get an entirely new view of the people of the circus who are known as "freaks," for you will see their life, and their hopes, loves and ambitions as they appear after the "big top" is struck and the crowd is gone. And you may be surprised to learn that their hearts are very much like our own.

Of course, the bearded lady in "Spangles" is played by a very attractive young actress, Grace Gordon, and the beard is false, but in the case of the other freaks, they are "all wool and a yard wide."

The dwarf is Charlie Becker, member of a famous family of German dwarfs who came to this country three years ago; the fat woman is Nellie B. Lane, the giant is "Tiny" Ward, and the contortionist is Paul Howard, both well-known to circus and vaudeville audiences.

REGULAR MEETING.

Interesting Lecture Given at Meeting of U.F.Y.P.O. at Bailieboro.

BAILIEBORO, March 31 — The U.F.Y.P.O. held their regular fortnightly meeting on Friday evening. There was a good attendance and a very interesting meeting was held. The president, W. W. Waterman, presided, and at the conclusion of the business meeting Professor Harkness, Queen's University, Toronto, gave a very interesting illustrated address on "Life in the inland waters." The speaker clearly explained the plant and animal life in the waters of Canada's lakes, showing the pictures of the various plants and animals as well as the various species of fish with a lantern. Professor Harkness also explained the advantages of such a great natural resource as Canada's fishing, of how it brought employment to our citizens, food to the people and brought a great deal of money into Canada each year by attracting the tourist trade.

The lecture was a most instructive one throughout, as it enlightened the members of the Young People's Club upon the actual life that does exist in the inland waters.

Profesor Harkness is the second speaker the young people have had the pleasure of listening to from the University extension courses. Last winter Profesor Chant gave a splendid lecture on Astronomy, which was also greatly appreciated by the South Monaghan U.F.Y.P.O.

Personals.

Misses Edna Wallace and May Earl spent the week end in Toronto.

Mrs. Lewis Fry, who has been dangerously ill for the past two weeks, is recovering slowly.

Mr. and Mrs. James Finnie entertained a number of their neighbors and friends at a house party on Wednesday night last.

The roads leading from the highway are in a very bad condition, and as yet very few farmers have taken their cars out of their winter quarters. The provincial highway is now in excellent condition for motoring on.

SPRINGTIME.

By F. A. CONNERS,
Pastor Calvary Baptist Church,
Flint, Michigan.

The glad springtime has come again,
With its bright sunshine and showers,
To melt away the winter snow
And give us grass and flowers;
And fill the air with music sweet,
From little birds that sing,
And everything in nature speaks,
To tell us it is spring.

The buds are bursting on the trees,
As nature stoops to dawn,
Her robes of green on every bush,
And carpets on the lawn;
The new-born blossoms scent the air,
And everything is sweet,
The sun in glittering rays above,
The grass beneath our feet.

We welcome thee glad springtime here
In resurrection power,
Restoring life and beauty too
In every tree and flower;
With each recurring season
Comes whispers from above,
In nature's many voices,
Declaring, "God is Love."

Representative Doctors declared continued use of laxatives harmful

WHEN we found that eight doctors out of ten were recommending the Nujol type of treatment we asked them why. 26.6% said: "Because it is non-habit-forming." 26% said "It is a more natural method." 13% favored it "because it is not irritating." And so on down the line. We found doctors had innumerable reasons for preferring the Nujol type of treatment for the relief of constipation.

The other side of the story is shown by the following typical answers to the question: "Do you consider continued use of laxative and cathartics harmful?" Over two-thirds of the doctors said "Yes," and gave as reasons: "Do not correct condition." "Laxatives destroy the peristaltic motility." "Laxatives are habit-forming and irritating." "Cause dehydration — weaken resistance."

Doctors Advise Nujol

Eight doctors out of every ten told us they were advising the Nujol type of treatment for their patients in place of laxatives—and for these reasons:

1. Nujol is not habit-forming.
2. A more natural method.
3. A lubricant is better than a laxative.
4. Does not gripe.
5. Is not irritating.
6. Nujol gives lasting relief.

Unlike Laxatives

Laxatives and cathartics act by irritating the intestinal tract. They cause the bowels to frantically expel the contents of the intestines and thus rid the system of the drugs that pills and potions contain.

Nujol acts entirely differently. It contains no drugs, no medicine. Its action is mechanical. It merely softens the dried waste matter in the intestines and lubricates the passage so that the muscles of the bowels can expel the waste matter regularly, naturally and thoroughly.

Nature-given Remedy

Nujol appeals to the medical man because it is a simple, scientific and safe remedy for constipation, no matter how severe the case may be. It is gentle in its action and pleasant to take. Children love it! Get a bottle of Nujol from your druggist today. Doctors advise it for constipation, whether chronic or temporary. Avoid substitutes.

Matinee Ladies

BY William B. Courtney

Copyright 1927, Warner Bros. Pictures, Inc.

"MATINEE LADIES," with May McAvoy, is a Warner Bros. picturization of this novel.

SYNOPSIS

Bob Ward, a poverty-stricken engineering student in his senior year, who is working his way through college by whatever jobs he can get at the college employment bureau, is informed by his two chums, Freddy and Arch, that they have found an easy and profitable way to earn money—by working as dancing partners, of afternoons, for rich women in a fashionable New Jersey roadhouse. Bob thinks it isn't a fit way to make a living. His landlady threatens him with eviction for unpaid rent.

CHAPTER I—Continued

As the door slammed behind Mrs. O'Sully, Bob's eyes, full of trouble rested upon the faces of his chums.

"Now you've got to take the job, Bob!" exclaimed Freddy and Arch in unison. "Come on, be a sport. If you don't come, some one else will!"

Bob gulped hard. Pride went down with that gulp—pride and honest conviction. Expediency took a hard fall out of his self-respect; even so, there was a lot of courage and aloofness, in his manner as he said quietly: "Lead me to your darned old Inn. Henceforth, I'm a dancing partner for matinee ladies, young and old—at fifty per!"

"Now you're talking like an intelligent and sensible college senior, if not a human being, should talk!" chortled Freddy, while Arch, as his outward show of joy at Bob's acceptance of the job, bounced a heavy engineering tome on Bob's head.

This precipitated a rough and

Arch bounced a heavy engineering tome on Bob's head tumble shindy, which brought Mrs. O'Sully back into the room post haste with an indignant threat to eject all three boys, bag and book, on grounds of social undesirability, let alone financial.

Mrs. O'Sully was appeased. Then Bob asked dubiously;

"When do I start on my—err-r-r career as a male butterfly for the delectation of the idle female rich?"

"Right away—pronto—if not sooner," declared Arch. "This afternoon. That's the only time we work. See what a cinch of a job it is? These rich and jazzy janes tell their trusting husbands—who are probably keeping a couple of chorus girls apiece on a string!—that they attend the matinees. Then they skip out to nearby roadhouses and jazz joints, of which our Palisado Inn is a noteworthy example, and dance the afternoons away with young guys like us. Some of the bolder ones go to hotels in town to dance, but the most of them want secrecy, and like the outlying places."

"Where is the place that I—we—will work?"

"Over on the Palisades. We'll beat it down to 129th street and take the Fort Lee ferry. Then it's only a short ride on a bus. But come on now, get a wiggle on, old left tackle, or we'll be late for the 'matinee'. And the red hot mamas don't like to wait for their pretty little college boys!"

"Grr-r-r darn!" gritted Bob, disgusted at the sophisticated irony in his chum's description of the job and the people.

CHAPTER II

But now Bob Ward was committed to a job as dancing entertainer. He couldn't hedge. The wolf was too close. His college degree meant more to him than anything else in the world. It was within his grasp. Just a few short weeks of careful study and planning and management. It would be a burning shame if his poverty were to push the sheepskin away from his boning fingers, at this last spurt. Regardless of the cost in humbled pride, he must earn enough to keep him clear of debt and disaster until the coveted reward of four long years of grinding and scrimping on University Heights was in his hands. His very own, to have and to hold. Dearly won, fondly cherished.

Four years! Would he ever forget them? Four years in which had been bred enough wonderful memories to last four lifetimes. It was too bad that at the end the press of poverty had weighed down so heavily upon him that he had to accept work, at variance with his ideals. Yet, the ends justify the means. Ideals, after all, are something borne aloft, safe and serenely remote from whatever mud and rocks one must wade through to bear the Shining Banner toward Life's goal.

Perhaps if he would go to some of his firm friends among the professors, they would manage to aid him to a finer job. They might get the Employment Bureau to bend special efforts in his behalf. But, no. He had been to the faculty members, who were his friends as well as his teachers in the spirit of this dear old place, and they had helped him to the limit of their means. The Employment Bureau had put many things in his way. As a star football player, and also as a young man of finest, cleanest traits and a brilliant engineering student, Bob was widely popular through the undergraduate body and highly regarded by the faculty. But there was a limit, naturally enough, to the sort of temporary improvement the Bureau could provide. And while it got jobs that sufficed for the average student working his way through, while it offered the most sympathetic and helpful co-operation, the Bureau could not quite make up for Bob Ward's case, because it was peculiar and quite out of the usual run of working student situations.

Bob Ward, as superlative a football player as the famous old prep school of Dean Academy, in Franklin, had ever sent thundering toward the enemy goal lines, might have found things made easy for him in the way of scholarships at many a famous college if he had been so minded. But in Bob's old head on young and wide shoulders, football remained always subordinated in its rightful place—as a passing, if exciting and useful, phase of school years. Bob's objective in life lay far beyond the white gridiron lines, the crossbars of autumn fields. It lay on difficult Andean summits, on far-flung Yangtze gorges, on remote Australian mining wastes. All hitherto inaccessible until reduced to the everyday ken of mankind by his engineering genius. So Bob Ward dreamed. And so to him, not the acclaim of crowds out for a Saturday afternoon Roman Holiday, but the hard-earned, hard-won, high scholastic standing was what counted. Regardless of all other factors, he had selected the college that seemed best fitted to his circumstances, to his plans, and to his ambitions for a sound and thorough drilling in the fundamentals of his profession. Two years running he earned a scholarship, in competitive examination, by dint of mental, not football, powers. Then piling complications upset him until his work fell below its wonted grade, and threatened to disrupt his college career.

Troubles at home that required the donation of all the five hundred dollars reserve his father had been able to give him. Deaths of his mother, his father. A bitter junior year of scimping and saving, meeting tuition and board costs, denying himself fraternity memberships and all the material joys of undergraduate life; fighting until a few dollars had been hoarded in the bank again.

Then, two months ago, more trouble at home. A widowed sister killed in an accident; her orphan needing financial assistance. Out went the meagre bank account, in the full generosity of Bob's heart.

Judge Seeks To Prevent Long Arguments Over Case.

LAWYERS AGREE.

DETROIT, March 31 Canadian Press.—Nearly "interminable" arguments over legal technicalities were done away with in Aaron Sapiro's million dollar libel suit against Henry Ford when Judge Raymond to-day enunciated a policy of limiting each side. At the opening of the court, the jury was sent outside where it had been most of the trial while Sapiro's and Ford's counsel argued over the production of Sapiro's record books.

"Gentlemen, there has got to be an end somewhere," said the Judge; "I wish you would agree on a time limit—how about twenty minutes for each of you?"

Both counsel agreed, however, to a time limit of ten instead of twenty minutes.

GOLDEN WEDDING DAY CELEBRATED

Mr. and Mrs. James A. Bell Receive Congratulations of Many Friends.

An impressive golden wedding was celebrated recently by Mr. and Mrs. James A. Bell, at their home, Springvalley Farm, Smith Township.

In the afternoon a number of friends gathered to show the esteem in which Mr. and Mrs. Bell are held. A very pleasing feature of the anniversary was a shower of greeting cards congratulating Mr. and Mrs. Bell on having enjoyed 50 years of life together.

In the evening more than a score of relatives and friends partook of the wedding repast. The table and dining room were beautifully adorned with daffodils, candles, and trimmings of gold and white. The wedding cake occupied a prominent place on the table. At the close of a very sociable and enjoyable meal two addresses were read. One was from the local Church Board, read by Mrs. Rev. J. V. McNeely, to announce the presentation of a gorgeous floral tribute to the bride and groom of the evening. The other address, read by the esteemed pastor, Rev. J. V. McNeely, was on behalf of the Circuit Official Board. Both addresses expressed sincere appreciation of the faithful Christian efforts of the couple whom they delighted to honor. Mr. Bell responded suitably, expressing his pleasure in meeting friends and relatives on this occasion. He emphasized the value of a life of service by reviewing the years of satisfaction and benefit experienced in the activities of the Christian church.

After singing "Praise God From Whom All Blessings Flow", the company gathered in the parlor, where many other friends called to congratulate Mr. and Mrs. Bell and wish them many more years of health and happiness.

Their family consists of two sons, Frederick Finlay, residing on the homestead, and Rev. Harold James of Sebright. Both were present with their families to celebrate the happy event.

SINCLAIR MAY WAIT FOR YEAR

Public Accounts Committee Ready To Hear Him Now, Though.

TORONTO, March 30 (Canadian Press).—The Public Accounts Committee of the Legislature met for the first time this session to-day, and after a debate which at times became heated, by a vote of thirty to twelve, announced themselves as being ready to proceed with the investigation of any matter the leader of the Liberal Opposition might name, but also gave him the right to hold over this year's probe until the next session.

The resolution which embodied the committee's decision was passed "without prejudice" to next year's commission, and allows Mr. Sinclair the right to ask for an investigation of items appearing in the 1926 accounts at the next session of the Legislature.

BELIEVE THAT FORD INJURY NOT ACCIDENT

Sources Close To Magnate Say Deliberate Attempt To Kill Him.

WILL INVESTIGATE.

Mr. Ford Reported Now Resting in No Immediate Danger.

DETROIT, March 31 (Canadian Press).—Sources close to Henry Ford said last night that they considered the injury to the motor manufacturer Sunday night when his coupe was forced over an embankmen to have been a deliberate effort to kill him.

A "great many" investigators other than members of the Ford organization's staff have been placed at work, it was stated, and the automobile which dashed past Mr. Ford's car and swept it off the road is believed to have been identified.

Mr. Ford was understood to have stated that when he left the gates of the Ford Rouge River plant, driving alone, as is his custom, he noticed that he was followed by two men driving an automobile.

As Mr. Ford driving the light couple of his own manufacture, neared the bridge over the Rouge River the bigger car dashed toward him and forced him over the embankmen just as he got clear of the bridge.

"We are not saying that it was a deliberate attempt upon Mr. Ford's life," said William J. Cameron, editor of the Dearborn Independent, and generally recognized as a Ford spokesman.

"The matter is being investigated by a great many men and we believe that the car which followed Mr. Ford and forced him off the road is known.

"You can draw your own conclusions."

Mr. Ford last night rested in his own hospital in no immediate danger, according to the one bulletin issued from the bedside by Dr. R. D. McLure, chief surgeon of the hospital.

There was at first a slight concussion, from which he has recovered. A "transient hematuria (passage of blood from the bladder) and hemoptysis (expectoration of blood, usually due to hemorrhage of the lungs) which has cleared up," according to the doctor.

The injuries which will keep the motor manufacturer abed for two weeks, consist of "severe contusions over the ribs and back with considerable strain of back muscles.

Bracing of the chest and back by splinting has been resorted to.

The Detroit Free Press last night printed this description of Mr. Ford's condition:

"A deep cut over the left eye, another on top of the head, his body covered with bruises and so wrenched that he moans at the slightest movement and sometimes cries out in pain and menaced by the threat of pneumonia."

MAD CHINAMAN RUNS AMUCK IN TORONTO STREET

Kills Little Girl and Stabs Four Men With Knife.

CAN GIVE NO REASON.

Murderer Was Deported Two Years Ago As Being Insane.

TORONTO, March 31. — Running amuck with a large butcher knife, which he had stolen from Wong Wow's shop, 17 Elizabeth street, about 6.30 last night, a Chinaman stabbed a young girl in the back, fatally injuring her, and inflicted superficial wounds on three of his compatriots and another man before he was captured by Mounted Constable Charles Whitford (594) at Elizabeth and Hagerman streets. The slayer, who gave the name of Fong Wong, aged 42, of 85 Elizabeth street, was taken to West Dundas Station, and charged with murder. The victims are as follows:

Dead.

Elsie Macheska (Polish spelling Mokrzycka), aged 11, of 57 Nelson street. Stabbed through the lungs and fatally injured. Died on the way to the General Hospital.

Wounded.

Harry Wong, aged 25, of 650 Bay street, slight knife wounds in the back. Treated at the General Hospital and then allowed to go home.

Quan Chee, 201 Elizabeth street, knife wound in the back, and admitted to the General Hospital.

Lem Yea, 324 Dupont street, three superficial knife wounds in the breast. Not serious.

Peter Lanosky, 214 Richmond street west, scratches and clothing badly slashed.

The body of the dead girl was removed to the Morgue, where it was examined by Chief Coroner Crawford.

According to the police, Wong admitted killing the girl, but for what reason he could not say. It is understood that the Chinaman was declared insane two years ago while resident here, and was deported to his native country.

Wong Mow told the police that he was serving some customers in his store last evening, when Fong Wong, whom he did not know, suddenly rushed into the place and seizinfi a butcher knife from a chopping block, darted toward the door with it. In the doorway he met Lem Yea. Yelling like a maniac, Wong raised the knife and slashed at Yea's breast, cutting the front of Yea's coat in ribbons and ripping the wearer's flesh with the keen- sharp-pointed blade. The injured man dropped back under the fierce attack. Mow dashed in pursuit of the maniac.

Killed Little Girl

Shrieking at the top of his voice, and waving the murderous weapon aloft, the frenzied Chinaman ran north on Elizabeth Street. Adults and children, alarmed, fled at his approach, hunting refuge in doorways, alleys, and wherever they could. Little Elsie Macheska was walking along the street at Albert and Elizabeth Streets, when she heard the Chinaman behind her. She caught sight of the upraised blade, and screaming her alarm, made a dash for the nearest dorway. Just as she reached it the maniac plunged the knife into her back. The blade penetrated the lungs, causing such injury that the child died before arriving at the General Hospital.

'MUSIC' SUNDAY GREAT SUCCESS

Special Services at Regent Street United Church Very Interesting.

WELL ATTENDED.

LAKEFIELD, March 31. — The Sunday services, March 27th, in Regent Street Church, were of unusual interest. The day had been set aside as especially for music and praise, the purpose being to emphasize the importance and charm of music and the prominent place it occupies in secular affairs and in the charm it adds to a religious experience and church life.

The texts for the morning and evening services, conducted by the pastor, Rev. S. A. Kemp, were chosen from Isaiah 35, 10, and from Revelation 14, verses 2 and part of 3, the subject, "Music," being dealt with from the standpoint of its source, its charm, and its final triumph.

The music, rendered by the choir, was far beyond the ordinary and consisted of four anthems, two vocal duets, one cornet duet, and a ladies' quartette. The congregation fairly filled the large auditorium of the church, both morning and evening, and the congregation singing was led by the church orchestra which added an excellence which brightened the service and encouraged everyone to join in the service of praise. The experience has convinced the congregation that at least once a year a service of this character would be beneficial, and would be heartily appreciated as this, the primary effort, was.

A Junior choir of eighteen boys and girls, between the ages of ten and fourteen years, has been organized and is being trained for special occasions. They will make their first appearance, gowned in white surplices on Eastern morning.

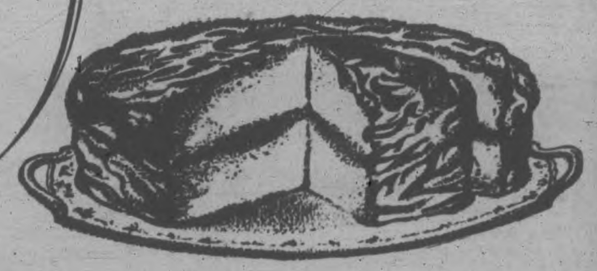
"I recognized the excellence of this NEW Cake Flour the first time I used it."

—N. L. PATTINSON
Domestic Scientist



By NELLIE LYLE PATTINSON
Domestic Scientist
Author of The Canadian Cook Book

THIS is what I found the first time I tried Quaker Cake Flour:—

A flour that is easy to handle;

That is used just like ordinary flour except that you need less of it;

A flour of superlative fineness which gives an exceedingly delicate texture to the cake.

The experience of everyone who has used Quaker Cake Flour is that it is uniformly good. It always bakes the same and produces cakes of wonderfully good colour.

Money and time are wasted when you make poor cakes. They are usually unwholesome and indigestible. It is easy now to have success every time you bake.

Quaker Cake Flour will ensure you against failure and the loss and disappointment it incurs. It has been thoroughly tested both by food chemists and domestic science experts. It has been tried in many home kitchens by skilled cooks and by beginners.

I am sure you will have a new delight in cake-baking if you will try Quaker Cake Flour. It is sold under the maker's positive guarantee of satisfactory results or your money will be refunded by your grocer.

The Quaker Oats Company, Peterborough or Saskatoon, will send you by mail a full-sized package for 30 cents in stamps or coin.

From one and all who have used Quaker Cake Flour have come expressions of enthusiasm and praise in such words as these:

"My cakes are lighter and more delicate than I have ever made before."

"My cakes keep fresh longer than ever before."

"Quaker Cake Flour is not expensive because I use less than of ordinary flour and because I do not have failure."

"Nearly all my friends came over to me and asked for the recipe of my wonderful cake."

The dietitian of a large institution in Western Ontario writes:

"The cakes turned out beautifully, and I found they remained fresh for a surprisingly long time."

SAINT and SINNER

By ANNE AUSTIN

At half past twelve that memorable first day of Cherry's trial for the murder of Ralph Cluny, Judge Grimshaw declared a recess.

When Cherry had been led away to her lonely luncheon in the prison, Bob took an arm of Faith and her father.

"We'll have time to drive over to a decent hotel for lunch, I believe," he said in a low voice. "Don't let the reporters corner you for interviews."

"You seem to have a genius for getting through mobs," Faith told him a few minutes later, when they were seated in his car, which was threading its slow way through the traffic jam.

"My genius for evading reporters does not anywhere near approach Cherry's genius for picking jurors," Bob laughed. "Isn't she a marvel? Cool as a cucumber and wise as a serpent, even if she does look like a wide-eyed infant. And she never flinched once when the prospective jurors were asked if they had conscientious scruples against inflicting the death penalty. Marvelous girl, Cherry."

"She has the courage of innocence," Jim Lane said heavily. "I—I was proud of her today."

"So was I, Dad," Faith choked, tightening her arm about his shoulder.

"Chris' lawyer surely threw a bomb into the court this morning when he made application for a separate trial for Chris," Bob continued. "Funny how they kept the reporters from getting an inkling of it. Wonder how he's getting along?"

A newsboy sprang to the running board of the car as it was momentarily halted at a crossing.

"Extra! Chris Wiley near death's door after operation!" the youngster shrieked, pocketing his nickel and darting away to other sales.

Faith read aloud from the sensationally worded front page story of Chris' sudden illness and the postponement of his trial, as Bob kept a wary eye on traffic.

"Christopher Wiley, co-defendant, with his wife, the beautiful, titian-haired Cherry Lane Wiley, charged with the murder of Ralph Cluny, aged lawyer, and at the time of his death, fiance of the lovely Cherry, lies critically ill in City Hospital, following an emergency operation at nine o'clock this morning for mastoiditis.

"Within less than an hour after news of Mr. Wiley's critical illness had reached the streets, ten baskets of hot-house flowers and fruit had been received at the hospital, some of them bearing cards with the names of the donors—all feminine; others being sent anonymously by sympathizers and admirers of the handsome defendant, who has a reputation for being a heart-breaker."

"Piffle!" Bob ejaculated. "I'm sorry he's sick, but I'm glad for Cherry's sake that he will not be tried with her. She'll have a better chance alone."

"Listen!" Faith cried. "Young Mrs. Wiley, except for a very becoming pallor, looks none the worse for her confinement in prison, and, so far as interested observers could note, exhibited no concern over her husband's sudden illness. Her composure during Lawyer Penny's request for a separate trial for her husband strengthens the persistent rumor that the beautiful young wife already regrets her hasty marriage.' That is going to injure Cherry, Bob. People are going to think that they hate each other because they share a guilty secret and because each fears that the other will break down and confess. I'm going to talk to Cherry this afternoon, try to make her change her attitude toward Chris for her own sake."

Faith and Bob and Jim Lane were five minutes late for the opening of the afternoon session of court. Examination of a talesman was going forward when they took their seats.

"He'll do," Faith heard Cherry murmur to Churchill. "He looks like Dad. And he says he has a daughter just my age. He'll always be thinking—'What if it was my girl?' Did you bring me a paper darling?" she asked of Faith, her golden eyes as wide and eager as a child's.

"Please look as if you cared about Chris' being ill," Faith begged in a whisper. "The reporters are all watching you. And they're criticizing you in their stories, jumping to conclusions which are going to hurt you."

Cherry's small, coral mouth set stubbornly, and she shook her head slightly. But Faith was relieved to see that almost instantly the expressive face changed, registered concern. Cherry even managed a couple of great, round, glistening tears, which slipped down her cheeks—as white and fine and smooth as petals of a gardenia. The lovely little mouth trembled convincingly.

"I'm thinking of Muggy," she whispered brokenly to Faith. "That's the only thing that can make me cry. Listen, darling. Send Chris a pot of lilies with my name on the card. Think of it, Faith—lilies for Chris! I hope he will realize how ironic that is! And I'll write a note to go with them. And be sure to tell the reporters that I'm doing it."

The business of impanelling a jury went tediously on. With almost comical ferocity Tom Banning, the district attorney, fought for the acceptance of old men of approximately Ralph Cluny's age, old men who were widowers or bachelors and who would naturally visualize themselves in the predicament of the dead man—murdered for their money by scheming gold-diggers. Just as persistently, though far more suavely, Stephen Churchill fought to exclude such talesmen and strove to fill the jury box with middle-aged, married men, fathers of sons and daughters of somewhere near Cherry's and Chris' age.

At four o'clock the panel had been exhausted and the judge had ordered the clerk to draw in open court and the sheriff to summon 150 jurors, to appear in court the next morning—Tuesday, January 4—at ten o'clock. Judge Grimshaw then charged the seven jurors who had been tentatively accepted not to discuss the case or to form a conclusion and ordered court adjourned.

Swallowing her distaste for the ordeal, Faith lingered in the courtroom near the press tables after she had kissed Cherry good-bye. With apparent reluctance, she submitted to being interviewed, answering questions as they were peppered upon her by the more than thirty representatives of the press.

"Is it true that your sister, Cherry, is going to divorce her husband?" a girl reporter asked bluntly.

"Of course not!" Faith cried with well-assumed indignation. "She is very much grieved over his illness, and has commissioned me to send him flowers in her name and to give him, when I call on him at the hospital this afternoon, a letter she wrote in court today."

"Would you let us print the letter?" a young man asked brusquely. "Might do a lot to check these rumors that are going the rounds that she and Chris are on the outs."

"I—I don't think she would like that," Faith stammered. Then, after a bit more persuasion, she handed over the fervid love note which Cherry had scribbled on a sheet torn from her lawyer's memo pad. She did not explain that the note would never be delivered, that if Chris Wiley read it at all, he would read it in the columns of the newspapers.

Her cheeks were still burning with shame when she entered the hospital and asked to see Christopher Wiley, her sister's husband of a night.

BEYOND

By W. D. Packwood.

Beyond the highest mountain peak
There lies the treasure that I seek,
Beyond the blue of distant skies
There dwells what most my soul doth prize.

Beyond the farthest shining star
There fixed my truest visions are,
Beyond the horizon of the sea
A still small voice oft calls to me.

Beyond the desert's dreary waste,
I have to cross 'ere Heaven I taste
Beyond life's steep and toilsome road,
I know there lies my soul's abode.

Beyond the hills of space and time,
There is a happier, sunnier clime,
Beyond the earth's remotest ends,
My soul in silence thither tends.

Beyond the grave when death has passed,
There shall I find true peace at last,
Beyond this world of sin and strife,
There shall I find eternal life.

DRESS

By MARY MARSHALL

Above is a tortoise-shell monogram plaque on a link tortoise-shell chain worn with a beige and brown frock. A large aquamarine surrounded with narrow band of silver is worn on a black silk cord as the only ornament on a black satin frock.

No matter how weary you have become of the endless necklets, chokers, necklaces and collars of pearls that women of all sorts and conditions have been wearing, you probably have had difficulty in finding any ground for the belief that the fashion is passing. What has, of course, made for the continuation of this fashion is the fact that pearls, real or make-believe, are decidedly becoming. Women have not worn them these many moons simply because they were in fashion, but because they were very becoming as well. You yourself may have gone to the jewelry shop or the counter where costume jewelry is sold with the firm intent of buying some really novel sort of necklace—and after trying on all sorts of interesting and smart ornaments of this sort have finally chosen just one more string or rope of pearls to add to your collection.

There has, however, begun a mild sort of reaction against the ubiquitous pearl necklace here and there. There are frocks—as every good dressmaker knows—that simply ought not to be worn with pearls. A string of pearls around the neck is as out of place with some frocks as it is appropriate to some others.

But dressmakers can not prescribe a woman's jewelry. The only thing that even the greatest of French dressmakers can do is to provide a certain really appropriate bit of jewelry to go with the frock that should not be worn with pearls. For some women wear pearls as much as a matter of course as they wear powder. They feel that their make-up isn't complete without them.

The neck ornament ought to be considered as an integral part of the frock with which it is worn. One distinguished dressmaker this spring hit upon the idea of a single large stone, hung on a silken cord, as the sole ornament for a simple frock. "This seems like a bit of jewelry, that may or may not be worn with the frock," this designer might have said, "but in reality it is part of the frock—just as much a part of it as though it were sewed on or worked in the form of embroidery."

HOROSCOPE

The Stars Incline, but do not Compel.

For Friday, April 1, 1927.

(Copyright, 1927, by The McClure Newspaper Syndicate.)

Astrologers read this as a fairly fortunate day, since benefic aspects strongly dominate. There is one adverse influence to be feared.

Much wrong thinking is to be prevalent at this time, the seers warn, and it is imperative to lend deaf ears to destructive criticism of every sort.

National heroes will be slandered, but while the inconoclastic spirit is to be deplored where the dead are concerned it is doubly dangerous in its effect where the living are slandered.

Faith in national leaders should be cultivated, for there will continue to be much dangerous propaganda disseminated.

On this day deception will not be easy and they who play pranks probably will have many disappointments.

This is an auspicious rule for many lines of business; merchants and manufacturers will benefit greatly.

Warning is given to women that silks and other dress fabrics are to be more costly than they have been in the past.

This is read as rather a threatening day for the big ambitions of women. Many obstacles may be encountered where important matters are under consideration.

Motion-pictures may be less patronized than they have been in the past but great world events are to revive the popularity of the screen.

This is a day of unusual promise for dealers in real estate. The desire to possess land will be exceedingly strong and unusually widespread during the remainder of the year.

This is held a most auspicious date for seeking positions or promotions of any sort.

According to the reading of a London astrologer the Locarno and other peace pacts are subject to the most sinister planetary influences.

Persons whose birthdate it is may have a year of much novelty. Strange and unusual quests may be of special interest.

Children born on this day probably will be studious and serious. Those who are subject to this sign become famous antiquarians.

BOY DROWNED AT COLLINGWOOD

Falls From Raft While Gathering Driftwood in Harbor.

COLLINGWOOD, March 31.—The waters of Collingwood Harbor claimed the life of Gordon Pratt, the 15-year-old son of Charles Pratt, craneman in the shipyards here. The boy was gathering driftwood with an improvised raft, and was seen by Robert Currie, watchman at the Huronia Wire Company, frantically waving his hands for help.

The alarm was immediately given, but before help could reach him he disappeared. The raft was found later a quarter of a mile distant, but no trace of the boy's body has been discovered. The missing boy is the only son of a family of six children.

SAFEGUARDING MILK

BY PASTEURIZATION

(More of this Report follows on Saturday)

Probably a more practicable comparison of the relative value of milk and other foods can be made by considering them on the basis of a single serving at our meals. Professor Rosenau of Harvard, who has made extensive and careful studies of this phase of the problem, states that one tumblerful of milk is equal in food value to:

2 eggs, or 1 large serving of lean meat.
2 large potatoes, or 5 tablespoonsful of cooked cereal, or 3 tablespoonsful of boiled rice, or
2 large slices of bread.

It is, therefore, generally conceded that where an economy has to be made in the home diet, the meat part should be cut to one-third and the amount of the milk be multiplied by three. This, Professor Sherman of Columbia University, has graphically represented, in the following table, which is recommended as the various proportions of an ideal diet on a percentage cost basis:

Percentage of Total Food Cost.

Meat and fish	12%
Eggs	6%
Milk	30%
Cheese	3%
Butter and other fats	11%
Bread and cereals	13%
Sugar	3%
Vegetables and fruits	17%

The necessity for a more serious and careful consideration of milk as a food has been forced upon the people of this continent as the result of surveys that have been made in the various schools. These have revealed the fact that a large percentage, ranging all the way from 35 to 70 per cent. of children in certain instances, are under-nourished, and that where home investigations were made, this under-nutrition was found to be largely due to the lack of milk entering into the diet.

LADIES DISCUSS MANY POLICIES

Conservative Women of Peterborough Hold Regular Meeting.

MRS. FALLIS SPEAKS.

The March meeting of the Women's Liberal Conservative Association was held in Hooper's Palm Rooms on Wednesday afternoon, with a large attendance. The president Mrs. Howard Fallis, occupied the chair, and after the usual business was discussed, entertained the meeting with different matters of interest.

The introduction and reception of the Government Control Bill was one of the chief items. The old-age pension scheme was also dwelt upon —its weaknesses and its advantages.

The Georgian Bay Waterway Bill was discussed fully, Mrs. Fallis emphasizing particularly the great service rendered the country by the Conservative Opposition at Ottawa in opposing so strenuously the handing over of the people's rights in this connection to private interests. The Toronto Globe has opposed this hartering of the people's rights even more strenuously than the Conservative press, she said.

Finally, the arrangements for the National Conservative convention to held this year were touched upon, Winnipeg being the place decided upon for this, more of which will be heard later.

The meeting closed with the National Anthem.

Miss Duff also spoke of the different branches of the work of the union, also of the new Liquor Control Bill.

A musical programme included a pretty vocal solo by Mrs. V. Walker, wih accompaniment by Mrs. Harold Elliott, who also rendered a pleasing piano number. Mrs. Plunkett led in the devotional exercises.

Mining Stocks Decline In Dull Session To-day

TORONTO, March 31.—(Canadian Press.)—Trading was dull and heavy on the Standard Mining Exchange to-day, with a small turnover. Losses outnumbered gains by a considerable margin. Mining Corporation was a rare exception to the general trend when it gained ground to 320, a gain of five cents. Lake Shore was the lone dividend paying gold stock to advance. It sold up 10 cents to 18.20. Dome Mines declined five cents to 8.60. McIntyre dropped 20 cents to 24.80 and Teck Hughes sold off four cents to 6.39. Pioneer was off two to 1.00 and Premier declined two to 2.13, while Vipond weakened seven to 1.40. The unlisted stocks were all weaker. Amulet declined five cents to 1.10, Noranda sold off five cents to 21.10, and Towagamac was off 10 cents to 3.40. Central Manitoba Gold eased one to 1.18.

Massey-Harris Stocks Lead Trading In Toronto

TORONTO, March 31.—(Canadian Press.) — The three Massey Harris stocks, common, preferred and new, dominated trading on the Toronto Stock Exchange to-day. All three issues figured prominently in the transactions, with the common and new stocks gaining ground, while the preferred declined 1-4 to 109. Massey Harris common led the market in activity and advanced 2 3-8 to 122 7-8, the high and closing quotation. The new stock gained 7-8 to 30 7-8. Profit taking in British American Oil forced that issue further back and it registered a loss of 3-4 to 25 1-2. The balance of the oil list was dull. International Nickel was active and stronger, gaining 1-8 to 41 1-8. Brazilian was quiet and declined 1-2 to 130 1-2.

Wheat Prices Go Lower But Rally On Demand

CHICAGO, March 31 (Canadian Press)—Owing largely to weather of kind favoring the new domestic crop, wheat averaged lower early to-day. Buying by previous sellers developed, however, and tended to bring about rallies. Starting at 1-8 cent to 5-8 cent decline, wheat recovered at times to about yesterday's finish. Corn and oats were easy with provisions firm, corn opening unchanged to 1-8 to 1-4 cent off and later showing a sag.

Conflicting Movements In Wall Street To-day

NEW YORK, arch 31 (Canadian Press). — Widely conflicting price movements again characterized today's stock market. The renewal of selling pressure against oils, motors, and some of the specialties brought about further unsettlement early in the session, but the persistent demand for a number of rails, coupled with the revival of activity and strength in United States Steel Common, turned the main course of prices upward again by early afternoon. Call money rates continued relatively firm, but this was regarded as a temporary condition, return to the four per cent level being looked for early next week.

The steady accumulation of the high-priced rails and industrials was construed in some quarters as an indication that part of the half billion dollars to be distributed within the next week in the form of dividend and interest payments would be utilized for investment in seasoned dividend paying stocks.

A few of the oil stocks moved against the general trend. Lago advanced two points to a new high for the year in response to the inauguration of dividends on the common stock and Houston and Atlantic Refining also recorded sharp gains. International Silver jumped also 11 points to a new high record, and gains of three to nearly six points were scored by Colorado and Southern, South Porto Rico Sugar, Commercial Solvents "B", Delaware and Hudson, Kelsey Wheel, and Western Union.

PRIVATE OFFICERS ARE INVESTIGATING

DETROIT, March 31 (Canadian Press).—Henry Ford rested easily today in his own great hospital while many private investigators worked towards a solution of what was believed to have been a deliberate attack upon his life. Neither the Federal Department of Justice nor the Detroit police was working upon the case. No arrest has been made and one is in sight, according to Thomas Wilcox, head of the Detroit office of the Federal Department of Justice. He denied morning newspaper stories that his men had made numerous arrests and that prisoners were held under secret charges. "There has been no violation of Federal law," he said.

Meeting Tomorrow

The majority of the Aldermen could not be reached when The Examiner attempted to get into communication with them regarding the shut-down.

R. A. Cotton, when informed of the shut-down, and when asked about official action by the Aldermen, replied, "I couldn't say. There is a special meeting called for tomorrow night to consider the matter."

George A. MacDonald declared, "I couldn't tell you. There will be a meeting tomorrow night."

Aldermen N. E. Phelan and C. H. Ackerman were out of the city.

Alderman Greene wished not to be quoted, as he thought it would not be fair to his colleagues, as the situation will be thoroughly discussed at the council meeting called for 7.30 tomorrow night.

Although Neck Is Broken Cobourg Man May Live

COBOURG, March 31—With head, neck and shoulders encased with difficulty did Hathway, his son, an employee of the gas works, one of the Hydro untilities, lies in Cobourg General Hospital, and, although his neck is said to have been broken, his recovery is expected. He is reported to be resting fairly comfortably.

The accident in which Thompson was injured a few days ago was not at first regarded as serious. Thompson had gone to the Cobourg Dyeing Company to make some changes in the service, and as he stepped into his wagon, after completing the work, the horse started suddenly, and he was thrown of, striking heavily upon the pavement. A Hydro surgeon was called from Toronto to attend him and assist local physicians.

NATIONALISTS WILL be established at Macao, Portuguese colony in China.

Powers Await Suggestions

LONDON, Mar. 31 (United Press)—What form of joint international action the powers will take against the Cantonese is not known at present and the British government is awaiting suggestions which will help frame a common policy acceptable to the various foreign governments with interests in China. A considerable number of cabinet members, together with naval and military authorities are pressing for stronger action but Sir Austen Chamberlain, the foreign secretary, is walking warily on account of not wanting to shut the door on future negotiations and this despite the fact that he is convinced the present is no time to discuss anything with the Cantonese excepting the subjects of reparations for the Nanking outrages and the future safety of British subjects and property.

The foreign secretary's revelations in the House of Commons regarding Cantonese brutality have won for the government, almost complete support and Ramsay MacDonald is trying to explain throughout the country that he and his colleagues never meant to leave British subjects in China undefended and that their only contention was that negotiations were better than fighting.

The Daily Herald warns the country that it is drifting into war with the Chinese Nationalists but the only war likely is the holding of treaty ports by force.

Owing to the fact that the Yangtse river will be in flood, an idea is being cultivated in British naval quarters that it would be prudent for Great Britain to send warships further into the interior, especially as the floods will enable them to navigate with ease.

The proposed expedition would be punitive in character and would provide a guard for British property now in the hands of the Cantonese.

The government, however, is not regarding the plan with much enthusiasm, preferring to get joint international action.

BILL EFFECTIVE MIDDLE OF MAY

Control Bill Not Likely To Be Proclaimed Before Then.

WHEN STORES READY.

TORONTO, March 31. Canadian Press. — The proclamation of the new liquor control bill, which was signed by the Lieutenant Governor yesterday, is not likely to be reached until the second week in May. The bill will become effective upon proclamation. The date of the proclamation, it is understood, rests largely on the time needed to complete machinery for the sale and distribution of liquor. It is believed the government hopes to have every facility in readiness before the bill is proclaimed.

CANADIAN FARMER TELLS HIS EXPERIENCE
"Les" Booth, Widely Known Ontario Farmer, and a Sick Man For 20 Years, Suffered Daily, Only Half Alive—Now Strong, Robust, Vigorous, Credits New Found Health To Tanlac.

Though popularly known as "Les" Mr. Booth's correct first name is George. His home is at 271 Perth St., Brockville. For the past three years he has enjoyed vigorous health but what he endured before then is best told in his own words. "For twenty years my arms, shoulders, back and hips, ached with rheumatism," said Mr. Booth. "Often I had to quit work entirely and I remembered one bad spell that kept me in bed for six months.
"My case got to be so chronic that the help ran the farm. I was practically helpless. Even my wrists and hands would swell up so that I couldnt write my name. I dreaded bedtime, for I got no rest, but lay there in agony, waiting for morning. Nervous spells would seize me and I would tremble all over like a leaf. I couldn't get any benefit from my food and had to force myself to eat. My weight was far below normal.
"Three years ago, I decided to give Tanlac a good trial, for nothing else had helped me. I could scarcely believe such results were possible as those Tanlac soon showed. The aching stopped, my appetite came back and I could eat heartily. My nights became more restful, too, and I slept soundly. I gained 16 pounds which I still retain, and I now work hard outdoors from 8 to 10 hours a day. I never have an ache. It's hardly believable! If folks want to know what Tanlac can do, tell them to write to Les Booth, or to come and see me. I'll tell 'em."
If your health is broken from overwork or neglect, profit from Mr. Booth's experience. Try Tanlac, natures' own body builder, made from roots, herbs and barks. Your druggist has it. Over 32 million bottles sold.

CARE OF TEETH OF YOUNG CHILD

Little Ones Should Learn To Look After First Teeth.

AFFECT SECOND SET.

At an open meeting of the Well Babies' Clinic, held in the rooms at the hall of the Canadian Legion, on Tuesday afternoon, a lecture in the series of Talks on Teeth, being given by Dr. J. J. Craig, was presented to a large attendance of women.

The chair was occupied by Mrs. R. Harstone who spoke briefly on the work, speaking of the more spiritual side of child welfare work, speaking of the responsibility of the mother in the training and habit-forming life of the child. Passion, teasing and disobedience should be corrected at once, while the child was still young and the mother would be repaid later a hundred fold by inculcating love and obedience of parents in the growing mind.

Dr. Craig considered in this talk, the teeth of the child from two to four years of age. At two years of age the child should possess all of its first teeth and retain them until about the twelfth year of life. The child should be taught, by examples of the parents, to masticate hard food thoroughly, and to keep its mouth clean. The tooth brush should be used vigorously each night, before going to bed. The right sort of food, in the proper proportions, should be given, with plenty of fresh fruit and green vegetables; also outdoor exercise and play, and ten hours of sleep nightly.

Cavities in these teeth should be attended to immediately, to prevent pain and soreness and consequent faulty mastication of food. Abcessse forming in children's teeth lead to enlarged glands, inflamed tonsils and defective hearing and eyesight. For the sake of the second, permanent, teeth, the first teeth should be carefully attended to, and should be extracted at once if they are found to interfere in any way with the second teeth. Failure to watch conditions as they develop in these first teeth leads to faulty occlusion in the teeth, to crooked permanent teeth later on pushing through and to unsightly facial contours.

Dr. Craig concluded with a brief resume of previous talks on teeth, a few words as to the proper methods of using the toothbrush, and a warning against the pacifier.

Grads Defeat Fort William 4-1 in Third Game

GRADS DEFEAT FORT WILLIAM IN FASTEST GAME OF SERIES

Toronto Sextet Comes Back To Form and Play Fine Hockey.

SCORE 4 TO 1.

Teams Will Play a Fourth Game on Friday Night.

VANCOUVER, March 31. — The Toronto Grads evened up the Allan Cup series last night when they administered a 4 to 1 defeat to Fort William team in one of the finest games of the series. The fourth game of the series, each team having won one, with the first game a tie, will be played Friday night.

The Grads played first-class hockey, and were safe from the start. It was a different Toronto team last night from the previous games, and Grads had a decided edge on the play in every period.

"Red" Porter Stars.

"Red" Porter, captain of the Grads, was the shining light in their win, scoring two of the goals and breaking the hearts of the Forts' forwards.

The first period went scoreless, the Grads getting the only score in the second, and two minutes after the last session opened Cook tied the count on Ward's pass, but their hopes were short-lived, for in less than three minutes Porter banged in what proved to be the deciding counter and then added another seven and a half minutes later.

Trottier got the last score two minutes afterward, giving Kearney no chance to save after Delahey had passed the rubber out to him in front of the net. The Toronto team last night were faster, played better combination and better defence than the Forts. Another capacity crowd of 10,000 jammed the rink, and pulled for the Grads to even up the series.

In the opening period, the Queen City team were all over the Thunder Bay aggregation, and Kearney in the Forts net, in addition to playing a spectacular game, had Lady Luck in the net beside him most of the 20 minutes. With any kind of breaks, the Grads would have tallied at least two scores.

Taylor's score nine minutes after the second period was the culmination of a series of Grads rushes. The Grads pelted the Forts' cage unmercifully. Taylor's score was a lift from the side, just catching the inside of the net.

Forts' Attacks Lack Punch.

The Forts bucked up considerably after the count, but the Toronto aggregation never let up in their attacking. On two occasions Cook got nearly through the Toronto defence on neat stick-handling, but he had little support while any other Fort rushes were shoved in the corner.

The play in the last period kept the crowd continually in an uproar. When Cook tied up the score it served to make Toronto work the harder, and they exhibited some of the finest hockey ever seen on local ice. They went down in twos and threes, driving in shots from every angle. And when Porter put them in the lead again they kept right on the attack. The Grads' captain got a wonderful reception after his second score, and he well deserved it, for it was a very pretty combination play, Trottier having shot from close in and Porter taking the puck as it bounded off Kearney's pads.

The Forts threw everything into the play, but the Grads put up a wonderful exhibition of back-checking, and gave them little chance to beat Sullivan in the net. Checking was very strenuous throughout the game, but only six penalties were handed out, all for tripping and boarding.

Another capacity crowd of more than ten thousand was on hand at the start. Hudson opened the shooting with a flip from the boards, which Kearney took on his knee. Tuckwell nearly scored on a long drive from the blue line, Sullivan catching the puck in his hand and dropping it at the corner of the net.

BILL COOK WINS SCORING HONORS

Has Total of Thirty-seven Points in the N.H.L.

RANGERS' RIGHT WING.

MONTREAL, Que., March 31.—(Canadian Press).—Scoring honors in the National Hockey League for the year 1926-27 were won by Bill Cook, right wing of the New York Rangers, according to the complete scoring and penalty records for scheduled games completed March 26, issued yesterday by President Calder. Cook scored thirty-three actual goals and assisted in four others for a total of thirty-seven points.

Dick Irvin, captain of the Chicago Black Hawks, finished second with thirty-six points, made up of eighteen goals and eighteen assists.

Howie Morenz, centre of the Canadiens, made a sensational climb that corresponded to the club's meteoric flight at the close of the scheduled season, and landed in third place, with thirty-two points, which included twenty-five actual goals.

Frank Frederickson, of Boston, and Babe Dye, of Chicago, finished fourth and fifth respectively with thirty-one and thirty points.

Nels Stewart retained his title as "bad man" of the league. He sat beside the timers for 133 minutes during the season. Eddie Shore, defence man of the Bruins, was hard on Stewart's heels having been banished for a total of 130 minutes. Other "bad men" who exceeded the century mark were: Hooley Smith, Ottawa, with 125; Babe Seibert, of Montreal, with 116; George Boucher, of Ottawa, with 115; Reg Noble, Montreal, with 112; and Red Dutton, of Montreal, 108.

WINS TOURNAMENT.

PINEHURST, N.C., March 31.—(Canadian Press).— Mrs. Glenna Collett, of Providence, R.I., won the North and South women's golf tournament championship for the fourth time here yesterday by defeating Miss Virginia Van Wie of Chicago, 4 and 2.

CINCINNATI TO BE RECKONED

Believed Will Be Big Factor in Coming Championship Race.

CHANGES MADE.

NEW YORK, March 31.—Cincinnati's chances for the National League championship were rated as practically nothing when the race started in 1926, but the club came within three games of winning the pennant from the St. Louis Cardinals.

The Reds were not an impressive club last year with a vital infield weakness that was not corrected until late season.

Since the club finished ahead of the stronger looking New York Giants and the Pittsburgh Pirates, it evidently had power not observed on the surface, and for that reason it is sure to be a factor in the coming championship race.

Some Changes.

Several changes have been made in the personnel of the club during the winter lay-off. The most important was the result of a trade which sent Eddie Roush to the New York Giants for George Kelly.

Roush is rated as perhaps the best centre fielder in the National League but his services may not prove so indispensable. In exchange for Roush the Reds obtained in Kelly the best all-round player in the League.

Hugh Critz, rated as the greatest fielding second baseman in baseball, has not reported to the club, and he insists that he will not until he gets more salary. His game is of such importance to the defensive strength of the club that he probably will get what he wants.

In Charley Dressen, Babe Pinelli, Horace Ford, Wally Pipp and Clarke Pittinger, the Reds have competent men on each side of second base.

The difficulties of Adolfo Luque, veteran Cuban pitcher, also make it hard to estimate the real strength of the team.

Hornsby Stock.

NEW YORK, March 31.—Sale or transfer of the stock which Rogers Hornsby holds in the St. Louis club will be discussed to-day in Chattanooga by John McGraw, manager of the New York Giants, Hornsby and his attorney.

McGraw made a hurried trip here for a consultation with Charles Stoneham, president of the club, about Hornsby stock and the Roush hold-out case. He said he hoped both cases would be settled satisfactorily.

You'd Be SURPRISED!

BY BILLY EVANS

George Toporcer, utility infielder of the St. Louis Cardinals, enjoys unique distinctions as a big leaguer.

Toporcer has impaired vision and plays the infield wearing heavy glasses to right the trouble. There have been a number of pitchers who have worked with glasses, among them Lee Meadows and Carmen Till, but Toporcer is the only infielder in my big league experience to so play.

Now Toporcer is not a slugger. Hitting a home run is more or less a novelty with him. Therefore it is unusual that a near-home run caused him to figure in a most peculiar happening at Philadelphia.

There was a runner on first base at the time and one out when Toporcer hit a fly ball to right field. Some doubt existed as to whether the ball would clear the fence. Toporcer was one of those present who was positive he had registered a home run.

The runner on first was of the opposite turn of mind, he went half way to second, then turned his head to watch the flight of the ball.

Toporcer rounded first base at full speed and believing the other runner had continued on his way, passed him on his way to second.

When Toporcer passed the preceding runner, he automatically retired himself. Just about the time he did so the ball cleared the fence. The runner originally on first then started for the plate only to find the batsman ahead of him on the bases.

The runner scored on the hit, but since the base last touched by Toporcer when he passed the runner on his way to second was first base, he received credit for only a single on a ball that was hit over the fence.

COMMISSION HEARS ABOUT 'PHONE CALLS

Mrs. Rocco Perri Denies Giving Liquor Orders By Long Distance.

TORONTO, March 30.— (Canadian Press.)— Telephone calls from the home of Mrs. Rocco Perri, at Hamilton, to Toronto, will be investigated by the Royal Customs Commission.

This morning, Mrs. Perri, whose husband, she said, was away, appeared and gave brief evidence. Her testimony consisted very largely of denials. She denied that she was in the liquor business. She denied transmitting orders for liquor over the telephone to Gooderham & Worts. She said her husband was travelling for a macaroni firm and she knew nothing about his soliciting orders for liquor in the United States.

From Joseph Thibodeau, at Port Lambton, came information regarding a liquor shipment to J. Meyers, of Detroit. This witness said that Meyers would deposit the money in an American bank at Marine City, Michigan, when he wanted a consignment of liquor. Thibodeau would order the liquor from Gooderham & Worts or some other distillery and it would be delivered at Port Lambton or Sarnia. In his warehouse, witness said, he sometimes had about four hundred cases at a time. Since January he had probably sent one thousand cases.

Mr. Thibodeau said that, in his capacity as agent for Meyers, he bought liquor from Gooderham & Worts, Hiram Walker & Sons, Corby's Distillery, and Consolidated Exporters of British Columbia. Meyers sent boats across to get it. They were cleared by the Canadian Customs when loaded.

OSHAWA FORMS DISTRICT LEAGUE

Six Club Junior Group To Function in O.B.A.A. This Year.

SENIOR PROSPECTS.

OSHAWA, March 30.—With the annual meeting of the Ontario Baseball Amateur Association to be held at the Carls-Rite Hotel in Toronto on Saturday next, the baseball season situation in Eastern Ontario is rounding itself into shape. The new Oshawa District Amateur Baseball Association yesterday afternoon completed its organizations, with Bowmanville, Orono and Whitby being admitted to the junior series, which, with three teams from Oshawa, will make a six-club group and a minimum mileage expense, Whitby to Orono, twenty miles to travel, being the longest trip. Bowmanville also entered a team in the intermediate series, and with three entries from the Motor City, a four-team schedule will be drawn up.

Officers Elected.

With the three new centres included in the association, the list of officers was raised to include the following: Honorary President, John G. Nott, Oshawa; President, James Lovell, Oshawa; First Vice-President, Fred Dobney, Oshawa; Second Vice-President, Albert Darch, Bowmanville; Third Vice-President, Newton Joynt, Whitby; Secretary-Treasurer, Dr. Lou Hubbell, Oshawa. The executive committee is to be composed of one member from each club.

The association is to take over the O.B.A.A. affiliation of the Oshawa Church Baseball Association, with President Lovell, of Oshawa, and O. A. Gamsby, Orono, as representatives to the annual meeting, and has nominated John G. Nott, of Oshawa, for the second vice-presidency and as a member of the executive, but providing George S. Martin, of London, stands for re-election as second vice-president, Mr. Nott will only allow his name to go before the delegates as a candidate for the executive.

Will Not Operate.

The Durham and Ontario Intermediate League, which comprised teams from Brighton, Colborne, Cobourg, Port Hope and Bowmanville last year, is not likely to operate again owing to a bad financial playing season last year. Cobourg will likely have a town league, as with only an open park to play in no admission to games can be charged, and the drop-in-hat system has not been successful.

With the announcement that the Central Ontario League, which has operated a franchise in the senior Ontario series since 1919, is likely to disband, President Bill Snyder of Hamilton was in communication with Jack Nott, the local O.B.A.A. representative, over long distance phone, yesterday morning, and asked him to make a report of the eastern situation at the executive meeting in Toronto on Friday evening.

In an interview with the local man it was learned that Peterboro, realizing that the Central Ontario League would not again carry on with three teams, the management made application to the Lake Shore League to be grouped with Goodyears and Anacondas, of New Toronto, Mimico and Oshawa Motors, but Secretary Stephenson wrote a reply stating application would be brought up at the next Lake Shore League meeting, but did not think that Peterboro would be admitted on account of high travelling expenses.

New League Possible.

The Petes are very anxious to continue in senior baseball, and G. S. Matthews, of the Lift Lock City, in co-operation with Jack Nott, is busy on a senior organization to comprise the Oshawa Red Sox, Port Hope, Belleville and Peterboro, with a double schedule, and play as an eastern section of the Lake Shore League, with the winners to play a series of games with the winner of Goodyears, Anacondas, Mimico and Oshawa Motors to decide which would enter the O.B.A.A. senior playdowns.

Another suggestion is that owing to the Lake Shore League not being as yet organized for the coming season, that the two Oshawa teams, Peterboro, Belleville and Port Hope be grouped as a senior league, which would be practically a renewal of the old Central Ontario League of the year 1919.

With baseball the chief topic in the Motor City at present, it is learned on good authority that neither of the local organizations will consider Kingston as an entry, as the travelling expenses are out of all proportion to the gate receipts and loss of time to players, and if the new organization is completed Belleville will be the extreme eastern end.

LATONIA DERBY.

CINCINNATI, Ohio, March 31.—(Canadian Press).— The Latonia Derby at Latonia, Kentucky, will be run on Saturday, June 11, officials of the Kentucky Jockey Club announced yesterday.

The race will be for a purse of $20,000 added and over a course of 1¼ miles. One hundred and thirty-two horses have been entered.

WALES ATTENDS BOXING TOURNEY

British Fighters Lead, Winning Two Bouts and Drawing Third.

LONDON, March 31 (Canadian Press Cable).—Before a crowded Albert Hall audience which included the Prince of Wales, the international boxing tournament was held here last night. British fighters led in the competition, winning two bouts and drawing a third. The Germans were second with a win and a draw.

Results

Herman Herse, German welterweight champion, knocked out Frankie Burns, Australia, in fourth round of a ten-round contest.

Ted Dandwina, German heavyweight, fought a ten-round draw with Con Kelly, of Hull.

Teddy Baldock, England, knocked out Felix Friedemann, German bantamweight champion, in the second round of a 15-round contest.

Bart Melina, French middleweight, knocked out Harry Collins, Australia, in the second round of a bout scheduled to go 15.

Johnny Hill of Scotland won the lightweight contest when Petit Biquet, the French champion, was disqualified in the 11th round of a 15-round contest for hitting low.

BASKETBALL NOTES.

Last Saturday the Peterborough junior basketball team journeyed to Toronto. They were defeated by the fast Broadview juniors, who were eliminated from the O.A.B.A. by the West-End Juniors, the score being 33 to 21, although the game was much closer than the score indicated.

The return game will be played this Saturday night at the Y.M.C.A. and the boys are quite confident of reversing the score.

The preliminary game will be between the Y.W.C.A. Seniors and the Canadian Woollens, and this promises to be a real game.

There will be practice to-morrow (Friday) night for all the juniors at 8 o'clock.

A CORRECTION

The Examiner yesterday carried an advertisement of a one-ton Ford truck for sale at $85.00, also Ford Touring at a price of 25c. The advertiser's copy read $25.00 and the insertion of the sale price of 25c was so obviously a mistake that parties reading the advertisement could recognize it.

The sale price of the Touring Car is $25.00 and will be sold at that figure.

A MUCH APPRECIATED FUND

The benefit plan established some years ago by the Bell Telephone Company to take care of employees and their dependants in case of sickness, accident, retirement and death, continues to deal each year with a great many cases. During 1926, sick, accident and death benefits, as well as pensions were paid under the plan in 3,120 cases, and the total outlay amounted to $361,409. Letters of appreciation from employees and their dependents who have experienced the benefits of the plan are among the treasured possessions of the telephone company.

WATCH THE KIDNEYS

Fatigue and that tired feeling is the result of poison in the blood. When the kidneys fail to remove this poison from the system it leads to backache, rheumatic pains and sometimes to that fatal ailment known as Bright's disease. When this condition exists, don't delay, go to your druggist and get a box of Dr. Banta's Kidney and Rheumatic Pills and they will quickly correct the cause of your trouble.

Mr. Arthur Pinch of Smith Township states that Dr. Banta's Kidney and Rheumatic Pills give him more speedy relief than any other preparation that he had tried.

MALE VOICE CHOIR CONCERT.

Music-lovers of the city who are looking forward with eager interest to this year's concert of the Peterborough Male Voice Choir are reminded of the necessity of securing tickets at the earliest possible moment. There has been a brisk demand for tickets for this event, which promises to be one of the most successful of a long list of very successful concerts by this organization, and there are only a few of the $1.50 seats and of the 50 cent seats left. An exceptionally interesting programme by the Choir has been planned, with vocal solos by two visiting artists, Madame Holland, contralto, of Toronto, and Merlin Davies of Montreal, baritone-tenor.

TREET CARS PASS QUIETLY INTO REST

TY WAS WILLING TO DRIFT SAYS HYDRO

ontent To Let Others ay Railway Deficits Until Oshawa Objected

Both Sides of House Applauded References To Clean-up of Peterborough Situation — Other Central Ontario Municipalities Couldn't Be Expected To Continue Paying.

COMMISSION WOULD SELL SYSTEM TO OUTSIDER IF CITY DOES NOT BUY

C. A. Magrath Explains Events Leading Up to the Shut-Down Which Is First Move in a Plan To Cut Off Unprofitable Enterprises.

(Special to The Examiner)

TORONTO, Ont., April 1—"There need be no surprise in Peterborough over the suspension of the street railway service," said an official of the Hydro Electric Commission to-day. "Mr. Cook described the situation very fully the other day in the Legislature and both side of the House applauded his reference to the Peterborough situation.

"Peterborough got specific notice of what was going to happen six weeks ago, and they have known for a year what the policy of the Commission was but as long as they were allowed to drift they were willing to drift and let some one else pay their deficits.

The five cent fare was insufficient to carry the road and on a higher fare the people would walk. The loss was about $30,000 or more a year. Something had to be done. The gas plant and the railway together were offered to Peterborough for $575,000. The gas plant was paying on that capitalization.

"They came back with an offer of $150,000. Mr. Armstrong, the city clerk, was up in Toronto and got all particulars.

"It is not to be expected that the other members of the Central Ontario system would continue to pay the Peterborough deficit. That is what Belleville and Oshawa and the rest of them are kicking about. It is not proper to operate a railway for Peterborough at other people's expense.

"There are eight or ten miles of track and a number of cars.

These are of course, the worse for the wear, but as a going concern it is believed that Peterborough could use them profitably.

"The Commission would sell the railway to any responsible body if the city declines to take it.

Chairman Of Commission Tells Hydro's Attitude

(Special Correspondence)

TORONTO, April 1.—C. A. Magrath, Chairman of the Hydro-Electric Power Commission of Ontario, discussing the Peterborough situation with The Examiner today, explained that the Hydro's action in closing down the road had not been taken without long and mature consideration and many efforts to reach a working arrangement whereby the road could be carried on without heavy loss. A number of conferences had been held with Peterborough officials over a period of a year or longer in an effort to solve the problem, but no agreement had been reached.

"We cannot continue to operate the line at a loss," said Mr. Magrath. Peterborough had been notified two months ago of the intention to discontinue the line. The action had not been taken on short notice."

Ever since Mr. Magrath had been head of the Hydro enterprise the Peterborough street railway problem had been under discussion. Conferences have been held from time to time, and it is understood various plans were discussed with a view to having Peterborough assume a share of the responsibility for the service. No satisfactory agreement had been reached and the Hydro officials do not feel that it is in the interest of the enterprise as a whole to carry on the road at a loss which amounted last year to about $50,000, according to figures given in the Legislature a few days ago.

The closing of the Peterborough line is the first step in the way to disposal of a number of other properties operated at present by the Hydro, including a pulp mill and a gas company.

"We must get rid of these extraneous properties," said Mr. Magrath today.

Gas Plant to Continue.

NO ULTIMATUM FROM BRITAIN TO CANTONESE

Government Will Act Only In Concert With Other Powers.

TROUBLE IN UNIONS.

Workmen Say They Receive No Benefit From Strikes.

LONDON, April 1 (United Press)—The British Government has no intention of presenting an ultimatum to the Cantonese Government unless the other powers participate in it, the British United Press was authoritatively informed to-day, and reports that the Cabinet had last night decided to act alone are denied. At the present moment discussions are proceeding among the various powers involved in the Chinese question as to whom the joint demand for reparations in connection with the anti-foreign outrages at Nanking shall be presented, how it will be presented, and what action will be taken if no satisfaction is received.

The powers are agreed that the Cantonese are responsible for the outrages and that reparation must be made, but although British interests are predominant in China, the British Government so far has no intention of acting alone.

WORKERS ATTACK LEADERS.

LONDON, April 1. Canadian Press—Reuter's correspondent says there are increasing signs that Chinese labor is beginning to chafe under the tyranny of the Red unions. Union headquarters at Ningpo and Hangchow have been attacked by workers. The workers complain that the general labor union is controlled by a small clique and they are not benefitted under the new Nationalist regime owing to the many strikes.

White Spats Are Losing Caste In Great Britain No Longer Worn By Diplomats, London Paper Says

LONDON, Apl. 1—Charges that U.S. diplomats wear white spats in imitation of English diplomats is characterized by the London newspapers as an unfair reflection on the latter.

"The average British minister today," says one newspaper, "is not to be distinguished sartorially from the ordinary mortal, while the modern highbrow post-war Secretary with his long hair, horn-rimmed spectacles and soft hat is often downright slovenly. In any case white spats have long since been relegated to the Stock Exchange, or apparently the United States.

Sir George Clark, the present British Ambassador to Turkey, is said to be the last classical English diplomat—monocled, silvery haired and exquisitely dressed.

MAYOR EXPRESSES INDIGNATION

FAITH LOST.

MAYOR W. T. HOLLOWAY,
Who declares stopping of street cars is a black eye for public ownership.

CITY SHOULD PROVIDE CARS

Either Under Own Control Or By Private Firm, Says J. J. Turner.

LOCAL INTEREST.

With the closing down of the street transportation system, there is a tendency to condemn public ownership without due consideration, said ex-Mayor J. J. Turner.

The Hydro Electric Power Commission has suggested to various municipalities its desire to sell certain property acquired in the purchase of the Central Power system, such as pole distribution in each village, town and city served by the system, gas plants, street railway system, and paper mill, all of which were bought for a lump sum when the transfer was made.

Among these properties we have our street railway, which is purely local and of interest to this municipality only. The Hydro Commission does not desire to operate this railway and suggests that the city buy it or close it down. If we want transportation we should run it or arrange for private enterprise to operate it, as the Commission says it cannot do so any longer. This statement should not antagonize anyone against public ownership, but is rather a condition which will be met by the Mayor and Aldermen, and if a satisfactory price is obtained, the whole will be submitted to the ratepayers for approval. We may be inconvenienced for a time while details are being worked out, but let us not lose our heads and condemn public ownership of utilities, for through such ownership the citizens of the city have been saved thousands of dollars in water and light charges.

FIRE DESTROYS SPLENDID CHURCH

Roman Catholic Edifice at Portneuf Completely Gutter To-day.

QUEBEC, April 1. (CP)—Fire of unknown origin this morning completely gutted the interior of the beautiful Roman Catholic Church of Portneuf, thirty-five miles above Quebec, causing damage roughly estimated at between $100,000 and $150,000. Due to the heroism of the parish priest, Rev. Father Horace Gagnon, the Host and sacred vessels used for the celebration of the Mass were removed from the smoke-filled edifice before it became impossible to enter the building. Heroic citizens also braved the smoke and saved the Stations of the Cross and several priceless paintings which hung on either side and above the central altar.

PUBLIC OWNERSHIP IS GIVEN BLACK EYE THROUGH ACTION TAKEN BY HYDRO SAYS MAYOR

"Here's Hoping That Hydro Will Hand Back All Water Powers."

COUNCIL'S HANDS TIED.

Exclusive Bus Franchise Cannot Be Given Under Existing Laws.

His Worship Mayor Holloway today expressed to The Examiner the belief that the autocratic action taken in stopping Peterborough's street car service is a black eye for public ownership. "Here's hoping," he said, "that Hydro will hand back or abandon all the water powers of the Province on the same plan."

This, in fact, was the opinion of many representative business men, who felt, nevertheless, that the City Council should have foreseen the tie-up and should have provided at least a skeleton service for factory and other workers who are the principal sufferers through the demise of the street car service.

A difficulty in making such arrangements, however, is pointed out by the Mayor. "Peterborough, as the law stands now, cannot give an exclusive franchise for bus transportation," he said. "We have this from high officials of the Attorney-General's department of the Province." He stated that private citizens would be ill-advised to put money into busses for service in the city, because legislation wil probably be obtained soon permitting giving an exclusive franchise for this purpose. Then, no doubt, the council would award this to a large corporation.

"I am now thoroughly convinced that the Hydro-Electric Commission lost all faith in a street railway long ago, because they never spent any money on the system, saying they had no money, but could always find plenty of money for the gas plant. The fact that they have closed the street railway is a sure proof that they do not expect a customer to buy it; they could hardly expect anyone to buy a system which they had stopped operating themselves."

Among matters to be considered tonight is the offer of a large corporation to place ten or eleven buses on the streets as an experiment, which will probably be accepted, said His Worship, concluding with the toast, "Here's hoping the Hydro will hand back or abandon all the water powers of the Province on the same plan!"

Man, "Sick Of Marriage" Slays His Fifth Spouse

BARDSTOWN, Ky., April 1.—Lang Hagan, Kentucky farmer, admits that he has been married five times. He is now awaiting trial here for the alleged slaying of his fifth wife and their two children.

After Hagan recently confessfessed to Missouri officials that two years ago he killed Mary Rose Hagan, buried her in a cellar and then set fire to the house her skeleton was unearthed. He denies killing the two children.

Hagan's first wife died. The second divorced him. He left the next two, he says, and since the death of his last wife, became "sick and tired of marrying."

REJECTED OPPORTUNITIES

C. A. MAGRATH,
Chairman of Hydro Commission, who says city was given many chances.

SIZE OF DEFICIT DUE TO STRIKES

England's Trade Fell Off During Industrial Unrest Last Year.

REVENUES LOW.

LONDON, April 1. (Canadian Press). — Crushing blows to the country's trade, dealt by the coal and general strikes of last year, are the main cause of the huge deficit revealed at the end of the fiscal year. The deficit amounts to thirty-seven million pounds, compared with an estimated surplus of [illegible] millions. In the two years of Winston Churchill's Chancellorship the country has fallen behind more than fifty million pounds (two hundred and fifty million dollars).

The public was warned for some time to expect a deficit, but was staggered at the immensity of the loss. The unexpected drop in income tax was another cause, being twenty millions less than the estimate, while the excise tax yielded nine millions less than estimated.

It is taken for granted Churchill will announce fresh taxation in his new budget on April 11, and it is expected he will raid the sinking fund. The unhappy state of the national finances has intensified the call for greater Governmental economy.

Johnnie Cake Did It Says Man 101 Years Old

OLEAN, N.Y., April 1 (United Press).—David Forrester, who is 101 years old to-day, gives credit to Johnnie Cake of the old-fashioned kind for his long life. He admits April Fool's Day hasn't been bad for a birthday. After 40 years, he has admitted failure to attempting to build up a second fortune. He lost his first $75,000 when sixty. He is still able to do light work.

Ontario Government Is To Blame For Putting Railway Underground; Must Find Remedy Says R. R. Hall

I find on searching in the Registry Office that the car barns of the Street Railway stand in the name of His Majesty, the King, in the right of the Province of Ontario, or in otherwords, the Ontario Government owns the street railway. The Hydro Commission has only been the manager for the Ontario Government, and a sorry mess it has made of this street railway from start to finish.

Under private ownership it was a paying investment and running above the ground, but under Hydro Commission management it has lost money, hand over fist, to the extent of tens of thousand a year, and last night at eleven o'clock it ran under the ground. Our citizens are in no way responsible for this failure, but the loss of street railway service and inconvenience to our thousands of working men is great. Someone must be held accountable for this great loss of service, and that body must be the real owners of the street railway that made such a poor appointment.

We may blame the Hydro Commission all we like but we must look to the Ontario Government to assist us in finding a remedy. The head of the Ontario Government, the Hon. G. H. Ferguson, is the one to look to, and the one to introduce our City Council to him is Mr. W. H. Bradburn, M.P.P., our member for this riding.

The remedy is simple but will take time to carry out. Let the City of Peterborough or a private company have the opportunity to take over the street railway, the gas plant and Auburn power plant and be given a reasonable time to develop Dams 4 and 5 and Burleigh Falls water powers. This city would then have a surplus of ffom 2,000 to 3,000 horse-power to attract new industries and at the same time, supply all our present requirements. This city would then obtain gas at a lessened rate.

The gas plant deserves consideration as well as our underground railway, because it, too, under the hired man of the Ontario Government, is rapidly heading for failure. The consumption of gas is decreasing at the rate of millions of feet per year, while the rate has steadily increased from time to time under the Ontario Government's hired man. As the rate goes up, its consumers gradually cease to use the expensive stuff and drop out. This loss of consumers causes another increase, and still more and more drop out. With what result? This city will have another Hydro failure on its hands, and no gas for householders.

Our "power at cost" is a joke.

"Cut out the investor and confiscate his rights and property and give us 'power at cost'!" That was the slogan that deceived our citizens and now we are paying for it, in ever "increasing cost of power." The wholesale cost of power to this city under this same hired man's management has increased from $17.00 per horse-power to $28.12 per horse-power. The end of these increases has not yet come. Hydro methods and principles of management clearly show it, and the past misleading statements in its reports amply bear out this prediction.

What is the remedy? Let us strive with all our united efforts to free ouselves from this absentee landlord that is ruining our city. The man of the hour to help this city solve these problems is Mr. W. H. Bradburn, M.P.P. It is the Government that he supports that has in fact put our street railway underground, increased the cost of power to our power and light consumers, and increased the cost of gas to our householders. Mr. Bradburn has a great opportunity in the crisis this city is passing through, to win the gratitude and support of every right-thinking citizen if he only represents our wants to Premier Ferguson to have a real street car service, to have cheaper gas to householders, and to own our own water powers or have them under our own control.

When this city made its greatest strides our citizens were united. Surely in this crisis we can do the same as our representative men did in the past. We must make not only a powerful apreal to the Ontario Government but we must make an equally powerful appeal to the Dominion Government as well. My own experience is, that these Governments "sit up and take notice" when a solid body of earnest men, who are in the right, make their humble request with kid gloves on the hands of the men who will not hesitate to take them off.

March 31st, 1927. R. R. HALL.

Not A Funeral Note Heard At Car Barns At End Of Last Run

Number 30 Goes To Rest With Bunch of Crepe On Front Light—Busses Replenish Gas Supply Ready For Resumption Of Service.

STREET RAILWAY MEN DO NOT BELIEVE CARS HAVE STOPPED RUNNING FINALLY

Good Nature Of Operators Recognized As Danger Threatens—They Had Real Interest in Patrons of the Road —Fine Spirit Prevailed.

"Not a funeral note" was heard at the car barns on King Street last night as the wheels of Peterborough's street railway service stopped—perhaps forever. There was a little touch of the colour of mourning in the black crepe which someone had tied in a graceful bow on the front of Car No. 30 from the George Street line as she rolled over the yard switch and rumbled uncomplainingly into her berth for an indefinite rest. It might be for only a day, some of the men hoped, pending the outcome of tonight's meeting of the city council; but one thing was certain, old "30" and the rest of her weary fleet were not pulling out in the morning at the long-wonted hour of 5.50 o'clock.

The close of the day on the eve of April 1st was much the same as other days, except that it was earlier than some of those nights when holiday and late theatre crowds had to be assisted home. An Examiner reporter had made the last trip on one of the buses, whose gasoline supply was immediately replenished with a business-as-usual gesture that at least seemed re-assuring. Two other busses moved into their side of the barn a few minutes later, and then came two George Street cars. The flock was once more under the shelter of the old familiar roost.

Fred Turner and Frank McCarthy were the last of the motormen to cut off the power, and William Whitworth and Lewis Fry, as conductors, glanced around their cars to make sure that passengers had left no personal belongings, and then turned in their fare boxes.

"I hope it's a fine morning for our old customers," remarked Lew Fry with a characteristic thought for the early "birds," those workers to whom the street cars have long been a real help. So well are they known to the street railwaymen that if they missed a trip their absence was noted, and from several such mornings the car crews concluded with concern that this or that patron must be ill. This was the spirit that has prevailed between the regular passengers and street railway employees.

The men on the late run last night went home with strong hopes that it would not be long until they were back in their accustomed places. Although they had received the Hydro-Electric Commission's notice a month or more ago, they felt that something would turn up to enable the transportation system to carry on. The final word yesterday afternoon was somewhat surprising in spite of the previous intimation from the office. However, some of the men expressed the opinion earlier in the week that the culmination of the "showdown" or rather shut-down would materialize as inevitably as the Hydro's warning had conveyed.

Last night there was not a word of complaint from men who had given years to the work, an attitude that seemed to reflect their confidence that the cessation of the service would be only temporary. They may have had doubts and heavy hearts, but they did not reveal emotions of that kind.

Laborer Blown Into Air By Dynamite Explosion

MONTREAL, Que., April 1.—(Canadian Press).—Pedro Serino, 30, was blown several feet in the air by a blast of dynamite here yesterday. He died a few minutes later.

Serino was a member of a gang employed in excavation work in the north end of the city. A stick of dynamite was placed under a rock and the fuse lighted. The victim failed to heed a signal to the men to retire to a safe distance. The powder exploded and the victim, along with a half ton of rock, was blown skywards.

German Paper Says "Empress" Hermine Plans A Series Of Berlin Courts For Next Season

BERLIN, April 1 (A.P.). — "Empress" Hermine, wife of former Kaiser William, not long ago occupied for the first time the Hohenzollern Palace on the Unter den Linden, says The Demokratische Zeitungsdienst.

Princess Hermine plans next season to hold a series of court parties in the hope of paving the way for her husband's return to Germany from exile, says the paper, which is the official mouthpiece of the Democratic party.

The Democrats have warned all Republicans to be on guard in connection with the possible return of the former Kaiser, for "William the last has always also been William the sudden."

Native Reign of Terror Reported at Shangh

ESTIMATED 35,000 FOREIGNERS ARE GATHERED FOR THE DEFENCE OF THEIR INTERESTS IN SHANGHAI

International Settlement Laced With Barbed Wire and Sand Bags.

REBELS DEFEATED.

300 Armed Native Civilians Are Executed By Cantonese General.

SHANGHAI, April 1. — Approximately 35,000 armed foreigners were available last night for the defence of Shanghai and in addition there was the large fleet of American, British and other foreign warships anchored in the Whangpo River.

The defensive force was composed of about 25,000 foreign troops exclusive of 2,000 civilian volunteers and 2500 police.

The International settlement today was laced with barbed wire and sandbag forts were everywhere to the extreme inconvenience of traffic.

The approximate strength of the various foreign contingents last night were as follows: British, 12,928 troops including 4014 Indians; U. S. marines 1549; Dutch, Spanish, Portuguese and Italians, 200 each; Japanese marines, 4000; French marin 3500; British sailors 1200; American sailors 1200.

Reign of Terror.

LONDON, April 1. United Press. —A native reign of terror in Shanghai was reported yesterday by the correspondent of the Daily Express, who said 300 armed native civilians had been executed on orders of General Chiang Kai-shek, commander of the Cantonese armies.

Personal troops of the commander executed the victims, the correspondent said.

Troops of Marshal Chang Tso Lin's northern army were advancing southward through Honan, after devasting rebels in that province in a 14-day battle, the Daily Mail's Peking correspondent reported.

Streak of Comedy.

PEKING, April 1. United Press.—That there usually is a streak of comedy even in the most tragic situation was proved again when the Chinese attacked foreigners last week at Nanking, a despatch said yesterday.

Not content with looting foreign homes and buildings, some angry Chinese conceived the idea of ruining the foreign sports grounds. A plough was obtained and the carefully nurtured greens of the Nanking golf course was ripped and turned under.

Will Send Ultimatum.

LONDON, April 1. Associated Press. — An emergency meeting of the cabinet was held last night, says the Daily Mail, as a result of which something in the nature of an ultimatum will be sent to the Cantonese government demanding reparation for the slaying of British subjects by Cantonese troops during the recent disorders.

The government, the newspaper says, is prepared to take the strongest measures to secure retribution for the disorders.

(Three Britishers were reported killed in last week's rioting at Nanking. They were Dr. Satchwell Smith, John Knox, an able seaman, and the British harbormaster at Nanking, named Hubert.

DEATH.

ATKINSON.—At his late residence, River Road, Campbellford, on Friday, April 1, William Atkinson, aged 75 years and 7 days.

Funeral at 2.30 on Sunday from the family residence.

SEAGRAM, LTD. INVESTIGATION HEARD BY PROBE

Paid Operating Expenses of Race Horse Farm Before Income Tax.

PROFITS LARGE.

Declared No Dividends Since 1921, But Made Heavy Loans.

TORONTO, April 1 (Canadian Press).—Two interesting facts were brought to light during the investiation of Joseph E. Seagram, Ltd., Waterloo distillers, before the Royal Customs Commission yesterday. The first was that, during the era of the old company (a new company under the same name took over the business about six months ago), the expense of operating a race-horse farm was deducted from the profits of the distillery before income tax was paid. The second was that the old company declared no dividends from 1920 on. Instead, the shareholders, consisting according to evidence, of four members of the Seagram family, borrowed money from the company. The profits, said counsel, were very large and the borrowings extensive.

Hon. N. W. Rowell, K.C., commission counsel, endeavored to ascertain from William Carthew, manager and treasurer of the old company, if this policy of no dividends was adopted so that the shareholders could evade income tax.

"That's not for me to say. I'm not running their business," was the response he met. When Mr. Rowell asked if these loans which, he said, showed as $860,000 in the books were not really distribution of profits, the witness said no. They were loans of profits.

Huether's Brewery

Huether's Brewery, Ltd., of Kitchener, Ont., shared with Seagrams' the attention of the commissioners yesterday afternoon. From Karl Huether, who stated that he looked after shipments for this company, came the statement that strong beer had been delivered in Ontario after renewal of the license in the year 1924.

"The bulk of your strong beer was sold and delivered in Ontario up to 1926?" asked Mr. Rowell.

"About half of it," was the reply. Drivers delivering the strong beer were frequently protected by export entries which were furnished to them, but Mr. Huether insisted that

Order For Canadian Bull Frogs, Preferably Adults, Comes To National Biologist From Far-Away Japan

OTTAWA, Ont., April 1—The Rana Catesdeiana or Canadian bull-frog may be without honor in his own country, particularly among the insomnious residents, but it is growing in fame abroad. A short time ago a number of frogs were sent to England at the request of Lady Byng. Clyde L. Patch, Biologist of the National Museum here has this week received a quaintly worded letter from T. Kotani of Oskaka, Japan, asking that Canadian frogs be sent to him. His request will be complied with. The letter reads:

"Dear Sir,—I take the liberty of asking you whether you have adult frogs—bull or other eatable species will do—to sell for me. I want two or three pairs. If so, I shall be greatly obliged if you kindly let me know the prices of same as well as freight, packing exp., etc., to be incurred coming to my city, so that I may remit the money, if otherwise, if you know anyone who can sell them, please inform me the name and addresses of those.

"Thanking you in advance for your trouble.

"Yours faithfully,

"T. KOTANI."

WILL SHELVE SUFFRAGE FOR PRESENT TIME

British Parliament Not To Consider Matter at Present Session.

DIFFERENT OPINIONS.

Is Likely Entire Matter Will Be Referred To Joint Conference.

LONDON, April 1 (Canadian Press).—Equal suffrage, for which a determined fight is being made by many prominent English women, apparently is due to be shelved as far as the present session of Parliament is concerned.

As a result of a Cabinet meeting yesterday to consider the question of extending the vote to women at 21 instead of at 30, it is likely that the entire matter will be referred to a joint conference of all political parties.

Premier Baldwin recently undertook to make a statement in the House of Commons on the question before the Easter recess, and yesterday's Council was called to settle the nature of that statement.

Divergence of Opinion.

The difficulty is that there is a great divergence of opinion within the Cabinet itself. Official denials have been made that any "split" exists in the Cabinet. Nevertheless, it is known that several Ministers strongly oppose extending the suffrage to all women unless the voting age for both men and women should be placed at 25.

Various proposed plans were discussed yesterday, but it is understood that Premier Baldwin was unable to gain unanimity except for the proposal to refer the matter to a joint party conference. Although no official announcement was made, it is believed that this plan will eventually be adopted.

Should the foregoing plan be the purpose of Premier Baldwin's promised statement, it is expected that he will explain that the Government's reason for delaying the grant of the vote to women at 21 is that the decision is of such widespread importance that it should not be the unaided work of a single party, but should be the result of an agreement among all the parties.

It is also believed that the Government will maintain that such a great change in the franchise should be accompanied by changes in the electoral system, and it has been rumored that the Government favors introducing some system of proportional representation.

DECLARED SANE.

Abraham Robinson, acquitted in the famous Madoc, Ont., murder case, who was this week declared sane by two doctors, and released from custody. After the recent jury verdict of "not guilty" Mr. Justice Logie, who heard the case, declared that, in his opinion, Robinson was the man who fired the death shots at Bailiff St. Charles. Moreover, his lordship declared Robinson should not be at large.

COMPLETION OF CANAL IS URGED BY W. M. FOWLDS

Believes That People Should Receive Benefit For Millions Spent.

IDEAL FOR TOURISTS.

In Present Unfinished State Entirely Useless For Commercial Purposes.

HASTINGS, April 1—Mr. Walter M. Fowlds, president of the Trent Waterways Development Association, has given the Examiner a copy of one of the letters which he has recently sent out in answer to inquiries about the need of completing the canal and also about the deputation which has been proposed to interview the Minister of Railways and Canals at Ottawa.

The following letter to A. E. Cameron of Beaverton mentions some of the reasons why the Trent Canal should be completed:

Mr. A. E. Cameron,
Beaverton, Ont.

Dear Sir,—Your letter regarding the Trent Waterway Development Association and more particularly the development and value of the Trent Waterway system duly received.

You will no doubt remember that the main object in the beginning of the development of the Trent Canal was that the same might be utilized for commercial purposes such as freight carrying. A good many millions have been spent on the project to date, and it is still in an uncompleted state, and that the country might get the full benefit of these millions that have been spent we feel that the canal should be completed and an outlet made to Georgian Bay. The canal would then be in such a state that the public could receive full benefit for freight or other purposes. In its present unfinished state it cannot be used for commercial purposes, and until it is finished, how do we know to what extent it might be used as a freight carrier!

Our Association felt that, as the Government was not taking any direct action towards the completion of the canal, we should form ourselves into an organization to promote the canal or the Trent Waterway from a tourist standpoint. We felt there were no more ideal tourist resorts and pleasure grounds in the Province of Ontario than existed in the Trent Waterway from Trenton to Midland. We also felt that we were not only creating a revenue for the Province from tourists, but we were advertising our wonderful power resources which are along this canal. I understand these amount to from eighty to one hundred thousand horse power, of which probably a little better than half has been developed. From Government statistics we learn that the locks more than pay sufficient revenue to maintain them, so you might say the maintenance and operation of the different locks on the system are self-supporting. It is needless for me to tell you into what wonderful business the tourist traffic has developed and the wonderful revenue the Province indirectly is receiving through the tourists, which in turn is distributed to the merchant and the individual.

Should Be Completed

Our Association feels that if the Government could be induced to open and complete the northern end of the canal that we would get a great influx of tourists by motor boat from Detroit and Chicago, as they could then have the full use of the canal direct and could sail from Georgian Bay to Lake Ontario. At the present time the Government has installed a marine railway at Ragged Rapids which is capable of conveying over the hill a sixty-foot boat. I might say for your information that that part of the Trent Waterway west of Peterboro, say from Fenelon Falls east, is used quite extensively in the hauling of cord wood. If the canal were open direct, its use might be extended to that of drawing lumber and pulp wood, grain, etc. From its actual use could only be determined its usefulness and its practicability as a freight carrying proposition. Many points would have to be considered in a way of cost, time and other overhead charges that would come into the proposition of water transportation.

I might say that we held an exhibit at the New York Motor Boat Show this winter at which we exhibited a motion picture of the route from Midland to Trenton. This gives first hand information to the tourists as well as others seeking commercial locations and tourist sites, as it shows the development of the water power as well as the wonderful scenic and camping sites. With this picture we distributed some fifteen thousand booklets to the general public. It was estimated that some two hundred thousand people had an opportunity to see this picture.

REPORT FORD IS IMPROVING

"Patient Rested Easily, Progress Continued Favorable," Says Doctor.

DENY STATEMENT.

DETROIT, Mich., April 1 (Canadian Press).—Bulletins burgeoning only optimism continued from Henry Ford's bedside last night, while varying reports as to the manner of the accident which last Sunday night sent him careening in a Ford coupe down the embankment of the uplisted roadway of Michigan Avenue just at the eastern end of a bridge over the River Rouge.

"The patient had a fairly good day," read the last bulletin late yesterday of Dr. R. D. McClure, surgeon-in-chief of the Henry Ford Hospital. "Progress continued favorable."

The first authentic statement from anyone of the vast Ford organization yesterday was a disclaimer of belief that a deliberate attempt to kill the manufacturer had been made.

It came from Harry H. Bennett, chief of the Ford investigators, and was to the effect that he was satisfied that Ford's light car was sideswiped by a "hit and run" motorist driving with one arm about a girl, or slightly in his cups.

There remained undenied, however, the original statements Wednesday night of a source close to Mr. Ford, that the accident was accepted as a deliberate attempt at assassination and a second statement by a Ford spokesman that a great many men were investigating along numerous lines and that it was believed that the automobile which catapulted Mr. Ford over the embankment was known.

In addition there were reports that the Ford investigators were combing Detroit for a damaged automobile of a certain type.

MONTREAL MEMBER INSISTS THAT KING MADE AGREEMENT WITH THE GOVERNOR-GENERAL

C. H. Cahan Rakes Up Dissolution Issue In Conference Debate

SAYS TRUTH SHOULD BE TOLD

Premier Urged Exercise Cable British Governor Asking Advice.

OTTAWA, April 1. — C. H. Cahan, Conservative member for St. Lawrence and St. George, resumed the debate on the Imperial conference resolution when the House resumed yesterday afternoon. He referred to the episode of dissolution last year, and recalled the Premier's speech at Richmond Hill in 1925, in the course of which Mr. King had said that he had conferred with Lord Byng, and had informed him it was not sufficient for members to draw their salaries and carry on government without an adequate and responsible majority.

There was no doubt in Mr. Cahans' mind that there had been an understanding between the premier and the governor general after the election when Mr. King found himself at the head of the second largest group. In Mr. Cahan's opinion there must have been a further understanding.

Cites Letters Patent.

Mr. Cahan quoted the letters patent issued to the Governor-General, and declared that His Excellency exercised the King's perogative purely and simply with respect to the adjournment, proro tion or dissolution of parliament.

"I do not know whom Lord Byng consulted in 1926," said Mr. Cahan, but if he had consulted Keith he would have found that the Crown could not grant a second dissolution to one head of the executive until other means of carrying on the government had been considered.

"If there ever was a time when the leader of the opposition, having resigned government, should have told the truth, the whole truth, and nothing but the truth,' said Mr. Cahan, "it was on the night of June 23 of last year. He informed the House then that he had told His Excellency that he was ready to carry on, pending the acceptance of his resignation with completion of the business before the House."

Mr. Cahan stated that he had asked for the correspondence which had been reluctantly produced. One letter dated June 23, 1926, was notable. In this letter Mr. King had urged His Excellency to cable the Secretary of State asking him to seek the advice of the British Parliament regarding the attitude which he should take in respect to the request for dissolution.

"The Prime Minister," said Mr. Cahan, "also says that he suggested that His Excellency should consult Sir Robert Borden. What an outcry would have been raised had he done so."

Will Be Private Bill.

OTTAWA, Ont., April 1.—Senator Willoughby's bill for the establishment of a divorce court in Ontario having passed the Senate will come shortly for consideration to the House of Commons. Arrangements will be made to have some member on the Government side to bring up the bill, but the sponsor has not yet been selected. It will not be a Government bill, but a private bill and the Government will probably eliminate the whips and make the bill open.

The present prospect is that the bill will pass but only after a brisk discussion, and some opposition from the Quebec members. This opposition will be based on antagonism to the principle of divorce, not on the principle of having the matter dealt with by the courts. The Roman Catholic members of the House are violently opposed to divorce in principle but as it is acknowledged in the B.N.A. Act and made a Federal matter, they will finally accept the situation and let the bill go through.

U. S. Cutter Escorts Rum Runner To Port

LUNENBURG, N.S., April 1 (Canadian Press).—The auxiliary schooner Imalone, carrying 4,000 cases of liquor with which she sailed from St Pierre some time ago, made port here at noon yesterday in company with the United States cutter Harriet Lane, one of the newest units of the American navy fleet. Captain Emil Olsen of the schooner said he had been under close convoy of the cutter since the two met at a point about 200 miles off Nantucket shoals. The Imalone, built here recently, is yacht-like in its luxury, with electric lights, wireless installation, and two 100 horse-power crude oil engines capable of driving her at the rate of 12 knots.

The schooner sprung a leak at sea and will go on the marine slip here for repairs.

Lyrics Of Life

(By Douglas Malloch.)

CHEATED

I often think of Midas Kent;
He always got his ten per cent.
When other men got six or eight.
He got up early, sat up late.
And loaned where loans were not so good,
And then collected—Midas could;
Where others wouldn't, Midas would.

He got, he said (and that was true);
Just what he was entitled to.
No less, no more. He showed the note;
Some signature some fellow wrote,
And there it was, as plain to see
As any signature could be.
And no one dared to disagree.

He got up early; but one fall
One day he didn't rise at all.
The doctor came and shook his head,
For Midas Kent was plainly dead;
And not a single mourner went
To shed a tear for Midas Kent.
The man who got his ten per cent.

He got, he said (but was it true?),
Just what he was entitled to.
But did he, though? Of all I've met,
If any man was cheated yet
'Twas Midas Kent. With all his pelf,
With all his goods upon the shelf,
One man had cheated him. Himself.

THE LIFE OF CHRIST : The Conversion of Zacchaeus

Synopsis Arranged by Dr. Wm. E. Gilroy, D.D. Sketches by Kroesen.

As Jesus, thronged with the multitude, passed near Jericho, Zacchaeus, despised as a tax-gatherer for the foreign Roman power, climbed a tree to see Jesus, because he was short in stature. (Luke XIX : 1)

Jesus looked up and saw him, and said, "Zacchaeus, make haste, and come down, for today I must abide at thy house." (Luke XIX : 5)

The people murmured that Jesus had gone to be the guest of a sinner, but Jesus, recognizing the sincerity of Zacchaeus, proclaimed his salvation. (Luke XIX : 10)

Jesus taught the lesson of watchfulness and faithfulness in the Parable of the Pounds, in which he condemned the man to whom his master had given only one pound for hiding that pound in a napkin. (Luke XIX : 12-26)

SURPRISE PARTY FOR CAVAN BRIDE

Miss Florence Larmer Receives Gifts From Her Friends.

MILLBROOK, April 1. — A very pleasant surpris, was prepared for Miss Florence Larmer on Monday evening, when about one hundred neighbors and friends gathered at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Wilbert Larmer, Seventh Line, Cavan, to enjoy a social evening previous to her marriage to Mr. Melville Ball, which takes place on Thursday, March 31, in Grace Presbyterian Church.

Owing to the unsatisfactory state of the roads, the hour was somewhat advanced before all had arrived, and a number were prevented from attending who had planned to be present.

Mr. and Mrs. Larmer, assisted by Mrs. H. Seaton, welcomed the self-invited "guests," and did everything in their power to make the evening as pleasant as possible. Music was furnished by the Byam orchestra, and by the Misses Gwen Hutchison and Ella Elson, and this with social converse, and dancing for those who wished, made the time pass happily.

Shortly before supper was served the bride-to-be was seated in centre of the company, and the "shower," the main event of the evening, was carried out in a most attractive manner.

Pink and white was the color scheme used for the daintily-trimmed wagon, laden with the gifts to be presented, and driven by Lois Dawson, who used very lightly the whip of white, pink-tipped, and the soft white reins, in managing her "team," little Jim Dawson, in white suit, and Roberta Bothwell, who looked sweet in ruffled pink dress, with flower-band in her hair.

Mrs. Offa Williamson read the following address, and on behalf of a wide circle of friends, a combined dinner and tea set of handsome Mylott china, a pair of dainty vases in "chintz" pattern, two sets of fine china salt and pepper shakers, and a pretty luncheon cloth of woven linen and silk in damask design were presented to Miss Larmer.

Dear Florence.—A few of your many friends have gathered at your home this evening that we may enjoy a social time together before you change your name, and enter upon the new pathway in life which lies almost immediately ahead of you.

During the period of our association in a friendship that has grown with the years, we may look back upon many good times we have enjoyed together, in school days, at parties, and other happy gatherings, and while we regret losing you from this neighborhood, we are glad that your new home is not to be at any great distance.

We look forward to seeing you, and the one with whom your life is soon to be united, as visitors in our homes and as fellow-guests with us at other gatherings of a social character.

We have appreciated the kindliness of disposition, the cheerful companionship, and the genuine worth of character which we have recognized in you during the years of our association, under varying circumstances, and we feel the sense of a vacancy in our social circle will bring to us a measure of sadness on some occasions, though we rejoice in the opportunities which will present themselves from time to time, for a rebinding of the ties of friendship.

We felt we could not let this opportunity pass without giving tangible expression to our affection and esteem, and we ask you to accept these gifts with the sincere wish that all happiness and prosperity, and the richest blessing of a Divine and All-Loving Providence, may be your portion.

On future occasions, as you partake of a meal from these dishes in your own home we hope many happy memories of your old friends may recur to you, and that your husband, also, as he shares the meal with you, may feel that his welfare too was in our minds in presenting the gifts.

Signed on behalf of your friends,
Mrs. Offa Williamson,
Mrs. Harry Dawson.

Mr. Larmer came to his daughter's assistance in the embarrassment and emotion always incident to such an occasion, and replied briefly on her behalf, thanking the guests for the beautiful expression of friendship, both in word and deed, which has just been made.

All joined in singing, "For She's a Jolly, Good Fellow," and the committee in charge served a dainty, yet bountiful supper, after which dancing was resumed, and it was well into the morning hours before the last car-load of guests had left for home.

.\. CHRONICLER OF FACTS . . . SIFTER OF RUMORS AND OPINIONS . . . MINISTER OF THE TRUTH THAT MAKES MEN FREE.

INSULT TO INJURY.

The record of the Hydro Commission in its operation of Peterborough's street railway system is not the strongest boost in the world for public ownership, and the closing down of the street railway at short notice adds insult to injury.

It is true that a warning was given early last month by Chairman Magrath, but the opening of negotiations by the City Council might well have been regarded by the Commission as justification for continuing the service a little longer.

The Hydro Commission took hold of a system that apparently under private ownership was in good condition, allowed the system to deteriorate so far as equipment and rolling stock was concerned, set up a record of ever-increasing annual deficits, and now abruptly terminated the service, leaving Peterborough without transportation facilities.

The whole transaction is a sorry demonstration that public ownership does not inevitably mean economical or efficient administration.

WHERE CREDIT IS DUE.

With the passing of the street railway system it is only fair that some measure of tribute should be paid to the local personnel of the system for good service to the people of Peterborough over a long term of years.

Whatever may be thought of the Hydro Commission's record in the operation of the street railway, so far as Superintendent John McCann and the employees here are concerned there are nothing but good things to be said.

They had no responsibility so far as providing the equipment was concerned, but with the facilities that were at their command they did their best to maintain a regular and efficient service, and to their credit be it said that the street railway has been kept running in the face of blizzards and adverse weather conditions that stopped far more ambitious systems, and that it has been operated with a remarkable freedom from accidents of any kind.

The crews, both of the street cars and of the motor buses added to the system early last year, have been both efficient and courteous.

In fact, the attitude of the local employees toward patrons of the system has been frequently commented on most favourably by visitors to the city.

It is one of the many regrettable features of the present situation that men who have served the public so well find themselves now out of employment.

KICKING THEIR CRUTCHES FROM UNDER THEM.

Surely the announcement that the Postal Department has notified the Civil Service Commission that the efficiency of the department will be seriously impaired unless amputation cases are barred from future participation in civil service examinations for the postal service, cannot be accurate.

Men who lost a limb fighting for Canada are deserving of more generous treatment from the Government of their country than to have their crutches kicked from under them in this manner.

There is no reason under the sun why many amputation veterans could not render efficient service in the postal department.

As a matter of fact, in a recent speed and efficiency test among Toronto postal sorters it was an amputation veteran who carried off the honours, and many others have shown themselves capable of excellent work in civil service positions.

It's a shock under the circumstances to find a Government department closing the door of useful employment in the faces of such men.

The people of Canada look to the Federal Government to take the lead in providing positions for the men sent overseas by this country, and when a department takes the position that their employment would "seriously impair" the efficiency of the department a sorry example is provided for the rest of the country.

More should be heard of this ruling; it cannot be accepted by any Canadian who has a spark of gratitude in his being for the sacrifice made by Canada's overseas force.

THE TRANSPORTATION EMERGENCY.

The Hydro-electric Commission probably considers that the letter sent by C. A. Magrath, Chairman of the Commission, to the City Council on February 8th to the effect that "I am sure you realize that the existing situation cannot be allowed to continue any longer; hence, unless we can come to some understanding in respect to the property, we intend to close down on the 1st day of April next," was a sufficient justification for suspending the service last night without further warning.

The public will undoubtedly take a different view of the situation, and feel that from a public body like the Hydro Commission more courteous treatment than a curt advertisement appearing a few hours before the suspension of the service might reasonably be looked for.

The fact that the City Council only last week had made an offer for the purchase of the system served to convince the people of Peterborough that while these negotiations were in progress the service would be maintained.

The Commission has chosen, however, to treat the City of Peterborough as a close-fisted and hard-hearted storekeeper might treat a customer whose payments were none too prompt, and has at a few hours' notice left the people without transportation facilities.

The action of the Commission will serve, however, to bring the situation to a head, and leaves the Council faced with a problem that will require earnest attention.

Despite the letter of Mr. Magrath, there has apparently been a feeling among the Aldermen that there would not be an abrupt suspension of the service.

That belief has now been completely shattered, and the city finds itself today with no transportation facilities save those provided by a private bus company which for some time has been carrying a portion of the traffic.

Peterborough requires some method of transportation, for the closing up of the street railway system is a serious matter to hundreds of industrial workers who have to travel a long distance to their place of employment, and who will be greatly inconvenienced if the accommodation supplied by the Hydro is not replaced in some manner or other.

Although the final shut-down has come suddenly, the problem is by no means a new one; it has been developing for some years, and doubtless the City Council will be able to find some satisfactory solution that will give Peterborough the transportation facilities that are needed.

Fortunately, the street railway system has passed out of the picture at a season of the year when its failure to operate will not be as generously felt as if it had developed in mid-winter.

"THE PINCHING OUT PROCESS."

In two isolated and unimportant districts the leaders of the United Mine Workers and the coal operators have signed new agreements on the basis of the Jacksonville wage scale. Admittedly, the leaders of the organized miners hope for success from what is called the "pinching out" policy—the negotiation of satisfactory agreements with operators in outlying coal districts and the stimulation of competition with operators in the central competitive field. The fear of permanent loss of trade is counted on to prompt the big operators to yield to the demands of the miners after a period of anxious waiting.

The success of this policy just now seems rather doubtful. In the first place, the accumulated coal stocks are unusually large—80,000,000 tons being the estimated total. In the second place, the unionized coal area has decreased since 1922, the year of the last suspension of bituminous production by the organized miners and some of their non-union sympathizers. It is believed that an order of suspension April 1 would affect only about 35 per cent. of the normal coal production.

The large consumers of coal, including the railroads, have displayed no symptoms of acute apprehension as a result of the failure of the conferences between the operators and the union miners' representatives.

It cannot be said, however, that the average consumer of coal need feel no uneasiness about the price of fuel in the event of a strike. Despite the stocks on hand and other reassuring factors, he may have to pay excessive prices. The pinching policy may not be applied exclusively to mine operators of the central competitive field. Consumers are accustomed to feeling the pinch as applied by coal merchants and middlemen. In the event of a strike they should insist that effective steps be taken by the authorities and influential business bodies against exploitation of the coal-consuming public.—Chicago News.

RULING THE ROOST.

We boast much in Canada of our natural resources. We take pride in the fertility of our wheat fields, in the richness and range of our mineral deposits, in the potentialities of power in our rivers, and in the visible wealth of our forests. But there are other realizable assets of untold value that are not so widely proclaimed, and one of these is to be found in the barnyards and hen runs of the Dominion.

The significance of the World's Poultry Congress, to be held in Ottawa in July, lies not merely in the fact that it will probably be the largest convention of poultry breeders ever organized, and the most polyglot gathering ever assembled in Canada, with delegates from a greater number of countries than are associated in the League of Nations. It marks an achievement that bears striking testimony to Canadian initiative and enterprise, and represents, in a very real sense, the triumph of the Canadian hen.

Few of us, who enjoy our daily egg for breakfast and occasionally grumble at the price, probably realize the extent and value of the produce of the domestic fowl throughout the Dominion. Measured in dollars and cents, by the amount exported as well as by home consumption, it is a source of revenue that would stagger many an economist. But even more remarkable, from a national as well as an economic standpoint, is the advance that has been made in the standard of poultry breeding in Canada, and the place the Dominion has attained in that direction in competition with the world.

Behind the capture of the World's Poultry Congress for Ottawa lies a story of enterprise and progress that is not lacking in the elements of commercial romance. There was a time, and not so long ago, when as a poultry breeding country Canada, chiefly because of its climate, was considered to be at a distinct disadvantage. That was never the view, however, of our Government experts and leading fanciers. It was their belief that under the conditions existing, particularly in the Maritime Provinces and in British Columbia, the Canadian hen, carefully bred and systematically developed, could more than hold her own with that of any other country. And their faith and confidence, backed by individual initiative and co-operative effort, have been abundantly justified by results.

Egg-laying contests, a rigid system of registration, and scientific experimentation in the selection of breeds, in housing, and in treatment have all been factors in a process of development that has reached the stage of placing the Dominion at the head of the poultry breeding countries of the world. In 1924-5, Canada won the highest honors in 64 contests with a pen from British Columbia. Last year she took first place with a White Leghorn that beat the world's official record. And it was her wonderful showing at Barcelona three years ago that secured for Ottawa the congress to be held in July.

That she succeeded in obtaining a preference over Britain, the United States and Italy, each of which competed strenuously for the honor of staging this year's congress, is highly creditable to the poultry breeders of Canada who made that result possible. And much of the credit must go to the Canadian hen, which literally rules the roost, and which by her achievements has become one of the best advertisements of the Dominion.—Ottawa Journal.

EDITORIAL NOTES AND COMMENT.

That's a nice April Fool's joke the Hydro-electric Commission has played on Peterborough.

Peterborough's City Council will now proceed to do something that should have been done months ago—that is, decide what action they are to take to meet the crisis caused by the withdrawal of street railway and bus accommodation.

People who didn't read The Examiner last night doubtless paid the penalty this morning by waiting on a corner for a street car that didn't come.

Folks nowadays don't do enough walking, so perhaps the transportation crisis will be a blessing in disguise.

And now somebody will be complaining that he misses the flat wheel that used to lull him to sleep each night.

The final test of gentility is the ability to disagree without being disagreeable.—New York Telegram.

DR FRANK CRANE'S DAILY EDITORIAL

THE GREAT LAWBREAKER
By Dr. Frank Crane.

The great lawbreaker is greed.

Of course men break laws because of other passions, such as love, revenge, vanity and the like.

But greed breaks the law twenty times to where any other feeling breaks it once.

The mainspring of every burglar's and pickpocket's career is greed. They want "dough" and they want it quick. Hence the blackjack and the breaking and entering.

Old people are waited for with impatience and not waited on with love, because of greed.

Many an unhappy marriage has its cause in greed.

Families are separated on account of it and ancient grudges were founded.

Laws are passed at its instigation.

The passage of a passport law and of an income tax law had no foundations in justice, but took place simply because there were occasions of graft. The men could have been raised in a much better way by simple processes of justice.

Greed was equally behind the activities of Robin Hood of yore and the modern legislator. The principle upon which they acted is the same. They took money from those who had it as an excuse that they were protecting those who had it not.

The gist of all opposition to the prohibition law is greed. Bootleggers do not exist so much because people have an unholy appetite for liquor as because of the immense profits there are in the clandestine business.

A barber was recently arrested in New York for shaving a man on Sunday. He could not resist the temptation to make fifteen cents, notwithstanding it involved the violation of the law.

All laws will be broken to an extent where there is an attempt to run counter to the acquisitory instinct of the individual.

We have laws against theft, arson, murder and the like, and have had them for lo, these thousands of years. But they are all as steadily broken as the law against alcoholic liquors.

Wherever you find a predominance of greed, you find lawbreaking. Greed is the chiefest of our anti-social vices, and ranks first as our lawbreaker.

VOICE OF PEOPLE

Letters to be printed in the Voice of the People column must be received at The Examiner office on the day before it is desired to have them published.

THIS IS HEALTH WORK.

Editor of Examiner.

Dear Sir,—I noticed in your issue of Friday, March 25, under the heading of "The Prevention of Disease," your statement that the Federal Government spent $600,000 a year in protection of health of human beings as against $2,000,000 in looking after the health of animals.

I consider this statement quite true as far as it goes, but in my estimation does not go far enough, as it is rather misleading for parties not altogether acquainted with the splendid work done by our Federal Government in regards to accredited herds. I think a large amount of the $2,000,000 is spent for this work, and is a real direct step towards the health of humans, inasmuch as considering the fact that bovine tuberculosis in infants was appalling. I consider the health of domestic animals means assured health to human people to a very large extent.

Personally, I would not drink a drop of milk from cows that are not tested under the accredited system.

Therefore, I think the money spent for the health of animals should be considered to some extent as being spent for protection of human health also. If a cow is considered to be, in plain words, a foster mother for children, why then should not our Government spend more for the health of these animals that when kept in healthy condition means assured health to those using her produce to a very large extent.

Yours truly,
F. M. RUTHERFORD.

SOME IDEAS.

To the Editor of the Examiner:

Dear Sir: In passing through Central Park I notice that the war trophy guns are looking much the worse for wear and rust. Would it not be well, now that Spring is here, and we are having a big national celebration here in July, that the proper authorities see that these guns get some care in the shape of oil or paint to preserve them better? Why not try to keep them looking as they did when captured? They certainly cost a lot in blood and money and should be well worth taking proper

PROFUSE MENSTRUATION

This disorder usually occurs with women who are passing through the change of life, or menopause, and is to be attributed to one or more of the following reasons:

First: A certain condition of the blood, where the coagulation or clotting is not normal, due to the absence of certain elements.

Second: Lacerations or tears in the womb left from child-birth, will cause a constant bleeding at this period, which often can only be stopped by repairing the tears by surgical method.

Third: A common cause is often the irritation set up by the growth of small tumors inside of the uterus which produces enough disturbance to cause a steady flow of blood.

Fourth: Cancer of the womb.

In correcting this condition, it is first advisable to fast the patient for a few days on plain water, which should be followed by several days diet on nothing but gelatin or jello. This will quickly supply the deficiency of gelatin substances in the blood and produce normal coagulating power.

After the bleeding has stopped, the patient should then be put on a well-balanced diet, being particularly careful in selecting the proper food to insure plenty of organic salts and blood-building material. The blood-cells require a regular supply of these organic salts in order to keep up their strength so that their texture will be of the proper consistency. If these vital principles are absent, the blood cells will, themselves, break down more readily, and the one whose blood is in this condition will be a chronic "bleeder."

If the fasting, jello, diet treatment does not stop the bleeding, an examination should be made to see if a tear in the womb is causing the irritation. If such a laceration is not found, you may rest assured that the bleeding is produced by an internal polypus growing inside of the uterus.

Cancer is a disease of civilization, and is practically unknown with primitive races. I believe that this is because, as civilization has progressed, we have gradually reduced our physical exercises and developed repressions of normal emotional desires which have produced with many an almost entire cessation of certain normal functions.

A great deal of good can be accomplished by taking regular systematic exercises; particularly those taken while lying on the back. These are the so-called "Setting-up" exercises, and are the best ones for developing abdominal muscles. This will increase the circulation of blood through the pelvis and lower abdomen, and help to relieve any congestion in the generative organs due to prolapsus of organs or emotional repression.

Through my researches, I have become convinced that this lack of functional activity is the most important cause of the formation of tumors and the dreaded degeneration of tumors into cancers. All of these causes are secondary, but must be considered by one who is desirous of avoiding or curing this dread disease.

AT THE GRAND

THE EUCHARISTIC CONGRESS IN CHICAGO.

The art of the moving picture screen often evokes the admiration of its patrons, but the scope of its magic power is perhaps most abundantly manifested in productions of the type now being presented at the Grand Opera House, in a portrayal of the magnificent spectacle of the Twenty-Eighth Eucharistic Congress, which took place last June in the city of Chicago, the first Congress of this sort, by the way, ever held in the United States of America. Those who were unable last year to attend in person this huge gathering of pilgrims from all quarters of the earth, are enabled, by the wizardry of the silver sheet, to sit in comfortable chairs and take part in almost every episode of the gigantic performance, taking part, too, in a way that brings them to the very centre of the spectacle, and takes them step by step with the main actors.

There is something deeply impressive about the artistry of this picture. Although deeply devotional in atmosphere, it remains at all moments a magnificent spectacle. The pageantry of the programme, the marvellous setting for the open-air services, the very costumes of the chief actors, the pomp and color of the Cardinals and their entourage, makes it at once educational and exceptionally interesting. The jewelled monstrance forms the motif of the picture, appearing as an opening, followed by a representation of Da Vinci's picture "The Last Supper," and of Hoffman's famous "Head of Christ," and closing the final scene with its blazing splendor, flanked by two lighted candles. This monstrance, the receptacle that holds the Blessed Eucharist, whose worship brought millions of people, in body —and spirit, to Chicago, during the month of June last, appears also on the floating banners of the monstrous procession, along with the Agnus Dei (Lamb of God) which forms the centre of so many of the lofty pennons.

From Paris, one embarks with John, Cardinal Bonzano, the courtly Papal Legate, who represented the Holy See at this Congress, and proceeds with him and Cardinals from many European lands to New York, there to take part in splendid welcoming events and to go with them later on their train (painted a cardinal red for the occasion) to Chicago, for more civic receptions, in which Governors and Mayors take part and to go along with them through the gorgeous pageantry of the Congress, and the huge procession which closes it, when thirty thousand men take part in a three-mile course about St. Marys Lake, at Mundelein. Walking in the rain, which came down on them in sudden fashion, or in the blazing sunshine, they are impressive and dignified, and lay members of a church whose servants, sons and daughters gathered from the four corners of the earth to do honor to their Hidden King. Impressive, also is the apparent devout demeanor of the throngs, spread out like closely-packed ants on the huge Soldiers' Field in Chicago, where most of the ceremonies take place, with Mass offered on a wonderful open-air altar, surmounted by a dome and angel figures, flanked by pillars, its approach up a long flight of steps, and its altar topped by elongated candles and the central crucifix. Here come the Cardinals, doffing their flowing capes and flat hats for the spotless lace-trimmed albs, the embroidered chasubles and stoles of the morning services, and the enveloping copes of the Benediction. Here are white-robed acolytes and censer-bearers, and bishops with mitres and jewelled crosiers, passing later down the steps through solid throngs of kneeling people. From all quarters of the earth they come, these men taking part in the various ceremonies, from China and Alaska, the latter wearing fur garments, bishops and priests, monks and abbots, nuns and laity of the church, praying through the days of the Congress, taking part in the various monster gatherings. The "Mass of the Angels" is sung by a choir of sixty-two thousand school children, looking like a field of daisies from an overhead angle. Clergy without number, are present, in soutanes and surplices and black birettas, representing almost every racial type.

At Mundelein one of the most impressive portions takes place, commencing with the services at another open-air altar, background by tall fluttering curtains bearing the device, "Ecce Agnus Dei," ("Behold the Lamb of God") and closing with the monster procession about the Lake, centering about the Ostensorium, borne by the Papal Legate. In the procession are numerous large floats, depicting the progress of the Church from primeval times.

It is a wonderful picture, artistically presented, delineating one of the most exalted gestures of public faith ever offered to the living God, surrounded by all the pomp and pageantry appropriate to such a ceremonial, and giving glimpses of scenes which will probably never be equalled anywhere on the earth's surface.

The music which accompanies the picture is an interesting portion of the programme. A male sextette, composed of Messrs. J. Minicolo, A. Everitt, V. McCabe, J. J. Southern, A. Moyles and T. Williams, sings in Latin the "Panis Angelicus," a brief offertory of the Church music, accompanied by Miss L. Hurley, who also plays very sympathetic piano accompaniments for Mrs. J. D. Fletcher's solos, which are rendered in splendid voice, with reverent effect to the Latin words of Gounod's "Ave Maria." An encore sung by Mrs. Fletcher is "The Rosary."

The Opera House orchestra, led by G. Howarth, plays the accompanying music for the picture, opening with an appropriate selection in the "Adeste Fidelis." —Jeanette.

AT THE CAPITOL.

MIX AND GREY PROVE GREAT COMBINATION.

Tom Mix and Zane Grey!

The result of this unusual combination is now on view at the Capitol Theatre. "The Last Trail," Fox Films version of Mr. Grey's Blood-tingling novel, starring the popular Western star, opened last night for an engagement of three days. Judging from the reception accorded it by the first audiences, the film is going to prove decidedly fine entertainment for those who see it during its stay here.

Mix and his almost equally-famous steed, Tony, are involved in some of the fastest and most furious action ever recorded by the camera in this whirlwind story of the plains. When the picture opens, Tom is cast as an army scout in the Dakotas during the last Sioux Indian uprising. Later, he is pictured as the foe of a gang of desperadoes who specialize in looting stages.

Tom Dane (Mix) gets into all sorts of trouble with the villain, Kurt Morley, played by William Davidson. A stage coach race, in which the two participate, is thrilling in the extreme.

Carmelita Geraghty, Jerry the Giant and others are seen in support of the star in a film which should not be missed.

AT THE REGENT.

CIRCUS FILM IS THRILLER.

Pat. O'Malley and Marian Nixon, the Stars in "Spangles" at the Regent.

There is a never failing fascination, it seems, in the life behind the scenes, whether it be in the theatre, circus or carnival. This life has seldom been more correctly or sympathetically portrayed than in "Spangles," the Universal-Jewel picture, which opens to-day at the Regent.

The picture, of which practically all the action takes place in and around the "big top" concerns itself with the romance between a pretty little equestrienne, played by Marian Nixon, and a young man who joins the show under peculiar circumstances, which part is portrayed by Pat O'Malley. Besides these players who are featured in the cast there appear such well known and popular stars as Hobart Bosworth, Gladys Brockwell, and others. While this is a picture in and of the circus, it is not to be supposed that it is primarily for the children. It will please them with its circus atmosphere and color but with this as a setting there is told a strong story, which is credited to Nellie Revell, with the screen version by Leah Baird.

The acting in the capable hands mentioned above, is of course, of the most satisfactory kind. O'Malley and Miss Nixon "team" admirably, and she has never looked more fetching than in the fluffy skirts of the bareback rider. It is by the way, her introduction to stardom—or in this case, co-stardom—by the Universal Company, and she gives rare promise of even greater achievements to come. Bosworth in a role of the "heavy" type, departs from his usual characterization, but is admirably cast. A strong word of praise must be said for the director, Frank O'Connor, who evidently knows not only his circus, but his screen as well. Arthur F. Beck produced the picture in the splendid manner, nothing apparently having been spared to make of it an outstanding feature.

Palm Beach Golfers Form Unique Society

PALM BEACH, Fla., April 1 (Associated Press).—A unique society—without clubhouse or dues—has made its bow in a fashionable winter colony with the formation of the Palm Beach Golfers' Association.

It is another of the intangible organizations of the resort possessing exclusive features which set it apart from similar groups. The cosmopolitan membership includes many of the wealthiest and most prominent visitors who winter in Palm Beach.

Joseph J. Brown of New York is chairman, and Dr. Harry P. Swift, of the same city is secretary. A golf tournament each winter will constitute the club's sports program, but the promotion of good fellowship in the game is one of the primary purposes.

SOLDIERS' WORK IS ON EXHIBITION

Articles Made By Disabled Men Offered For Sale in Legion Hall.

FINE WORKMANSHIP.

An extremely interesting exhibit of the work of men who, while engaged during war time in the defence of Canada and of the Empire, were disabled in the service of their country and turned in their extremity of mind and body to avocations which would tend to lessen their mental suffering, is on view at the hall of the Canadian Legion on Murray Street, and will be there until to-morrow, to-night giving a final opportunity for seeing this work that is done by the men of the Christie Street Hospital, Toronto, and of the Field Service which is an auxiliary to it.

There was a good attendance at the hall yesterday, and much interest was manifested in the careful handicraft of these disabled soldiers. There is work of a useful and fancy nature here, and every article is turned out with the maximum of attention to artistic finish and intelligent production. The display includes crochet-knit scarfs in colored varieties, hassocks in raffia and leather, hand-bags and work-bags of leather, with self flowers and "zipper" fastenings, bridge and memo and telephone pads with leather covers and bindings, daintily-embroidered linen towels and scarfs and runners and luncheon sets, cushions and aprons, work baskets and sandwich trays of reed with cretonne bases, little leather holders for corkscrews and coat-hangers, quaint hammered copper wall sconces and candlesticks, beaded bags, painted Pierrots on wooden-based nursery lamps, and lamp shades in scissors point and crystalline beads.

A striking scrap basket is fashioned of wood in an impressionistic design colored in orange and black and there is a design of flowers on a hooked rug made by a one-armed patient of the hospital. There are dainty little painted candy jars and skipping ropes with "the two arms of the service" in their soldier and sailor handles. Wondrously-contrived conventional floral designs are on the upper portions of raffia bags, arguing much careful attention in their constructing, and one little teapot-tile has a glass covering to its odd fern and moth outline. There are little bunnies for the children, with fat tummies and pointed ears, and tiny lambs with woolly knots on their coats. Two exquisite pieces of needlepoint are on exhibit, and there are miniature models in wood, of coin savings banks and carts with horses.

In charge of the exhibit is Mrs. G. S. Cameron, president of the Thursday Club, under whose auspices it is held, assisted by the members of the organization. Miss Caroline McDonald, a member of the Field Service Department in Toronto, explains the work, and Mr. W. Lahurn, a local friend of the soldiers, is also giving much assistance with the demonstration. An interesting exhibit is the little four-page "Veteran," the official organ, published twice a month, of the Christie Street Hospital.

ONTARIO LINE TO MOVE NORTH

Premier Announces That T. and N. O. Is To Be Extended in Near Future.

TO ENTER QUEBEC.

TORONTO, April 1.—Announcement by Premier Ferguson that the Ontario Government hopes to push the Timiskaming and Northern Ontario Railway into Rouyn in the near future, as well as to extend it north to James Bay, was made late last night in the closing moments of this year's session of the Legislature.

With the House sitting until almost midnight the Government made several important and startling pronouncements as to future activity, wound up the business of the session and set Tuesday afternoon for the formal prorogation.

Smelter Is Planned.

Hon. Charles McCrea, Minister of Mines, telling of the developments of zinc, copper and lead deposits in the Sudbury basin, stated that, in this connection, the Government aimed at the establishment of a customs smelter and refinery, where the small miner, the man without great capital or great ore holdings, might ship his ore, obtain payment, and turn the money back into further development of his holdings.

Mr. McCrea also announced that when the British Empire Mining Federation holds its meetings here this summer the Ontario Government will take the visiting mining men on an extended tour of the North Country, showing and explaining to them the mineral wealth of that land. The tour will be on such a scale that from three to five special trains will be employed.

It had been suggested that a tour of New Ontario should also be arranged for members of the Legislature. Premier Ferguson, noting that the trip in connection with the Federation's session would be a costly one and that the Government might not deem a further expenditure for the Legislative members a wise move, promised that the suggestion was being seriously considered. If such a trip was at all possible, he stated the Government would be glad to undertake it, and would set a date and advise the members of the House.

MONTREAL GRAIN AND PRODUCE

MONTREAL, April 1 (Canadian Press).—The demand from the United Kingdom and the Continent for grain in the Montreal market showed a marked falling off. No sales of importance were reported with the result that exporters were not in the market for any further supplies and trading was slow. The movement for domestic and country account was also quiet, but the undertone steady.

The demand for Spring and Winter wheat grades of flour was limited, but the undertone was firm.

A moderate amount of business was worked in all lines of millfeed and prices were unchanged. A steady feeling prevailed in the market for standard grades of rolled oats, but there was no improvement in the demand.

Owing to the very liberal receipts of eggs coming forward, an easier feeling developed in the local market and prices were shaded one cent per dozen. The demand was good. The receipts were 4,206 cases.

The potato market was without any new feature to note, prices being steady at the recent decline noted, but the demand was limited. Car lots of Quebec varieties were quoted at $1.10 to $1.15 per bag of ninety pounds in bulk, ex track.

The condition of the butter market continues exceedingly strong on account of the fact that spot stocks in first hands are not sufficient to meet the daily requirements. Yesterday prices scored a further advance and sales of finest creamery butter were made at 49c to 50c per pound. The receipts were 6,183 packages.

The cheese trade continued dull but steady. The receipts were 55 boxes.

CHICAGO GRAIN

CHICAGO, April 1 (Canadian Press).—Wheat turned upward yesterday at the last after averaging lower most of the time earlier. The rally was ascribed to buying on the part of previous sellers who sought to guard against any surprise regarding unofficial crop summaries to be given out today. Wheat closed unsettled, 1-8 to 3-8c net higher; corn at a shade to 1-4c advance; oats to 1-2c up, and provisions varying from 7c decline to a rise of 5c.

Corn and oats rallied with wheat. Besides, unfavorable weather conditions for field work in the west were reported. Receipts of corn remained small and prospects are for little increase until farmers finish spring work.

care of. Possibly it could be arranged to have the armourer sergeant keep them in order at very little cost.

Why also will people walk across boulevards to save a step or two? Off the park on McDonnell street are two unsightly mud paths cutting into the nice boulevard only a few yards away from the spot where the city has purposely built a cement walk just to avoid this small town habit. There is also another unnecessary and unsightly mud trail worn off Murray street to the Collegiate.

Another annoyance I feel attention should be drawn to while I am writing is the smoke nuisance on a portion of down town George street, which is caused by the type of soft coal being burned by two or three large buildings. Some mornings at firing up time the street and neighborhood suffers from falling particles of smut as dense as a snow flurry. Devices on the offending chimneys would stop this nuisance.

These are all small matters but all helps in a better Peterboro.

Interested Citizen.

"AFTER MY AUTO ACCIDENT—"

A New Record for Kellogg's ALL-BRAN

A resident of Toronto, Canada, writes:

"Last April I met with a serious automobile accident, breaking my left knee and tearing the tendons badly. Having lived a very active life before, when forced to lie still constipation soon made its appearance. Drugs and medicines proved useless, and I could not obtain relief until I tried Kellogg's ALL-BRAN. The difference was noticeable almost at once, and from then on, during my entire convalescence, ALL-BRAN kept me in perfect condition. Though I am now over 60 years of age, my physician tells me that I have made the recovery of a 25-year-old man."

Many people who suffer from constipation during the enforced inactivity following illness, or while engaged in sedentary work and study, would find rapid and pefmanent relief in the regular use of Kellogg's ALL-BRAN.

Kellogg's ALL-BRAN is guaranteed to conquer constipation. Eat not less than two tablespoonfuls every morning, and that amount at every meal if the case is chronic. Kellogg's ALL-BRAN is delicious with honey and milk or cream. Sold at all grocers.

Made in London, Canada.

OMEMEE UNITED W.M.S. SERVICE

Rev. Mr. Holling, of Lindsay, Delivers Splendid Address.

OMEMEE, March 31. — The annual thank-offering of the Women's Missionary Society of Trinity United Church was observed on Sunday evening, at the regular hour of service, the message being delivered by the Rev. Mr. Holling of First United Church, Lindsay.

The members of the Society and Mission Band members occupied the centre front pews. The choir rendered a pretty anthem entitled, "It May Not Be On the Mountain Height," and the Misses Mary and Vera Lowe sang "Behold Me Standing at the Door." Both numbers were very appropriate to the service.

The Rev. Mr. Holling opened his discourse by a short talk to the children. Having chosen for his text, "Go ye into all the world and preach the Gospel," he made the subject very impressive by dividing it into three clauses, namely: missionary grammar, "Go ye"; missionary geography, "Into all the world"; and missionary baggage, "Preach the Gospel." God has sent the news and has put it into our hands for us to carry the message to those across the seas, but we have been playing. We must do our best to obey the Master's command. His message to the congregation was based on the words found in St. Luke 13, 16: "And ought not this woman, being a daughter of Abraham, whom Satan hath bound, lo, these eighteen years, be loosed from this bond, on the Sabbath day?"

The Women's Missionary Society has long ago past the initiative stage as is evidenced by her membership and her activities in the work. The slogan is "Every woman of the congregation a member of the Society." This is an important slogan for women to have, but it is insufficient. We might be members, but we should have another objective. There is a connection between the home objective and the foreign field and we should ask ourselves the question: On what comparison should I belong?, and the answer is contained in the text, in the home from where the incident is taken. It is because the women of the church have found the blessings that the women in the far-off lands have heard the echoing word of the Master. Ought we not to sacrifice some labor that they may enter into what we enjoy. These women are not only created in flesh and blood but they are the women for whom Christ died. If they are, why should they be denied an entrance into the equality of faith.

Jesus wrought miracles in the older days. The church is His body and He can do the same today by the hands of the women missionaries, and through the hands of the doctors and nurses. Christ is raising up women such as He would have them to be. The W.M.S. shall take up the challenge of the Master and when He says, "Ought not these women be loosed?" the W.M.S. shall answer, 'They shall! so far as our prayers and givings can bring about, and when we surround the great white throne, they too will be there."

Matinee Ladies

BY William B. Courtney

"MATINEE LADIES," with May McAvoy, is a Warner Bros. picturization of this novel.

SYNOPSIS

Bob Ward, a poverty-stricken engineering student who is working his way through college by whatever jobs he can get at the college employment bureau, is informed by his two chums, Freddy and Arch, that they have found an easy and profitable way to earn money—by working as dancing partners, of afternoons, for rich women in a fashionable New Jersey roadhouse. Bob thinks it isn't a fit way to make a living; but, faced with eviction for unpaid rent, reluctantly agrees to go to the roadhouse, remembering his bitter four year battle with poverty.

CHAPTER II—Continued

Bob had even pledged himself in debt to get through this all-important senior year. The University authorities, the Employment Bureau, the professors, his mates, all had been bully. But this was undoubtedly a strain and a sacrifice far beyond what any other working university student had ever been called upon to make; there was nothing for Bob to do but fight his way out, somehow.

Then the offer from his two sworn chums, Freddy and Arch, who had scented the roadhouse work, entertaining the so-called "Matinee Ladies," and had immediately spoken up to the Proprietress of the Inn for their hard-pressed friend.

Many of these matters Bob Ward reviewed in his mind during the ride down to the Fort Lee ferry, the pleasant trip across the swirling river in the bright early afternoon sunshine of a glorious Spring day, and the rapid flight in a great Bus through a bristling woods that fringed the rim of the upper Palisades like a coxcomb; to the secluded and exclusive Palisado Inn.

Far, far from the nearest town, nestling in a ten-acre private preserve, the Palisado Inn reared its squat head, and its upper windows like piggy eyes, above the copse. A great spider watching for flies; a mammoth bug leering its dominion over the crawling things, the buzzing things, of the surrounding woods. Normal life passed by the Palisado Inn. The life that frolicked and seethed within its toogayly toned walls was the uneven, surfeited life of flies rampant in a deserted honey hive.

The girl who was the object of Bob's startled glance returned it.

Bob was conscious of a peculiar sensation of stickiness, of heaviness, of sugary sweat, that left in his mouth the taste of an oversweetened stimulant, that made his head feel a bit too light, as he stepped into the bowered side entrance of the Inn.

All the way over from the campus he had been subjected to a barrage of bantering by his exuberant friends — nice boys, both, Freddy and Arch, but without a serious purpose in the world other than the wherewithal for the day. Scholastic standing was the last, the minutest, of their cares. The future sat gently upon their heads. "Old Sobersides," they dubbed Bob, rollicking.

A moment after entering the Inn, Freddy and Arch, as with one accord, turned to enjoy the expression that they expected would be upon Bob's face when he should see for the first time, the gaudy, hot, whirling interior of a fashionable roadhouse dance hall. They saw an expression that they did not expect.

"For the love of Hannah," exclaimed Freddy, "would you look at old Sackcloth and Ashes!"

For the novices, Bob's eyes were wide and starry and filled with the sudden vision of the prettiest girl he had ever seen.

CHAPTER III

It was, evidently, a reciprocal glad amaze. For the girl who was the object of Bob's startled glance was returning it with interest. It was quaintly as though neither of them had ever expected to behold the likes of the other in such a ritzy place.

She was rather an incredible chit—this girl, at first glance. For all the wide world, a fragile and white and gold Dresden doll just stepped out of a picture book. Even to the winsome costume she wore—an old World, an old century sort of a flimsy thing, of oh! so modest length, with short, puffed sleeves encircling a creamy upper arm, and with a tight little bodice and a deep-V neck cut low over a gossamer white, tissue-like skin, delicately traced by blue veins between the gently budding breasts of young girlhood. A picture she was, indeed—an old fashioned picture of a sweetness that belonged in a larkspur and hollyhock garden, not in a hot house of faded Broadway lilies. A slender reed of a girl, with a bowed mouth and big gray eyes and a misty cloud of honey-colored hair.

All these things did Bob Ward drink in at a glance as he stood there, bewilderedly staring. And one thing more—that is, that there was rare intelligence and sharpness and wit in the eyes, for all their demureness; in the dimpling corners of her mouth, for all their coyness. The gamin lurking behind the maiden.

When Freddy and Arch laughingly shook him, to recapture his attention, Bob was as sore a romantic youth as ever was rudely awakened from love's adventurous young dream.

The Vision was unsteady, now; retiring. There, she was moving away. That was it. She was a dream. A pure fancy, that left an aura sanding his eyes and his brain, to say not a word of his heart, while his hilarious chums tried to pound and punch him back into the amenities of social decorum, which demanded that he acknowledge the blessed and approving greeting of the lady to whom he was being presented.

A buxom and capable and marble-faced lady. Well, a woman anyhow.

"Madame Leonine!" Arch was saying. His words dinned far away in Bob's ears, which were attuned for the flutter of fairy wings. He brought his hot eyes back from their vain search for his Princess, and focused them, not without sour difficulty, upon the ample-bosomed Madame, who had strode up at the advent of the boys.

Madame Leonine, eh! She looked all of her name, Bob's eyes, still swimming with the dream, told him, wryly. Her head was the physically grand and upright head of a lioness. Her plump arms, her buttressed front—a fleshy fortress, as it were, protecting the rest of her—her laced-in hips did convey something of a lioness. A rather jungle-worn lioness, who had bred many litters.

"Pleased to meet you!" mumbled Bob, with a smile which was not so much the result of a sincerity in his phrased expression as in a whimsical suspicion occurring to him at the moment, that no doubt a casual inspection of her back would reveal a mane and a tail, the tufted tail of a bonafide lioness. Else why did Madame Leonine keep herself so aggressively facing a fellow?

The Madame waggled a genial, if pudgy, forefinger first under the nose of Arch, then the nose of Freddy, though her jade-green Chink eyes never left the handsomely young and masculine face of Bob Ward. And, quite conversely, Bob's eyes never once rested on the Madame's ancient visage, but continued their search for another possible glimpse of—Her! But the Madame was talking. He must pretend to listen. He must be polite. She was saying, to his chums:

"I was all set to give you two hoofers a dressing down for being late. And me with a houseful of matinee ladies waiting to be dragged. But after seeing what you've brought me"—the Madame beamed appreciatively upon Bob—"I haven't got the heart to say anything except God bless you and hurry up and shake a leg!"

When Freddy and Arch laughingly shook him, to recapture his attention, Bob was as sore a romantic youth as ever was rudely awakened from love's adventurous young dream.

The Vision was unsteady, now; retiring. There, she was moving away. That was it. She was a dream. A pure fancy, that left an aura sanding his eyes and his brain, to say not a word of his heart, while his hilarious chums tried to pound and punch him back into the amenities of social decorum, which demanded that he acknowledge the pleased and approving greeting of the lady to whom he was being presented.

A buxom and capable and marble-faced lady. Well, a woman anyhow.

"Madame Leonine!" Arch was saying. His words dinned far away in Bob's ears, which were attuned for the flutter of fairy wings. He brought his hot eyes back from their vain search for his Princess, and focused them, not without sour difficulty, upon the ample-bosomed Madame, who had strode up at the advent of the boys.

Madame Leonine, eh! She looked all of her name, Bob's eyes, still swimming with the dream, told him, wryly. Her head was the physically grand and upright head of a lioness. Her plump arms, her buttressed front—a fleshy fortress, as it were, protecting the rest of her—her laced-in hips did convey something of a lioness. A rather jungle-worn lioness, who had bred many litters.

"Pleased to meet you!" mumbled Bob, with a smile which was not so much the result of a sincerity in his phrased expression as in a whimsical suspicion occurring to him at the moment, that no doubt a casual inspection of her back would reveal a mane and a tail, the tufted tail of a bonafide lioness. Else why did Madame Leonine keep herself so aggressively facing a fellow?

The Madame waggled a genial, if pudgy, forefinger first under the nose of Arch, then the nose of Freddy, though her jade-green Chink eyes never left the handsomely young and masculine face of Bob Ward. And, quite conversely, Bob's eyes never once rested on the Madame's ancient visage, but continued their search for another possible glimpse of—Her! But the Madame was talking. He must pretend to listen. He must be polite. She was saying, to his chums:

"I was all set to give you two hoofers a dressing down for being late. And me with a houseful of matinee ladies waiting to be dragged. But after seeing what you've brought me"—the Madame beamed appreciatively upon Bob—"I haven't got the heart to say anything except God bless you and hurry up and shake a leg!"

AUCTION SALE GREAT SUCCESS and Implements of the ate Walter Thain Bring Good Prices.

APS RUNNING WELL.

BURNBRAE, April 1. — A very successful auction sale of farm stock and implements was held here on Monday afternoon when J. A. Battisby disposed of the estate of the late Walter Thain at the farm, one mile south of Menie. A very large crowd was on hand and buyers seemed to be numerous as there was no trouble in securing bids.

Dairy cows sold extremely well, the three tops being $100, $101 and $102, each, for good grades of proven dairy quality. Two year olds, not milking yet, brought over $50 each; yearling calves sold for $24 each. One brood sow sold for $48, while seven weeks old pigs seemed to be in demand, and went at $7.25 each, a high price in view of the recent decline in the hog market. A splendid team of young heavy horses about 1700 lbs. each, were dropped at $350, but it is understood that they we resold for more money previously. Hens brought $1.25 each —being choice quality Leghorns.

Grain and feed prices were high, with the exception of alfalfa hay, which sold for $9.50 a ton. Oats and barley were of extra fine quality, fit for seed, and brought real high prices, with oats at 85c a bushel and barley $1.25 a bushel. This is far above the market values.

Altogether the sale could be classed as one of the most successful held in this district for some years.

Sap Run Good

For the last few days the flow of sap has been exceptionally good and local syrup makers are head over heels in work. The run over the week end taxed the ingenuity of all to provide accommodation for the sap. Cans and barrels were gathered from the neighbors everywhere but even then a good deal of the money making fluid went to waste.

SEAGRAM, LTD. INVESTIGATION

this was not done in all cases.

New Company Formed

The testimony of Clarence Miller, manager of the Huether Brewery, was to the effect that a new company had been formed within the last six months, that the control of stock had changed, and that now the law in regard to liquor export was being obeyed to the letter. He was shown some export entries for beer which, he claimed, had been exported to Port Huron and Detroit.

"Delivery was made and payment received in Ontario?" questioned Mr. Rowell.

"Yes," replied Mr. Miller.

A. E. Nash, commission auditor, placed the arrears of sales tax for this brewery at approximately $41,000, of which about eight thousand dollars is in dispute, being the tax on export sales.

When asked by Mr. Rowell to explain why the expenses of the race-horse farm should be a charge against the profits of Joseph E. Seagram, Ltd., Mr. Carthew explained that the farm was "originally for advertising purposes."

"That is the reason that it went in as part of the cost of operating the business?" asked Mr. Rowell.

"Yes," was the reply.

Mr. Rowell stated that Seagrams had built up very large reserves consisting of victory bonds, etc.

With regard to the loans of shareholders, Mr. Carthew said that they needed money so they borrowed money from the company.

"If they needed money why didn't they declare a dividend?" asked the chief commissioner. This point was not cleared up.

With regard to sales of liquor in Canada, Mr. Carthew said that Seagrams sold some liquor to druggists, vinegar works and hospitals. The business of the company with United States buyers was handled very largely by motor truck, although there were some rail shipments. He knew nothing of liquor which was handed to carters for export being delivered in Canada.

Mr. Carthew was on the stand when the commission adjourned until today.

WILL SHELVE SUFFRAGE

The Liberal party in recent by-elections has shown signs of revived life, and being in command of huge electoral funds, controlled by Former Premier Lloyd George, has been able to form plans to put 500 Liberal candidates into the field at the next general election. This prospect is causing concern to the Government because it means that most of the constituencies in the country would have at least three candidates, giving wholesale opportunities for electing members by minority votes. Hence, the Government is said to be contemplating the introduction of some system of alternative votes to avoid the difficulties of such three-cornered contests.

"Flapper Suffrage."

The opponents of "flapper suffrage," as they term the proposal to give the women the vote at 21, argue that if the five million women between the ages of 21 and 30 in the United Kingdom are given the vote on equal terms with men, women voters will outnumber the men in all but a few mining constituencies.

Meanwhile leading women suffragists, notably Mrs. Emmeline Pankhurst and Mrs. Frederick Pethick Lawrence, have written the newspapers saying that they will hold Premier Baldwin to his earlier pledges of equality of votes for men and women.

CLOSED MEETING WHEN BISHOP EXPLAINS BOOK

Not Even House Attendants Allowed To Be Present With Members.

SECRECY ASKED.

Clergyman Cannot Use New Book Without Consent of Congregation.

LONDON, April 1. — (Canadian Press).—Even uniformed attendants were debarred from the meeting of members of the House of Commons, held in the Westminster Committee Room, which was addressed by the Archbishop of York last night. His Grace was "introducing" the new Book of Common Prayer to the members, and the meeting was presided over by Premier Stanley Baldwin.

The Archbishop probably never before addressed a more motley gathering, from the sectarian viewpoint. Catholics, Anglicans, Jews, and Nonconformists were present.

The Premier gave a hint to the gathering not to divulge what happened.

The Archbishop spoke for three-quarters of an hour, and for another hour afterwards answered questions. He made it clear that if a minister chooses to retain the old prayer book, not even his parishioners can prevent him from doing do, whereas if he desires to use the new book he must consult his Church council, and if unable to agree may appeal to the Bishop.

The book was approved at the convocation of Canterbury and York yesterday, and now goes before the Church Assembly in July. The last word rests with Parliament, which, however, is not likely to pass the book at the present session.

BOARD OF TRADE PLANNING FOLDER

Will Be Issued To Advertise Tweed—A Presentation.

TWEED, April 1.— A general meeting of the Board of Trade was held in the Council Chambers on Wednesday evening.

Correspondence was read from the Tourist Association, Mr. Dennison, Bon Echo, and Mr. Herity, Belleville, with regard to tourist literature and which caused considerable discussion. It was decided that a committee be formed of the following members: Felix Rashotte, Mr. O'Shea, F. Hinch and Thomas Beatty, who were instructed to design a suitable folder for advertising Tweed.

The park was next discussed. Reeve Rollins stated the village council would look after the up-town property, but thought the Board of Trade should look after the park, and suggested that they form a committee comprising the Board of Trade and Horticultural Society. The village council would give all help possible.

Moved by S. G. Way and seconded by P. McIlroy, the Horticultural Society be invited to co-operate by appointing a committee to act in conjunction with the Board of Trade in building the park.

The feature of the evening was the presentation of a club bag to Mr. William O'Keefe on his departure to St. Catharines. Addresses were made by President W. S. Gordon, Rev. Father Hanley, Messrs. Morrison, James Ryan, S. G. Way, and T. E. Moffat. The bag was then presented to Mr. O'Keefe by Felix Rashotte, Mr. O'Keefe made a brief, yet characteristic reply thanking the Board of Trade and citizens of Tweed for the good will and friendly feeling shown by them The Board of Trade loses one of its most enthusiastic members in the departure of Mr. O'Keefe.

Union rates are being demanded in many Chinese towns by native monks, priests and nuns, who have formed a trade union.

TWO BARNS BURN IN EAST EMILY

Both Fires Occur On Farms Worked By Men Living Elsewhere.

SPARKS CAUSE ONE.

EAST EMILY, April 1 — Two barns were burned in Emily Township during the past 24 hours, both of them on farms worked by people who are living elsewhere.

Yesterday afternoon, about three o'clock, the barn owned by Thomas Rowan was destroyed. It is believed that sparks from a passing train started the fire. This farm is situated about two miles south of Omemee village, and Mr. and Mrs. Rowan live in the village, although still continuing to work the farm.

Between two and three o'clock this morning, the barn owned by William Fee, on lot 15, concession 6, was burned. The cause of this fire is unknown. Mr. and Mrs. Fee lived on another farm, working the two. They had some cattle in the barn which was burned, but neighbors responding to the alarm given by telephone brought out the animals. The loss is covered by insurance.

A phonograph having records of brass has been invented and the records may be heard 10,000 years from now.

MISSIONARY GIVES ADDRESS TO LEAGUE

Rev. Howard Veals, Former Omemee Boy, Tells of Work.

OMEMEE, April 1.—On Monday evening the Young People's League of Omemee and Bethel Churches and numerous other friends gathered in Trinity United Church to extend a hearty welcome to their missionary, Rev. Howard Veals, B.A., and his wife and two little daughters, from far-off China, where he has labored in the cause of Christianity on behalf of the leaguers of the Lindsay district for the past seven years. Mr. Veals is an Omemee boy, son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Veals, and the community is proud to own him.

While attending university in Toronto, he heard and answered his country's call, where he served faithfully and well. On his return from the World War, he again received the call, but this time it was, "Go, ye, into all the world, and preach the gospel," and again he answered the call. On his way to China he was one of a party of missionaries, one of whom later became his helpmate. Mr. and Mrs. Veals were stationed at a point 2,000 miles inland from Shanghai, and on the journey up the river to this city, they were glad to take refuge, with their two young children, in the hold of the vessel, to escape enemy fire.

Mr. Gordon Bradley acted as chairman of the gathering. The meeting opened with singing and prayer, after which Miss Eva Race contributed a splendid pipe-organ number. The guests of honor were then called to the platform, and dainty little Doreen Morcombe presented Mrs. Veals with a large bouquet of flowers, who smilingly acknowledged the gift and kissed the giver.

Rev. E. W. Rowland then delivered an address of welcome, part of which follows:

"As British people, being proud of our civilization and being proud of the flag under which we live and being under such favorable circumstances of which we are met, we extend the glad hand of welcome to Mr. and Mrs. Veals, because they are ambassadors of the Christian British democracy of which we are all so proud. The missionaries deprive themselves of the beautiful homes and comforts to interpret our mind to the Eastern mind and their mind to ours. For more than 100 years the missionary has been the interpreter of the Western mind to the Eastern mind. There is a great wall dividing us. You and your good wife and all other missionaries have done service for your country and the flag, and we extend to you a hearty welcome home. It is of peculiar joy because you are one of our own. This church has done itself honor. The Young People's Unions on both appointments, Bethel and Omemee, have the honor of contributing to your support, and you have been followed by our prayers each week. We are all fellow-citizens of the household of faith. 'The gospel of Jesus Christ is the power unto salvation.' It has the power to redeem Japan, China and other unchristianized countries. We trust your stay will be happy and that you will receive many evidences of our interest, and we also trust and pray that the gospel may be glorified there, to the saving of that great land and the saving of all people."

A chorus by five boys and girls, entitled "The World Children for Jesus," was rendered at this juncture, after which the President of the Bethel Young People's Union, Mr. H. Jackson, was called upon.

Mr. Jackson welcomed the missionaries not only as a member of Bethel league but as a member of that union of all God's churches who are endeavoring to spread the gospel to every land. He brought the greetings from the members of the entire church. Our thought and prayers have travelled over that great distance regularly for seven years, and the time seems short since Mr. Veals gave his farewell address to us. The speaker then gave a brief talk on the passage of Scripture, "We are all fellow-workers with God." In part he said:

"We are all partners with Jesus, whether we build up or tear down, whether we are leading the blind or healing the sick. We are partners with Jesus in the building up of our own souls, but He is the greatest partner in the building up of the kingdom. God works through the hands of man. It makes me feel small to be enjoying so many pleasures while the missionaries sacrifice so much, but we are partners indispensable to the brave people who are doing so much. The challenge is to us to lend a helping hand. Are we going to be true to that challenge? The future of Canada lies in the church. In closing, my prayer is that God's richest blessing may rest upon you both."

After a rousing hymn, the Rev. Howard Veals was asked to say a few words. He would not attempt an address or anything approaching such, but wished to express his thanks for the kind thoughts not only on this occasion but through all the years in China. "Needless to say, we are glad to meet once again and hear the kind words. It is a tendency of many people to put the missionary on a pedestal above other people, but the missionary does not feel that way. He feels it his duty to go and the call has come in a special way. The missionary boards make it as easy as possible for the missionaries, and oftentimes the inconveniences which one would expect are not present. Life in the foreign country today is not all pleasure, but is gladly borne by the missionaries, because they know they have been sent by the captain of us all. Let us remember the missionary task is to interpret Christ to the people of China, India, Japan, Africa, etc. There are so many things in Western civilization that aren't Christian. We see so much that isn't right we are apt to idealize our own lands, but as the missionary comes home he receives a jolt when he sees things in our own land which are not right. It isn't the missionaries' task to uphold that of the West which isn't Christian to the East, and in these days of so much ill-feeling no missionary can accomplish anything who tries to take them anything except the Christ."

Mr. Veals made reference to the book, "Christ of the Indian Road," which gives an idea of the missionaries' task of today.

Mr. and Mrs. Veals took two months to make the journey home, and much of their travel was through the world where communication is not good; but the world is small after all, and we must think in terms of world Christianity. Mr. Veals on behalf of his wife and himself, expressed his Christianity.

In closing Mr. Veals, on behalf of gratitude for kind wishes, words and prayers, and on a future occasion will tell more of the work which they are trying to carry on, and also something of the great people of China, who are in turmoil and in need of the gospel. We know we have something that can save them and save our own land and the world, too, if applied. We need world Christianity.

The programme was brought to a close by a missionary hymn, after which a social time was enjoyed in the Sunday School room, which was decorated in red and white with red roses and pussy willows centreing the tables.

ASK FOR BETTER FOOTBALL FIELD

Delegates From P. D. F. A. Suggest Improvements For King Edward Park.

COMMITTEE MEETS.

Matters in connection with the city's parks occupied the time of the Railways and Parks Committee of the City Council last night.

J. Hodson and J. M. Ward appeared on behalf of the Peterboro and District Football Association, asking that something be done to improve King Edward Park and provide dressing-room accommodation. They pointed out that there were several places where filling could be used to advantage, while a small tree, supposedly dead, interferes with the corner kick from one corner of the field. The use of the dressing-room belonging to the civic rink was proposed, while several of the aldermen will go down and look over the park to see what improvements are to be made.

The tender of William Pearson to look after the parks for $650 for the season will be accepted, provided the chairman, Ald. Greene, finds his references in order. Other tenders were: Joseph Grierson, $920; Philip Caad, $750; and William F. Cornwell, $975. The acceptance of the lowest tender was moved by Ald. Hancock and McIntyre, who favored him because he would do the work himself, whereas Mr. Grierson specified that he would do the planting and supervise the other work. Ald. Greene said that the cheapest man was not always the best, and that the others had had experience, whereas Mr. Pearson is striking out for himself after several years in the employ of other men. Ald. Stocker said that he had worked for Mr. Wise on the parks for several years, and ought to know the work.

Tenders for the removal of the two houses and the factory in James Stevenson Park will be asked right away. The tenants have been notified to leave by June 1, and the aldermen feel that it will be well to advertise now, when plans for building are being made, so that a better price may be obtained for the salvage. Ald. McIntyre asked if the committee will go ahead this year with any work when the buildings are removed, and was assured by the chairman that some work will be done, although little more than levelling off the land can be accomplished on this year's appropriation.

The action of the chairman in assuring James Ellis, who occupies the mattress factory on the ground, that he would be given a few weeks' grace to the end of his busy season before removing his factory, was endorsed.

C.N.R. EARNINGS UP LAST MONTH

Slightly Increased Operating Ratio Holds Net Gain Down.

INCREASE ON YEAR

An increase in gross earnings of $869,958.68 or 4.74 per cent.; increase in net earnings of $668.86 or 0.05 per cent and a slightly increased operating rati for the month of February 1927 as compared with February, 1926, is shown by the statement issued by the Canadian National Railways.

During February, gross earnings of the Canadian National System, including Grand Trunk lines in the United States were $19,207,035.00 against $18,337,076.32 in February of last year. Working expenses for the period of 1927 were $17,782,792.43 against $16,913,502.61 in February, 1926, an increase of $869,289.82 or 5.14 per cent. Net earnings for the month were $1,424,242.57 against $1,423,573.71, an increase of $668.86 or 0.05 per cent. The operating ratio for February 1927 was 88.58 per cent. against 92.24 per cent. in February 1926.

For the period from January 1st to the end of February 1927, gross earnings of the System were $39,275,294.00 against $37,038,230.81, an increase of $2,337,063.19 or 6.31 per cent.

Working expenses during January and February 1927 were $35,916,697.98 against $33,886,275.49 in the corresponding period of 1926, an increase of $2,030,422.49 or 5.99 per cent.

Net earnings during the two-month period were $3,458,596.02 in 1927 against $3,151,955.32 in 1926, an increase of $306,640.70 or 9.73 per cent.

The operating ratio for the two months shows a decrease in the 1927 period, the percentage of this being 91.22 per cent. against 91.49 per cent. in the first two months of 1926.

FARM NEWS AND PROBLEMS

METHOD OF MAKING MAPLE SYRUP GAINED FROM THE EARLY INDIANS

Making of Maple Sap Products Has a Deep Historical Background.

QUEBEC LEADS

An Average of 18 Million Pounds is Made Annually in Canada.

Many and varied are the benefits which forests confer on mankind, and nowhere is this more evident than in Canada. In addition to their beneficial effect on stream-flow, climate, and soil conservation, immense industries have grown up around the exploitation and utilization of their products.

Of the many forest industries of Canada, large and small, none has so deep a historical background as the making of maple sap products' Maple syrup was made by the Indians before the advent of the white man and it was from the aborigines that our earliest settlers gained their knowledge of this art. Methods of garnering the annual harvest of sap have changed greatly since those early times. The rough-hewn spouts and troughs of wood have been replaced by implements of metal, while the open kettle has given way to the modern evaporating pan with its corrugated bottom and separate compartments. In the delivery of sap to the sugar-house in the modern plants advantage is taken of the law of gravitation where conditions permit. If the maple grove is located on the side of a hill or slight elevation, as is very often the case, a temporary system of metal pipes is erected and the sap is carried by these down to the collecting tanks at the sugar-house. In this way the labor of collecting the sap is considerably reduced. At the close of the sugaring season the pipes are carefully stored in the sugar-house.

In the St. Lawrence Valley area of Ontario and Quebec and in the Maritime Provinces where the practice of sugar making is in vogue, it holds a place of prominence seldom realized in other parts of the Dominion. For many years the annual production of syrup and sugar in Canada has not varied greatly except as altered by the climatic conditions of each season which affect the "run" of sap. Measured in sugar the amount produced ranges from 20,000,000 to 25,000,000 pounds per year, with an average of about 18,000,000 pounds. The major part of the production comes from the province of Quebec where the census figures give the number of trees tapped in an average year as 4,760,000 as against 1,000,000 in Ontario, and approximately 150,000 in the Maritime Provinces. Census figures show that some 30,000 owners of woodlots in Eastern Canada are engaged in this industry, and last year's crop, according to the Dominion Bureau of Statistics, was 7,137,-000 pounds of sugar and 1,746,570 gallons of syrup, with a total value of $906,375. Considering the total yield of sugar and using the converting factor ten pounds of sugar to one gallon of syrup, the output of Canada's maple trees reached 24,603,003 pounds of table sugar in 1926.

It has been pointed out by authorities on the subject that Canada is as yet producing only from one-quarter to one-third of the maple sugar that might be produced in this country. In addition to the maple groves and woodlots in the long settled farming districts, there are available for future use in provincial forests in Eastern Canada vast numbers of untapped maple trees awaiting the sugar-maker: and already, under a system of permits, enterprising sugar-makers are beginning operations in the Crown forests of Quebec.

The Dominion Forest Service estimates that the total stand of sugar maple in Eastern Canada is approximately 5,860,443,000 board feet, or in round numbers, according to the usual conversion factor, about 60,000,000 trees. Canadian records show that each tapped yields on the average two and a half pounds of sugar annually' calculating that at least one-third of the maple tree stand is easily available for tapping purposes, it is seen that a possible total yield of 50,000,000 pounds per year is a reasonable assumption. The other two-thirds of our maple trees may thus be regarded as a reserve for further expansion in future years.

The making of maple sugar is one of the minor forest operations, yet the fact that it fits in well with other farm work, by occupying a slack season and bringing in the first crop-money of the year, commends it to farmers in suitable districts, while the steadily increasing demand for pure maple sugar, improvements and the reduction of labor in production methods, and the movement under way to extend the area of operations all point to the possibilities of the industry.

Plant Disease

For many years the Dominion Department of Agriculture has been making a careful and comprehensive survey of plant diseases in Canada with the result that a great deal of information on the geographical distribution of plant diseases in this country has been collected. This information is now given to the public in a new bulletin entitled "Summary of the Prevalence of Plant Diseases in the Dominion of Canada," which should prove of great value to plant pathologists, and of interest to agriculturists in general. The summary records the economic importance of the diseases, traces their spread or stationary character in given localities, and notes their prevalence and dates of occurrence in successive years, often correlating them with prevailing conditions. Notice is also taken of observed differences in varietal susceptibility and resistance.

The bulletin, which may be obtained from the Publications Branch, Department of Agriculture, Ottawa, will serve as a basis for recording of diseases new to the country. It will assist pathologists in the selection of problems for study and give the farming community a greater realization of the importance of plant diseases and the necessity of their control.

SUING HENRY FORD.

Aaron Sapiro, the great enthusiast for co-operative marketing and one of the organizers of the Canadian wheat pool. He is suing Henry Ford and Ford's paper, the Dearborn Independend, for $1,000,000 damages. Ford's paper attacked Sapiro's co-operative marketing ideas in 1925 and charged that he was the working agent of a "Jewish conspiracy" seeking to gain control of agricultural products marketing.

WOLVES MENACE NORTH COUNTRY

System Employed by Department of Interior Effective and Economical.

PELTS AVERAGE $20

Wolf-killing campaigns are as old as organized society but the Department of the Interior has introduced a new element into them by endeavoring to make this ravenous beast pay for his own destruction. If wolves were easy to trap there would never be a wolf menace—the trappers would attend to that. But wolves are notoriously the most difficult of all animals to kill or capture and for this reason the trapper naturally gives his attention to fur-bearers more easily taken.

Canada's northern country is steadily being opened up. Possibilities in hunting, ranching, mining and other lines are coming into sight, but it is a truism that these can only be developed with the aid of the native population of Indians and Eskimos. For generations the natives have depended for a great part of their food and clothing upon the caribou. The wolf preys on this animal and does further damage by destroying the fur-bearers caught in the traps of the hunters. To check these losses and to protect the subsistence of the Indians and Eskimos the Dominion Government in 1915 offered a bounty of $20 per head for each wolf killed in the Northwest Territories, the hunter being allowed, after receiving the bounty, to sell the pelt for what it would fetch. This brought about little, if any, increase in the number of wolves destroyed, and to get the situation into hand the Northwest Territories and Yukon Branch in the winter of 1922-23, and again in 1923-24, sent a wolf-hunting party into the caribou country east of Great Slave lake which resulted in the destruction in the two years of 320 wolves. The pelts thus obtained were sold at auction and the proceeds materially assisted in paying the cost of these expeditions.

In 1924, following up the success thus attained, the bounty was increased from $20 to $30 per wolf, upon condition that the pelt be surrendered to the Department. The pelts are received from the hunters at the various Royal Canadian Mounted Police posts, and shipped direct to the fur auctions in Eastern Canada to be disposed of at the various sales. This has given a great impetus to the wolf-extermination campaign and at the same time has lessened the cost per wolf to the Department; for while some of the pelts taken under the bounty scheme are only of average value the majority are prime skins of the huge timber wolf of the North, skins which are sought by dealers from all over the world. At the sales held in 1926 and the one in January, 1927, pelts to the number of 964 were disposed of for $13,861. Thus, although the hunter was encouraged, by the increased bounty of $30, to get more wolves, the Government effected a considerable saving as compared with the former bounty of $20, and the expansion of the market caused by the knowledge that such pelts can be secured in quantity will tend to further reduce the cost of combating the wolf menace.

DROP ONE-CROP FARMING

Alberta, formerly almost 100 per cent. straight wheat-farming country, has changed radically in this respect in the last 15 years, and although the wheat yield in the Province in 1926 was 113,000,000 bushels, this represented only 45 per cent. of the value of the agricultural products, which totalled $264,000,000—the greatest in the history of Alberta. Fodder, crops are climbing rapidly in the percentage table of values, being now 21 per cent., while dairy products are now 8 1-4 per cent.

SPECIES OF PLANTS.

In Canada there are about 150 species of plants that reach tree size. Of these thirty-one are conifers (or softwoods).

CANADIAN HENS BREAK RECORDS AS EGG LAYERS

Quality and Production of Our Poultry Brings World's Congress to Ottawa.

ROYAL EXHIBITS

7,000 Poultrymen From All Parts of the World Expected to Attend.

Why is Canada the best country in the world in which to raise domestic fowl of all kinds? This is the question that many thousands of people, who do not live in the Dominion, are asking themselves. They have been led to propound this query because of the magnificent display of birds made by Canada at the World's Poultry Congress in Spain in 1924, and also because of the fact that Canada holds the world's egg-production records both for a pen of ten hens and for an individual hen. As a consequence they will gather in Ottawa for the third World's Poultry Congress from July 27 to August 4, 1927.

A good many Canadians may feel that because they do not know one breed of poultry from another they have no interest in this gathering, but, if so, they miss both its national and personal significance. In Europe, particularly in Great Britain, the advancement in poultry breeding is largely due to the personal and financial assistance given by leading citizens. His Majesty King George and the Prince of Wales (both of whom will have exhibits at Ottawa) are amongst the outstanding poultry breeders in the Empire, and their example is followed by hundreds whose purpose is patriotic and philanthropic—persons who are interested in birds because they are more keenly interested in men. It is expected that the Congress in Ottawa will be attended by about seven thousand delegates from outside Canada, hundreds of whom come with the idea of seeing whether a country which produces such fine poultry would not be a good place for men and women from the over-crowded agricultural areas of Europe. The more citizens from different parts of Canada there are at Congress the more likely the outside delegates will be to learn something of the different provinces and to take back with them an adequate conception of what the Dominion has to offer.

The Congress will include also many scientists, of international reputation in biology, genetics, pathology, zoology, etc., from all the countries of Europe. There will be a large number of British agricultural county agents, and the representatives of the great importing houses of Western Europe. These will be, so to speak, in addition to the world's great experts in all lines of poultry breeding and in the production and marketing of poultry (live and dead), eggs, equipment and supplies. There will, therefore, be very much to interest all patriotic Canadians, whatever their profession or business.

Representatives of thirty different countries will attend, and there will be one of the greatest displays of poultry ever assembled, in which it is believed Canada's part will not be insignificant. The delegates will be welcomed by His Excellency the Governor General, and by the Prime Minister. The Minister of Agriculture, the ministers of agriculture of the various provinces, and other prominent citizens are on the congress committee, which has all the details in charge.

The Congress officers are: President, Mr. Edward Brown, London, England; director, Mr. F. C. Elford, Dominion Poultry Husbandman; secretary, Mr. Ernest Rhoades, Transportation Building, Ottawa.

TOBACCO GROWING SHOWS INCREASE

In Three Years Acreage Sown is More Than Trebled.

Tobacco growing has been progressing very rapidly in Ontario during recent years, the area sown to that crop increasing from 8,630 acres in 1923 to 23,490 acres in 1926. Certain types of Canadian tobacco are now received with great favor on the British market, to some extent on account of the advertising they received at the Wembley and Olympia exhibitions. However, only high standard tobacco can find a ready sale in England, and before the whole Canadian crop is up to that standard a great amount of educational work must be done with the tobacco growers in the fields and in the stripping and grading rooms on the farms. Quality alone is the foundation stone on which a great tobacco industry can be built.

There has been marked improvement in the practice of tobacco growing in Canada in recent years but a considerable further improvement is possible, and it is very necessary if the demand from the home market is to be increased and the hold on our fast developing export market strengthened. With this end in view the Dominion Department of Agriculture has just published a bulletin on Tobacco Growing in Southwestern Ontario which gives the conclusions drawn from ten years of experiments at the Harrow Experiment Station. The bulletin which gives the most up-to-date information on every phase of tobacco growing may be obtained from the Publications Branch of the Department at Ottawa.

300 ACRES OF GLADIOLI

There are over 300 acres of land in Ontario at present given over strictly to the cultivation of gladioli, according to a statement made by F. L. Drayton, of Ottawa, at the meeting of the Ontario Horticultural Society.

FORD'S EDITOR

Editor Cameron of the Dearborn Independent, Ford's weekly newspaper, now being sued for libel to the extent of a million dollars, admitted on the stand this week that he had written the personal column of Henry Ford in the Independent. He also was allowed to state that Ford had told him to apologise if he were wrong in his articles about Aaron Sapiro, the co-operative marketing expert. Cameron never apologized, and never admitted error, hence the suit.

FARM REPORTS

Spring seeding has commenced. Spring wheat has been sown in Kent and, according to R. A. Finn, Agricultural Representative of London, early vegetables such as spinach, beets, and onions have been planted in Middlesex, and ground for early potatoes was being prepared last week.

Plowing is general on the lighter and drier soils in Southwestern Ontario, even as far east as Durham, plowing has been reported, and as far north as Grey. The latter county presents a striking contrast when compared with last year when on May 1st teams were busy on the Provincial Highway opening up the winter snow to permit of motor travel between Markdale and Owen Sound. The probabilities are that even should the season develop more slowly from now on, that plowing may proceed more or less regularly and if so this will be a great advantage as much was left undone last autumn.

The snow of the week-end will interfere with field operations but is greatly appreciated by the majority of farmers who have winter crops such as fall wheat, clover, alfalfa and strawberries. These crops looked well last week but the spring period of thawing and freezing, and cold dry winds is usually the most hazardous, and it is feared that the early break-up and loss of winter covering of snow may mean prolonged and severe spring injury.

Huron. — Early wheat has come through in good shape so far. The fields show comparatively little winter-killing. Green growth is commencing. Alfalfa and clover looks O. K. so far. Generally speaking, a fairly steady winter, followed by an early break-up, has come as a welcome to all rural residents. Roads are rapidly improving, motoring being general on all main highways and many secondary roads. Indications would point to an early seeding date in most localities.

Hastings.—Present indications show fall wheat and clovers in splendid condition. The snow has disappeared and the next week or two will be the trying time for these crops. The exceptionally mild weather which has prevailed all this month indicates an early spring.

Prescott and Russell.—We are experiencing this year in the Nation river valley the worst flood we have had for the last quarter of a century. At Plantagenet the water has raised five feet over the Provincial Highway and all traffic over that bridge has stopped. The water has raised up to the floor of the Plantagenet bridge and serious damages are being done to the abutment of the new bridge which is just in construction. Automobiles have been running freely on the macadamized roads this week, which is considered exceptionally early and, generally speaking, about a month earlier than normal years.

Bruce.—Snow has rapidly disappeared during the past week and there has been a little damage from flooded and swollen rivers and streams. Practically all roads are now open for motoring, although with frost coming out there are still numerous bad places. The sap flows, so far, have not been as large as usual. There is very little snow in the bushes and there has not been sufficient frost at night for heavy runs. Eggs are coming forward in large quantities.

Haldimand.—The clay roads are almost impassable and, as a result, very little marketing is being done in certain parts of the county. Some farmers have already tapped their maple trees, but the run so far has been light. A marked interest is being shown by farmers in securing better seed to sow this spring. I believe this has been brought about by the demonstration train which was in the county in February.

South Simcoe.—Sheepmen report a satisfactory crop of early lambs. Good horses are very much in demand. During the past week a carload of bush horses have been shipped in and sold privately; these were good agricultural horses and just out of hard work. They brought from $150 to $200 each.

Renfrew.—Spring has opened up at least six weeks earlier than usual. The snow is practically all away and the main roads are open for motor traffic. Robins, crows, blackbirds and ground sparrows have returned in large numbers.

Fort William.—Farmers are bringing their horses home from the lumber camps where they have been loaned for the winter. They are coming home in good condition this spring. There is very little marketing of beef or pork at this season of the year.

Dundas. — Exceedingly spring-like conditions have prevailed for the past week; snow is practically all off the fields but a good deal of ice is still on the road and in secluded corners. No serious floods occurred and indications are for an early spring. A number of local sugar bushes have commenced operations and some maple syrup is on the market from $2.25 to $2.50 per gallon.

Oxford.—General reports prevailing that this is a favorable year for syrup will not hold good in this locality at the present time. Mild weather is forcing spring growth, and there is every appearance of an early spring. Country roads are at their worst.

North Simcoe.—The wheat fields were covered with ice and water for a short period, but since the rain there has been little ice and it is expected that the wheat will come through fairly well. New seedings of alfalfa and clover are very promising. Oro township boasts of the best lambing season in years. The average number of lambs per ewe is about 1¾ and all lambs are exceptionally thrifty. A number of farmers will have them ready for the Easter market.

Waterloo.—Fall wheat seems to have come through the winter in exceptionally good condition. Fields seem to be uniformly green with an absence of killed patches. This is rather remarkable when one considers that the majority of the fields carried a heavy covering of ice through the greater part of February. Alfalfa and clover seem also to have come through the winter in first-class condition. This is fortunate because a great deal of new seed was put in a year ago, the percentage of old meadows being quite small in comparison to former years.

Halton.—Orchards have wintered well with the exception of some varieties, such as MacIntosh, which did not drop their leaves, and it is probable that these varieties went into the winter in bad condition. Strawberries have wintered exceptionally well.

Kent.—A number of farmers are plowing this week. Alfalfa sod is being turned down in good condition. We know of one farmer who has sown a few acres of spring wheat. Tobacco seed was sown in the hotbeds as early as the sixteenth. This is possibly a record for this district. Two carloads of Western wheat have been purchased by our farmers. There is a decided increase in the acreage of spring wheat being sown this spring. The beet growers have not signed up their contracts so readily this year. Two exceptionally wet falls at harvesting time have somewhat discouraged the growers. The tobacco crop will be greatly increased. Many new growers are preparing beds. This was by all means our best crop last year. There is a tendency to decrease the bean acreage owing to the poor marketing conditions for last year's crop.

Leeds.—Milk production is increasing rapidly and factories, etc., are preparing for another season's work. A new powder milk plant has opened up in Gananoque this week. These wholemilk plants are gradually eliminating the cheese factories within the limits in which they operate.

REQUIRE STRAW

In anticipation of being ready to begin manufacturing operations early next summer, the Edmonton Straw Paper Company has requested the farmers of Central Alberta not to burn their grain straw, as many thousands of tons will be required by the new factory.

HOW FARMERS MAY OVERCOME FIRE LOSSES

Annual Report of the Mutual Insurance Company Used For Good Purpose.

WARNS TRUSTEES.

Lightning Rods Are Not An Infallible Protection Against Fire, Says Secretary.

Experience is proverbially a good teacher, but when it comes to fires, too many people disregard the admonitions of this grand old master and rely upon their insurance policies to provide the panacea for fire loss. The Portage la Prairie Fire Insurance and Farmer's Mutual Fire Insurance Co. is making a consistent effort to educate its policyholders in matters of fire prevention and Stratton Whitaker, the secretary-manager of the company, takes the opportunity in his annual report to give his policyholders a little lesson in fire prevention. He bases his remarks on the company's experience during the past year. His first remarks are addressed to people generally.

"It seems strange that when conditions are right for a fire, so many people will do the most ridiculous things, in fact, we might almost say criminal things, as in many cases we had reported to us people starting brush fires and others burning off their stubble and old straw stacks, etc., right in the middle of the windiest and driest weather. There is no doubt that this was the cause of a number of fires. It certainly seems impossible to create a real sense of fear of fire in some people. We sometimes think that if we were only to make up a booklet of all the terrible and tragic letters that we receive, about little ones who have been burnt to death, sometimes just through carelessness, such as parents lighting fires with coal oil and sometimes with gasoline in mistake for coal oil and so on, how much more careful every one would be and how much more they would do to protect themselves from fire, instead of deliberately inviting a fire."

His next note of warning is to school trustees.

"We wish to take this opportunity of drawing the attention of the Trustees of the various school districts to the necessity of having some one during the winter time look after the firing in the schools in a safer manner. During the past year this company has paid for no less than six schools, which cost us over $18,000.00. This means that the loss ratio is practically 50 per cent. greater than the total amounts of premiums received on all school property, in fact the loss ratio on school property, not taking into consideration the overhead expense is 142½ per cent. Therefore, school trustees should see that greater precautions are taken as, if the loss ratio keeps up the same as during the past year, it will mean that the companies will either have to increase the rate very considerably or else have to decline school insurance."

Any farmers or householders who imagine that lightning rods are an infallible protection against fire are given a warning.

"We might also draw the attention of our policy holders to the matter of lightning rods. During the year we paid for the loss of one dwelling house and one barn that were struck by lightning and destroyed by fire, and two others that were damaged. These buildings were all fully equipped with lightning rods. The reason we are pointing this out is not to show that the lightning rods are of no use, but when the rods are being put on, it is absolutely essential that the farmers see that the rods are put down to permanent moisture and also, to see that the rods are properly maintained and repaired when necessary, while on the buildings."

Chimney Construction and Fires.

Another paragraph deals with the very real problem of chimney construction and here again the company's experience should be of value in cutting down the fire hazard on farm property.

"Many queries have arisen this year over Continuous Chimneys. There appears to be some mistaken ideas in regard to these. We have always contended that to be perfectly safe a continuous chimney should be lined either with tile, cement or brick, because if not, in time the mortar joints are just as apt to burn out in a continuous chimney as in a bracket chimney; then there is a greater danger from settlement in a continuous chimney than in a bracket chimney on account of extra weight, which causes greater settlement. To show that our contention is correct, we will give our experience during the past year.

"We had 15 losses from defective continuous chimneys which cost us $26,-000.00, or 15 per cent. of the total fire losses. Bracket chimneys—11 losses which cost us $9,819.00 or 5.3 per cent. of the total fire losses. Metal chimneys —7 losses which cost us $1,991.00 or 1.1 per cent. of the fire losses. We might state that our experience in unlined continuous chimneys has not been good."

In conclusion, Mr. Whitaker urges farmers to build their buildings well apart from each other, because the company's experience during 1926, (which was an extremely dry and windy year) showed that losses were unnecessarily heavy, because entire properties, including outbuildings and dwellings, had been destroyed because they were built too close together.

GARNET WHEAT

T. A. Bain, a soldier settler in the Henribourg district, on the Canadian National Railways, north of Prince Albert, Saskatchewan, seeded 12 acres to Garnet wheat in the spring of 1926. This field yielded 64 bushels to the acre, a total of 768 bushels of No. 2 Northern, which he sold as it came from the thresher at $2 a bushel, netting a total of $1,536. The wheat was grown under normal conditions. The remainder of Mr. Bain's wheat crop, which was of the Ruby variety, yielded over 30 bushels to the acre.

FORESTS IN WESTERN CANADA OPENED FOR SUMMER VISITORS

PROTECT THE FORESTS

As part of the campaign for the elimination of man-caused fires, the Forest Service of Canada maintains a small corps of lecturers in the summer-vacation camps for boys and for girls. During the past summer (1926) these representatives visited 24 camps, and reached a total of 1,600 "teen-aged" girls and boys in this way. The lecturers instruct the campers in tree identification, the need for forest conservation, and kindred topics.

Growing Uses is Being Made of These Forests as Resorts.

COTTAGES ERECTED

No "Keep Out" Signs Erected—Visitors Asked to be Careful.

There are twelve summer resort areas in the Dominion forest reserves or national forests in the western provinces, six of which have been established in the past two years in response to urgent requests, and on these sites there are 214 summer cottages with many more in prospect. Besides this, hundreds of people go into the national forests to camp and fish for a few days and thousands more make use of them as picnic grounds for a day's outing. The rapid development of this movement has demonstrated to the people of the Prairie Provinces that there are no "Keep Out" signs on the borders of these forests, the only requirements being that visitors use them rationally, leave the areas they have occupied in a sanitary condition, and do not cause forest fires.

The name "forest reserves" now being replaced by "national forests" was in a measure an unfortunate one in that to some it gave the impression that the benefits of these areas were fenced around and reserved from the people of to-day for the use of succeeding generations. The contrary is, of course, the case. The national forests are administered so that they may be of the greatest possible use to the people of to-day and that, as the protected and managed forest overcomes the fire losses of the past, increased benefits will each year accrue to all the people until the maximum of production and use in all lines is reached.

The use of the national forests as recreational and health resorts is just much a part of their purpose as the production of timber or the protection of stream-flow; and the satisfying feature of this work is that one use does not interfere with the other. The better the forest from a timber standpoint the better protection it gives to fish and game, the better it conserves moisture for the surrounding farming areas and the better holiday ground it is for men, women, and children. The roads which the forest engineer constructs to enable him to get fire-fighters to and through the forest quickly are avenues by which the vacationist can get to his objective; and even the forest telephone lines, erected to secure prompt news of fires, are available in cases of emergency to send news out to the home town. On the other hand, the presence of citizens in the reserves in cottages or camps is a benefit to the forest, as may be readily seen. Over ninety per cent of forest fires are caused by carelessness. Carelessness is due to a lack of realization of the value of the forest, and it is safe to say that no person who has spent a week in one of our national forests fails to take away an increased knowledge of the vital part which these areas have to play in our national economy. Once the Canadian people in city and country determine that forest fires must cease, cease they will; and there is no better way to induce that determination than by showing people the forests.

Those who go into these areas to hunt or fish or have a good time swimming, boating or resting do not injure the forest if they do not start fires. Therefore, the Forest Service of the Department of the Interior has laid out summer resort sites on the shores of lakes in the reserves, where lots may be had at a nominal rental for the erection of neat cottages; has laid out camp sites; erected fireplaces, and stocked many of the lakes with fish. The Service also provides information, including maps in some cases as to how to get about in the woods. It is customary for visitors other than those who come to the picnic grounds for a day's outing to report to the forest officer in charge. Hunting privileges are governed by the provincial game laws. It has been the discovery by the people of the prairies of the many advantages of the national forests that has led to the rapid increase in visitors in the last three years a development which will undoubtedly benefit the whole community.

HOW TO FEED BABY CHICKS

Feeding Should Commence When the Chickens Are 72 Hours Old.

REGULAR SCHEDULE

In order to answer the numerous requests as to exactly how the Poultry Department feed the baby chicks, the following is written:

It is well to remember that these rations, and methods of feeding, have been successfully used for chicks hatched in early February, or under conditions where they never get out on the ground, and where every portion of feed must be given the birds. Where chicks are raised out in direct sunlight, and have an abundance of green feed, such things as cod-liver oil, tomatoes, etc., might not be essential, but one can be reasonably certain that if a ration will grow what appears to be normal chicks, under indoor conditions, it should be equally successful where part time indoors and part time out of doors.

The litter used around the brooders is cut alfalfa hay of good quality. The chicks eat some of the cut hay. It is a factor in their diet, or a partial substitute for green grass. The chick are moved to the brooder, which has been heated for a day or so, when 48 hours old. The first day in the brooder they are allowed to drink what lukewarm water they desire. Use plenty of fountains, or at least one to each hundred chicks.

We have been in hopes of recommending a method of feeding from hoppers only, but up to the present we have had less mortality by a system of feeding moist hash at regular intervals. After two weeks the chicks are weaned over, gradually to the hopper method.

The grain, a mash mixture, consists of 200 pounds of corn meal, 100 pounds of good grade shorts, and 10 pounds of bone meal. No small scratch grains are fed on the start.

When the chicks are 72 hours old, begin feeding. The first day or the second day in the brooder, give from two to three feeds, upon clean boards. A board three feet long and about four or five inches wide will allow, roughly, 75 chicks to feed. Use a little lime-stone grit of small size and about one ounce of dry mash mixture to 60 chicks. This ounce of feed is moistened with sour milk curds, or semi-solid buttermilk, and spread on clean boards. The boards are taken up and cleaned after each feed.

After this day, a regular schedule is followed: Daylight—Mash, moistened with sour milk curds; 9 a. m., mash, moistened with canned tomatoes; 11 a. m., mash, moistened with hard-boiled eggs; 1 p. m., mash, moistened with sour milk curds; 3 p. m., mash, moistened with sour milk curds; night, mash, moistened with hard-boiled eggs.

Add a teaspoonful of cod-liver oil to the tomatoes for each 500 chicks daily. Increase the amount gradually; but do not overfeed. Keep the chicks, but give all a chance to eat.

On the seventh day, place before them a mash in a shallow box or other container, composed of the following ingredients: 700 pounds corn chop, 500 pounds shorts, 300 pounds oat chop, 45 pounds bone meal, 45 pounds oyster shell (fine), 80 pounds alfalfa meal, one pint cod-liver oil to 100 pounds feed.

The oil may be sprayed on, or, to many, it is easier to mix the pint of oil with some corn meal and then spread this through the entire mixture.

With the use of the self-feeders, the number of feeds may be reduced. There are two essentials to remember. The chicks should have one pound of semi-solid buttermilk to each four pounds of meal, and one pint of cod-liver oil to each 100 pounds of feed.

Give the chicks all they will eat every night, after the first two or three days.

Tomatoes may be expensive to buy, if you have not home-canned; but they put pep in the flock. Minced small potatoes, or peelings minced, are good once a day.

If you wish to give exercise, use about a tablespoonful of commercial chick-scratch grain two or three times a day to two hundred chicks. Scatter it in the litter.

Many of the prepared chick feeds are good, and should be fed according to the directions of the manufacturer.

Let the chicks out of doors as soon as the weather permits. Some direct sunlight assists the chicks in growth and digesting the feed. When the green grass comes, allow the chicks outside runs as soon as they will go outdoors.

Do not raise the chicks on the same ground as you used for fowls last year. Intestinal worms, etc., may be in the ground. It is desirable to raise the chicks on new ground each year, if possible. Many chicks are ruined by rearing on infected soil.

Keep your colony-house clean, and use good clean litter. This should be renewed at frequent intervals, or when it becomes soiled or dirty. It is important to have good clean drinking fountains and never allow them to get dry. They may be raised, or put upon boards after the first few days, so as to prevent the chicks from scratching them full of litter.

This year broilers have dressed over one and one-half pounds each when fed as above at eight weeks of age.

GREEN FEED AIDS EGG PRODUCTION

Clover Gives Excellent Results and is Superior to Sprouted Oats.

Green feed in some form is essential to maintain a flock of laying hens in vigorous condition. It not only supplies succulence but it is the original source of vitamines, and it on this source that dependence should largely be placed for the supply of these substances, as under ordinary conditions they may be supplied more economically in green feed than in any other form. Beets, mangels, turnips or almost any kind of garden truck make good forms of green feed, and sprouted grains, clovers, alfalfa, rape and green crops of corn, oats, barley or wheat chopped into short lengths are also used successfully.

In a series of tests at the Experimental Station at St. Anne de la Pocatiere, Quebec, clover gave excellent results as a green feed, and proved superior to either mangels or sprouted oats. The birds in the pen given clover as a green feed were always in good condition, and produced the largest number of eggs at the cheapest cost per dozen.

Clovers and alfalfa make excellent pasture for growing pullets. For use as a winter green feed they should be cut green and properly cured. The leaves usually found in mows where hay has been stored are of especial value and should be reserved for the use of the poultry.

Dear Mrs. Carmichael:

The members of the Women's Missionary Society desire to take this opportunity of expressing to you our appreciation of your many services rendered, not only in our society, but in the many branches of the church work.

Your time and talents were ever freely given and you have done much to further the work of His kingdom in this community. We should particularly like to mention your great help in suggesting that we undertake the making and selling of so many nice quilts. It has been a pleasure for us to meet in this way. We would ask you to accept this quilt as a small token of our love and esteem towards you and we trust that God's richest blessings may go with you along life's highway.

Signed on behalf of the W.M.S. and Ladies' Aid Societies,

Mrs. P. H. Skitch.

Mrs. Carmichael fittingly replied, and thanked the ladies for their kind remembrance.

The hostess assisted by Mrs. W. P. Thurston, Mrs. W. M. Thurston, and Mrs. N. L. Thurston, served dainty refreshments and a pleasant half hour was well spent.

MANY 'PHONE CALLS TO TORONTO PLANT

Pile of Slips Presented Showing Calls From Hamilton.

TORONTO, April 1.—(Canadian Press).—If it is decided that export liquor shipments on books of Gooderham & Worts, Ltd., are not bonafide exports, the sales tax due the Dominion Government up to March 31, 1926, would amount to hundred and ninety-two thousand dollars. This was the statement of A. E. Nash, Commission Auditor, to the Royal Commission on Customs, yesterday morning.

Mr. Nash assured the Commissioners that the books and records of this company were laid open to auditors, with no attempt at concealments. Duty had been paid on export shipments of liquor, and apparently business had been conducted in regular manner.

Production of a pile of slips covering telephone calls which originated at "Regent 8267," Hamilton, and terminated at "Main 0427," Toronto, was made by J. A. Gorrie, district manager of the Bell Telephone Company, with headquarters at Hamilton. The first number was that of the telephone of "Mrs. Bessie Perri" at Hamilton. The second number was that of Gooderham & Worts, Toronto, witness said.

Judging by the number of slips, the calls were numerous.

Mr. Calder took the pile and said he would go over them and classify them. Mrs. Perri was present in court and saw the slips handed in.

"All this had been going on without the lady of the house knowing anything about it?" questioned Chief Commissioner Brown. Mr. Calder replied that this was the evidence. "That is how she baffles counsel." he remarked with reference to Mrs. Perri. Mrs. Rocco Perri, summoned to the stand to explain telephone calls, said she was not at home very much last summer. The Commissioners questioned her closely about her movements. "How much of your time did you spend at your own home last summer?" questioned Chief Commissioner. Mrs. Perri said she travelled frequently between Buffalo and Hamilton. Further inquiries elicited information that Mrs. Perri visited Crystal Beach. When asked if she travelled to Buffalo to get orders for liquor she replied in the negative. She will be further examined today.

"Imperfect Spiritual Ideas are but Natural"

SCRIPTURE: Read —II. Corinthians 5:1-10.

"For we walk by faith, not by sight" (II. Cor. 5:7). "But hope that is seen is not hope: for who hopeth for that which he seeth?" (Rom. 8:24). "Their eyes were holden that they should not know him" (Lk. 24:16). "Blessed are they that have not seen, and yet have believed" (Jn. 20:29).

See—Job 36:26; 42:5, 6; John 20:14; Acts 9:4.

MEDITATION: There are different lengths of infancy. The more important the life the longer the infancy. The lamb shares the life of the flock on its first day; the babe requires months and years. If now my life is immortal, then a physical lifetime is less than one day in the development of that life. We are learning to talk spiritually, slowly, to be sure, but as we keep on talking we grow in the power to converse. It is when we cease thus to exercise our spiritual faculties that our awareness of God grows dim. Herein is a call to the constant practice of prayer.

"The star has never left the sky, but thou hast lost sight of the sky."

HYMN:

Christian, rise, and act thy creed,
Let thy pray'r be in thy deed;
Seek the right, perform the true
Raise thy work and life anew.

Hearts around thee sink with care;
Thou canst help their load to bear,
Thou canst bring inspiring light,
Arm their faltering wills to fight.

Come, the, Law divine, and reign,
Freest faith assailed in vain,
Perfect love bereft of fear,
Born in heaven and radiant here.
—F. A. Rollo Russell, 1893.

PRAYER: Pray for—strength for our cares; discernment between good and evil; the prejudiced.

Collect—Our Father in heaven, whose patience knows no bounds, we thank Thee for the oncoming of Thy kingdom in the world, and for the means of grace in our lives. We bless Thee for the Son of Man, serving in Galilee, loving in Judea, triumphing in Gethsemane, atoning on Calvary and rising from the grave. We rejoice in our redemption through Him and in the hope of immortality brought to light by Him. Yet in our weakness we have set our hearts on things on the earth. We have thought success better than righteousness and ease desirable above service. In Thy patience brood over our dull spirits till love awakens in us. We commit ourselves to the Son of Man in holy living and loving service, for His name's sake. Amen.

LITERARY EVENING.

Works of Many Authors Discussed at A.Y.P.A. Meeting.

MARMORA, April 1. — Tuesday evening's meeting of St. Paul's A.Y.P.A. was of a literary character. Miss Hilda Taft dealt in an interesting way with the life and works of Pauline Johnson, reciting at the close "The Song my Paddle Sings." Miss Hilda Phillips who followed, spoke in an entertaining manner on John Milton, referring to his affliction and his notable poems, "Paradise Lost," and "Paradise Regained." She also recited "On His Blindness."

James Rice, Junior, gave a splendid impromptu talk on Shakespeare, touching chiefly on two of his works, "Merchant of Venice" and "Julius Caesar."

Miss Marguerita Kennedy handled her subject, "Alfred Tennyson," in pleasing style, concluding with the poem, "Break, break, break."

Rev. A. B. Caldwell, the concluding speaker, gave an interesting outline of Robert Browning's life, selecting "Italy in England," for recitation.

VOCATIONAL WORK OF 'Y' EXPLAINED

Kiwanis Speaker Tells Of Methods Used in Picking Jobs For Boys.

The Kiwanis Club had, as the luncheon speaker to-day, William R. Cook, General Secertary of Boys' Work in the Y.M.C.A. throughout Canada and Newfoundland.

Mr. Cook gave a review which was both interesting and educative on the vocational counselling which the Y.M.C.A. does for the boys of this country "Vocational selection is an employers' problem, vocational education is a community affair, and vocational counselling is that which helps boys find themselves out in relation to life and to their future occupation" said the speaker. This form of training, as yet is not a science but it is developing fast. There was a time when boys chose their vocations from the stars under which they were supposed to be born or from having the palms of their hands read, or in various other suggesting ways.

In vocational counselling the Y. M. C. A. does not tell boys what they should be but an attempt is made to make him find out his own place in life through discovering what he likes. After the boy has made his choice he must then ask himself the question as to whether or not he would be able to stand the strain of such an occupation.

In making a choice there are many questions which come up, such as that of temperament, or what are his likes and his dislikes; whether he likes working with people or things; does he prefer working indoors or outside; could he carry responsibility, and for this question it is generally considered what kind of a part he has taken in school and church-life. "His aptitudes are considered, and these may be put under the following headings," said the speaker: "Artistic, literary, and humanic, scientific, commercial, mechanical, constructive, and executive. All these overlap with each other, and as often as they overlap there can be found a vocation that will include two or more aptitudes."

When a boy makes a choice of a vocation four things should be considered: his desire for security, recognition, or the desire to be sociable, new experience, and intimate response.

The third phase about vocational counselling is knowing the job, and for this the boy should inquire if the vocation is overcrowded, not only at home but in foreign countries, and the principal thing of all is for him to find himself out as regards his relation to society, and if his character is one that everyone would like.

The booster for the day was Charles Cummer and he gave as his boost a short talk on the advantages of the Y. M. C. A. to the boys and men of this city. Miss Greta LeBarr was the special soloist. The guests were Doug Loomis, Fred McNeely, G. H. Roper, William R. Cook, and Miss LeBarr.

CURIOUS ASPECT IN MINE DISTRICT AS WORK STOPS

Neither Strike Or Lockout in Existence When Wage Agreement Expires.

NO SOLUTION.

Neither Miners Nor Owners Will Yield—Public Not Much Interested.

CHICAGO, April 1 (C. P.—The coal mining industry in the central competitive field to-day entered a curious aspect, neither strike nor lockout. Thousands of miners were forced into idleness as the Jacksonville wage agreement expired at midnight last night. Many temporary agreements have been made to continue work, but it is apparent that a large portion of the two hundred thousand miners had laid aside pick and shovel pending a solution of the problem that a conference of men and owners failed to solve six months ago.

Operators estimated a hundred and fiftyt housand in Pennsylvania, Ohio, Indiana, and Illinois, had suspended work. In Iowa, Kansas, Missouri, Arkansas, and Oklahoma forty thousand men were affected by wage agreements likewise expiring.

The union men are as firm as operators. The operators say they can not continue the Jacksonville agreement and survive, while the miners say they can not accept a wage cut.

With warm weather approaching, and more coal in storage than ever before, the public did not take much interest in the situation.

aBoston wins round 10 to 5.

CHURCH BOARDS BANQUET CHOIR

Happy Social Evening Held in Knox Lecture Hall.

GOOD PROGRAMME.

Last evening members and ex-members of Knox Church Choir were the guests of the Official Boards of that congregation when all together about 125 gathered in the Lecture Hall to enjoy an excellent supper provided in their usual fine style by the wives of members of these Boards, under the leadership of Mrs. R. Johnston. Feasting, interspersed with fun in the form of a sing-song, made a fine introduction. Mr. Alex Donnelly acted as song leader and elicited the harmonies sometimes in unison and sometimes in competition.

Thereafter, under the skillful chairmanship of the minister, the Rev. Mr. McDonald, a programme of entertainment and eulogy was carried through with great enjoyment to all. Instrumental selections were given by Miss M. Hetherington and Mr. A. Robertson, while Mrs. Hazel Davidson-McLelland delighted everyone with her inimitable readings. The choir were toasted in clever, witty speeches by Messrs. Clark and Laing, suitable replies being given in original style by Messrs. Gerrard and Pitchford. The ladies and others who had assisted were remembered in votes of thanks advanced by Messrs. J. W. Buyers and J. Allen.

The acknowledgements of the choir were appropriately voiced by two members, Miss Gladys Chambers and Mr. Sydney Willis, and presented in his own happy manner by their president, Mr. H. J. McCannon. Mr Frank Gray had a final word of appreciation to give those who have done so much to make the services of praise worthy of the church.

Great credit is due to the committee who planned the whole affair and carried it through with enthusiasm and vim, everyone present declaring it was the best of the kind they had ever held.

SAINT and SINNER

By ANNE AUSTIN

Faith had been hoping against hope that the nurse would not permit her to see her brother-in-law but that white-clad young person welcomed her eagerly.

"I'm so glad you've come. He's been begging me to phone for you Miss Lane. But you won't stay long —five minutes perhaps? He's very weak you know."

"It's Faith Chris" Faith said softly as she bent over the long still form in the high narrow white bed.

"Faith? Didn't Cherry come?"

"Cherry can't come you know Chris" Faith told him gently. "She's —she's in jail. Don't you remember?"

"Oh yes" he said vaguely weakly. "Did she send me a message? I've written to her every day and she won't answer my letters. Does she get them?"

"I don't know Chris. Probably the warden has been instructed not to let her communicate with you. How do you feel Chris?"

"Terrible" he moaned moving his head restlessly. "Did Cherry send me a message?"

Faith weakened suddenly betrayed her sister for the first time. "She wrote you a letter Chris. She—she cried in court when she read in the papers about your illness." Impulsively she drew Cherry's scribbled love letter out of her handbag and put it in the weakly outstretched hand.

"I can't see to read it" he groaned as his hand dropped limply back to the crinkled white counterpane. "Read it to me Faith."

Faith conquered her aversion for the man who had brought all this trouble upon her beloved little sister and in a monotonous voice read what Cherry had written—not for Chris' eyes but for the press:

"Chris my darling husband: My heart is too full to write much dearest but I want you to know that I would be at your bedside night and day if it were possible. I had counted so much on your sitting beside me during the trial giving me the support of your love and tenderness. But my innocence shall bring me through this terrible ordeal and thank God you will escape it. For I shall be cleared and you will never be brought to trial. Be of good courage my beloved and get well as quickly as possible so that when it is all over we can be together again. I love you my husband. Your devoted wife Cherry Lane Wiley."

The dull black eyes brightened the mustached mouth twitched with a tremulous smile. "She—she wrote that Faith? You're—you're not fooling me? Let me have it. I want to feel it. I want to kiss it."

Faith did not answer but she slipped the scribbled message into the white-fingered hand that trembled for it.

"I—I thought she hated me" Chris Wiley said in a low voice.

Faith bit her lips to keep back the words—"She does! She does hate you! What did you do to Cherry Chris?"

She was glad when a rustle of starched garments told her that the nurse had entered the room. Bending over her brother-in-law she laid her cold lips upon his cheek then without a word she almost ran out.

To Bob who was waiting for her in his car before the hospital door she gasped in a sob "What is the matter with me Bob? Why can't I hate people whole-heartedly like Cherry can? Am I weak a fool? I'm sorry for Chris Bob. Oh the world is a terrible place to live in Bob! It would be better for all of us if we had never been born!"

"Not better for me" Bob told her gently. "For you see dear in spite of all this hell we're going through now I'm glad I'm alive for I love you and you love me."

Faith looked long and intently at the "twelve good men and true" who had at last been accepted by both the defense and the prosecution and sworn in by the clerk of the county court as jurors to pass upon the evidence in the case of "The State versus Cherry Lane Wiley."

"I can pick 'em can't I?" Cherry whispered to Faith a low gurgle of laughter in her throat. "A sweet bunch of daddies if I do say it myself. Look at the red-headed old boy ogling me already! I'm going to have every last one of these thrill-hungry old darlings in love with me before this case is over. You just watch me!"

"They look terribly bored to me all except the red-headed man" Faith retorted. "I wonder if all juries look as if they were about to go to sleep, or as if they were low-grade morons."

"Churchill says no lawyer wants a smart jury" Cherry laughed guardedly behind her handkerchief for she knew quite well that thirty pairs of eyes belonging to as many reporters were fixed upon her and that her every expression was faithfully reported in every newspaper throughout the country. "Our kind of people—all of them darling" she went on exultantly. "Ordinary working people—not a rich man among them thank heaven. Couldn't be better I suppose. Anyway Churchill's tickled to death and Banning would be sore as a boiled owl if he didn't feel cock-sure that he'll get a conviction anyway."

"Sh-h!" Faith warned her. "Banning's ready to make his opening address to the judge and jury. This is going to be hard honey. He'll state his case what he expects to prove you know. Don't get angry, darling. Please! Hold tight to my hand."

When Banning began to speak, Jim Lane reached for one of Cherry's cold little hands, Faith for the other. But Cherry raised her bright head gallantly, fixed her wide, childish eyes of gold, fringed with bronze unwinkingly upon the wiry little district attorney, whose opening words were delivered in a deceptively calm and reasonable voice:

"May it please the Court and gentlemen of the jury: this defendant, Cherry Lane Wiley, has been indicted by the Grand Jury of this county for the crime of murder in the first degree, alleged to have been committed by her on the 25th day of November of this year in this city and in this county, by striking the head of Ralph Cluny with a heavy Chinese porcelain vase, fracturing the skull of the said Ralph Cluny, and bringing about his death."

The district attorney paused, dramatically, and in that pause the scratching of pencils flying over copy paper at the press tables behind him could be heard all over the suddenly breathlessly quiet courtroom.

Cherry's fingers tightened over Faith's but across the pale, exquisite face of the girl accused of murder there was not a flicker of fear. The wide, golden eyes regarded the district attorney with what looked like polite attention—nothing more.

Banning's voice, when it resumed, was louder, harsher: "To substantiate that indictment the People have evidence of the guilt of this defendant. And before I go into a statement of those circumstances, I wish to impress upon the Court and the gentlemen of the jury that the State will be satisfied with no verdict that does not carry with it the death penalty!"

As Banning thundered out the last two words, Cherry smiled faintly, her head higher than ever, but the bright coral of her lips had faded to the color of ashes of roses.

DRESS

By MARY MARSHALL

This is the white crepe de chine sleeveless tennis frock designed by Jane Regny of Paris.

There are a number of things to take into consideration in the making of a tennis frock and no doubt the designer who sets herself this problem of devising a new tennis frock waits for a time and all her senses are alert.

The frock must be in keeping with the prevailing mode, it must be a little different from all tennis frocks that have gone before, it must be of a material light enough and adequate enough to meet the requirements of the tennis player, it must be in a measure becoming, and it must give no hindrance to free motion of the game, and withal it must hold together come what come may.

Dressmakers as a rule are not tennis players. If they do take a few hours' relaxation on the tennis court they aspire to no sort of championship. So it sometimes happens that a dress is designed with perfect confidence on the part of the dressmaker, only to be turned down by the ardent tennis player whom it was meant to please. There are bodily contortions incidental to the game that are undreamed of by the dressmaker—poses of the body that no dressmaker's model could strike if she chose. Yet tennis has become a fashionable sport and even tennis champions are usually smartly dressed.

So it is that the making of a tennis frock that really comes up to the requirements of sport and fashion is something of an achievement, and may bring more fame than the making of the most ravishing evening gown.

Jane Regny, who is well known in France as the maker of smart sports clothes, has made a tennis frock this spring that has already gained renown. Yvonne Davidson is the author of another tennis frock that has been spoken of with much enthusiasm.

One thing seems to be settled—and that is that a one-piece frock is more appropriate, smarter and more comfortable for the swift game of tennis than the separate sport skirt, blouse and sweater than sometimes are chosen for this purpose. And usually this frock is sleeveless. A sweater is often worn over the frock—but a sweater that may easily be pulled off when the player warms up to her game.

HOROSCOPE

The Stars Incline, but do not Compel.

For Saturday, April 2, 1927.
(Copyright, 1927, by The McClure Newspaper Syndicate.)

Until late in the day the planetary aspect tend to uncertain conditions on the planet Earth, according to astrology. The evening hours should be lucky.

Many puzzling and confusing events are to take place in the next few months, the seers prophesy.

Greed and hatred will precipitate bloodshed in far countries and will involve Anglo-Saxons with Orientals in new contests or power.

When world influences are sinister they are reflected in individuals and for this reason crime will continue to be widespread and uncommonly successful in the United States.

Desire for money is to inspire forgeries that involve large amounts, it is foretold, and the government may be involved in tremendous frauds.

This is not a favorable sway under which to seek positions or employment. The worst side of one is easily discovered while this direction of the stars prevails, it is asserted.

There is a sign of medium promise for those who marry under this rule of the planets. They will be more fortunate in money matters than in mutual understanding, it is forecast.

Engineers and bridge-builders are to prosper exceedingly in the coming year, which will bring much work in foreign lands.

Military men are now subject to a planetary government in which they are likely to be most prominent. Great activity is indicated in army matters in all parts of the world.

Thrift should be practised conscientiously in the United States where large contributions of money will be asked to aid the unfortunates of the world.

Again it is foretold that fashion will react toward modest modes and women are to cultivate many of the homely virtues.

Cotton and rubber are to focus much attention all through the spring. The government at Washington is to consider many financial problems.

Persons whose birthdate it is probably will have a year of prosperity due to their own efforts.

Children born on this day probably will be strong and healthy. Many athletes are born under this sign.

If You Need a Tonic, Get the Best!

Mrs. Sophie Salway of 135 Wilson St., Woodstock, Ont., (picture above) said: "I had had an operation and was expecting to have to undergo another. I was in a very poor state of health—was weak, it seemed that all my strength had left me. I could not do anything. It was quite necessary that I have a good tonic to make me strong enough for my second operation so I took Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery and it soon had me well and strong, and I came thru the operation without any trouble. Several other members of my family have taken the 'Golden Medical Discovery' with equally good results and all have words of praise for it."

BOYS ENTERTAIN CLASS OF GIRLS

Organized Classes of Madoc United Sunday School Have Banquet.

GOOD PROGRAMME.

MADOC, April 1.—A delightful social evening was enjoyed by some of the young people of the United Church when Rev. Mr. Foster's Sunday School class of senior boys, "L. O. C.," entertained Mrs. Foster's "Star of Hope" senior girls' class and the officers of the Sunday School.

Much well-deserved praise was given the boys for the splendid manner in which they had arranged the banquet, decorating the tables artistically in red and white, preparing an enjoyable programme, and looking after the comfort of their guests in every way.

The speeches made in connection with the toasts were particularly well prepared, and many favorable comments were heard regarding the interesting and enjoyable addresses that were given by those proposing and responding to the toasts. These were as follows:

To the King, proposed by Archie Ashley, who acted as chairman for the evening.

To the Empire, proposed by Herb. Caskey and responded to by James Wood, who spoke on Canada; Hazel Ross, who took Australia as her theme, and Donald Whytock, who took India.

To the church, proposed by J. B. Hough and responded to by Norma Fair.

To the Sunday School and Y.P.S., proposed by T. E. D. Nickle, responded to by Georgina Phillips, Carl Smith, Mrs. J. E. Marcellus and Muriel Roushorn.

To the guests, proposed by James Wood, responded to by Mrs. J. B. Hough and Mrs. A. H. Foster.

To the hosts, proposed by J. B. Hough and responded to by A. Ashley and Rev. A. H. Foster.

At the conclusion of the toast list a recitation was given by James Wood, who impersonated the French habitant in excellent manner in Drummond's "Dat Stove-Pipe Hole." This was followed by a vocal duet, given by Misses Norma Fair and Muriel Roushorn, which was heartily encored. This brought a very pleasant evening to a close, except for the hosts, for the boys then had to be introduced to the dish-pan, and as one of them remarked afterwards, "That's news, too, and worthy a place on the programme"; and so it is, for it may plainly be seen that the young men did not shirk any of the duties that devolved on them in the giving of this very successful banquet.

PAPER ON BOOKS IS GIVEN LEAGUE

Most Interesting Address Read at Norham By Mrs. Bert West.

REGULAR MEETING.

NORHAM, March 31.—The People's League meeting held in the hall on Monday evening was well attended. Miss Lulu Mitchell, the president, opened the meeting with the singing of "He Leadeth Me," Mrs. David Evans read an explanation on the lesson, which was read by the president. The pastor conducted a spelling match with words taken from Psalm 119, but had to resort to less familiar passages before the spellers were forced into their seats. Gorden Mitchell and Douglas Knight were captains of the sides. Ida Bertrand read a paper on "Naming the Church." This was a story of a king who built a church and gave it his own name, as he had paid for all the material. He afterwards changed the name and called the church after a poor lady who belonged to the parish who had nothing to give but who was kind to the horses which were used in hauling the material. The king decided that her kindness was a greater contribution under the circumstances than his own gift of money.

Mrs. Bert West gave the following paper on "Books":

"When our forefathers came to Canada the only way they could reach the interior of the country was by following trails through the woods and over streams, rivers and lakes. As they made their way across the prairie they followed trails made by the Indians long before the white man set foot on American soil. The hardships and thrilling experiences of these early settlers as they moved back and forth on these trails developed in them fortitude, resourcefulness, self-reliance and rugged simplicity of life; and these splendid qualities have been handed down by succeeding generations to the young people of today.

"Every Canadian is thrilled by the stories of these early settlers, who made their way through the trackless forests and blazed new trails for those who were to follow them. It was through the hard and trying adventures of these strong and persevering men and women that the foundation of our great country were laid.

"The people of today do not have to go through the experiences of their forefathers. Yet every red-blooded young man is anxious to become strong and resourceful. The Canada of the future is calling for the very best of men. The boys of today must be prepared to answer that call. Just as the early settlers were experienced in camping and skilled in the art of woodcraft and outdoor life, so the young people of today should seek to develop the four-fold life.

"The chief business of a young person is to grow. All that he does should add to his development. The play life, the reading, the school days, the church and Sunday School days, one's relations with other young people and grown people should contribute to growth in wisdom, in stature and in favor with God and man. Some young people live lop-sided lives. Their intellects are well developed while they have weak, puny bodies. Some have good physiques but untrained minds, and there are those who will never succeed because they are not trying to obey the teachings of Jesus and are following the wrong trail.

"To succeed a young man should have plenty of schooling. He should learn all he can from nature, the great out-of-doors teacher. He should play hard, and form good healthy habits that will give tone to the muscle power, to the brain, and strength to the nerve. He should believe in the influence of his church and Sunday school, and know that he influences every life he touches and that every other life influences his. His aim should be to live so as to make the trail easier for others. A sound mind in a sound body has long been recognized as the foundation of all true usefulness and success in life. Fortunately for us we life in a land where the privileges of the best education money can buy are free and open to all. A boy is not very old when he realizes that there is a job for him, that he has a life work to attend to. His first real job is to attend school. The wise boy will not allow anything to interfere with his attendance at school.

"James L. Gordan says, 'Every youth should keep himself in touch with art, beauty, music and literature. A man is known by his books. A love of high-class literature gives a man a peculiar position in the community. The man who is well read is apt to be broad in his ideas and sound in his judgment.'

"We are living in the book age of the world's history. Thomas Carlyle, said 'The best university is a collection of good books. Books are within the reach of everybody today, and if you cannot build up a library on a cash basis there are plenty of firms that will supply you, if you pay one dollar down and a dollar a months afterwards.' Emerson said, 'Never read a book until it is a year old, never read a book until it is famous, never read a book unless you like it. There is no better investment for a home than a collection of good books. He who cannot find time to read does a splendid work for humanity when he places a score of good books in the pathway of others.'

"Thousands of books are being printed every year, but the great books of the past and the present are few in number and not hard to find. You need not be afraid of poetry, biography, history or the works of great scientists.

"He is not reading, who simply says over the words. A reader should master every page of a strong book before he turns it over. Lord Macauley, said, 'When a boy I began to read very earnestly, but at the foot of every page I stopped and obliged myself to give an account of what I had read on that page. At first I had to read it three or four times before I got may mind firmly fixed, but now after I have a book through once I can almost recite it from beginning to end.'

"F. W. Robertson, the great English preacher, was a great reader, but a slow reader. He mastered every page he read, studied and marked it well. That is why his public discourses were rich and beautiful. He made the thoughts and ideas of great thinkers his. These became like atoms of iron in his mental constitution.

"This is not a religious exhortation nor an experience meeting, but it is safe to say that a knowledge of the English Bible is as good as a liberal education. The great orators have plucked their plumes from that old Book. No man can afford to be ignorant of it.

Joseph Cook said, 'If an inhabitant of another planet were to visit our sphere, and should ask to see the most victorious, significant and precious object now known to man, I should unhesitatingly show him the Bible'."

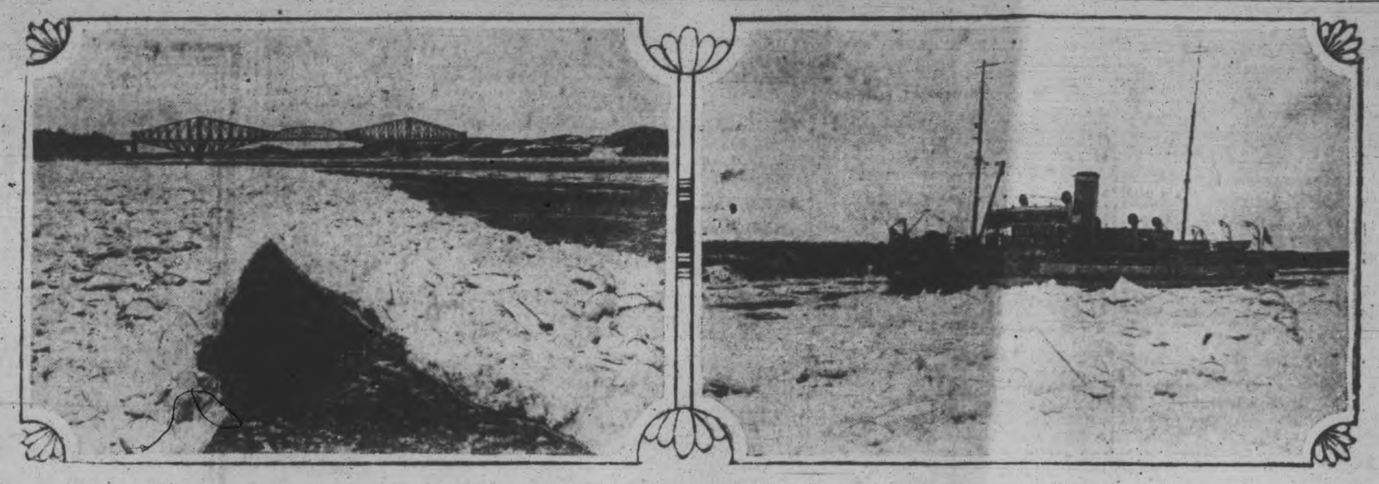
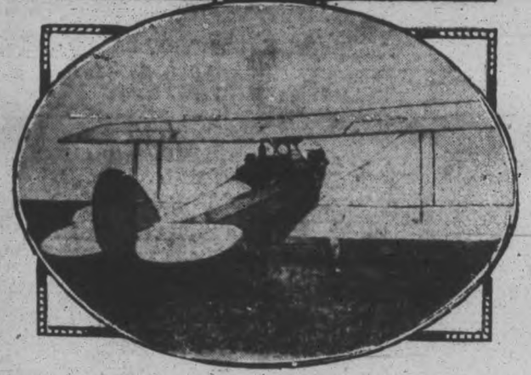
These are the women on the Ford-Sapiro jury in the million dollar libel suit at Detroit. All of them are married excepting one. Three of them sit in the front row of the jury box and three in the back row. Mrs. Clarkson is said to be the most attentive; Mrs. Jewell the best looking; Miss Konen looks tired of it all; Mrs. Styles said she never read anything about the case; Mrs. Hoffman wears a red dress; Mrs. Brown was the only one whose religion was not questioned by the lawyers.

Albert Snyder, art editor of Motor Boating magazine, was recently slain in his home on Long Island, N.Y., and his wife found tied up with wire. It is alleged that Snyder was killed by Henry Judd Gray, a corset salesman, and supposed lover of the wife, as the result of a plot between them. Snyder, it is said, carried $30,000 life insurance. Confessions were said to have been made by both but these were later repudiated. Snyder was clubbed with a window sash and garotted with picture wire after being chloroformed in sleep, a crime which Gothan police call the "coldest premeditated murder in history." Left to Right, the illustrations are a close-up of Mrs. Ruth Snyder, the wife, who "liked a good time"; Mrs. Snyder again in Queen's County jail; Mrs. Snyder, with her brother, Andrew J. Brown, and Henry Judd Gray, leaving court under police escort.

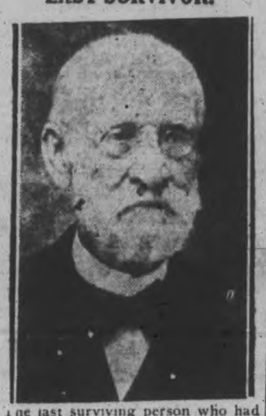


Recently the Canadian government icebreakers plunged their powerful steel stems into the ice fields of the St. Lawrence. The Mikula, greatest icebreaker the world possesses, is down to Anticosti Island, down in the gulf, taking in supplies and bringing out mail. The Mikula is a war veteran, and was sent by Canada to Russian to keep the port of Archangel clear for allied ships to go in and out. She is now back in civvies and will soon lead the van from Quebec to Montreal in the upper reaches of the river where the ice is thickest. The dominion government's photographers have pictured the Lady Grey, the staunch little ship that has plunged through the ice season after season, that has sailed the outer seas to carry relief to anxious mariners, that helped the survivors of many a wreck to safety. Now the Lady Grey goes into action below Quebec bridge. Picture Right shows her staunch little ladyship in the heart of the ice field. Left shows the first effect of her drive into the ice field. The dark gash in the lower centre is the opening of the break in the ice her steel stem is making.



Indian Doctor Flies From Iowa—To secure affidavits denying charges by Professor George Daugherty of Drake University, Des Moines, Iowa, that Six Nation Indians were in the habit of trading wives, Dr. R. J. Atkins, shown in the leather flyin coat, flew from Cedar Rapids, Ia., to the Six Nations Indians' reserve at Brantford, Ontario. He obtained the denials and also a statement from Lt.-Col. C. E. Morgan, superintendent of the reservation confirming his visit. The superintendent is shown standing with Dr. Atkins. The lower view shows the plane, on its return journey taking off. A newspaper correspondent and aviator accompanied the doctor.

LAST SURVIVOR.



The last surviving person who had witnessed the historic Quebec conference in 1864 when representatives from Upper and Lower Canada and the Maritimes considered taking the step of Confederation, the death occurred recently at Gulfport, Mississippi, of William Henry Orr, veteran Canadian reporter and newspaperman. He was an assistant editor of the Toronto Globe under Hon. George Brown, and he was on the staff of The New York Tribune when Horace Greeley directed its policies.

The fight between public and private interests for possession of the Carillon rights still goes on merrily at Ottawa between the holders of the Georgian Bay Ship Canal charter and the holders of the water rights of the National Hydro Electric Company. Both rights are about to expire, unless renewed The present situation has developed because the bill to renew the rights of the Georgian Bay Ship Canal has come up first for consideration.

The diagram that accompanies this article, adopted from one appearing in the Financial Post, gives some idea of the interlocking of Hydro-Electric interests in Quebec, showing how the Shawinigan and Holt interests control various companies through the United Securities Co. The development at Carillon, while important, will be but a sideline of the big Quebec power trust. Since 1921 the Shawinigan interests alone have increased their gross earnings from four millions to seven million dollars per year.

SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

PETER BECOMES A DISCIPLE OF JESUS

The International Uniform Sunday school lesson for April 3. Peter Becomes a Disciple of Jesus. Mark 1: 14-18, 29-31.

Text: Mark 1:14-18, 29-31

Now after that John was put in prison, Jesus came into Galilee, preaching the gospel of the kingdom of God.

And saying, The time is fulfilled, and the kingdom of God is at hand: repent ye, and believe the gospel.

Now as he walked by the sea of Galilee, he saw Simon and Andrew his brother casting a net into the sea: for they were fishers.

And Jesus said unto them, Come ye after me, and I will make you fishers of men.

And straightway they forsook their nets, and followed him.

And forthwith, when they were come out of the synagogue they entered into the house of Simon and Andrew with James and John

But Simon's wife's mother lay sick of a fever, and anon they tell him of her.

And he came and took her by the hand, and lifted her up; and immediately the fever left her, and she ministered unto them.

By WM. E. GILROY, D. D.
Editor of The Congregationalist.

The story of the calling of the early disciples and of their leaving all to follow Jesus is an amazing chapter in the records of spiritual adventure.

One might say it was unique in these records: but, as a matter of fact, it is but a high light in the story of how the deepest and greatest thing in life has led men repeatedly to great acts of renunciation and ways of courage in devotion to truth and in the service of mankind.

One thinks of the ancient prophets, called from their humble tasks to witness God's truth in the busy places of men. One thinks of such leaders as St. Francis of Assisi, renouncing all things for the glory of living in lowly Christian service and devotion to the poor and needy. One thinks of men like John Bunyan, gladly giving up even freedom for the more precious freedom of practising and proclaiming his faith.

Modern Instances.

And one could find even in our modern materialistic civilization more instances than we sometimes realize of those who have forsaken all to follow Jesus. Some of these are perhaps as unorthodox and as much scorned and vilified as were these who long ago heard the voice of Jesus as he called men to him in Galilee and Judea.

But all of this great life of spiritual adventure is not strange and unconventional and unorthodox. In the ordinary conventional paths of life there will be found those who, without ostentation and without any air of superior wisdom or superior sanctity, do justly, love mercy, and walk humbly with their God. These, though there be seemingly no great adventure to their lives, have heard equally, and have obeyed, the call of Christ.

It should always be remembered that while Jesus called certain men to leave all and follow him, there were certain others, who were very anxious to go with him, whom he just as insistently told, "Go back home."

Hard to Stay at Home.

Oftentimes it is much harder to stay at home and perform with Christian spirit and zeal the hum-drum but necessary tasks than it is to brave the dangers and accept the excitements of the more adventurous service. There are a great many who are fitted for the Christian drudgery which they despise who are not fitted for the sort of leadership to which they aspire.

Peter was by nature fitted for the impulsive and adventurous areas of life, though he would have been a stronger and better man if he had had in him something of that spirit of endurance and capacity for plodding and drudging which Paul combined with the vision and impulses of a man of spiritual genius.

Peter was by profession and nature a fisherman, easily discouraged, yet so passionate by nature that he could not let go when once a great interest had developed in his life. One thinks of him as lured by the winds and the waves, fearful of the very adventures which were to him as necessary as life itself.

The Christian church has depended for its upbuilding upon men of such quick and impulsive nature. They have not always been great builders nor have they been effective as organizers, but they have had the knack of rallying people to a cause; and where men of organizing and building genius have been associated with them the results of their work have been tremendous.

Understood His Faults.

Jesus understood the weakness as well as the strength of Peter. The greatest of all his references to intercessory prayer is to his prayer for Peter that, in the time of his sifting by Satan, Peter's faith should not fail.

But it was in the divine power of Jesus to see the strength in men beneath their weakness. He saw Peter's possibilities for good just as he sees ours, and he scattered away the chaff that might hold the pure wheat of Peter's character.

Can we not apply the call of Peter to our own lives? We are so much like Peter in our weaknesses, and possibly also in our elements of strength. Can we not obey the call of Jesus as Peter obeyed it and find in Christ the power to overcome our weakness and to let our strength count for Christ's service

WITNESSES IN CUSTOMS PROBE

Mrs. Rocco Perri, wife of Rocco Perri of Hamilton, who two years ago was not afraid to announce himself as the "bootleg king of Ontario", was a most composed witness before the commission investigating customs smuggling in Toronto this week. She denied all knowledge of liquor transactions with Gooderham and Worts on either her own or her husband's behalf. She is shown above in a pose and as she appeared to an artist. Rocco Perri is also shown.

PLANNING USE OF TIDE POWER

Company Seeks Incorporation From New Brunswick Legislature.

FREDERICTON, N.B., April 1 (Canadian Press).—A bill for the incorporation of the Petitcodiac Tidal Power Company has as its object the development of the tidal power of the Petitcodiac River, where it is estimated between one and two hundred thousand horsepower can be developed at an estimated cost of twenty-three millions. This was introduced in the Legislature yesterday.

NEW TRAIN SERVICES ANNOUNCED BY CANADIAN NATIONAL RAILWAYS.

In view of the expected increase in tourist traffic during the coming summer season, Canadian National Railways will augment its passenger train service, effective May 15th next, by the operation of an additional daily train between Toronto and Chicago, and also by operating the popular afternoon train, "The Inter-City Limited," between Toronto-Montreal-Ottawa, daily, instead of daily except Sunday.

A distinctive Canadian name, "The Maple Leaf," has been chosen for the new Toronto-Chicago service. Westbound, this new train will leave Toronto 9.00 p.m. daily, arriving Hamilton 10.05 p.m., London 12.35 a.m., and Chicago 10.15 a.m. next morning. Eastbound, departure from Chicago will be 9.05 a.m., arriving London 7.45 p.m. and Toronto 10.45 p.m. Through standard sleeping car will be operated between Montreal and Chicago, westbound, leaving Montreal on the "Inter-City Limited" at 12.30 p.m., arriving Toronto 8.30 p.m., eastbound leaving Toronto 11.00 p.m., arriving Montreal 7.30 a.m. The radio-equipped observation parlor car Montreal to Toronto on the "Inter-City Limited," will, effective May 15th, operate through Montreal to London, on the "Maple Leaf" from Toronto.

This new train will also provide excellent connections to and from Ottawa, westbound with the "Inter-City Limited" leaving Ottawa 1.15 p.m., and eastbound with the night train from Toronto, arriving Ottawa next morning.

This attractive new service between Montreal, Ottawa, Toronto, and Chicago is in addition to the service between these points and intermediate cities, such as Brockville, Kingston, Belleville, Hamilton, Brantford, Woodstock, London, etc., now provided by Canada's Train of Superior Service, the "International Limited," which has operated continuously over this run since July 1st, 1900.

The special mid-summer tourist trains leaving Toronto at night for the Muskoka Lakes, Laks of Bays, Algonquin Park, and other Highlands of Ontario resorts, will connect with this new Chicago service, as will also the afternoon trains returning from these resorts.

Full information and reservations may be secured from any Canadian National Agent. 2d,1-4

Uncle Wiggily

To-day's Bedtime Story.

By Howard R. Garis

"UNCLE WIGGILY'S APRIL FOOL"

Copyright, 1927, by McClure Newspaper Syndicate.

(By Howard R. Garis.)

"Do you know what day this is, Bumple?" asked Gazie, the little white Wogglejig girl, of her green brother as they were about to go to school one morning.

"It's Friday, the last day of school this week, and we don't have to go tomorrow!" cried Bumple, pulling off one of his green legs and trading it for a yellow one belonging to his brother Wumple. The Wogglejigs were always scrambling themselves this way. That's why Uncle Wiggily had gone to spend a few weeks in the bungleump with Boppy and Um, the little wooden man and woman who had charge of the wooden creatures.

"Yes, it's Friday all right," agreed Gazie. "But it's something else! Have you forgotten?" She whispered into her brother's ear which made him squiggle a bit as Gazie tickled his face. But Bumple suddenly exclaimed in delight:

Uncle Wiggily rubbed his pink nose.

"Oh, I forgot all about that! What fun we'll have! Let's do it to Uncle Wiggily!"

"Do what?" asked Dazie, who was a dark blue Wogglejig. "What are you going to do to Uncle Wiggily?"

"April Fool him!" whispered Gazie. "Now don't tell him and spoil it all!"

"No, I won't do that!" promised Dazie. "I know he'll laugh."

A little while after that the six little Wogglejigs came slowly out of the woods where they had been for some time, chuckling and giggling among themselves.

"When he sees it he'll be terribly surprised!" whispered Wumple, laughing.

"I wish he'd hop along now so we could April Fool him!" said Bumple.

Just then the bunny gentleman himself came hopping along the woodland path, and at the sight of him the six little wooden Wogglejigs hid under the bushes, for it was not yet time to go to school.

The rabbit uncle reached an open place in the woods and, looking into the little clearing, he saw something which made him exclaim:

"Hello there, Gazie! I see you. Oh, it's Mazie! You'd better hurry along to school, Dazie, or you'll be late, Dumple and—dear me, it isn't Dumple, it's Wumple! Well, you'd better hurry to school—why I believe, after all it's Bumple! The tail is green, but——"

Uncle Wiggily, who was much puzzled, rubbed his pink nose and looked again. Under a bush he saw what he thought at first was Gazie Wogglejig, for the head was white. But then he noted a light blue front part of the body, and he thought it must be Mazie, so he called her name. But after that the rabbit gentleman saw some dark blue front legs and he guessed it was Dazie standing there, for dark blue was her color.

"But the back half of the body is red, and that's Dumple's color," said Uncle Wiggily to himself, as he looked again. "Only the hind legs are yellow, and they belong to Wumple. But the tail is green, and so that must belong to Bumple. Dear me! What a mixed-up Wogglejig! I never saw such a mess! All mixed up!"

Then, all of a sudden, out from where they were hidden in the bushes rushed Gazie, Mazie, Wumple and all the other Wogglejigs.

"April Fool, Uncle Wiggily!" they cried. "April Fool! That's only some different colored sticks we stuck in the bushes to make believe it was one of us, all scrambled. That isn't a Wogglejig at all. It's just some old sticks!"

"Oh, it is? Hum! So this is April Fool, eh?" asked the rabbit gentleman. "But if that isn't a real, live Wogglejig why is it walking this way?" As Uncle Wiggily pointed his red, white and blue striped rheumatism crutch at the many colored sticks in the shape of a Wogglejig all at once Dazie and the others saw it walking toward them.

"Oh! Oh!" they cried, starting to run away. "The pretend Wogglejig that we made has come to life. This is a funny April Fool" and away they scampered, not knowing what was going to happen.

"Ha! Ha!" laughed Uncle Wiggily. "I guess I April Fooled them with my trick! That's far enough, Squiggle Bugs! You needn't carry the make-believe Wogglejig any farther!" Then some Squiggle Bugs, which Uncle Wiggily had asked to move the joke creature so as to fool Dazie and the others, crawled out from under the legs of the pretend Wogglejig and joined the bunny gentleman in laughter. "It was a good April Fool trick, my dear Squiggle Bugs!" chuckled Uncle Wiggily.

It was a long time before Gazie and the others learned how it was that Mr. Longears April Fooled them more than they did him. But the old rabbit gentleman was wise in many ways.

THAT which others are now attempting has been already accomplished in the APEX ELECTROPHONIC. It brings out in every instance all that is in the record—all the individualism of the vocalist or the instrumentalist—all the true tonal quqalities without exaggeration, distortion or blatancy. Every note—half note—even the most subtle tone inflection is reproduced with absolute fidelity.

The Apex Electrophonic is new. There is nothing with which to compare it except the performance of the artists themselves.

Presbyterian Ladies Study Work on Missionaries Among Moslems.

A.Y.P.A. MEETING

LAKEFIELD, April 1.—At the regular meeting of the Woman's Missionary Society of the Presbyterian Church held on Friday afternoon last at the home of Mrs. Andrew Fairbairn, several interesting extracts were read by some of the members on the work of Christianity among the Moslems. Mrs. J. W. Ridpath, the president, was in the chair. Mrs. Alex. Graham read the Scripture lesson and Mrs. Ross presided at the organ for the singing of the hymns. The next regular meeting will be held at the home of Mrs. A. Quinn, with Miss McKibbin and Mrs. Graham in charge of the programme. A sewing meeting will be held at Miss McKibbin's on April 8th.

Mrs. Ross read a paper on the work in Turkey, which is giving a greater welcome to Christian missionaries than ever before. They find the missionary is an almoner to the needy and upholds justice. Turkish children are interested in the Christian schools and in the Christmas trees which are provided. With the children Christianity is gaining ground, and the influence of Islam is lessening in consequence. Mrs. J. M. Simpson read a paper on the work in Persia, which was begun by Henry Martyn, more than a hundred years ago. Mr. Martyn wanted to go to India in 1911 as a missionary, but the country was under the control of the East India Company, who did not welcome missionaries, but who allowed chaplains for the British troops, so he went as a chaplain, going later to Persia and in less than a year he had translated the Bible into the Persian tongue. In 1834, Dr. Ashel Grant went to Persia as a missionary, and in 1870 another attempt was made when the Presbyterian church took the responsibility of the work of the Congregationalists. In 1914-1919 Dr. W. A. Shedd, a British missionary, did excellent work at Teheran, the capital, and Tabriz, a busy commercial centre. The American College has students from all parts of Persia including a descendant of Mahomet, who has become a Christian, thereby endangering his life, for the converts from Islam are in greater danger of their lives than the Armenians and Assyrians.

Mrs. Ridpath read of the work in India and Egypt. It is found that evangelism is the greatest factor in Christianizing Islam and never have the doors been open as they are now. Moslems may attend Christian services now, where formerly it was forbidden and where at first they used to argue, now they do not interrupt but listen most attentively. In short, their demeanor at the services could not be more reverent.

Dr. Paul Harrison finds that Arabia is asking for missionaries which is a wonderful thing, as it has been the stronghold of the faith of Mahomet, with Mecca, the sacred city, but now the citadel of Islam is open to the Christian.

A.Y.P.A. Meeting.

Rev. W. J. Creighton gave an interesting address on St. Patrick and his work in Ireland at the A.Y.P.A. on Monday evening last, dealing with his work, his history and his successors. St. Patrick was the first Bishop of Armagh. The history of St. Patrick is really only partially known, but his father was a clergyman, and St. Patrick was taken a prisoner to Ireland when a lad and remained there in slavery for some years. After his escape he studied for the Church, always cherishing the dream that some day he would go back to Ireland as a missionary. His dream was more than fulfilled and during his time practically the whole island embraced Christianity.

An entertainment is being given on Tuesday evening of this week in the basement of the Regent street church, under the auspices of the C.G.I.T. girls, with the main feature a play, "Susan Wields the Sceptre" and consisting also of drills and music.

On Thursday evening next, Rev. Walter M. Loucks, M.A., of Toronto, is giving his lecture on "Success" in the Memorial Hall. The programme will also provide some musical numbers and some moving pictures of local scenes and characters.

SOUTHERN AURORA SEEN.

One of the most brilliant displays of the Aurora Australis ever seen lit up the southwestern sky of New South Wales recently. As reported from Christchurch, early in the morning the sky was almost dazzling with a white light like that of a distant searchlight display. It was also visible the night of the same day. Two nights before, the magnetic observatory recorded a permanent aurora which was not visible to the naked eye, but was one of the strongest ever recorded there in many years.

GRANDMOTHERS EXERCISE.

Physical culture classes for the grey-haired are being formed in London, and already grandmothers, aunts, uncles and parents are learning to bend and twist to the thump of the piano. In one class are about 25 women, whose only indication of their years is their silvered hair. It is conducted by seventy-year-old Colonel George Cruden. The eldest pupil is 73 and the spryness with which the "knees bend" and other commands are followed is surprising. Most of the pupils are office workers who are trying to keep "fit."

What Other Municipalities Say About Shut-Down

OSHAWA BELIEVES SHUT-DOWN DUE TO POWER ASSOCIATION

Closing of Street Railway Marks Forward Move By Hydro.

MEETING REQUESTS.

"Procedure Still a Secret," Comments Chairman Mason, Looking For Success.

OSHAWA, April 1 (Special to The Examiner).—Officials of the Central Ontario Power Association were keenly interested in the report today that the operation of the Peterborough Street Railway had been closed down by the Hydro-Electric Power Commission.

According to Chairman F. L. Mason and vice-Chairman G. D. Conant here, this move on the part of the Commission marks a real forward step in the "unscrambling" of the non-hydro assets of the system, assets which were, according to the Power Association, really liabilities of a serious character and concerning which strong criticism had been offered throughout the central Ontario area, and even in the offices of the Hydro Commission itself, by the recent deputation.

Chairman Mason was of the opinion that this was a move by Hydro in the direction of meeting some at least of the requests of the Central Ontario Power Association, and said it was a sign that Chairman Magrath and the Commission were actually carrying out their expressed policy as announced on March 16th in Toronto.

That the Hydro was sympathetic to this extent with the claims of the Association, was a most encouraging situation, he said, and it was to be hoped that a basis would soon be reached whereby this whole area would be assured of power at rates that were reasonable. The Campbellford pulp mill and the Peterborough railway were apparently being "written off" as suggested, though the actual procedure was still one of the secrets of the Commission, and the outlook was for a great measure of success for the Central Ontario Power Association.

KING FERDINAND ILL.

Bandits Refund Money To Man Not Insured

PAMPA, Texas, April 1. — (United Press).—Bandits may be mercenery but sometimes they show mercy, even to the point of being philanthropic. Three gentlemen of the quick trigger robbed the First National Bank of Pampa of $20,000 yesterday, but spared J. E. Massey his $1,100 deposit. Massey had spoken to them. He had said he wasn't insured against loss and got this answer: "Well, if you're going to stand the loss personally, we'll give it back."

TO-NIGHT'S GAME STILL IN DOUBT

C.A.H.A. Officials Unable To Decide On New Judge of Play.

VANCOUVER, April 1 (CP)—To-night's game between Toronto Grads and Fort William to decide the Amateur Hockey Championship of Canada is still problematical. After a session lasting until after midnight, officials of the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association were unable to reach a decision as to who should act as judge of play.

Fort William yesterday had notified officials that they refused to play with Pete McIntyre, of Trail, B.C., as judge of play. Another conference is being held to-day.

Mining Market Weak; List Of Stocks Is Narrow

TORONTO, April 1. — (Canadian Press.)—Weak and contracted trading was in evidence on the Standard Mining Exchange to-day. Losses were far in excess of gains. Teck Hughes was an exception to the general trend, the closing figure at 6.45 representing a gain of five cents. Noranda suffered the greatest decline when it dropped 50 cents to 20.60. Amulet was down 20 cents to 86, while Towagamac sold off 45 cents to $3.00. Central Manitoba Gold strengthened two to 1.20. Area was off 3 1-4 to 25. Barry Hollinger was down 2 1-4 to 39 ,while Nipissing declined 15 cents to 7.65.

Wheat Prices Go Down On Large Crop Estimates

CHICAGO, April 1 (CP)—Wheat underwent a sharp early setback today owing in the main to bearish aspects of the unofficial April summaries of domestic crop conditions. These summaries point to a yield even larger than had been looked for. Opening at 1-4 cent to 3-4 cent off, wheat quickly suffered a decline. Corn, oats, and provisions were easy, corn starting at 1-8 cent to 1-2 cent down, but later rallying to about yesterday's finish.

Opening prices were: Wheat, May 133 3-8, July 128 3-8. Corn, May 71 7-8, July 76 7-8. Oats, May 44 1-8, July 44 3-8.

Active Trading To-day On Toronto Stock Market

TORONTO, April 1 (C. P.)—Active and feverish trading with several spectacular advances featured the proceedings on the Toronto Stock Exchange to-day. Massey-Harris issues were again in the limelight with a 5 1-4 point gain by the common being the outstanding development of the session. It closed at 130. The preferred eased 1-4 to 108 3-4, while the new stock advanced 1 3-4 to 32, with a large turnover. The distillery section was unusually active with Gooderham and Worts, scoring a gain of 1-2 to 59. Walker was active and stronger at 38 1-2, a gain of 1-2. Canada Cement sold up to 146. Brazilian was active and recorded a new high of 134, a gain of 1 1-4.

Mine Exchange Members Fined and Suspended

TORONTO, April 1.—Two members of the Standard Mining Exchange were fined a hundred dollars, the president of the exchange, F. C. Crawford, announced at the opening of market. Action was taken following investigations into reports of market manipulation.

Morgan U. Kemmerer was fined a hundred dollars and suspended for sixty days, while Philip Kelly was fined a hundred dollars and suspended for thirty days.

Action against F. G. Oke was delayed for a week to complete investigation, the president announced.

U. S. Steel In Demand; Railway Stocks Weaker

NEW YORK, April 1 (CP)—A persistent demand for United States Steel Common, which touched another new record high for all time, temporary set back in rails on selling inspired by the Interstate Commerce Commission decision in the St. Louis and O'Fallon case, and the renewed weakness of oil, baking, tobacco and packing issues, were high lights in to-day's irregular stock market.

PORT HOPE SYMPATHIZES—BUT THINKS HYDRO IS JUSTIFIED

Commission Might Have Shown More Give and Take, Citizens Think.

STREET CARS DEAD.

Mayor Chalk Believes Others Should Not Be Called To Pay Losses.

PORT HOPE, April 1 (Special to The Examiner).—While there were some expressions of sympathy to be heard here to-day for the citizens of Peterborough, through the closing down of the street railway in that city, still there were also many who felt that the action of the Hydro in trying to get the City of Peterborough to take over the railway was a step in the right direction. It has been felt in Port Hope since the raise in the Hydro rates and the showing that a cause for the increase was to be found in the operation by the Hydro of utilities which were losing money that something should be done to get rid of the burden and that if Peterborough, for example, wanted a continuance of the railway, then they should take it over and operate it themselves. While some feel that there might have been a little more give and take with the Hydro before closing down, still it was felt, on the other hand, that the same spirit of conciliation might have been shown by the Peterborough council.

Mayor T. B. Chalk feels that it is almost an impossibility to have the successful operation of street-cars in small cities these days because of the increased automobile traffic, etc. He feels, however, that the other sections of this territory should not be asked to keep on paying money for the operation of a street railway in Peterborough and that if that city feels it requires this service, then it is up to them to operate it themselves and bear all the burden.

Hydro Was High-handed.

A. H. C. Long, secretary of the Board of Trade, feels that perhaps the Hydro had acted in a very high-handed way in closing down the way they did, and that there should have been some other conciliatory methods adopted before drastic action was taken. However, he also felt that something would have to be done and that it was not fair to have this entire district pay for the operation of street-cars in Peterborough, particularly when it meant increased cost for the disinterested municipalities.

W. J. B. Davison, president of the Board of Trade, held that other municipalities should not be asked to pay for the operation of street railways in Peterborough or anywhere else. In Port Hope the increased rates meant on street lighting alone 3.00 per lamp, and he could not see why this should be borne by the people of this town when, perhaps if the Hydro could get rid of the white elephants, it would mean a reduction in rates. While he felt that the action of the Hydro might seem to be very arbitrary, still there was this to be taken into consideration, that if the city council of Peterborough had shown any inclination to meet the Hydro, some arrangement could have been arrived at which would have had the railway in operation until a settlement was reached. He felt that the Hydro was taking the right action in trying to get rid of non-paying utilities.

P. L. Brown, editor of The Daily Times, felt that the Hydro had not taken the action it had without just cause. If the council of Peterborough had been sincere in trying to reach a working agreement with the Hydro for the purchase of the railway the Hydro would never have taken the action it has, but it would appear that the Hydro has been forced to take this action so that public opinion could be aroused and that the council would then be forced to take some action if the citizens wished a continuance of the railway.

He also felt that the Hydro was taking the right action in getting rid of the street railway and it should go a step further and also get rid of the other utilities in those districts which were not paying and which, undoubtedly, had caused the increased rates in this locality. If these deficits could be eliminated there is no doubt that the rates in this section of Ontario could be greatly lessened. It scarcely seems fair that the people of Peterborough should be enjoying the privilege of a street-railway system paid for practically by thousands of people that never journeyed on the cars and never would.

the Hydro-Electric Power Commission in closing down the street railway. His Worship had been in Goderich with Alderman Fife and was first informed of the commission's action on entering the committee room at the City Hall to attend a meeting of the Railways and Parks Committee last night. He expressed the opinion that at to-night's special meeting of the council a resolution should be passed asking the Commission's best price, now that the city's offer has been refused.

It is learned that when the Commission wrote refusing the offer of $150,000 for the street railway and the gas plant, it was also stated that negotiations for the sale of the utilities to private parties would be begun.

The matter was not discussed at the meeting of the Railways and Parks Committee, all formal action being left for tonight's meeting, when the whole Council will consider the situation thoroughly.

Kiwanian Does Good Turn By Giving Use Of Car

Peterboro awoke this morning without the usual clank of flat wheels on car tracks, and found itself about as like a city as a country village on Sunday evening. Four lone busses operated by Cooney and Jopling did their gallant best to carry the workers to the factories; and they did so well that no very loud criticisms were made. Two trips were made on each scheduled route, and it is believed that everyone who wished to travel by bus had the opportunity to do so. Many score, not daring to trust the hastily organized forces of the private company, so suddenly called upon to shoulder a heavy burden, set the alarm for half an hour earlier than usual, and walked to work.

Throughout the day Mr. Cooney continued to operate a twenty minute schedule with four busses, and he intimated this afternoon that he expected to have two more busses on the run to-morrow. Throughout the forenoon he had only one delay, one of the routes not being served by a bus until ten o'clock.

The general opinion, as gleaned by the Examiner, is that Mr. Cooney provided a very good substitute for the Hydro service.

In the North End.

There was quite a rush to the factories in the north end of the city, but no more perhaps than on any other day when not specially observed. One of the most pleasing events of the day was the early effort of a citizen with his car to relieve the situation. This man spent an hour in picking up girls and men and carrying them to the factories. When one bevy of fair passengers timidly suggested payment of a fare, he smiled widely and pointed to the Kiwanis emblem on his car. "This is my good turn for the day," he told The Examiner, urging that his name be withheld. "Its lots of fun—and I think it's helping." Many of his passengers are doubtless certain that he helped in a difficult situation.

The willingness of motorists to slow up and ask pedestrians if they desired a lift, was also noticeable throughout the day.

At the C.G.E.

West end citizens leaving for their work this morning, possibly a little earlier than usual, took their unaccustomed jaunt in good part, apparently feeling the spring time urge that prompts people to walk long miles into the country, and turning it to good advantage. The only lament expressed was that of some who will be unable to come home for dinner, the dinner hour being too short for a long walk from the Auburn, Westclox, and DeLaval factories.

At the C.G.E. gate this morning there was no more than the usual two or three sprinting at the sound of the whistle, while the gatekeeper's list of those who came in late was no longer than usual. "It's the same bunch that's late all the time," he said. Most of them walked when there were street cars anyhow."

None of the men going in late blamed the street car transportation; in fact one or two laughed at the suggestion. "I don't use them; let them stop," was one man's comment on the cessation of service.

Cooney and Jopling buses brought a number of those having a longer distance to come, dropping them at the gate in good time. Noticeable, however, among those who entered, were men carrying their lunches in paper bags, caught without a dinner box due to the fact that they were formerly able to get home.

"I can get rid of any second hand wheels I take in as soon as they are fixed up," was the comment of T. H. Ashby, Rubidge street bicycle dealer, when asked if he expected to clear out his stock to men seeking this means of transportation in the emergency. The demand for wheels this spring has been good, he said, so probably there are more men than ever unconcerned with the problem, which they hope will be solved before the return of winter forces the storing of the bikes.

It Was Short Notice

"The announcement of the closing of the Street Railway was certainly short notice to the people of Peterborough and to the City Council, who had every right to assume that the Hydro Electric Power Commission would not act in such an autocratic manner and on such short notice," R. R. Hall, K.C., told The Examiner to-day. "The Hydro's treatment of the City Council and of those who have patronized the street railway is contemptible in the extreme."

In Centre Of City.

All the employees of the Peterborough Canoe Company were on time this morning, Claude Rogers, the vice-president of the company, told the Examiner. He was also of the opinion that the city under no condition should buy the railway, as it was not a radial system, that what is needed today in this city is busses, and these busses, operated by a private company. He thought Peterborough had had enough of "government" ownership. The busses that were added to the system a year ago have proved to be a real going concern and many times Mr. Rogers stated he had ridden on them when they were carrying forty and fifty passengers. As for the electric cars, they were a thing of the past, and the sooner done away with the better.

The motorists of the city to-day are acting the part of the Good Samaritan, for many residents were given a ride to work this morning. Driver after driver was seen to pull up to the curb and ask people who were walking to get in and have a ride. One citizen told the Examiner that he had walked from the north end of the city all winter, only being asked to have a ride once. This morning he was no sooner out on the street than a motorist who was a perfect stranger to him, drew up to the curb and asked him to have a ride.

BELLEVILLE MAN THINKS TIME HAD COME FOR HYDRO ACTION

"We Have Been Helping For a Long Time," He Says.

NOT CONCERNED.

Chamber of Commerce Secretary Didn't Know Anything About It.

BELLEVILLE, Ont., April 1 (Special to The Examiner).—"We have been helping to keep up that railroad for a long time, and every year it was going behind and it should have been closed down long ago," stated a prominent citizen today when asked what his opinion of the closing down of the Peterborough Street Railway last evening was.

Mr. J. O. Herity, Secretary of the local Chamber of Commerce and Secretary of the Central Ontario Hydro Power Association, when asked what he thought of the matter, replied, "I did not know that it had been closed down. I thought that the City of Peterborough would take it over." Mr. Herity further said that it would not effect Belleville, as this city was not directly interested in the matter.

CONTENT TO LET OTHERS

Hydro-operated gas company which supplies Peterborough and district. But it has been definitely decided, and Peterborough had been so informed two months ago, that the Hydro could not continue to operate the street railway, and that it must be disposed of.

No information was available here to-day as to the terms on which the Provincial Hydro would be willing to dispose of the Peterborough line. There is no intention in the closing of the line to place Peterborough in any embarrassing position, and the action is regarded here as a straight proposition and an effort to stop one of the "leaks" by disposing of property which has been for a time operated at a loss.

Refuse Even Joint Management.

Mr. Magrath made it clear today that the Hydro did not think it feasible to continue as operator of the Peterborough street railway even under a joint arrangement with the municipality. The desire now was to dispose of the line entirely, since the operating loss was continuing and long negotiations, the nature of which he did not care to divulge, had failed to bring about any working arrangement with the municipality.

Premier Ferguson in the House only a few days ago, stated the Hydro's and the Government's policy with regard to the extraneous Hydro properties which were taken over as part of the Hydro enterprise in the Central Ontario district ten years ago. "We intend to dispose of them as fast as possible," he said. The only thing delaying disposition was the difficulty in getting offers for them.

AMATEUR BALL MOGULS WILL HOLD MEETING

Anual Meeting of Ontario B. A. Be Held To-morrow.

AT TORONTO.

Amendment Changing Membership Clause Bound To Occupy Considerable Time.

TORONTO, April 1.—Amateur baseball fans are looking forward to the coming annual meeting of the Ontario Baseball Amateur Association at the Carls-Rite hotel on Saturday next, the morning session commencing at 10 a.m. sharp.

Treasurer C. K. Jutten and the credential committee will be on hand to collect the annual fees, payment of which is necessary before the accredited delegates are allowed to vote. As the meeting will adjourn at noon for lunch, President W. J. Snyder hopes to have a number of the suggested changes considered in order that the afternoon session will not be unduly rushed, which is often the case when delegates are forced to catch the early evening trains.

The big amendment changing the membership clause is bound to occupy considerable time, and it may be somewhat altered by the time it passes the committee stage. Keen interest seems to be centred in the suggestion to revert to home and home games in all the intermediate play-downs, as four leagues have suggested a change in this respect. As this change will likely carry, the executive will require the closest co-operation to insure the finals being decided in reasonable baseball weather.

The amount spent on the minor series for umpires' fees, grants, etc., will have to be modified for the general good of the association. The suggested changes along this line are to eliminate the grant and order sudden-death games. It is argued that it is just as expensive to send a minor team through to the finals as it is a senior team.

Nominations for the various offices and the executive committee are bound to make the session a keen, interesting one. Following is a complete list of candidates:

President, W. J. Snyder, Hamilton; W. H. Farrell, Toronto. 1st vice-president, W. H. Farrell, Toronto; George S. Martin, London; A. Hillmer, Oakville. 2nd vice-president, Geo. S. Martin, London; John G. Nott, Oshawa; W. A. Smith, Galt; H. C. Maguire, St. Catharines; A. Hillmer, Oakville; Secretary, A. J. Walsh, Toronto; W. U. Heise, Preston. Treasurer, C. K. Jütten, Hamilton. A.A.U. of C. governor, P. M. Kennedy, Toronto. Executive, John G. Nott, Oshawa; J. Turner, Toronto; W. A. Smith, Galt; A. Hillmer, Oakville; G. S. Martin, London; H. C. Maguire, St. Catharines; R. A. Elliott, Deloro; T. J. Birney, Copper Cliff; C. P. McTague, Windsor; W. C. Le Marsh, Chatham.

WITH TY COBB OUT TIGERS HAVE CHANCE

Moriarty's Methods Expected To Bring Improvement in Club's Play.

NEW YORK, April 1 (UP)—For several years, especially during the late periods of the Cobb regime, the Detroit Tigers were ridden harder perhaps than any club in the major leagues.

It may have been responsible for the failure to do better than they have done.

Conditions became such, it is no secret, that several players practically demanded to be traded to other clubs, where they felt they could get along better and play better than they could for Cobb.

The possibilities of the club under George Moriarity, who has everything that seems essential for a successful manager, are so respected by baseball men that the team is regarded as a real dark horse in the pennant race.

The infield weakness at second base has been fatal to any chances the club had for a pennant, and with the acquisition of Marty McManus, the weakness may be corrected.

Blue, working for Moriarity, ought to be a vastly improved player. He has the mechanical equipment, but he was ridden so hard by Cobb that he couldn't play his real game.

There is certainly nothing lacking in the outfield. Detroit clubs always have run to power in the outfield, and in Heinie Manush, 1926 batting champion, Harry Heilman and Bob Fothergill, the team has three of the first five batters in the league.

Cobb probably will not be missed as much as it might be figured at first glance. He slowed up so much last season that he benched himself and played little, late in the season.

The team hasn't any pitching strength to waste, but there aren't many clubs in the league that have pitchers to spare.

Miners Say Some Operators Will Keep Pits Running.

OWNERS DISAGREE.

CHICAGO, March 31 (Canadian Press).—Conflicting reports as to the extent of the mining shut-down in the central competitive field came to-day from operators' and miners' officials as midnight, the zero hour of expiration of the Jacksonville wage agreement approached.

The operators' spokesmen in Iowa, Ohio and Illinois maintained that to-morrow would find virtually all of the mines, which employ 150,000 men, idle, but union officials announced that a number of operators had concluded agreements to continue work, pending a general settlement.

RUBE MARQUARD TO LEAVE GAME

No Berth on Giants' Staff For the Aged Left-Hander.

CAMP NEWS.

TORONTO, April 1.—Rube Marquard, greatest left-hander in the game fifteen years ago, is not to end his major league career as he achieved his greatest fame—in the uniform of the New York Giants. Marquard was told yesterday that his arm had lost its cunning, and there was no place for him on the Giant staff this season.

Pitched Alvin Crowder, of Washington, will likely be out of the line-up until some time in May, owing to an ulcerated stomach.

The Senators have been hard struck by injuries and illnesses during the training season.

Some indication of the relative strength of the Chicago Cubs and White Sox will come out of the four-game series the Cubs started yesterday with the Dallas nine of the Texas League. The Sox already have played a series with the Texans.

STYLE-STAMINA KEYNOTE OF RACE

Cambridge Has Style and Oxford Beef and Brawn.

LONDON, April 1 (Canadian Press Cable).—"Style against stamina," is the keynote of the great annual boat race between Oxford and Cambridge, to be rowed over the Thames from Putney to Mortlake, four and a quarter miles, on Saturday afternoon.

Cambridge have all the style, while Oxford has the beef and brawn.

The race has assumed an open aspect, although Cambridge were strong favorites a few weeks ago. The change is due to the marked improvement shown by Oxford since their stroke, Llewellyn, was forced out of the race through measles.

Literally hundreds of thousands of spectators will go down to the Thames to pay their annual tribute to British manhood. Besides the thousands on the banks, another thousand will follow the race in four steamers.

This final week the crews are occupied with starts and spurts, having already gone through a heavy training grind of nine weeks. Both crews displayed an exceptionally fast pace at Putney yesterday, despite the adverse conditions—gales of wind and rough water—which attended their outings.

Oxford struck a fast rate, doing nine and a half strokes in fifteen seconds, then rowing a minute at the rate of 37 1-2 strokes. The Dark Blue however showed a tendency to be "short" in their strokes.

The Cambridge stylists tried out with a Westminster Bank eight. The Light Blue gained a quarter length in ten strokes, and another half length within half a minute, but later the scratch crew gained slighly.

According to the present weights, it appears that the Oxford crew will have an average poundage of 177, compared with the Light Blue's average of 174 pounds.

The race on Saturday will be the 79th event, Cambridge have won the last three, but on the whole series have won 37 to Oxford's 40. The other was a draw.

BOY SCOUT NEWS

1ST DELORO TROOP.

MARMORA, March 31.—The chief topic with the boys this week is the new headquarters. The Deloro Smelting & Refining Company have kindly given permission for the troop to use a building, one storey, on the north side of the village.

The troop is already at work cleaning it up and doing any necessary repairs and when ready it will make one of the "scoutiest" headquarters in the district. There will be a room for each patrol and a large room for troop meetings and a garden outside.

Each patrol will make its own furniture and now the troop has somewhere to store its equipment it will not be long before it has all it requires.

Each patrol has been divided into a signalling and a first aid group and each section is preparing for the time next month when they lock horns with their opponent in the other patrol.

The troop extends its best wishes to Scout "Bill" Skinner, of the Bull Patrol, who leaves us this week to take up his residence at Port Colborne, and hopes that he will be successful in all he undertakes.

The main feature round the Council Fire this week was the singing of rounds, "London's Burning" and "Three Blind Mice" being sung with gusto.

TOWNS COMBINE TO ENTER TEAM

Port Hope and Cobourg May Play in the Central League.

MOGULS ACTIVE.

COBOURG, April 1. — An effort is being made by those interested in Central Ontario baseball to organize a joint team of Cobourg and Port Hope ball players to play this season in the league with Peterboro, Belleville and Kingston. The officers of the league, at the semi-annual meeting held at Belleville recently, signified their intention of disbanding rather than carry on this season with a three team league.

When the Central Ontario league was first formed Cobourg and Port Hope had teams in it but both have been out of the league for several years.

Both played in the Durham and Ontario league last year.

FORTS OBJECT TO REFEREEING

Will Not Take Ice With McIntyre as Judge of Play.

VANCOUVER, April 1 — Fort William hockey team, finalists in the Allan Cup series against Toronto Grads, refused to take the ice to-night in the deciding game unless a change is made in the judge of play. This is the ultimatum handed to Dr. Sandercock, president of the C.A.H.A. yesterday. The Forts have taken strong objection ot Pete McIntyre, of Trail, as judge of play and will abandon the series unless officials of the association comply with their demand, they said.

The ultimatum was discussed late yesterday afternoon and Dr. Sandercock presided over another meeting last night in an effort to meet the situation that has arisen and settle it in a satisfactory way to all parties if possible. No names have been mentioned as a substitute for McIntyre, but the Forts say any other official will satisfy them.

Merchants Say Transportation Is Needed

'Wait and See' Attitude Adopted By Merchants On Stopping Of Cars

Not Yet Possible To Estimate Effect On Business Of Uptown Merchants—Hardship On Clerks Remarked By Some.

TRANSPORTATION OF SOME KIND NEEDED TO BRING PEOPLE UPTOWN

May Increase Patronage Of Mail Order Firms, Says R. J. Kidd—Many Notice Little Change on First Day of Stoppage.

Generally speaking, retail merchants on George Street adopted a "Wait and See" attitude when approached this morning by The Examiner with the query: "Has the stoppage of the street cars affected business?"

Robert Fair said in the short interval which has elapsed since the stoppage, one could hardly form an estimate of the effect on business. Yesterday, being a somewhat disagreeable day, did not turn out to be a day from which conclusions could be drawn. While expressing sympathy for workers dwelling at some distance from their place of employment, Mr. Fair thought citizens generally should refrain from saying or doing anything to embarrass the situation further.

W. C. Hughes, manager of Grafton and Company, thought it was too early for an expression of opinion as to the effect on business.

H. E. Hodgens, president and general manager of the J. C. Turnbull Co., took a similar attitude.

A. W. Cresman declined to comment on the situation.

R. G. Kingan also refused to make any statement.

Hard on Salespeople

Mrs. Florence Clayton of the J. A. McNabb Company, while declaring herself unable to speak as to the effect on commerce, declared, "I know it has affected me, as I have to cover the distance between my home and the store four times a day. Business girls, who are on their feet all day, usually find they have to walk to and from employment, and this stoppage is a real hardship on such people."

C. H. Saunders of the Hall Store said business was a bit duller yesterday. This he thought might possibly have been merely a coincidence, or the result of the unfavorable atmosphere. On the other hand it was possible that the lack of transportation was a contributing factor. Mr Saunders thought that the experience of today's business would form valuable data on which to base a judgment.

S. C. Warne said he could not yet say what were the effects on business.

I. O'Brien, saleslady of Brass' store, said that the situation had adversely affected business.

C. B. Routley said he would think over the matter.

W. K. Sloan, manager of the Regent Tailors, said that yesterday showed a falling off in the amount of business transacted and this decline he attributed directly to the transportation situation. "While things are often quiet through the week," he said, "yesterday was unusually quiet. We often have women here looking for samples for men. Yesterday we had none at all. This cannot be entirely explained by the weather. Around the rush hours—noon and 5 o'clock—things were very quiet. If this had happened a month ago, we might have attributed it, partially at least, to the weather, but I think our shortage in business yesterday was due to the lack of street cars. It is difficult, of course, to form a complete judgment with only two days' experience of the new situation in the town, but one thing is certain, people from a distance from Georgie Street are not likely to come up for a look round under present circumstances. If the cars are not running, they are not encouraged to leave their own district.

D. C. Grant had not found business affected. It was difficult to say, in the meantime, how the stoppage was reacting on civic commerce.

Transportation Needed

R. J. Kidd, manager of R. Neill, said he had no doubt that business would be seriously affected by the discontinuance of the service. Busses might function all right, but the city needed either the one or the other. The situation was inconvenient for local customers and would probably result in increasing the patronage of mail order firms, and the purchase of merchandise from outside, sending from the commun- (Turn to Page 13, Please)

BRITAIN AWAITS ANSWERS FROM OTHER POWERS

Will Not Take Steps To Enforce Demands Until Replies Received.

WANTS JOINT ACTION.

Blockade of Cantonese Ports May Ensue If Demands Are Not Met.

LONDON, April 2 (Canadian Press). — Single-handed action by Britain against the Cantonese in China is halted pending replies from the Washington and Tokyo Governments on the question of joint action. The British seek reparations for outrages against British subjects at Nanking and elsewhere. A strong preference for joint action prevails among the members of the Cabinet.

Official circles are silent regarding the action to be taken in event of defiance by the Cantonese, but a blockade of the Cantonese ports and naval operations in the Yangtze are being discussed.

The Daily Mail says that it is believed Britain has sufficient military and naval forces to enable her to determine just the amount of reprisal to make, but it may not be essential to use force, inasmuch as cutting off foreign financial aid and a partial economic blockade would have the required effect.

More Troops to Go.

It was officially announced to-day that the British Government has decided to send reinforcements to Shanghai. A brigade of infantry with auxiliary units will be despatched shortly.

The reinforcements will consist of a battalion each from the following regiments: Grenadier Guards, Queen's Royal, Northamptonshire, and Welsh. These units will be brought up to full strength by the incorporation of army reservists.

Reuter's Peking correspondent understands that foreign warships will start a blockade of the Chinese coast if the demands of the powers regarding the Nanking incident are not complied with by the Nationalists.

Nationalists Move North.

SHANGHAI, April 2 (Canadian Press).—With Shanghai and Nanking safely under the Cantonese flags, the Nationalist flag is being carried steadily northward to the Yellow River. The vanguard of the southerners has reached Pengyang, twenty-five miles from the main camp at Fengpu, while Nationalist guerillas are believed to have penetrated beyond Fengpu.

Chen Issues Statement.

PEKING, April 2 (Canadian Press).—Eugene Chen, Nationalist Foreign Minister, in a statement published here, regrets the recent disorders at Nanking and death or injuries to foreigners, but protests against the British bombardment of the city and its population. His Government denounces attacks on the British and foreign Consulates, he adds.

Men Attending Shower Bring Gifts For Groom

TORONTO, April 2 (Canadian Press).—A novel wedding shower was held last night for two residents of a Toronto suburb when the men attending brought shovels, bucksaws, nails, hay forks, whiffletrees, and other useful implements and instruments as presents for the bridegroom-to-be. Presents of the usual type were brought by the girls for the future bride.

CARPET CO. HELD INAUGURAL 'HOP' IN NEW BUILDING

350 People Were Guests of Brinton Firm at Gay Gathering.

LOCAL INDUSTRY.

Carpets and Rugs To Be Known as Peterborough Axminsters.

Pleasure preceded industry last night in the new Axminster plant of the Brinton Carpet Company, when the firm entertained an assembly of 350 employees and invited guests at a combined dance, euchre and bridge party to celebrate the inauguration of the recently added departments. Dancing was prolonged to the wee sma' hours in the gaily decorated building, and hard on the heels of the departing revellers came the machinery which had lain overnight in the Canadian National cars awaiting discharge. Some of the guests elected to play euchre, others bridge; still others preferred to watch the dancing, but the majority of the company unhesitatingly plumped for taking part in the waltzes, fox trots, and square dances which were listed on the programme, leaving the other diversions to be taken up as sidelines or "breathers." The music was furnished by the six-piece orchestra of the Logan Merrymarkers.

During the evening, the interesting information was divulged by J. M. Mackie, President of the Brinton Company, that the new type of Axminster rugs and carpets which the company proposes to manufacture, will be known as Peterborough Axminsters.

The new building, in the construction of which special attention has been given to heating and ventilating arrangements for the comfort and efficiency of the employees, places the company in the position of being the most up-to-date concern in the manufacture of Axminster carpets, a position previously attained in respect to that of Sarouk and Wilton carpets.

Each loom is to be placed opposite one of the large windows of the building—thus ensuring ample light for the workers.

Company Officials

Officials of the company present were: J. M. Mackie, Montreal, president; I. E. Brock, sales manager, Toronto; W. A. Dennison, sales representative, Montreal; Robert Wood, representing the company in Eastern and Western Ontario (accompanied by Mrs. Wood); R. V. Dawson, of the selling force in Western Canada and the Maritime Provinces, and a large party of the office staff in Toronto, accompanied by relatives. The Toronto visitors were Messrs. McPhie, Maw, Acheson, Burnside, McMillan, Mr. and Mrs. Plumley, Mr. and Mrs. Mottershead, Mr. and Mrs. Coles, Miss Brock, Miss Guthrie. Also present were Mr. and Mrs. Schmidt of Kitchener; W. L. Ferguson, treasurer of the company; C. H. Thompson, works manager of the local plant.

As the evening advanced, the headgear of the dancers became more and more bizarre, following the distribution of numerous brilliantly colored paper caps, and it was evident that the company had achieved its aim in planning the evening—which was, as Mr. Mackie expressed it, simply to give the workers and friends "a good time."

Valuable Rugs

After the refreshments, which were served at 11 o'clock, had been disposed of, Mr. Mackie conducted a party of visitors through the other sections of the company's premises and explained the various processes. Particular interest was displayed by the party in a number of rugs which were pointed out as being destined for Rideau Hall, Ottawa, the official residence of the Governor-General. A number of fine runners which have been manufactured for the new C.P.R. hotel in Regina also attracted considerable attention.

CORONER'S JURY TO INVESTIGATE CIRCUMSTANCES SURROUNDING DEATH OF NORWOOD RESIDENT

Expected Will Find Hugh Adams Died of Acute Alcoholism.

MAKING ANALYSIS.

Public Opinion Demands a Clean-up of Alleged Moonshine Whiskey Operations.

(By an Examiner Reporter).

NORWOOD, April 2.—The sudden death of Hugh Adams, aged 70, here early Monday morning, in circumstances which will be investigated by Crown Attorney Hatton, Coroner Dr. H. G. Carleton and a jury next Wednesday at 2 p.m., has fused public opinion into an angry, reproachful demand for a clean up of alleged moonshine whiskey operations in this district.

It is generally expected by those who know the details of the tragedy that the jury will find that Mr. Adams died of acute alcoholism. Dr. N. F. Sutton, who attended him last Sunday night, said there was a strong smell of alcohol, and he diagnosed Mr. Adams' condition as being due to some alcoholic intoxicant.

Dr. E. H. Carleton, of Stirling, a brother of Coroner Dr. H. G. Carleton of town, performed a post mortem examination and sent the stomach and other organs to the Attorney-General's Department, Toronto, for analysis. A report will probably be received in time for the inquest on Wednesday.

On the assumption from authoritative information that Hugh Adams succumbed to the effects of alcohol, it is generally believed that the hootch came from the same deadly source as that which nearly killed two Hastings men a few months ago, and also temporarily knocked out a Norwood man last fall. There is practically no rum-running in this village; that is, no person is known to be engaged in the traffic from the lake shore inland. A trickle of real liquor may leak through from the wholesale bootleggers, but the amount is regarded as small and comparatively harmless. At any rate there have been no signs of its hilarious effects.

The Hastings Scare.

On the other hand, there is a deep and broad suspicion that moonshine whiskey is being peddled around the village and district, but the suspected source is mentioned, if at all, in guarded phrases as if some occult, vengeful power would overhear, and some day settle the account. Stories of moonshine have been reported from time to time for about a year, and several of them have led to the courts. The nearest approach to a fatality prior to this week was in the Hastings affair, in which two young men filled themselves with hootch, and one of them was so far gone that all around the district he was reported dead.

The community gradually recovered from that shock, but there was a noticeable silence as to where the young men had bought the stuff, nor was there any assurance that the traffic would be curbed. Then there was another Norwood man who narrowly escaped being the subject of a coroner's inquest. And on Thursday evening of this week Constable Puffer was called out to find a husband and father whose little daughter had trailed him down town and returned to tell her mother that he was with men who wanted him to drink.

These are some of the evidences of evil which have aroused prominent citizens, sincere temperance workers, who declare vehemently (Turn to Page 2, Please)

FIRE DAMAGES PUMP BUILDING

Premises Of Imperial Oil at Lakefield Ignited From Grass Fire.

LOSS ABOUT $500.

A grass fire which got away from the section men near the pumphouse of the Imperial Oil Company at Lakefield damaged that structure to the extent of between five and six hundred dollars today, and only for the good work of the Lakefield Fire Brigade the loss would have been much greater. The volunteers responded promptly and succeeded in keeping the conflagration within small limits, extinguishing it before other buildings became ignited.

Warning To Newlyweds About Honking Horns

ST. THOMAS, April 2.— A warning was issued yesterday by Magistrate Maxwell and Chief of Police Armstrong to newlyweds of the city with a penchant for advertising their advent into matrimony by tearing up and down the streets of the city in automobiles, with horns and bells sounding, that a continuance of this practice will result in offenders landing in police court. A local automobile dealer who tried this neogamistic stunt in announcing the arrival of a shipment of 192 models of cars Thursday afternoon was haled before Magistrate Maxwell and advised to follow the more conservative methods of advertising.

CANAL CHARTER UP ON TUESDAY

Committee To Discuss Georgian Bay Scheme Next Week.

REPORT DENIED.

OTTAWA, April 2 (Canadian Press).—The bill for the renewal of the charter of the Montreal, Ottawa, and Georgian Bay Canal Company is scheduled to come before the Railways, Canals, and Telegraph Committee of the House for consideration on Tuesday. A report that the Dominion Government intends to consult the Provinces of Ontario and Quebec with respect to this measure is denied in official circles. It is possible though that at a later date a conference will be held between representatives of the Federal Government and the two provinces concerned in regard to the whole matter of waterpower development along the Ottawa River.

ASK GUIDANCE OF T. T. C. HERE

City Engineer of Oshawa Makes Suggestion To Peterborough.

MAKE SURVEY.

OSHAWA, April 2 (Special to The Examiner).—Oshawa is keenly interested in Peterborough's dilemma with respect to the shut down of the street railway and the impasse caused by the refusal of the Hydro Commission to entertain the offer Peterborough has made, but opinion here among civic leaders is that Peterborough should not only share but be willing to share largely in the losses. The railway has been run for Peterborough's benefit. It has been a convenience for her citizens. It has not been any convenience or benefit whatever to the rest of Central Ontario, yet Central Ontario has had to help absorb the losses, operating profits on Hydro in Oshawa and other places, including Belleville, going to help sustain this utility.

This is the considered opinion of Mayor Robt. D. Preston, Chairman F. L. Mason of the Central Ontario Power Association, and others who have been foremost in the protest to the Hydro-Electric Power Commission.

City Engineer W. Chester Smith, who has been keenly interested in the power situation, offered the suggestion to-day that it would be Peterboro's best scheme, in his opinion, now to get in touch with the Toronto Transportation Commission, invite them to make a survey and to submit a scheme to operate busses in Peterborough. No organization on this continent has so ably shown the way to operate a transportation concern as the T. T. C., said Mr. Smith, and he thought Peterborough would be wise to ask their co-operation.

Ministers Lead Fight Against Votes For Girls

LONDON, April 2 (United Press). — The Earl of Birkenhead and Hon. Mr. Churchill are leading the revolt in the Cabinet against the Prime Minister's proposal to enfranchise 5,000,000 women between the ages of 21 and 30, to which the latter is pledged.

This may have serious political consequences.

TWENTY MINUTE SERVICE GIVEN BY BUS SYSTEM

Cooney and Jopling Run Busses To Give Greatest Assistance.

HELP WORKMEN.

East City, Byersville and George Street Routes Are Covered.

The new bus routes on which Cooney and Jopling have had their busses running have been so planned as to look after those sections of the city where there are the fewest motor cars and the citizens have to walk.

On the George Street line between the Auburn and Rye's, two busses are running, giving a twenty minute service and crossing at the corner of George and Charlotte Streets. A third bus runs from East City to Byersville by way of Charlotte and Park Street, and returns by way of Prince, Lock, and George Streets, which gives the residents on George Street South a ten minute service. Transfers are issued, to be used at the corner of Charlotte and George Streets.

The busses all had a good day yesterday, and the public appeared to be satisfied with the service given. Mr. Cooney told The Examiner this morning. The people are falling in line with the new schedule and in a few days Cooney and Jopling expect the service to be working in such a way as to cause no inconvenience to anyone.

At present they do not contemplate bringing in any extra busses as things are very unsettled and they will wait until some solution of the problem is arrived at by the City Council.

The new service is so arranged as to get the factory people to work in the morning, for at 6.15 a bus leaves East City for the C.G.E. and De Laval, another leaves the south end of Lock Street for the Bonner-Worth, and the third bus leaves the corner of Euclid Avenue and Concession Street at 6.35 for the C.G.E.

The affirmative will be upheld by Miss Constance Wagar and Mrs. J. D. Richardson, while the negative will be taken by Mr. Elmer Frost and Mr. William McLaren.

As this is an interesting subject, and will be handled by clever debaters, it is expected that there will be a large number present.

The judges for the debate will be Miss M. Kidd, Mr. T. E. Gilchrist and Mr. A. E. Prest.

There will also be instrumental and vocal numbers.

To Ask Lowest Price Set on Two Utilities Without Making Offer

Figure Will Probably Be Submitted to the People in a By-law, But Doubt is Expressed Whether Even the $150,000 Now Offered Would Pass.

PATH OF DISCUSSION ALMOST AS ROUGH AS TRACKS OF MUCH-TALKED RAILWAY.

Gotfredson Corporation, Counted On To Provide Transportation, Is Tied Up By Contract With Hydro Until April 24—Willing To Come Then.

Peterborough City Council has decided to be lenient, and will extend the second chance which many of the Alderman feel was denied by Hydro in the negotiations which ended with the summary closing-down of the street railway on Thursday night. A request will be made of Hydro officials by Mayor Holloway for a statement of the lowest figure that will be taken for the street railway and the gas plant, with the idea of submitting this for the consideration of the ratepayers. Doubt was expressed whether even the $150,000 already offered would be approved in a by-law, much less the $545,000 suggested by Hydro, but it was the opinion of many of the Aldermen that the voice of the people must be given an opportunity to make itself heard directly. His Worship was authorized to conduct the enquiry by mail, the weight of opinion being that a personal visit would be as fruitless as those that have gone before.

Almost as rough as the street railway track itself was the discussion on the transportation crisis in the special meeting of the City Council last night. There was a large gallery of listeners to the debate, and doubtless some of those present would have been willing to talk to the subject but for the rules which prevent the hearing of deputations at special meetings.

Several proposals were made and abandoned before the Council finally decided unanimously in favor of giving the Hydro a chance to set a price that can be incorporated in a by-law to be submitted to the people. His Worship was strongly in favor of asking the H.E.P.C. to release the busses now incarcerated in the barn. These are hired by Hydro from the Gotfredson Company, and the contract does not expire until April 24. Until that time the company is not only unable to use these buses, but it cannot bring into the city any other buses. At the expiration of the contract with Hydro, it is understood, the Gotfredson Company is willing to import eleven buses for a temporary service that will test out the possibilities in this mode of transportation.

The Mayor Explains.

In opening the discussion, the Mayor summed up the events leading to the fiasco of Thursday night's cessation of transportation service. "It is a difficult matter for us to appreciate properly," he said, "because we get so many opinions of citizens from differ angles. Some say it is a great pity we didn't offer more; other good men say we have offered plenty. Our business here to-night is to reach some sane conclusion, and take action. It has been suggested we might pay $200,000 for the street railway and the gas works, instead of the $150,000 we have already offered, and throw away the street railway.

"Mr. Robertson told us when he was here representing Hydro that no railway will pay in a city under 50,000 population; but we must think of our responsibility to the citizens. There are working men who require transportation service. Of course, it is said that many of these men live outside the city limits, and take advantage of the street car to enable them to enjoy lower taxes. There are many living in the city whom we must consider. Are we going to offer more money for those utilities

THINK CHURCHILL IS RESPONSIBLE FOR BIG DEFICIT

Opponents Say He Should Have Resisted Spending Departments.

MUCH ANXIETY.

Thought That Baldwin Would Go To Country But For By-Elections.

LONDON, April 2. — Canadian Press. — These are some of the condemnatory headlines addressed to the Hon. Winston Churchill, the Chancellor of the Exchequer, to-day, by the Liberal and Labor press, and very much the same thing is being said among the more vigorous Tory supporters, following the publication of his annual budget for 1926, showing a deficit of nearly 37,000,000 pounds. The Conservatives are naturally blaming the huge deficit on the great strike and labor upheavals, but the Liberals, in their analysis of the country's finances, have concluded that where the Chancellor failed was in not resisting the pressure of spending departments.

Undoubtedly the budget is going to give real anxiety to the Tories and Hon. Mr. Churchill's future as Chancellor depends on how he acquits himself in framing his budget and how he meets the severe criticism with which he is bound to be faced in the Commons.

Premier Baldwin will undoubtedly try to turn the budget against labor, and there is little doubt that the government would go to the country but for the results of the recent by-elections, which have caused considerable doubt as to whether, in a general election, the Tories would be able to return to power in anything approaching their strength today.

CIVIL SERVANTS OF DOMINION GET INCREASE

Various Regulations For Classes of Government Employees in New Bill.

$10 MONTLY.

Would Extend Limit For Pension Applications For Two Years.

OTTAWA, April 2. — The civil servants of Canada, both inside and outside service are to get their salaries increased generally $10 a month, announced Hon. Fernand Rinfret, secreary of state in the House yesterday.

All classes in the classification of the civil service of Canada both inside and outside up to and including $5100 per annum are to be increased by $120 per annum in both minimum and maximum salary rates, and each employee will receive an increase of $10 a month dating from April 1, 1927, with the following exceptions:

(a) No increase will be granted in the minimum for the junior clerical grades (clerk grade 1) and for the classes of equivalent or lower grade, and for certain other classes which were increased by salary revision in 1924.

(b) All temporary employees will receive an increase to the new minimum of the class except in those classes where no increase is to be made in the minimum salary rates.

Equal to Difference.

(c) Any employee who is now in receipt of a flat increase in salary granted by the salary revision of 1924 in lieu of former bonus payments shall now receive an increase in salary equal to the difference between the amount of such flat increase now received and the increase provided for the class in which his position is classified not, however, exceeding the new maximum rate of his class.

(d) Classes which were increased by $180 per annum or more by the salary revision of 1924 will be increased in maximum by $60 and employees in these classes will receive an immediate increase of $5 per month.

(e) A small number of other classes which were increased by salary revision of 1924 will receive such increases in minimum and maximum rates as to bring the classes into harmony with other closely related classes, and the employees in these classes will receive immediate increases corresponding to the increases in the maximum of the class.

(f) Employees who are eligible to receive statutory increases from April 1, 1927, will receive this proposed increase in addition to the annual statutory increase.

Tomb 5,000 Years Old Found Near Famous Pyramid; Believed To Be Resting Place Of Famous Scientist

CAIRO, Egypt, April 2 (A.P.).—Discovery of a tomb estimated to be fifty centuries old, dating back to the Third Dynasty of the ancient Pharaohs, was announced Thursday. The discoverers say it may prove to be the earliest ever found in Egypt.

The find was made by Cecil Firth, who has been conducting excavations in behalf of the Antiquities Department of the Egyptian Government at Sakkara, a village near the ruins of Memphis. Near Sakkara is the famous Step Pyramid, believed to be the oldest of the Egyptian pyramids.

The tomb is said to contain many unique features. It is in the boundary wall surrounding the Step Pyramid and was discovered only after a long and difficult search owing to the extensive precautions taken by the builder to conceal it.

It is thought, but not yet established, that it is the tomb of Im-Hotep, architect to King Zoser, who built the Step Pyramid. Im-Hotep was greatly revered by the ancients, being considered one of the wisest of men and founder of the science of medicine, the law, and other branches of learning.

A deep stairway of a hundred steps leads down to the tomb through an obscure tunnel in the rock. Branch tunnels and stairways lead to a series of underground rooms, the walls of which once were blue tiled, like the rooms in the Step Pyramid. The rooms still bear the remains of interesting limestone reliefs and decorations of its period, including the portrait of King Zoser. In one tunnel twelve magnificent alabaster wine jars were discovered.

BELIEVE UPSET WAS ACCIDENTAL

Small Possibility of Further Investigation Into Ford's Mishap.

RESTING EASY.

DETROIT, Mich., April 2 (Canadian Press) — Amidst the quiet peaceful surroundings of his home, Henry Ford tonight impatiently obeyed the instructions of his personal physician that he remain flat on his back in bed as the quickest and surest means of recovering from injuries received last Sunday night when the little coupe in which he was riding alone was forced from the road.

Meanwhile the statements and rumors describing the accident as a result of a deliberate attempt to kill Mr. Ford dwindled to an expression of belief that it actually was an accident, possibly unknown to the driver who caused it. The possibility of further official investigation virtually had vanished.

The two sources close to the 64-year old manufacturer who last Wednesday night let out the belief that an attempt to kill him had been made still had not recanted last night, but Harry H. Bennett, head of the large force of Ford investigators, said that neither his principal nor he regarded the crash as anything but an unavoidable accident which was headed toward the realm of unsolved mysteries.

Bennett admitted that at first entertained the theory of an attempted assassination, but stated that investigation by his men and the report of the Dearborn police department convinced him of the accidental nature of the side-swipe which sent Mr. Ford over a six inch curbing and down an embankment at the foot of which his little coupe struck a tree.

The hub cap of Mr. Ford's car was struck lightly, he said, but nevertheless strongly enough to tear the steering wheel momentarily from Mr. Ford's grasp.

Junior Humane Society Holds Weekly Meeting

Dr. Murray Fraser Gave An Interesting Address.

The meeting opened with President Turner in the chair on Thursday, March 31. The opening song was "Ring the Bells of Mercy."

The minutes were then read and approved, as was the treasurer's report.

The programme consisted of a piano selection by George Johnson and a recitation by Gordon Millet.

Dr. Murray Fraser, City Scout Commissioner, gave a very interesting address on one of the Scout laws, namely, "A Sout is Kind to Animals." He told of several amusing instances in a Scout's career. He urged all members to be kind to animals, at all times, and pointed out several ways to accomplish this.

After the meeting, Dr. Fraser showed the members some guinea pigs which he had brought with him.

Several new members were enrolled.

A Band of Mercy hymn was sung, after which the president called for volunteer taggers for the Senior Humane Society tag day, Saturday, April 16.

The meeting closed with the National Anthem.

SCENE OF TORONTO TRAGEDY

A reign of terror prevailed in Toronto's Chinatown for a brief period this week when Fong Yong, a demented Chinaman, grabbed a butcher knife and ran amuck. An eleven-year-old child was slain and four adults wounded before he was captured by Mounted Constable Charles Whitford. The Chinaman with a similar knife to the one he used is shown at the top centre. The picture shows him as he left the police station for the city hall. On the upper left are surviving members of the Mokryzcka family. It was Elsie, the eleven-year-old member, shown at the lower left, who was slain. On the upper right are Mounted Officer Whitford and his mount, "Mayflower." The officer galloped to the scene, fired two shots, dismounted and knocked the Chinaman into submission. His horse meanwhile kept the excited crowd at a distance from his master. In the centre row are shown next to the dead girl, from left to right: Harry Wong, wounded; Quan Chee, wounded; Peter Lenosky, slightly wounded; P. C. Ivan Armstrong, who aided in taking Yong to the police station, and another picture of P. C. Whitford. Below is a view of the street. STRIKE FIRST BLOW IN COAL FIELDS WAR

Pittsburgh Company To Operate Seven Mines as Non-Union.

CHICAGO, April 2 (Canadian Press).—Pittsburgh mine operators yesterday struck the first blow in the bituminous coal fields wage war. The Pittsburgh Terminal Coal Corporation announced that henceforth its seven mines, employing 3,100 men, will be operated as non-union.

Almost at the same time that notices were posted at the Terminal Corporation's property stating it would be "suicidal for the company to continue working under the Jacksonville agreement," John L. Lewis, president of the Mine Workers of America, declared at Taylorville, Illinois, that "this is no time to talk about a wage reduction for miners."

With tense widely divergent attitudes indicating how far apart the operators and miners are, President Coolidge at Washington let it be known that he expects to refrain from taking any action at this time.

The Pittsburgh Terminal Corporation, through H. F. Baker, its president, announce its failure to agree with union representatives over wages, and its decision to offer a lower scale than that provided by the Jacksonville agreement—the agreement below which the union has said it will not go.

The new scale proposed provides $5.50 a day for inside labor and $4.50 for outside labor. The minimum day rate under the Jacksonville agreement is $7.50.

"A wage scale that the company can live under is just as necessary

Three tanks, two batteries of artillery, and a company of engineers will be included in the contingent from Quantico.

CAMBRIDGE WINS ANNUAL CONTEST

Light Blue Beats Oxford in Race By Four Lengths.

LONDON, April 2. Canadian Press —For the fourth consecutive time, Cambridge, light blue, won the great boat race with Oxford on the Thames to-day.

Cambridge won by four lengths in the time of twenty minutes sixteen seconds for the distance of four and a quarter miles, about two minutes slower than the record.

The result gave Cambridge thirty-eight victories against Oxfords forty. Hundreds of thousands watched the race between the athletes, who were training for ten weeks, and the fine weather and light wind made the day one of the seasons greatest and most popular sporting event.

The official corrected time was twenty minutes and forty seconds. Cambridge led slightly just after the start, but Oxford got the lead later. From then on it was a see-saw contest, Cambridge finally getting out in front and drawing away from their Dark Blue opponents till the finish. Cambridge rowed with a wonderful rhythm, thirty-five strokes to the minute.

BRITAIN FIRM WITH CANTON

Cabinet Approves Note Stating British Demands To Cantonese Authorities.

WANT JOINT ACTION.

LONDON, April 2 (Canadian Press). Great Britain is prepared to play a lone hand and a strong hand, if necessary, in settling the Nanking affair.

A note to the Cantonese authorities, stating the British demands was approved by the Cabinet yesterday and is to be forwarded to the Washington and Tokio governments in the hope that they will agree to make the protest jointly; otherwise Great Britain will act alone. It is undersood that the final draft of the note demands reparations for the victims of the Nanking outrages, or their families, punishment of the perpetrators and apologies to the governments whose Consulates were looted and whose officials were attacked.

Besides approving the note yesterday the Cabinet also considered what action to take in the event of the rejection of the British demand by the Canonese. But upon this question it is indicated that Great Britain's policy has not taken very definite form.

Want Support

Much depends upon the wishes of the United States and Japan. Suggestions have come from both capitals which might be incorporated in the British plan of action. However, in this case also, Great Britain will act alone if not supported by the other Powers.

The fixing of responsibility for the Nanking attacks upon individuals of the Cantonese troops will be left entirely to the Nationalist government, upon which the British place responsibility for the events at Nanking. Officials here believe the establishment of a commission of inquiry composed of foreigners would be futile, resulting only in delay in liquidating the whole affair.

Policy Unaltered

Although advocating drastic and immediate action to obtain full satisfaction regarding Nanking, officials her, emphasize that Great Britain's fundamental policy of conciliation for China and recognition of the legitimate aspirations of the Nationalists, is unaltered. When the Nanking affair is closed, it is stated, Great Britain intends to carry out this announced policy to the fullest extent.

Tommies Save Marine From Wrath Of Orientals

LONDON, April 2 (United Press).—Two British Tommies rescued United States Marine Killough in Shanghai when he was attacked by a mob after a Southern Chinese officer, leading a small detachment of troops, fired four shots at him, a despatch to the Daily Express said yesterday.

Killough tried to return the fire, but a native mob surrounded him and protected him from shooting. The members of the British Durham Regiment went to Killough's aid, and the three men, using only their fists, kept the natives at bay until a detachment of British troops arrived and dispersed the crowd.

The fight occurred on the outskirts of the foreign settlement.

Adams a Carpenter.

Hugh Adams was a respectable resident of Asphodel Township, on the north side of the village. He was a carpenter, and from all accounts was not addicted to liquor. It was reported that he was drinking with at least one other man last Sunday afternoon, and in the evening was so intoxicated that Dr. Sutton was summoned about nine o'clock. Adams had been coughing and vomiting blood. Dr. Sutton's treatment seemed to be effective, and at three o'clock Monday morning Adams was asleep. It was thought that he would recover from the intoxication while asleep, and would be sober and better in the morning; but he was dead at 5.30 o'clock when his son went downstairs to get ready for work. Dr. Sutton was called. He found that Mr. Adams had been dead for some time.

Upon Dr. Carleton's report, Crown Attorney Hatton gave instructions for an inquest to be held on April 6. The following citizens were sworn in as jurors: G. A. Brethen (foreman), I. N. Ackerman, J. H. Stevens, Walter R. Rogers, W. H. Montgomery, John McConnell, Thos. Patterson. The jurors viewed the body at the Adams home Monday night and then adjourned.

Hugh Adams is well spoken of by those who knew him, and his funeral was very largely attended. He was a son of Samuel Adams of Peterborough, and is survived by his father, one brother Samuel of Syracuse, his wife and three sons and one daughter.

MUSINGS AT A MANSE WINDOW

I have a friend, he is a celebrated "Yankee Parson," with whom I have spent many pleasant and profitable hours at the manse window. It was only the other day that he told me a most interesting story. This story was of a minister who was with a church in penetrating and abiding influence. It was a good church, and the ministry had been devoted and true, but a singular and beautiful era came when this good friend of Jesus became pastor in Shiloh. To the best of my ability I shall set this tale down just as my friend, the Yankee Parson, told it to me. Will you read it? If it does as much for you as it did for me when I first heard it, I know you will be grateful for having had it brought to your attention.

A Minister and His People.

The minister had a fresh conviction of the fact that he went to that people as one whom Jesus Christ had sent with a definite message from God, a message of warning against the sinfulness, the delusiveness, the danger of sin, and with this, a burning conviction of the redeeming power of the gospel of a crucified Saviour and a life-giving Spirit. He did not hesitate to use sometimes those dark, fearful words which the Scriptures contain to describe the perils which threaten the impenitent, but he always did it so tenderly and gently that he seemed like a loving father warning his children. With warning he always coupled hope, and it was fine to see his face light up as it always did when he spoke of the love of Christ, whose salvation ever seemed to be to him a glad and wonderful surprise.

The whole service in church was a good stage heavenward, partly because every one came to expect it, partly because the people went to church believing that their minister would give them a message straight from the heart of Christ, made living in his own experience, and also because he put meaning into every part of the service. He firmly believed that the Spirit uses a hymn, a prayer, a passage of Scripture as well as a sermon to help float a congregation Godward. He remembered Spurgeon's saying that he knew of two persons led to Jesus by the reading of a hymn. He sometimes read the hymns and sometimes not, for he shrank from the stereotyped, but he always put heart love and enthusiasm into the minutest detail; even the offering came to be a service to God, as though Christ were there to receive the money in His scarred hand. This clear-headed minister gave distinction even to the "notices." A prayer service became a goal to be taken by violence, and a sewing society as privileged as "the upper room"; nickle changed to silver, and copper shone with golden hue under the spell of his thoughtful and finished sentences.

The Ministry More Than a Profession.

He broke away from the feeling that the ministry is a profession. On Sunday morning, after careful preparation for the devotions in church and for the sermon, he would go aside and lie down for a little, to gain rest and poise and to gather strength for the coming service. He well knew that his best was demanded and that the service would carry joy to men and angels. He used to say to Jesus before going into the pulpit: "Now, Master, it is your own work and these dear souls are all yours. You must be sure to go with me today. I wish my sermons were in better shape, but I have tried to receive just what you had for me today, and it is wholly for you and yours. I know you can use me today to help some one who needs comfort, warning or inspiration." And the living Saviour never failed him.

Variety in Preaching.

There was much variety in his preaching. Sometimes he took a doctrine, but he made it so concrete and vivid that when the people went away they never said, "I hate to hear a doctrinal sermon." The doctrine was in such thorough solution in his clear and impassioned address that Deacon Hart said one day to a neighbor: "How clearly our minister pictures God as Father; Jesus as our infinite Saviour; the Holy Spirit as the creative author of life, and the fatal misery and penalty of sin as a truth which appeals to us all!" And Fred. Harris, the lively Yale sophomore, said: "That sermon on prayer made me feel that praying is about the best thing a fellow can do. It may be a fine kind of coaching."

Knowing that people think in pictures, or, dulled and wearied by abstractions, pass into dreamland, he made much use of imagery, often telling what the gospel is like, going into every-day life, the shop, the kitchen, and the garden for illustrations. He remembered how Wendell Phillips used to carry his audience captive by vivid pictures, concrete instances. Sometimes he took a book of the Bible for a study, and people would go away with a fadeless vision of Hosea, or would say, "How inspiring that Paul could write from prison such a letter as that to the Philippians!" He remembered what Dr. William Adams used to say to his students, "Do not feed your people always with crumbs—give them good slices." Sometimes he would take a chapter or ten verses for a text, and the people would say, "We've had a rich slice of the bread of life today." He did not forget that he was an apostle of the twentieth century, yet he never awakened the remark, "Our minister preaches to the times and not to the eternities." Moral reforms had a place in his sermons, but he used to say, "What is the use of stirring up trouble unless one is likely to do good?"

A Definite Aim.

He never forgot that he was called of God to be a good minister of the gospel of salvation, and he never dreamed that salvation spelled criticism. There was a stirring note of joy in his preaching. He found the keynote of the Bible to be joy, and he used to say, "We are rehearsing for the heavenly anthem." He never preached a sermon without a definite aim, and without expecting that that sermon would be an event in some life for which he had been praying. He preached much on the great themes, and always moved on a high level of thought, though never without a deep sympathy with the burdened and the unsure. Whenever tempted to drop beneath the level of noble thought and refined feeling, he brought himself back like lightning as he reflected that Jesus was in the pulpit with him.

Organized Work.

He used to say that his most effective work was organized work—one sermon linked to another, to create a definite and cumulative impression. He was careful to address the will, but always by awakening the emotions and driving home the truth, as the old warriors used to drive the glittering edge of polished steel with all their might. He used to say he had three rules for speaking. As to clearness, find out what you would say and say it. Beauty is nothing put on, but the flash of thought. Force is putting will into it. He like to write his sermons through at one heat, and then he spent all the time he could spare in polishing, condensing and strengthening the sentences, that they might carry the message to the mind with the least possible friction. He used to say: "The longer I live the more I am impressed with two facts: that it makes much difference how a thing is put, and also the power of an impassioned will gathering the energies of the soul together to launch the truth." Being a puritan he had a conscience, and he took it for granted that his hearers were similarly endowed. He used to say sometimes, "I have a conscience as well as you. It is no better than yours, but it is all I have."

This is not all the story, but, perhaps, it is as much as should be told at this time. Some other day I shall give the rest of my friend's tale and complete the picture of the minister at Shiloh.

—Allan Fairbairn.

The Making Of a Minister

It requires a level head, a sense of humor and no end of Christian principle to handle the truths which ought to be presented in the light of the Bible and the present Christ. Ministers ought to be fine, broad, noble-hearted men. Men of vision who are accustomed to hear the voice of God in their own souls. Men of conviction who know the mind of God and are not afraid to declare it, in an age when most people want to hear pleasant things without much regard to whether they are true or not.

TELL US A STORY

When slavery was common in certain parts of the American Continent, an incident is related of a man who, travelling in the South, became much interested in a young colored girl, purchased her from her master and gave her her liberty. After the agreement had been made with her owner the man found difficulty in getting the girl to realise that she was actually free. At last it did dawn upon her what it all meant, but instead of exulting in her new-found liberty, she exclaimed: "Oh, he redeemed me; I will follow him; I can never thank him enough; I will serve him all my life!" She did accompany him to his Northern home, and as people marked her loving attention to every wish of her new-found friend it seemed her ever-sufficient reply, "He redeemed me! He redeemed me!"

So have we as Christians One who ransomed us? He is our Redeemer, our Saviour, our Friend. He died that we might live. Let us love, follow and serve Him all our days.

A Pen Picture

It is an autumn morning, very wet and cold; the waves are roaring loudly on the beach, and all around looks bleak and stormy. A number of men, some three hundred or more, of at least three different nations, are gathered together, some looking inquisitive, some despondent, some as if accustomed to obey, some to command. One, a little man, attracts our notice; he has something remarkable in his look, and he appears to have influence over his companions. Several of the men are busying themselves here and there, he especially. See, he has picked up something and is carrying it in his arms; but what has happened? Suspicious looks appear on many faces—muttered words fall from the lips of many; the rain, the cold, the storm are all forgotten; one man, one thing, attracts every eye.

This is the 12th in this series of pen pictures of Bible history. The key to last week's picture is Joshua 8:33 and Judges 9:7-21.

IT MUST BE TRUE!

Few men had a wider or more intimate acquaintance with literary folks of high and low degree than the creator and editor of the British Weekly. In one of his many tributes to journalists he says: "Nobody who knows journalists can fail to like them. There are black sheep to be sure, but I doubt whether there is any other profession where there are more good fellowship, more kindness, less baseness, less jealousy, less envy than in the profession of journalism."

CHURCHES AND CHURCHMEN

By I. SEEWELL

An Editor on Divorce.

The editor of a magazine devoted to the propagation of Catholic views on faith, order, discipline and worship, gives his readers some sane editorial opinion on one evil of the times—those laws on statute books which encourage the commercialization of matrimony. Discussing the question of alimony, he writes:

"While Christians are anxious to secure repeal of some of the laws permitting divorce, would it not be well to agitate a bit for repeal of the laws encouraging and promoting divorce? We refer to the laws requiring a man to pay alimony to a woman who has never borne him any children and is responsible for the divorce. That a man has some responsibility for the support and education of his children, whatever the State decides about his marriage, few will dispute. The case of alimony for a childless woman, however, is different.

"As far as logic goes the State decides that two people are no longer married and there is no just reason why a man should be made to support a woman who is not his wife.

"As far as Christianity goes, the man and woman probably still are married, but the woman has withdrawn herself from her husband's home, which she ought not to do. Hence it is right that she should suffer some penalty for her offence against Christian morals. The penalty would be the loss of temporal support.

"From the State's premises it is illogical and unjust to make the man pay.

"From Christian premises the woman ought not to receive. If we believe in sex equality, the man owes the woman nothing. If we believe in the Christian family, the woman ought to suffer the consequences of breaking up the family.

"From the democratic point of view, the woman is not the man's superior and has no right to exact tribute.

"From the Christian point of view, the woman is doing wrong, and naturally should not be paid for that.

Degenerate Sentimentalism.

"From any logical point of view, alimony paid to a woman who has no children is an unjust exaction. It is part of that degenerate sentimentalism over women, irrespective of their conduct, which is one of the bad and unchristian features of all decaying civilizations.

"Alimony for childless women, however, is much worse than an injustice to the men whose homes the women have destroyed, and to the nation whose future the childless women are refusing to promote.

"Alimony for childless women, as has been occasionally pointed out in the public press, is a direct incentive to divorce. It is still worse. It appears to be an incentive to marriages contracted with a view to divorce and alimony. Several ugly cases of this sort have recently gotten great publicity. It may be argued that the men in such marriages show culpable weakness. That, however, is a point where the masculine nature is weak and the feminine nature strong.

"To quarrel with a man, who has committed no sin, for being weak about a pretty girl, is to quarrel with the structure of the universe. Men will always get married. If the women were not allowed to exact tribute after divorce, they would pause before exploiting masculine weakness. We should have fewer foolish marriages and fewer divorces. This might even result in more sensible marriages and more children. The women themselves would be both better and better off."

Fiction via the Sewer.

Writing to the British Weekly over the nom-de-plume of "Watchman," this contributor, who writes pointedly and pungently upon current events every week, sizes up neatly but effectively the nasty suggestiveness and erotic depravity of much current fiction, which decent people know is written purely to commercialize in dollars and cents the sensual taste of the age. In a recent contribution on the subject of novels Watchman writes as follows:

"The fiction with which I have filled these vacant evenings has left upon my mind a certain anger and sadness. The workmanship in each case was faultless. The knowledge of the world, or rather of a world, the scholarship in certain cases, the painstaking, were manifest on every page. But, face to face with the appearance of things at the moment on the large scale, the whole performance vexed one with its pettiness. In each case, too, the writer was not out to produce 'art for art's sake.' He was out to prove a thesis, or to make good some passionate revolt against life as life was thought to be safeguarded by laws and conventions amongst us."

Again and again an argument is used which in a set debate would not stand the assault of reason for one moment. But it is allowed to pass, and the impression is given that "that's that."

Fools and Knaves.

I have noticed, too, that the case for "society," for law, for religion, for the restraint of appetite is rarely, almost never, put into the hands of a really able man. The defender of the faith in every case is either a fool or a knave. Sometimes, indeed, the faith in thought or life has no defender. The Olympians who are disporting themselves before us are all quite sure that "it ain't so." And yet they cannot let it alone.

Take this, for example, from an unusually well-written story:

"All life is argument in a circle. A vicious circle mostly.

"Julian was coming to believe this true.

"'Have you ever seen the disc revolving in an electric light meter as the current is consumed?' Stockmen asked later, when they started back to their hotel.

"'No, I don't think I have.'

"'You've sat in a taxi, then, and watched the fare ticking up when you're short of cash?'

"'Only too often.'

"'Well, if people could see the minutes of their lives ticking away as they can see the miles of the amperes, do you think they'd waste time worrying about precedents or conventions or public opinion? Wouldn't they grasp fiercely every moment of joy and chuck away everything that was tedious or distasteful or even merely foreign to their natures?'"

The matter is left there. But the author must have known that his artist-creature was there saying nothing new, or wise. And certainly he must have known that he was saying something which, were we all to act upon it—well, to put it mildly, there would be blood flowing in the gutters, or as Hobbes put it, life would become brutal and nasty, and—short.

A Journalist's Income

A famous editor is responsible for saying that very few journalists can afford to be absent for a long time on holiday. What they must do is to set their teeth, and go on, in the hope of being able to retire before the power of enjoyment has left them. As to the amount of work they do if they earn anything that approaches a large income, it is simply beyond belief. . . . I know journalists who are doing without complaint something like 60,000 words a week. This means an enormous amount of reading, for the journalist who is not continually reading and refreshing his mind will soon become stale, flat and unprofitable. It follows that no one should enter the profession who is not prepared for the very hardest work that can be imagined.

Testing a Man

The true greatness in a man is to throw him suddenly into new circumstances and see how he comports himself. Mere talent under effective drill may do good work under common conditions; but when new relations and unaccustomed circumstances fling a man back on Nature and first principles, no amount of mere talent, however well drilled, will enable a man to master the situation. Face to face with untried problems, only the originality of a strong and thoughtful nature can prevail. Witness Braddock in the Ohio campaign of 1755.

CANADIAN HISTORY.

"What our school children in Ontario need," declared Premier Ferguson in the Legislature the other day, "is a gripping story of the life of the country written in a simple, romantic style which will fascinate them and at the same time give them a sensible pride in their birthplace."

The Premier is right; such a history is badly needed, and not alone by school children.

As a people Canadians know all too little of the fascinating story of their own land.

It is full of romance, full of adventure, full of glorious examples of courage and fortitude and endurance, and all of us would be better Canadians if we were more familiar with their country's history.

Many thousands of Canadians-by-choice, who have made the Dominion their home, have virtually no knowledge of the development of the country, and there are all too many native-born Canadians whose acquaintance with the same subject is not much more extensive.

The celebration of Canada's sixtieth birthday will have lost much of its effect if it does not in some manner or other tend to inspire the people of the Dominion with a desire to know more about the early days of this country.

THE WORST POSSIBLE WAY.

The St. Thomas Times-Journal in a half-column editorial has been dealing with the case of a resident of that city who was fined for a breach of the O.T.A., and who threatened to inflict physical punishment upon The Times-Journal's Police Court reporter if his name was published in that paper.

Needless to say, the offender's name got a lot more publicity than would have been given it in the first place had not the central figure resorted to intimidation, and editorially The Times-Journal tells him that the best way to keep one's name out of the paper is obey the law and refrain from threatening papers.

The lesson is one that can profitably be learned by people in other places than St. Thomas.

What is to be published in the columns of a newspaper is for the paper itself to decide; so long as the laws in regard to slander and libel are observed, and any individual who attempts to frighten a reporter, as the St. Thomas worthy did, is taking the very best course to bring about the publicity that he is seeking to avoid.

No self-respecting paper would think of yielding to that kind of an argument.

THE REST ARE CHEERING.

There is one angle in regard to the street railway situation that cannot be overlooked, and that is that while Peterborough has been left without transportation facilities, the action of the Hydro Commission has been received with something suspiciously resembling hearty cheers by other municipalities in the Central Ontario district.

It has been a thorn in the sides of power users throughout the Central Ontario system that in order to make up for the deficits of the Peterborough street railway and other utilities under Hydro management that have been losing money the people of other centres have had to pay higher for their power and light.

They have speeded the death of the local system by steadily increasing pressure upon the Hydro Commission to suspend the operations of these unprofitable utilities, and at last their efforts along this line have been successful.

However we in Peterborough may feel about the matter, there is no disguising the fact that the decision of the Hydro to shut down the street railway will do as much to win popularity for the Hydro management throughout the district as it has to put that same body into local disfavour.

The present situation has long been developing; the only surprise perhaps is to be found in the maintenance of the street railway up to this week in the face of the complaints of other Central Ontario power municipalities.

THE TRANSPORTATION PROBLEM

Little hope of immediate relief in the transportation crisis was afforded by last night's special meeting of the City Council, although the action of the Aldermen in giving Mayor Holloway authority to endeavor to have the Hydro Commission waive its contract with the owners of the buses that have been operated by the Hydro may pave the way for the bus company to come to the rescue.

The fact that this company is under contract with the Hydro until April 24th stands in their way of supplying any service at the present time.

The information imparted to the Council by Mayor Hollaway to the effect that the Hydro Commission must continue to pay for these buses until the contract expires, alhough they are not now bringing in any revenue, is another indictment of Hydro service and another proof of Hydro's indifference.

If these buses have to be paid for in any event, they might have been continued in service here for the balance of the contract.

The Council decided last night to ask the Commission for its lowest price for the street railway and gas plant and the proposition will be submitted to the people, a step that might have been taken months ago, but one that will not accomplish much except to pass the responsibility from the Council to the citizens.

The situation therefore is that unless the contract with the bus company is released by the Hydro Commission, the present conditions will prevail until April 24th at least.

To some people the absence of adequate transportation facilities may not be a matter of much importance.

Yet the Hydro street cars and buses earned a revenue of $80,000 last year, which means that a good many thousand people were carried by the system and that the absence of means of transportation will result in a great deal of inconvenience.

In addition the affect of the withdrawal of car and bus service is already being felt by downtown merchants.

Several declared to The Examiner last night that the first day without this service had been one of the quietest from a business standpoint they could remember.

As a matter of fact the citizens of Peterborough have had transportation facilities for so many years that it is not an easy matter to adjust themselves to the new conditions.

They are not very much impressed with the tactics of either the Council or the Hydro Commission, nor greatly concerned with the manoeuvres of the two bodies; what they do want is some system of transportation, and the opinion of the majority seems to be that an adequate bus line offers the best way out.

WORK, INCOME AND MECHANISM.

It is instructive to compare the recent authoritative estimates of American incomes with similar estimates just published in Great Britain by careful investigators.

Not, however, in the new evidence of the superiority of American living standards, or wages, professional earnings and dividends does the chief interest lie. For the world knows that the United States is the most prosperous of countries, and that the average American enjoys comforts and even luxuries which the average European finds quite beyond his reach.

There is, therefore, nothing to startle one in the statement that in 1924 the per capita income in Great Britain was only $415 as compared with the per capita income of $700 in the United States.

What is calculated to provoke thought and useful discussion is the statement that during the period 1911-1924 the American per capita income, as measured by the purchasing power of the monetary unit, increased 36 per cent., whereas the British per capita income decreased 5 per cent. And the principal reason why British income decreased appears to be that during the period in question per capita production remained stationary or even decreased slightly. In this country per capita production has been increasing steadily and is certain to continue to increase because of the multiplication and improvement of automatic and other machines, because of the marvelous expansion of electric power, and because of unremitting efforts to eliminate waste and enhance productive capacity.

There has been much lively talk about the so-called secret of American wages and American living standards. But in the words of a writer in the Atlantic, "there is really no secret to discover and no magic behind the American phenomena"—that is, "no magic but work—work done by mechanical energy" under efficient organization. This energy not only saves human labor but increases production tenfold.

It has been said, metaphorically, that every American worker has sixteen iron slaves to help him and do his bidding. Europe is not as rich in natural resources as is the United States, but it has water power which goes to waste, it lags in the use of machinery and automatic tools, and it is not modernizing its backward industries. —Chicago News.

DEATH TAKES THE WHEEL.

Comes now the jolly old spring, honk, honk. Robins, ball players and the optimism of the weathermen are no such true harbingers of the vernal season as statistics of automobile fatalities.

Seventeen of every 100,000 persons were killed in motor accidents in the United States and Canada in 1926; three times that number were injured. That was the highest mark ever reached, but 1927 promises to beat it by a thousand deaths.

Youths, maidens, usually-staid old gentlemen, chauffeurs and delivery boys are dashing over highways, byways and embankments with utter abandon. Road-hogs are chasing timid drivers into ditches and knocking more courageous ones for a row of marble headstones. Speed kings are conducting experiments to find what will happen when an irresistible force meets an immovable body, such as a culvert or a locomotive.

Lovelorn lads and lassies seek the road to happiness at 50 miles an hour. Curves and contours of the moonlit highway hold less of their attention than curves and contour of faces of their moonshine-lit companions. Gin-breath, merry laughter and carbon monoxide make up the trailing wreath that envelops each pursuing motorcycle policeman. Sometimes he catches a car in time to enrich the country's coffers with a fine. Sometimes he catches it in time to pull someone from the wreckage. Far into the night sounds the eerie whoop of ambulances.

During the season when sap and gasoline are flowing, there's little profit from words of caution. But here's a rule or two you may keep in your mind if your car hasn't had its spring overhauling:

Always take it for granted that the other driver is a fool. You can't get hit if you're out of the way.

Don't get the idea that your car is the fastest thing on the road. Death is very swift.

Don't think the speed cop can't catch you. That's the way he makes his living.

If you're late for an appointment, don't speed. You may never get there.

If "s-p-r-i-n-g" spells speed to you, leave your car in the garage and go for a walk. Jail is an unpleasant place when the sun is shining.

Remember that gasoline mixes with love no better than it does with liquor.

Bad brakes bring bad breaks.

Let the other fellow be the reckless driver. You be the wreckless one.—Kingston Whig- Standard.

EDITORIAL NOTES AND COMMENT.

Premier Ferguson says the present session of the Legislature has been the most pleasant in his memory. Evidently Mr. Raney is losing his punch.

Apparently other municipalities in Central Ontario regard April 1st as Emancipation Day so far as their contributions to the maintenance of Peterborough's street railway are concerned.

There is reason to suppose that a good many pair of Peterborough feet were rather disagreeably surprised yesterday.

An optimist is a man who gets up three-quarters of an hour earlier than usual, walks several miles to work, and then tells himself that it's all the better for his health.

The Ontario Legislature has wound up its business and will be prorogued next week. The celerite with which public affairs have been transacted is generally appreciated both in and out of the House.

CATTLE, GRAIN AND PRODUCE

Peterboro—Toronto—Montreal

TORONTO LIVESTOCK

TORONTO, April 2—With lighter runs of cattle this week, the market opened on Monday at 25c higher on the best grades, and steady to firm on medimms. Prices at the higher level were maintained for the balance of the week.

Export business rather suddenly fell off this week, orders being confined to a few store cattle for Manchester, with no demand for the usual quota of heavy steers for Liverpool. With the lighter runs of cattle, however, the heavy steers have been well taken care of by local packers at good prices; a few special lots of extra quality going up to $8.40.

The demand for good butcher stuff throughout the week easily took care of all offerings. Choice butchers' steers sold readily at $7.75 to $8, with quite a number up to $8.25, and one fancy load at $8.35. Choice butchers' heifers $7.50 to $7.90, with the odd fancy at 8c. Good steers and heifers $7 to $7.50; common, $6.50 to $6.75; choice butchers' cows sold from $5.75 to $6.00, with the odd cow up to $6.50. Good cows, $5 to $5.50; medium, $4.25 to $4.75. Baby beef was in good demand with tops at $10.50. Choice butchers' bulls were a shade easier, selling at $5.50 to $5.75; good $5 to $5.25; bologna bulls $4 to $4.50.

Springers and Milkers — Choice springers are selling from $70 to $90; good, $50 to $65; balance not wanted. There is a little better demand for choice milkers this week, with calf at foot.

Stockers and Feeders — A few good Ontario stocker steers changed hands this week at around 7c, weighing 700 to 750 lbs. A load or two of Western heifers went through to country points at $6 to $6.25 delivered, with quality only fair.

Sheep and Lambs—Choice lambs sold at 13 to 13 1-2c; other lambs sold as yearlings at 9 to 10c; choice butchers' sheep, 7 to 8c; good, 6 to 6 1-2c; heavy sheep and bucks, 5 to 6c; cull sheep, 2 to 3c. Spring lambs, choice quality and weight, $14 to $16; good, $12 to $13; medium spring lambs not wanted.

Calves—Choice veal calves steady at 12 to 13c, with the odd calf at 13 1-2c; good, 10 to 11c; medium, 6c to 9c. Immature calves will be confiscated.

Hogs—Sold this week at 10c f.o.b. $10.50 fed; $10.90 off cars. Premium on selects $2.06 per head, or on a basis of $11.05 per hundred f.o.b.

CHICAGO GRAIN

CHICAGO, April 2 (Canadian Press) — Big buying for Europe helped to rally wheat yesterday from declines due to unofficial monthly crop summaries more bearish than had been looked for. Wheat closed firm at the same as Thursday's finish to 3-4 cents higher, corn 1-4 to 1-2c up, oats 1-2 to 3-8c off, and provisions varying from a shade decline to a rise of ten cents.

Export purchasing of North American wheat to-day was estimated at as much as 1,200,000 bushels including both domestic wheat and Canadian. This fact, together with late buying on the part of previous speculative sellers who were in a position to collect a profit, more than overcame at the last the losses which earlier had followed issuance of private April crop estimates that were well above the average of the last ten years. Another bearish influence early was word of enlarged shipments from Argentina and Australia amounting to 10,442,000 bushels for the week.

Corn owed its strength largely to a report that there are 4.3 per cent more hogs in the country than last year. Besides, weather conditions to-day were unfavorable for field work. Oats met with commission house selling from eastern sources.

Provisions were rather dull.

MONTREAL GRAIN AND PRODUCE

MONTREAL, Que., April 2 (Canadian Press) — The export trade in grain in the Montreal market yesterday was rather quiet, there being only sales of a few lots of wheat overnight with foreign buyers for nearby shipment.

There was no improvement in the demand for cash grain in the local market, but the tone of the market was firm and prices were unchanged.

The flour market was without any new feature to note, business in spring and winter wheat grades being quiet and prices were steady.

The millfeed market was fairly active and the undertone was firm. The demand for standard grades of rolled oats was quiet and values were unchanged.

The undertone to the egg market continued easy owing to the liberal supplies coming forward, but there was no further change in prices. The receipts were 2,668 cases.

Owing to the continued very limited supplies of butter available from first hands on spot, there is practically no wholesale market at present as the bulk of the sales being made have to be confined to lots ranging from ten to twenty-five packages, and therefore, it is very difficult to quote actual wholesale prices. Sales were made in some cases at 49c, and others at 50c per pound. The receipts were 332 packages.

Extreme dullness again marked the cheese trade but prices were unchanged. The receipts were 100 boxes.

VOICE OF PEOPLE

Letters to be printed in the Voice of the People column must be received at The Examiner office on the day before it is desired to have them published.

WHAT ABOUT THIS?

To the Editor of The Examiner.

Dear Sir,—A meeting of women was held in Auburn the other evening about the pool of mud that is left instead of a sidewalk at the end of Smith Street Bridge, going up the hill. Praise was given every department but the street department. Many girls have to use this way to work, or when going to town, and it is a hardship to have so much mess to wade through. We haven't all got cars or horses to ride. A girl lost her shoe in the mud here Monday night.

THESE GREENS MUST BE CAUTIOUSLY USED

In the last article I gave you a list of some "good" non-starchy vegetables and told you how to use them.

You will find that there are times when these "good" greens are not available and it will be necessary to substitute some of the following:

Cooked cabbage is a great gas-producer and, even though it contains many valuable minerals, it should not be used if any of the "good" greens can be secured. Excessive gas pressure is the common cause of so many functional disorders in the stomach and intestines that all gas-forming food should be avoided.

The French artichoke is a kind of tender thistle which is unlike any other vegetable in flavor. The edible portion of the artichoke contains about 14 per cent starch but, as such a small amount is eaten at any one time, it may be classed as a non-starchy vegetable.

Brussels sprouts are a kind of cabbage but the leaves are more tender. You will find that this vegetable does not produce as much gas as cabbage and may be used more frequently by those with strong digestive fluids.

Dandelion greens are rich in vitamins and organic minerals. They are truly a blood-building vegetable and should be used frequently whenever they can be secured.

Cauliflower is similar in composition to cabbage, but is inclined to produce flatulence. Sometimes, if only a small amount is used, no trouble will be experienced.

Onions, garlic, leeks and chives are non-starchy vegetables but contain a large amount of allyl sulfid which is always irritating to the mucous membranes and never fails to produce gas in the human digestive apparatus. If even the smallest amount of any one of these vegetables be used, it may cause distress by producing excessive gas. How frequently I have had asthma patients who, after remaining entirely well for several months, have brought on a violent attack ten minutes after eating a salad with only a small amount of onion in it. The flavoring of garlic in a roast may be so delicate that you cannot taste it, but a few minutes after eating you may start swelling up like a balloon.

It is all right to use onions in a plaster, as a counter-irritant, upon your chest when you have a cold—but do not put them inside of your stomach!

DR. FRANK CRANE'S DAILY EDITORIAL.

VAUDEVILLE

By Dr. Frank Crane.

Preachers, lecturers, grand opera singers and highbrow readers, it is supposed, do not go before vaudeville audiences because that audience is composed of groundlings. They are not choice enough to appreciate the elegant product of the favored few.

Some writers also disdain to write for the newspapers because the newspaper appeals to the moron. Only readers of highbrow magazines can understand them.

A writer in The Edinburgh Review some years ago, reviewing my own work, indulged in about this sort of argument:

1. Most people are morons, or people with the intelligence of a person of thirteen.
2. Dr. Crane is supposed to have a vast number of readers.
3. Dr. Crane, therefore, must peculiarly appeal to the morons.
4. Therefore, Dr. Crane must be a moron.

In the minds of some people nothing can be popular unless it is cheap, vulgar and flimsy.

I sometimes wonder what these people think about Jesus, of whom it was said that the common people heard Him gladly, while the scribes and the Pharisees rejected him.

Shakespeare is also under suspicion because he has so many readers.

This sort of argument of course is pure snobbery.

It is proved in the case of the vaudeville.

The average preacher or lecturer does not appear in the ten-twenty-thirty houses for the simple reason that they don't want him. He could not stay there.

With the vaudeville audience you have to make good. No credentials go. You may be the president of the United States or the king of England or foreman of the grand jury at the day of judgment. Just the same if your stuff is not interesting, out you go.

The vaudeville audience represents the quintessence of the common people. It is about the keenest, shrewdest and most honest congregation of folk there is.

The reason they will not listen to preaching is not because they do not like preaching, but because the preaching is not good enough.

They do like preaching. They are as much interested in moral problems as the next man, but they will not be bored.

So the tiresome lecturer on art or music or higher criticism must seek another audience. These people will not have him, unless he can condense what he has to say into a talk of fifteen minutes and make it snappy.

Many a man holds a high place in the Senate or on the bench or in the pulpit who could not maintain a place at all before a vaudeville audience.

If I am ever asked to appear in vaudeville, which I do not expect, I shall consider it the greatest compliment of my life.

ONTARIO

WARNING!

to truck owners and drivers

DURING the months of March and April, it is against the law to load certain trucks and other vehicles on the highways of Ontario above one half of their rated capacity.

This applies to all vehicles having a carrying capacity of one-half ton or more if equipped with solid tires and of one ton or more if equipped with pneumatic tires, whether motor driven or horse drawn. It applies on every highway in the Province outside cities and towns.

The Government requests owners and drivers of trucks and wagons to obey this reasonable provision, but warns them that the penalties of The Highways Act will be vigorously enforced against those who neglect to do so.

Frost heaves the soil, and leaves it soft, porous and wet. For these reasons, it is at once the greatest fertilizer of the land and the greatest menace to the road.

Foundations of hard-surfaced roads are wet and spongy in spring, even when the top is dry. Heavy loads "churn" them. Fractures take place in the foundations. The surface thus is left weak because unsupported. On stone and macadam roads, heavy loads cut the surface as well. The "metal" is forced down into the sub-grade through the spongy earth.

Expensive repairs follow the abuse of any road in spring time. In an hour one single truck may cause damage which will cost thousands of dollars and take weeks to repair.

As contributions to road building come from local municipalities as well as the Province, such abuses are a particular offence against enterprising communities which provide good roads. In their interest, as well as that of the public at large, the Government makes this request and issues this warning.

Mrs. R. J. Smith Loses Eye When Car Hits Pole.

BELLEVILLE, April 2.—Mrs. R. J. Smith, wife of R. J. Smith, feed merchant of this city, and resident on South John street, was badly injured late Thursday night on the Provincial Highway west of the city. Mrs. Smith lost an eye, and had her face severely cut. She is resting comfortably.

Mr. and Mrs. Smith were proceeding toward Belleville in a motor truck, when opposite the Wilmot residence, a large touring car going toward Trenton bore down on them. The lights of the big car were very strong and glaring. Smith claims, and he, not being able to see the road, plowed itnto a telegraph pole close to the edge of the highway. Mrs. Smith was thrown against the windshield. Mr. Smith was not injured, and was able to secure help near at hand. Mrs. Smith was rushed to the hospital. The car was badly wrecked.

'CINDERELLA' TO BE PRETTY PRODUCTION

Light Opera Being Given By Women's Patriotic League.

The production of 'Cinderella," at the Grand Opera House on Wednesday, April 20th, under the auspices of the Women's Patriotic League of Ashburnham, promises to be a very entertaining event in the amateur theatrical offerings of the season.

"Cinderella" is a bright, tuneful comic opera in three acts, and the preparations for its presentation which are going on, under the skillful direction of Mrs. A. A. Perrin, with Miss Margaret McCabe assisting with the music, guarantee an exceptionally interesting production. The costumes will be some of the most colorful and gorgeous ever used here for amateur theatricals, and the varying choruses have their songs and dances already well in hand. There will be a "Fairy" dance, a minuet with appropriate setting and gowns, and vocal solos, duets, trios and choruses. The accompanying music is charming in the extreme.

There are about fifty local people in the cast, the principals being Miss Mathilde Masson, as Cinderella, Mrs. Hazel Davidson McClelland and Miss Annie Crocker as Patience and Charity, the two sisters, Mr. Norman Laing as the father, Miss Geraldine Collins as the Fairy Godmother, Mrs. A. A. Perrin as Prince Charming, with two attendants in Miss Alma Blanchard and Miss Margaret Eastwood, and Mrs. T. G. Loudon as the Queen. Sophia Yeotes and Grace White are two small Pages.

"IT"—BY ELINOR GLYN
(Author of Clara Bow's first Paramount starring production, "It", which arrives at the Capitol Theatre Monday. Antonio Moreno is featured.)

"It" is that peculiar quality which some living beings possess which draws others of both sexes. The possessor of 'It' must be absolutely unselfconscious though full of self confidence and have that magnetic "sex appeal" which is irresistible Mothers spoil boys with "It"—women never refuse them favors, while when women possess "It" they are simply devastating—they can attract any man even against his judgment, and they arouse devotion in their female companions,—while those who wait upon them or come in business contact with them become veritable slaves. But the quality of "It" is extremely rare among women—thousands of beautiful and physically attractive creatures who fascinate certain men have no touch of it. An ugly girl can have "It" for it is a quality of the mind as well as a magnetic emanation and actual body has nothing to do with it. On the screen there are only a very few men who possess "It" and at this moment I can pick out only one woman—Clara Bow—because just sweetness, goodness, beauty or "sex appeal" alone have nothing to do with it. People can have "It" for a while and lose it or they can gain it. Perhaps the strongest exponent of "It' now on the screen is Rex, the horse—he has that fearless, unconquerable flash in the eye which shows a passionate love for his lady—as well as individual character. Mr. Gilbert was another exponent of "It" in "His Hour" and in "The Big Parade." Douglas Fairbanks has "It" in all of his pictures. The whole Barrymore family have "It"—especially Jack—his is perhaps stronger off the screen than on. The Prince of Wales has "It"—his brothers, who are handsomer, have none at all. Girls of the magazine cover type never have "It" and indeed only a few blondes. I think we shall all have a surprise when we see Clara Bow as my new heroine—I think I can safely say that she will radiate "It" through the picture. Some few dogs have "It"—but almost every cat and every tiger. Watch a really beautiful well-fed cat, or a cage of tigers. Note their lazy indifference and their unexplainable fascination, and you will realize something of what "It" means.

Why did I select Clara Bow from the thousands of other actresses in Hollywood for the leading feminine role in "IT?"

This is the reason:

At the time I began work upon "IT" for the Famous Players-Lasky Corporation, it was undecided who should appear in the starring role. At the studio one day, when the story was nearly completed, I was introduced to Clara Bow, whom I had never met.

I saw instantly that she expressed exactly what I meant. In fact, so much more radiantly did she possess the strange power than did the character in the play I was preparing that I immediately destroyed what had already been accomplished and wrote another story. This latter story was entirely inspired by Miss Bow's personality. Had the entire world been searched, there could have been no better example of a possessor of "IT", than this vivacious creature.

Miss Bow has that remarkable quality of unselfconsciousness. Her eyes flash like a young fox terrier looking for rabbits. She is filled with life. She is thinking of nothing else in the world but her work and how she is expressing it.

Her very self reacts to every movement of her mind. All of her funny little gestures are not put on or affected. These are a direct result of her thoughts. Another thing about her, she is wiser than almost any woman I have ever encountered.

The personality and character of Clara Bow in "IT" is not a motion picture personality. It was written entirely with Miss Bow. in mind Had Fate, by some strange twist actually put her in the position in actual life she is in, in the story, her reactions, I believe, would be exactly the same as they were upon the screen.

AT THE GRAND

SIR HARRY LAUDER.

Sir Harry Lauder, the famous singing comedian, full of pep and bubbling over with that inimitable something that makes imitations of his work so futile, has returned to Canada after an absence of three years, during which he made a complete tour of the world, and will appear at the Grand Opera House, Wednesday, April 13th. The noted Scot will confine his tour of the United States and Canada to a period of twenty-five weeks, which means that only a few favored cities will have an opportunity to hear and see him this season. He comes back with a program of new songs and impersonations, and with the record of having made the most successful world tour ever accomplished by an entertainer. Lauder is indeed an international celebrity.

The sings that he will sing here include of course, some of the most popular of the old favorites—songs that will never die and which are always in demand during a Lauder engagement. There will, however, be many new ones, the most promising of which have these interesting titles: "I'm Lookin' fer a Bounie Lass tae Love Me", "The Boss o' th' Hoose", "When I Meet Mackay" and "Susie Maclean." These new offerings are said to be typically Lauderesque, with all the merry swing and lilting melody that make the Lauder songs so distinctive.

Lauder's art has developed and rounded out since he first came to this country. Age has increased, rather than diminished, his cleverness in characterizing a song and "putting it over." Those who go to hear the famous Sir Harry are always sure of a good laugh, with an occasional touch of homely pathos to steady the comedy.

All of Lauder's songs are built around distinctive characters, and each one has its appropriate costume and scenic background. Sir Harry's associate entertainers are also presented in most attractive stage settings.

AT THE REGENT.

BILLIE DOVE CAST IN PALACE FILM.

Featured With Lewis Stone and Lloyd Hughes in "An Affair of the Follies."

Billie Dove, who enacts the role of Tamara, the charming little wife of "An Affair of the Follies," in which she is featured with Lewis Stone and Lloyd Hughes, at the Regent next week, was born in New York City.

Her childhood life and environment was far afield from the show business. Extensive physical culture work in school led her to dancing—amateur and professional — during her 'teens, and her beauty, plus a charming personality, led her into motion pictures.

Miss Dove is a slender girl with brown hair and hazel eyes that in some lights appear dark, in other blue, and in color-photography, a very intense blue. Her height is five feet five inches, and her weight varies between 115 and 120 pounds. She has a home in Hollywood where she can indulge in her favorite hobby — the culture of flowers. Other hobbies are the collection of dolls and of Swiss music boxes.

He sat in five federal administrations and was, in turn, minister of marine and fisheries in the Macdonald, Abbott and Thompson cabinets, minister of justice in the Bowell ministry and solicitor-general when his father was prime minister.

F. J. A. Morris, of the teaching staff of the Peterborough Collegiate Institute, gave a delightful lecture on Sir J. M. Barrie, in the parish hall of St. John's Church last evening, under the auspices of the Church Women's Association. There was a good attendance and much interest was manifested in the address by Mr. Morris, who dealt mainly with the humor of Barrie, giving several readings from his works to illustrate his particular brand of mild fun-making. Rev. Dr. Blagrave occupied the chair and W. J. Kent voiced the appreciation of the audience at the conclusion of the lecture. An enjoyable musical programme included a violoncello number, "Passepied," played by Jack Thackeray, with accompaniment by Miss Gwen Donley, who also played for the two vocal solos rendered in charming, light soprano voice by Miss Doris Donley, singing "A Pastorale" and "Elf and Fairy."

"To attempt a definition of humor is to court disaster from the start," said Mr. Morris. Those who have not seen the joke never will, and those who have should be left alone to enjoy it." Sir J. M. Barrie had a keen perception of the humor of life, and, like all true humorists, was master also of a gentle pathos. Embroidered by witty flashes, his humor is droll, fantastic, whimsical, imaginative, and fanciful. He is a literary Proteus, always flashing out with something new, always easy and natural. "Barrie," said Mr. Morris, "make you feel like a kettle on the hearth, constantly simmering with enjoyment but never bubbling over—one of the most delicious sensations in life." Barrie is possessed of a beautiful and poetic imagination, and like all literary artists, avoids fine writing and moralizing. His characters are not labelled in any way. They gradually unfold themselves for your observatibn. He is also a master of description, of dialogue and of conversation.

Mr. Morris referred to the list of humorists of the eighteenth century compiled by Thackeray, who included so many varying types in this category, speaking of Swift, Congreve, Pope, Smollett, Field, Sterne, Goldsmith, Addison, and Steele.

Reading mainly from "A Window in Thrums," the book which probably gave Barrie his start on the road to literary fame, Mr. Morris recounted the conversation between Tammas Haggart, the village humorist and his cronies, and the whimsical humor of "A Visit to the Manse," the chapter in which Hendry and his wife Jess, and their daughter Leeby, recount their observations of the minister and his wife, after a visit to the village manse.

The speaker opened the second portion of his address, after a brief intermission, with a reference to the description of Barrie and his contemporaries as the "Kale Yard Journalists," an appellation arising from a sarcastic allusion made to them in this way by an English writer, Cunningham Graham. Rev. John Watson ("Ian MacLaren") and Samuel R. Crockett were, with Barrie, the outstanding "Kale Yard" writers, and it was the village of Kerrymuir that became immortalized as "Thrums" in the writings of Barrie, whose own father was a weaver, and was used by him to make the character of Hendry, in "A Window in Thrums," while Jess is the prototype of the author's mother, Leeby of his sister, and he himself is written of as Jamie, the barber in London. Gavin Ogilvy is the dominie of the village, the narrator of "A Window in Thrums," "The Auld Licht Idylls" and "The Little Minister."

Final readings by Mr. Morris were the chapter, "Preparing to Receive Company," from "A Window in Thrums," and a lengthy excerpt from the portion which deals with the wooing of the belle of the village.

Chevrolet History

NOT merely to provide an economical means of transportation has been the aim in the making of the Most Beautiful Chevrolet — but to produce a car, at low price, which would satisfy the motorists' finer tastes.

True distinction is evident in every line of the Fisher-Built Bodies of the Most Beautiful Chevrolet in Chevrolet History. Refinement and good taste are reflected in the new Duco colorings—in the rich, luxurious upholsteries—in the handsome new radiator design—in the massive full-crown fenders—in the fine-quality hardware—in the completeness of the appointments.

As there is the quality of the thoroughbred in the appearance of the Most Beautiful Chevrolet in Chevrolet History, so there is the same quality in its performance. OUTLINE OF SCIENCE CXLIII—Four Thousand Miles Beneath Our Feet. by MAX HAHN

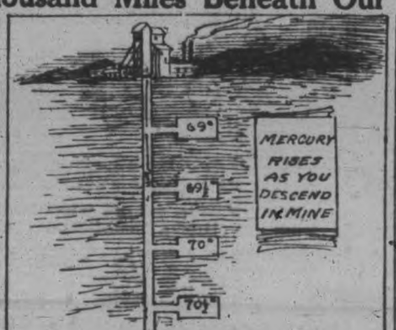
IT SEEMS STRANGE TO THINK THAT WE HAVE A VERY FAIR AMOUNT OF KNOWLEDGE OF THE MOON WHICH IS 240,000 MILES FROM US AND YET WE KNOW ONLY A LITTLE ABOUT THE INTERIOR OF THE EARTH. THE WORLD'S DEEPEST MINE GOES DOWN SCARCELY MORE THAN A MILE ALTHOUGH THE DIAMETER OF THE EARTH IS NEARLY 8,000 MILES.

SCIENCE HAS DISCARDED THE OLD IDEA THAT THE CENTER OF THE EARTH IS MOLTEN. TODAY AS AN EARTHQUAKE ROCKS JAPAN THE SHOCK IS RECORDED ON THE SEISMOGRAPHS IN WASHINGTON. IF THE NUCLEUS OF THE EARTH WAS FLUID THESE SHOCKS WOULDN'T BE DETECTED EVEN BY A VERY SENSITIVE INSTRUMENT BECAUSE LIQUIDS DON'T TRANSMIT TRANSVERSE WAVES.



© McClure Newspaper Syndicate

SCIENCE CAN ONLY GUESS, AND WITH LITTLE ASSURANCE, HOW HOT THE INTERIOR OF THE EARTH IS. WE DO KNOW THAT AS YOU DESCEND IN A MINE THE TEMPERATURE RISES EVENLY

ACCORDING TO ONE OF THE MOST RECENT AND MOST WIDELY ACCEPTED THEORIES THE EARTH HAS A CORE OF METEORIC IRON AND STONE INSIDE A RIM OF METEORIC IRON AND NICKEL ENCLOSING THESE PROBABLY IS A SHELL OF STONE AND THE SURFACE CRUST WHICH WE ARE FAMILIAR WITH.

BUILDING PERMANENCE INTO MODEST HOMES

Now made possible by lowered costs of durable materials.

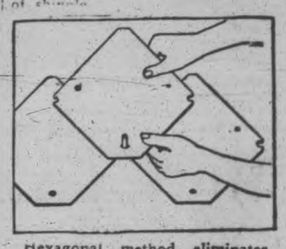
Of late years there has been a powerful influence among architects and builders towards permanence in the building of homes. These authorities have recognized for some time the value not only to the community but to the residents of the individual homes as well, in the use of firesafe and durable building materials.

Unfortunately, however, the movement has always been somewhat slowed up by the fact that people seem unwilling to spend the slight additional amount of money necessary to secure durability. This, despite the fact that durable materials generally turn out to be far more economical to the householder in the end because they obviate the necessity for frequent repairs.

In some instances, however, there is not even a higher additional cost standing between the householder and the advantages of durable materials.

Now the most modest homes can afford a permanent roof.

This is particularly true of a certain type of asbestos shingles. The John-Manville Company manufactures an asbestos shingle which because of its ingenious design permits a compete coverage of the roof at a cost that is hardly in excess of the ordinary type of roofing that one is accustomed to renew every ten years or so. The shingle is called the John-Mansville Hexagonal Asbestos Shingle. Because of its hexagonal shape it permits roof covefage with a minimum of overlaping. Each shingle overlaps its neighboring shingle only an inch or so to provide weather-tightness, so that the entire effect is somewhat like that of the top of a honeycomb. The use of the material has been cut down to a minimum so that a greater proportion of the roof is covered by a single thickness of shingle, whereas by all the old methods of laying shingle the roof is always covered in all portions by at least a double thickness of shingle.



Hexagonal method eliminates unnecessary overlapping.

This great saving of material has been handed down by the Johns-Manville Co. to the house owner in a lower material cost.

The net result is that the house owner gets a permanent firesafe and highly artistic roof at about the same cost of the inflammable and temporary roofing materials. The cost of laying the roof is the same, true, but the buyer gets by without having to buy nearly the amount of square feet of material. That is, each shingle costs a little more, and is worth a great deal more too of course, but you do not need nearly as many shingles. The use of this shingle always proves satisfactory to everyone concerned, not only to the householder but particularly to the fire authorities who can check off one more roof in the community that they need not worry about in case of a community fire.

Its unusual rugged beauty and its durability make it a pleasant roof to live under, and the fact that it will not burn makes it a safe roof to shelter the treasures of a home.

GOVERNMENT BILLS BEING CONSIDERED

Have Right Of Way in the House of Commons To-day.

OTTAWA, April 2 (CP)—With the adjournment of the debate on the Imperial Conference report last night until Tuesday, government business will have the right-of-way in the House of Commons today. Chief among the measures scheduled for consideration in the course of the day are the bills amending the Customs Act and the Loan Companies Act. It is possible that some of the Departmental estimates may be under consideration tonight, if sufficient progress is made with government bills.

Nova Scotia Boy Hopes To Break Record This Year.

Miles declared he had been in training all winter, running every day that weather conditions permitted. He feels confident he can repeat on April 19. "I am getting over the ground faster than I did last year, and with Stenrpos or some other runner to make the pace, there is reason to hope that the record made last year will be smashed," he said.

CODE "LUCKY PRIZE"

Thousands of people were watching the newspaper bulletin boards one afternoon for results of the World Championship baseball games between the Giants and Tigers. But the boys who pasted the scores, hoping to parlay, did a mean thing. Instead of putting down the runs in figures, they put letters as you see in the puzzle above, and told every one to work the score out if they could. They knew the score but no one else did.

When the game was over, they put a special code on the bulletin board, the words "LUCKY PRIZE," and told the crowd if they were smart they would find the score in the code words.

HOW WILLIE FOUND THE SCORE

Willie Wise was the only one of all the crowds who discovered how to do it, but he wouldn't tell a soul the secret. When the prize was awarded he said simply, "Keep the—number of the code words, LUCKY PRIZE, 1 2 3 4 5 6 7 8 9, and so on. The first letter, L is 6. Count to the letters of the score into the code words, L U C K Y P, and so on. You'll have the score." The first figure, the number was 1 so in looking for figure. It was a hard thinking job and took some time, but many came did such think makes

BOYS AND GIRLS NEED TRAINING IN POLITENESS

Local Citizen Would Add This To Curriculum of Schools.

THE SPRING ANGLE.

Respect For Other People's Lawns Would Be Taught at Present.

A course in ordinary, every-day politeness and consideration, in fact, a sort of Golden Rule lesson series, is advocated with sincerity by one of Peterborough's citizens, as an addition to the curriculum of the schools that train the youth of the nation. The idea directly aimed at in the spring of the year is to encourage the growing boys and girls, especially the former, to refrain from the practise of cutting across lawns at the corners, particularly if they happen to be riding bicycles.

The gentleman who thinks this course would be a salutary one has indentations fully three inches deep in his lawn, caused by boys riding on bicycles and making a short-cut through his premises. Just at this time, the damage to growing vegetation can be easily calculated, but the boy who wishes to save a moment of time will have no consideration whatever for the grass or flowers that might sprout up through the summer months.

Identification of the offenders and recourse to the police is, of course, always available, but most people do not wish to take such means. If the boys and girls, by some method, could be trained to do to others and their goods and property just exactly as they would wish to be done by, then a great deal of damage and inconvenience would be saved and the effect of such care on the characters of the youth of the country would be just one more beneficial factor of such training.

BABY'S HEALTH IN THE SPRING

Can Best be Guarded With Baby's Own Tablets.

The Spring is a time of anxiety to mothers who have little ones in the home. Conditions make it necessary to keep the baby indoors. He is often confined to overheated, badly ventilated rooms and catches colds which rack his whole system. To guard against this a box of Baby's Own Tablets should be kept in the house and an occasional dose given the baby to keep his stomach and bowels working regularly. This will prevent colds, constipation or colic and keep baby well. The Tablets are sold by medicine dealers or by mail at 25 cents a box from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

Due to the fact that all Canadian national parks are game sanctuaries, where no one without permission may carry a gun or kill any animal or bird, wild life is increasing rapidly and is a source of great enjoyment to tourists.

Matinee Ladies

BY William B. Courtney

Copyright 1927, Warner Bros. Pictures, Inc.
"MATINEE LADIES," with May McAvoy, is a Warner Bros. picturization of this novel.

SYNOPSIS

Bob Ward, working his way through college, is informed by his chums, Freddy and Arch, that they have found an easy and profitable way to earn money—working as dancing partners, of afternoons, for rich women in a fashionable New Jersey roadhouse. Bob thinks it isn't a fit way to make a living; but, faced with eviction for unpaid rent, reluctantly agrees to go to the roadhouse. There he sees the prettiest, sweetest girl he had ever laid eyes on. She disappears, while his chums are presenting him to the proprietress, Madame Leonine.

CHAPTER III—Continued

"Thanks, Madame Leonine," said Arch, "we're glad you like Bob. We knew you would—because he's the despair of every lovelorn girl who comes to the school dances and the champion hoofer of New York University to boot, along with being this year's All-American tackle. Gee, what better combination could you want to bring business to your dance hall?"

Madame Leonine chased Freddy and Arch off to the dressing rooms, to hurry into their ballroom shoes and the light, neat, natty serge suits they wore for the dancing. Then she took personal charge of Bob.

"I suppose the boys told you something of the work—of what is required of you here?" she asked affably.

Bob, wondering where in tarnation that sweet girl had gone to, turned his eyes upon the Amazon, and confessed that they had not told him much—that he was still a good deal in darkness.

Madame Leonine linked arms with him, and promenaded deliberately along the rim of the dance floor, leading him toward the dressing rooms, but at the same time seizing the chance to show him off to the lady customers already assembled.

Madame Leondine linked arms with him.

She explained to Bob; "Some of the best known society women of New York, and of the nearby New Jersey residential suburbs, are my regular patrons. Real swells. I have the finest dance orchestra in the East playing here every afternoon, for my busiest time is in the afternoon. Really, this place is run mostly for the matinee ladies. At night we have a good business, with stenos and their bosses and such like, out to strut and perspire a bit. I don't need any entertainers then. The night hawks bring their own entertainment, both on their arm and on their hip. But in the afternoon I have to furnish it, for it isn't considered the proper thing for ladies to have their gay boy friends the same as the T.B.Ms. Why, I don't know. Silly stuff, eh? But be that as it may, my money lies in giving these dance hungry ladies the best looking, and best dancing, partners I can get. That's why I hired your boy friends. And that's why I told 'em to fetch me the handsomest boy in New York University!"

The Madame bent a sidewise glance up at Bob. "And I'll say they followed my instructions to the letter. If you can dance as well as you can smile and look, these rich dames will be clawing for you like housewives around a bargain counter!"

The Madame was a many-faceted jewel. She could descend to the familiar patios of the dressing rooms, and she could ascend to the nasal hightones and affectations of the politest salon. With Bob she chose to be just chummy and natural, which meant pungently informative, to say the least.

The Madame, too, could not help but notice with a great deal of satisfaction that Bob was the target of many admiring glances from the idling, drink-sipping, gossiping mature flappers of twenty-five to forty-five. Many of the women made secretive grimaces, furtive looks of understanding at Madame—each thus claiming a special privilege, as a friend or old customer, to be introduced to the athletic Lothario.

Upon one and all the Madame bestowed the wide sunshine of her smile.

Bob did not notice. His eyes were searching for something that the Madame would not recognize if she saw. That is, she would not see in it what he saw in it! Which means—the same.

"Do—do—any of your—err-r-r patrons—come here sometimes in costume?" Bob asked.

The Madame looked at him peculiarly. What a nutty question.

"No," she said crisply, "this ain't a masquerade!"

Then Bob was sure he had been dreaming. He felt depressed. He wanted to turn right around and go out and walk in the woods and dream and never stop wandering. Something had miraculously filled his life for an instant, like a holy candle flame, and then had gone out again—as mysteriously, uncannily, as it had entered.

He followed Madame into the dressing room, back of the dancing floor and the stacks of tables. Then suddenly his life was filled again. For there SHE stood!

CHAPTER IV

Again Bob Ward's world stood still. Again his immediate surroundings faded out of his consciousness and he seemed to be standing, as in a far off dream, in some old and forgotten garden, at twilight, the air heavy with lavender scents and filled by the gentle stirrings of birds hushing and nesting down for the night, while the half lights of dusk glowed faintly around the beautiful form and image of a cameo princess.

"Sally, meet Mr. Ward—Bob Ward, the great football player, you know whose picture was in the papers last autumn. He's going to dance here. Mr. Ward meet Miss Sally Smith, our cigarette girl!"

Now he was grinning sheepishly and scraping and stammering to the Vision, and the Vision—tantalizing, aggravating, clear and cool eyed for a Vision!—was smiling a return greeting.

Sally Smith! What a prosaic name for such a romantic girl. Romantic looking, that is. But now the romance was stolen from her costume, too—for had not Madame said she was "our cigarette girl"? That explained the costume. Nothing of old lace and sweet lavender about that. Just a catch-penny scheme to lure half-dollars from old roues for ten cent packs of cigarettes.

Thus his Vision! Pouf! Bob could feel Freddy and Arch watching him—wondering at his abstraction, laughing at him for the silly, romantic ass he had made of himself. Mooning over a pretty girl in a quaint costume! Hah! He—

Oh Lord, the eyes—HER eyes—were burning into him again. It was not all sham; not just a mock show. There was sincerity and depth and earnestness in those eyes. Yes, and genuine romance. After all, the eyes and the face and the combed-honey hair fitted the cigarette girl costume, quite as much as the costume fitted them!

Madame Leonine did not even give him time to mumble to Sally the commonplaces that crowded to his lips. Scarcely gave him time for a polite acknowledgment of the introduction. She whisked Sally off on her rounds of the brimming tables, that surrounded the dancing oval like overgrown toadstools. She hustled Freddy and Arch inside, to give their services to whatever women wanted them for the next dance. And she counselled Bob:

"I suppose the boys told you to put on your lightest pair of shoes. Yes, those look okay. Now, if you make good as a hoofer here this afternoon I'll stake you to a good-looking new suit and a pair of dancing shoes. You'll be more comfortable—and even handsomer. Clothes make any kind of a man—a better man! All right, freshen up a bit now—you'll find some perfume in that squirt spray, there—and then come in and I'll introduce you to some Countess from Hoboken or points south."

Presently Bob walked diffidently in to strut his first professional afternoon on a roadhouse dance floor.

A flashily dressed woman, neither too young nor too old, but in the middle years of great wisdom and great indiscretion, saw Bob in the Madame's wake and quickly approached them. She walked, Bob noted, like a snake—with slinky undulations of her trim, rounded hips. Her metallic eyes sparkled with newly stoked interest in life as she smiled upon Bob. Bob felt that it was part of his duty, undeniably, to smile back. The reaction upon the woman's face was little short of radiance.

Madame glowed with the pride of a discoverer; an innovator. The pride that Balboa might have shown on that peak in Darien. The pride that the first man to introduce humped hairpins might have shown.

HASTINGS LEAGUE REGULAR MEETING

Fourth Vice-President in Charge of Literary Meeting.

HASTINGS, April 2—The fourth vice-president, Mr. Walter Dood, presented a splendid feature and interesting at the Young People's League in the United Church School Room on Monday evening, and the fourth committee is even with the second in points for the contest, making it more exciting for the final clinge.

The meeting being of a literary nature, Lord Alfred Tennyson was the writer whose life history was given by Mrs. Ralph McConnel. Several of the committee presented a charade of the name Tennyson which was readily guessed by those present, and Mr. Howard Fairman gave one of Tennyson's poems, "Home They Brought Her Warrior Dead."

One feature introduced was the dedicating of four musical selections to four sick members of the church.

After the opening and devotional exercises Ideu Bonds repeated "The Lord is My Shepherd."

Contrary to the usual custom no chairman announced the events of the programme but in place of this a broadcasting station was used. The stations being PEP and ZIP. Mr. Wilfred Knight broadcasted from Station PEP and Mr. Howard Fairman from ZIP, as follows:

Song, six males, "Tenting Tonight," and a song by Our Boys, "It Ain't Gonna' Rain." Musical selection from a Saw and Hammer, "Home, Sweet Home," encored. Reading, "What to Drink," Francis Kennedy; Duet, Mrs. Kelley and Mrs D. E. Scriver; Chorus by the ladies, "Only One Daisy Left." Volcal solo "Solomon Levi," sung by Mr. Ralph McConnell dressed in Jewish costume. Solo, "Bells of the Sea," Mr. W. Knight. Recitation, "The Billy Goat," Errol Hess; Brass Band Quartette, Messrs. L. B. Scriver, R. McConnel, Neil Scriver, W. Knight; Instrumental, Mrs. L. B. Scriver. Mrs. R. McConnel, Miss Sherwin. Vocal solo, "Only a Smile," Roger McMillan; Reading, "Betty and the Lear," Viola Kerr. Solo, Irene Sargeant. Reading, Louis Brownell. Song by men, "Farmer Gray." Reading, "He and She," Gordon Killenbeck. Piano solo, Madaline Bond. Instrumental, "Kitchen Orchestra" Reading, "If I Were You," Max Gould. Tableau, "Mother McCrec." Mrs. W. Knight as Mother McCree, Madeline Bond singing song. Duet, Messrs. R. McConnel Neil Scriver. Musical reading, "It Looks Like Rain," Wilfred Knight. Recitation, "The Minister's Sermon," Mrs. J. R. Cruikshank. Piano solo, Miss Lillian Greenbanks. Chorus, "Good Night, Ladies."

Again Pontiac Leads in Value

PONTIAC Six introduced a totally new and revolutionary standard of values when the first Pontiac Six was announced a little over a year ago.

Now, Pontiac Six is increasing its lead—sweeping still further in advance of its field. For, in the New and Finer Pontiac Six, General Motors has achieved a combination of fine, six-cylinder performance, strikingly beautiful appearance and low price unequalled in all the automobile world.

Again Pontiac leads in value—and by a wider margin than ever. Small wonder that the records established by Pontiac's first year sales are already being surpassed by the enthusiastic public reception of the New and Finer Pontiac Six.

Come in and see the car, and the reasons for Pontiac leadership become at once apparent.

MANY PRESENT AT PIE SOCIAL

Annual Entertainment of Pontypool L.O.L. is Great Success.

PONTYPOOL NEWS

PONTYPOOL, April 2.—The annual pie social, held under the auspices of L. O. L. 82, was a huge success. The programme consisted of several songs by Mr. Hunter Murchison, character singer from Fenelon Falls; recitations by Miss Eva Chalmers, of Little Britain; solos by Miss Iva Shaw; accordion solo by local orchestra; a one-act play, entitled, "A Trip on a Sight-seeing Car," which was very humorous and was given by several young men, two of whom impersonated women, under the leadership of Mrs. John Fiske; reading, by Miss Marvin. The chairman, Rev. A. J. Terril, gave an interesting talk on "Loyalty"—to home, church, country, and organization.

The pie-eating contest was closely contested, the winner to be the one who could eat a piece of pie and whistle the quickest. Mr. Alex. Walker was the winner of the prize donated by Albert McMahon, general merchant.

Mr. Sheehy, of Lindsay, auctioned off the pies, which averaged about $1.50 each. The prize-winners were Miss Ruth Richardson, Miss Grace McMahon, Mr. John Malley, Mr. John Reynolds and Mrs. P. M. Richardson. The prizes were donated by Richard Staples, W. H. Hooper, W. Rennie, Richardson Bros. (bakers), and Richardson Bros. (garage). The proceeds amounted to over $90. After the concert, the young people danced for a couple of hours.

The Young People's league met on Tuesday evening under the leadership of the social vice-president, Miss Lily Barwell. A good programme was given by the young people, consisting of readings, dialogues, and solos. Several contests were given, including a gum contest, which was won by Miss Iva Shaw and Mr. J. Payne. Another contest was won by Miss Mae Tuck. The next regular meeting will be for the election of officers for the ensuing year.

Mr. Richard Staples is seriously ill. Mr. and Mrs. Fred Staples, Stephensville; Mr. Stanford Staples and Miss Eva Staples, of Toronto, and Mr. Milton Staples, of Orono, were home to see their father over the week-end.

Mr. J. W. Glenny's auction sale drew a large crowd, and brought high prices. His general purpose team was purchased by Mr. J. D. Brown, Orono, and the price realized was $260. Milch cows sold as high as $91, brood sows with litters of nine and seven, respectively brought $65 and $75; good ewes, 27.50 each; hens, $1.35 each, and the remainder of the articles offered also brought good prices. The proceeds of the sale amounted to over $2,700.

Miss Eula Rodgers, of Toronto, and Miss Laurine Rodgers, of Guelph, are spending their vacation with their father, Mr. Lewis Rodgers.

Farewell Party.

On Wednesday evening a large number of the Orangemen and their lady friends gathered in their hall to bid farewell to Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Glenny. The evening was spent in games, contests, etc., under the direction of Mrs. Albert McMahon, Mrs. Ella Shaw and Mrs. H. M. Richardson. The peanut contest was won by Mr. W. Bannon and Miss Mae Trick. Near the latter part of the evening, Mr. and Mrs. Glenny were requested to take seats in the centre of the room and the gathering formed a circle around them. They were presented with a gold watch to Mr. Glenny and a club-bag to his wife. The address was read by Mr. H. M. Richardson, W. M. of L. O. L. 82, and the presentation was made by Mr. Albert McMahon. The address read is as follows:

To our dear brother, J. W. Glenny, and Mrs. Glenny.

Dear Friends: How can we utter in our good-bye greeting words both fitting and felicitous?

You have been so much a part of our village and community life, and for so many years, that this will never be to many of us the same countryside after you have left us.

But especially in L. O. L. 82 have you made a large place for yourselves; you have been ungrudging of time, effort, and gifts.

Offices have been poured upon Mr. Glenny, such as chaplain and two consecutive years in the master's chair. These were not lightly bestowed, but heaped-up honors were repaid with untiring devotion and gratitude. It is required that a man be found faithful, and the springs of your courage, both to plan and to do, were both deep-dug in loyalty. Religion is costly and irreligion is more so. When friendship made loud calls you were ever ready to pay cheerfully its high price. In turn, you found many friends of unwavering loyalty.

Possibly a man's best days are his busiest ones, and you were busy for us. You never wore the name of Orangemen as a mere ornament. Perhaps, in dim distant days, you may sit at the west window of life and look out towards the sunset. But you will also look back towards the sunrise and we are sure that among your tenderest recollection will be those of July 12 and November 5, and many other old and gracious associations with the brethren of L. L. L. 82.

As opportunity offered, Mrs. Glenny always stood beside you in generous and gracious helpfulness. Her memory is precious. As goodwill, so great as ours, must express itself itself in some sign, we would like you to accept from this lodge these parting tokens of our regretful good-bye.

Signed on behalf of L. O. L. 82,
H. M. Richardson, W. M.,
Delbert Bowins, Rec. Secy.

Mr. and Mrs. Glenny both made suitable replies. Mr. Glenny stated that he had lived in this locality forty-five years and it was with much regret that he was leaving. He said that no matter where his home would be he would never sever his connection with L. O. L. 82.

Lunch was then served by the ladies and, with many sad regrets, those present bade farewell to Mr. and Mrs. Glenny, who are taking up their home in Newcastle.

TRUE STORIES about LIFE INSURANCE by a REPRESENTATIVE of the MUTUAL LIFE

His wife was not to know

A WHOLESALE drygoods merchant was anxious to insure his life to protect his wife, but stipulated that she was not to know, because she did not like the idea of entering into a contract by which she would stand to benefit by his death.

"I believe it is my duty to protect her," he said, "whether she agrees or not."

When he died, a few years later, his widow was still ignorant of this Mutual Monthly Income Policy and it was my happy privilege to inform her.

When she found she was to have a monthly income from the Mutual Life of Canada for the rest of her days, she burst into tears of relief.

"I used to think of life insurance as 'blood money'," she said. "But now I see what it will mean to me."

I have found that, while wives may occasionally think as this woman once did, widows never do.

MEMBERS CONDUCT SERVICE AT NORHAM

F. H. Huycke Presides When Pastor is Unable to be Present.

NORHAM, April 2.—On account of the bad roads, the pastor was unable to get around the circuit in time for the night service, which was conducted by a number of the members of the congregation. Fred H. Huycke presided over the meeting. Mrs. Fred Laver and Mrs. David Cryderman offered prayer. Lulu Mitchell gave a paper, entitled, "What it Means to be a Christian." Oscar F. Laver gave one on "Christian Growth," and Laurel Arkils one on "The Church and Church Membership."

replied Hon. W. D. Euler, minister of customs.

Evans, of Rosetown, enquired whether any changes were to be made in the pensions act at the present session in response to the representations of ex-service men.

Hon. Dr. King, minister of soldiers civil re-establishment, replied at some length. He stated that the pensions act had been subjected to amendments during practically every session since it was passed, and that in addition it had been the subject of extensive enquiry by a royal commission. This year a large number of resolutions had been received from ex-service men for further revisions. These were receiving consideration.

May Combine Acts

The minister pointed out that there was a meritorious clause in the act by which the commissioners could use fairly wide discretion. But there must be a thorough canvass of representations before it could be found out how they would effect other cases. It was in the mind of the government to consolidate the pensions act and the various amendments made to it. But many represetnations might be dealt with in an administrative manner instead of by legislation amendments. Relating to procedure were under consideration. It was also contemplated that there be an extension of two years during which application for pensions might be made.

Woodsworth, of South Centre Winnipeg, enquired whether any action would be taken with respect to handicapped men.

The question is always before the board," said the minister.

Second reading was given to a bill to amend an act to provide compensation where employes of His Majesty are killed or suffer injuries while performing tiheir duties.

for success as a good wage for the workers," said the Baker announcement.

The proposed scale, however, was termed "ridiculous" by Thomas Kennedy, international secretary-treasurer of the United Mine Workers.

"The Pittsburgh Terminal Corporation, which made profits under the Jacksonville agreement," Kennedy said, "will not succeed in this attempt to work at reduced wages, because the mine workers will not permit it."

President Lewis, at Taylorville, said operators have refused to come half-way in an effort toward making new wage agreements. The miners, he said, intend to "stand firmly on the policy laid down by the policy committee at Indianapolis," which provided that no new wage agreement be accepted unless it calls for wages at least equal to those under the Jacksonville agreement, which expired at midnight March 31.

"The operators are entitled to a fair profit from their mines" Lewis said, "but the men who work in the mines also deserve a living wage, and they are going to get it."

TEST OF BRIGADE STARTLES OMEMEE

OMEMEE, April 2—Many citizens were almost panic-stricken on Thursday morning when a fire alarm was turned in through the medium of the church bells as is the general custom. The fire engine soon appeared and numerous volunteers as fire-fighters were seen hurrying along in the same direction. Needless to say much relief was felt when it became known that it was an inspector for the Underwriters' Fire Insurance Company who wished to test out the fire protection equipment.

in the barn just as if they were in action on the streets.

"The Gotfredson Corporation is ready, just as soon as the contract is over, to give us service with ten or eleven busses. They have the money and the capacity to give us a decent service, but not until after April 24th. The question is, since we can't give them the exclusive franchise, will they invest $100,000 if they must face the opposition that faces them to-day?"

His Worship criticized Cooney and Jopling for opposing the Hydro bus service, saying that this was the last straw that drove Hydro to take the drastic action. Service cannot be given the city with five second-hand busses, he said, and Cooney and Jopling had been warned that they would lose money on the venture.

"We are too late to get legislation through at this session of the Legislature, enabling us to get control of our streets. If we allow these independent operators to continue, they will say when we are making final arrangements: 'It's only fair that you should buy us out.'

"I say, let the people walk until we can make a sane agreement for transportation, and that can't be until after April 24 at the earliest, unless we succeed in having Hydro release the Gotfredson Corporation from the contract. In ninety days the Hydro loses the franchise."

Alderman Macdonald: "Could they run an occasional car during that time and thus save the franchise?"

The Mayor: "I don't think so — that would be small stuff."

Alderman Greene: "Would there be the possibility of our getting in wrong through endeavoring to open up transportation such as you suggest before the Hydro franchise expires?"

Alderman McIntyre: "Can Hydro transfer the franchise?"

The Mayor: "No. They can only sell it for the balance of the time it has to run, three or four years."

Alderman McIntyre: "Don't you think we should get the rock bottom price before we act?"

The Mayor: "They made us a price and we made them one, both of which, I freely admit, were extreme."

Alderman McIntyre: "I would ask them for their lowest possible price."

Alderman Macdonald: "The citizens won't pay a cent more than we have offered."

Alderman Hancock: "Not until they have walked a week or two."

Loss $50,000 a Year?

The Mayor: "Chairman Magrath told us the deficit was $50,000 last year. Surely it is not the policy of the Peterboro council to lose $50,000 a year on an industry it takes over."

Alderman Macdonald: "Why did they come down here and show us how to run it so as to make it pay? Why didn't they run it themselves to pay first ,and then try to sell it?"

Several Aldermen: "Hear! Hear!"

The Mayor: "Well, we can't get a reasonable company to handle the transportation within three weeks. If we tried to put the street railway in some sort of paying shape it would cost $65,000 or $75,000 for new one-man cars, the overhead would have to be cut down, and then we would be taking a chance."

Alderman Greene: "That wouldn't appear to be practicable, because they haven't done it. Why haven't they been able to make it pay, with these experts they sent to us to tell us how we could make it pay?"

Alderman Hancock: "They haven't the money, they say."

The Mayor: "They spent money on the gas plant, but none on the street railway, which is just an admission that the street railway isn't worth spending money on."

Alderman Greene: "I think we should have the very best legal advice before any resolution is passed asking another company to take over the transportation for us."

The Mayor: "What's wrong with asking the Hydro to release the busses?"

Alderman Greene: "Their franchise hasn't expired. Are we legally right in operating a street car or bus line inside the ninety days before the franchise expires?"

Alderman Stocker: "That's a matter for us to protect ourselves."

Alderman: "They might sell inside thirty days to some other company.

Alderman Denne: "It is unfortunate this has come about. Three weeks ago we asked for a price. They gave us 1924 and 1925 figures when we asked for 1926 figures; then we finally got the 1926 figures. I think they have taken a very arbitrary way. On Wednesday you sent a resolution telling them of this meeting to take place to-night ,and in face of that they went ahead and shut down. My policy is to sit pat. My idea is that the only way is to buy the plant on the capitalization of the gas plant.

"I see that Oshawa and Port Hope and Belleville say it is a good thing to see the Peterborough street railway closed out. For their information they're still going to pay for the street railway even if they throw it on the scrap heap, because it's in the capitalization of the Central Ontario district. And then there's the sale of $14,000 worth of power to the street railway which they will have to make up, and they won't be any ahead through closing down on us. The people of Peterborough are back of us. We've done the best we can, and I'd take no action. I'd sit tight."

Might Reduce Gas Prices.

The Mayor: "The Hydro Electric Power Commission spent $40,000 on the gas plant in recent years. The gas plant is modern. The domestic user is increasing and the commercial user is decreasing. But while we pay $2.15 for our gas, Toronto pays only 70 cents. If we got it down to $1.40 or $1.50 it would be nice for the consumer, and I believe it is possible to make a profit at that rate by increasing the number of consumers.

"It's up to us to solve this problem —not sit back indefinitely. My idea is to release this bus corporation to give a temporary service to the people. That's not hurting them, nor will it hurt our position."

Mr. Wearing (answering a question from the Mayor): "I don't think it would make any difference to the street railway."

Alderman Denne: "I don't think Hydro has any contract with us about busses."

Alderman Greene: "I don't suppose there would be any trouble about the Gotfredson Bus Corporation operating the busses, but if the city tried to operate a system until the expiration of the Hydro franchise there might be legal difficulties."

The Mayor: "The city has no desire to run a service. We only ask the Gotfredson people to give a temporary service."

Alderman Phelan: "It seems to me that Hydro is acting like a dog in the manger, if it keeps these busses in the barn. It's too bad they've seen fit to close down the system, but that is their business. Large cities have gone three and four weeks without organized transportation services, during strikes, and have pulled through, and Peterborough should be able to. I think I'd leave the matter up to Hydro. We've made them an offer.

"Hydro say they want to get out of all these sub-enterprises, but they haven't shut the gas plant, because it is paying. The street railway was paying when they took it over and ran it into the ground. I'd mark time and see what they do."

Alderman Stocker: "Why not organize a small committee to interview Hydro?"

Alderman Denne: "I wouldn't go near them at all."

Alderman Greene: "We made them an offer of $150,000, and then without any proper notice they issued an ultimatum. Any ordinary business man wouldn't do that."

Ask the People

Alderman Fife: "I think we should get the lowest price and submit it to the people. That would relieve the Council.

Alderman Macdonald: "So far as I have been able to learn, the price we offered was too high, and we wouldn't be able to get even that through."

Alderman Hancock: "I don't think the offer we made them is unreasonable. It includes nothing for the street railway."

Alderman Greene: "Why didn't they come back with their proposition?"

The Mayor: "We were ready to recommend to the people paying $150,000. The question is, are we willing to recommend a higher price?"

Alderman McIntyre: "Why not send it to the people and rid the Council of the responsibility. I believe the people should have the say."

Alderman Macdonald: "What is the City Council for?"

Doesn't Think It Fair

The Mayor: "I would like to see this Council decide. It has carried the responsibility until now. When I saw Mr. Magrath he asked me what we figured on paying, and I told him. 'We want you to come across with an offer right away,' he told me, and handed me a letter saying the service would stop on April 1 unless arrangements had been made. A week ago we notified the H.E.P.C. we were going to have this special meeting tonight, and I don't think it was fair to close up the service a day ahead. I think they've admitted the street railway isn't worth anything. They haven't another customer in Canada but us, and now they've slammed the door in our face.

"I still think there isn't anything wrong in asking for temporary assistance in the way of a temporary release of the bus company."

Alderman Stocker moved that the Mayor interview Hydro asking the release of the busses.

The Mayor: "Interview them at a distance."

Alderman McIntyre: "Why not do it yourself without a resolution?

Alderman Fife: "I still believe we should submit a price to the people."

Alderman Macdonald: "We have asked once for the lowest price, and what did we get?"

The Mayor: "The top price."

Alderman Macdonald: "Why didn't we get the lowest price when we asked?"

The Mayor: "Probably because they were kidding us."

Alderman Macdonald: "Then I wouldn't ask them again for anything."

The Mayor: "There are good arguments on both sides, and I want you to consider all angles."

Alderman McIntyre: "The people should have the say."

Alderman Macdonald: "The people had their say when they put you here. What did they put us here for?"

Mayor Holloway: "If you wish I'll correspond with Hydro regarding the contract they have with the Gotfredson people, and ask if they'll release the busses for three weeks. Then the Gotfredson Corporation will run the service."

Alderman Fife: "Not in view of Cooney and Jopling putting on extra busses."

The Mayor: "Have you any suggestion of an increase to offer?"

Alderman Denne: "What are you trying to do; start something?"

Alderman McIntyre: "I would be in favor if you could get it passed by the people. You must remember what the gas plant is worth."

Alderman Denne: "The big gas users are going to be out of it soon; they are putting in electric ovens."

The Mayor: "You can find smaller places that are operating gas plants at a profit. Places of 10,000 people can make it pay. The Peterborough gas plant is fully modern."

Alderman McIntyre: "Why did the railway not pay in 1926?"

The Mayor: "Because no railway can pay in a smaller community. Eleven first class busses can be put on the streets here for $100,000, and you would pay that for just six street cars."

Alderman Fife: "Then let's scrap the street railway and run our own bus service and make money. I'd like to authorize you to offer $100,000 more and go up and try to make the deal."

Alderman Macdonald: "What? $250,000!"

Alderman Fife: "I suppose nothing will pass, but thre's no harm in trying."

The Mayor, answering Alderman McIntyre, said the revenue in 1926 was $80,000 and the expenditures, without overhead, were $114,000.

Alderman Fife: "Well, let's make it $200,000 as an offer and get the very best figure you can and submit it to the people."

Don't Want Either.

Alderman Phelan: "If we get the street railway we'll scrap it and we don't want the gas plant. The council is practically unanimous in saying we'll give them nothing for the street railway. I don't see why we should make them any offer."

A motion to offer $200,000 was withdrawn, and it was decided to ask the Mayor to ascertain the best price at which the two utilities can be obtained. He was authorized to make any specific offer.

Finance Committee.

Routine business was quickly disposed of at a meeting of the Finance committee, which followed the Council meeting.

SAINT and SINNER

By ANNE AUSTIN

District Attorney Tom Banning's opening address to the jury, presenting the case as he expected to prove it by a battalion of witnesses, was a masterpiece of its kind. For the most part he spoke without passion, in a cool, reasonable voice a voice occasionally tinged with a hypocritical sympathy.

He began his dramatic story with the finding of the body of the aged millionaire lawyer, turning aside to pay a tribute to Bob Hathaway, who faced him, pale, stern-faced, tight-lipped, his hand closed hard over Faith's.

"I will not at this time ask you to picture to yourselves, gentlemen of the jury, the consternation, the horror, the grief, with which Mr. Hathaway looked upon the murdered body of his uncle, an old man who had been his best friend. The whole world knows the dilemma in which this sterling young man has since found himself—related by one of the closest of blood ties to the victim of murder, but even more closely related by the bonds of love to the sister of the defendant who sits before you today, charged with the murder of Mr. Hathaway's uncle and her own fiance.

"And when Mr. Hathaway takes the stand for the state, I want all of you to bear in mind that he does so in the interest of justice, while his heart, or at least that part of his heart which is filled with love for his own finacee, Miss Faith Lane, sister of the defendant, would dictate that he do everything in his power to remove the stigma of murder from the family of the girl he intends to marry."

Bob's face flushed a dark, angry red and for a moment Faith was suffocatingly afraid that he would rise to his feet and denounce the motives of the hypocritical district attorney. Her tight clasp on his hand held him down. The bad moment passed, as Banning swept on into a deadly logical, blackly convincing summing up of testimony which he expected to present to the jury.

"You may say, gentlemen of the jury, that all this evidence is purely circumstantial. I say to you that such circumstantial evidence, building as it does, a complete chain without a single weak link, is the strongest of evidence. I will show you how this defendant had one of the oldest motives known to courts of justice—that of greed. By the terms of his will, Ralph Cluny had made this defendant an heiress, whether she married him or not before nine o'clock of Thanksgiving Day. I have also clearly demonstrated and will prove by witnesses and documents that this defendant was actuated by another powerful motive—her love for another man.

"Who would be able to say which motive actually supplied the force behind the terrific blow which crushed the skull of the man who had loved her and honored her above all other women? I have also demonstrated that, so far as my office—disinterestedly working in the cause of justice—can discover, this defendant had what the law aptly terms exclusive opportunity to commit the murder with which she stands charged, and of which I believe her to be guilty. If I did not so believe, I would not prosecute this defendant."

Again Banning threw a would-be sympathetic glance toward Cherry, who stared at him unflinchingly.

"Now, that is the evidence, gentlemen. It will be elaborated upon by these witnesses, and I am sure after you have heard the defense, you will be justified in carrying out what this grand jury saw fit to do to affirm their indictment by pronouncing Cherry Lane Wiley guilty of murder in the first degree."

Tom Banning sat down, mopping his perspiring face with a huge white handkerchief, and Stephen Churchill rose to address the court, in a routine appeal for the dismissal of the indictment.

As Banning smilingly accepted the congratulations of his assistants, Faith knew for the first time in her life the bitterness of a hatred that lusts for the blood of an enemy.

As had been expected, Stephen Churchill's motion for dismissal of the indictment against Cherry had been denied instantly by Judge Grimshaw and, almost before Faith was aware of what was goig on, Bob Hathaway was summoned to the stand, as the first witness for the state.

Banning's voice was bland and courteous as he began his examination of the witness: "Your name?"

"Robert Lee Hathaway." Bob spoke clearly, his brilliant blue eyes fixed in a steady gaze upon the district attorney.

"What was your relationship to the deceased, Ralph Winston Cluny?"

"He was my uncle, my mother's brother."

"What, if any, is your relationship to this defendant?" BaWning's voice was deceptively suave, ingratiating.

"That of a friend," Bob Hathaway answered curtly.

"May I ask, Mr. Hathaway, if you are engaged to be married to Miss Faith Lane?"

"Objection!" Churchill roared, leaping to his feet.

But Bob had answered "Yes," before Churchill's interruption.

"Now, Mr. Hathaway," Banning went on triumphantly, "I will ask you if you were ever engaged to be married to this defendant, Cherry Lane Wiley?"

"I object!" Churchill shouted, "on the grounds that—"

"Your honor," Banning addressed the judge, while Bob sat, white-faced, tense. "My question and the answer are intended to bring certain important facts before this jury, so that they wil realize in the very beginning that the testimony of this witness is biased inevitably in favor of this defendant."

"Objection overruled," Judge Grimshaw said wearily.

"I was, for a very short time," Bob answered clearly, the blood creeping slowly up to his high cheek bones.

Banning, to the surprise of every spectator, switched his questioning abruptly. "Now, Mr. Hathaway, I will ask if you clearly recall the events of Thanksgiving Day, November 25?"

"I do," Bob nodded.

"Now, Mr. Hathaway, will you kindly relate to the jury just what happened on November 25 last, beginning at about eight o'clock in the evening of that day. I refer of course to your discovery of the body of the deceased, Ralph Winston Cluny."

Almost without interruption, Bob was allowed to tell how he went to his uncle's home, arriving there at eight forty-five, his encounter with the maid, Mary Kearney, his discovery of the dead body of his uncle in the latter's bedroom on the second floor of the Cluny mansion.

"My uncle's body was lying sprawled on the floor, the head being about three feet from an open window—"

"Just a minute, Mr. Hathaway, I offer, as the state's exhibit A, a photograph of the bedroom in question."

After some parley between Churchill, the judge and Banning, the photograph of the interior of the bedroom, a view which included the window in question, was admitted into the record, and upon it Bob pointed out the location of the body in reference to the book case beside the window.

"You say that this window was open when you discovered the body?" Banning rapped out. "Are you sure of this?"

"Quite sure."

"Did you walk to the window and look out, or examine the window in any way?"

"No, not at that time," Bob answered quickly. "Later—"

"Answer only the questions that are asked," Banning instructed him sharply.

A GOOD MEDICINE FOR SPRING TIME

Do Not Use Harsh Purgatives —A Tonic is All You Need.

Not sick—but not feeling quite well. That is the way most people feel in the spring. Easily tired, appetite fickle, sometimes headaches and a feeling of depression. Pimples or eruptions may appear on the skin, or there may be twinges of rheumatism or neuralgia. Any of these indicate that the blood is out of order—that the indoor life of winter has left its mark upon you and may easily develop into more serious trouble.

Do not dose yourself with purgatives, as many people do, in the hope that you can put your blood right. Purgatives gallop through the system and weaken instead of giving strength. Any doctor will tell you this is true. What you need in the spring is a tonic that will enrich and build up the nerves. Dr. Williams' Pink Pills do this speedily and surely. Every dose of this medicine helps to enrich the blood which clears the skin, strengthens the appetite and makes tired, depressed men, women and children active and strong. Mr. James Dickson, Westneath, Ont., says:—"I was quite badly run down, easily tired, and appetite poor. My blood seemed thin and watery. I decided to try Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, and after taking a few boxes I felt myself thoroughly built up and as strong as ever. I can recommend the pills to run-down people."

You can get these pills through any medicine dealer or by mail at 50 cents a box from The Dr. Williams Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

DRESS

By MARY MARSHALL

Quite as effective as a real dog but less troublesome is this dog purse that is carried under the arm and has an opening in the back with patent fastener.

The present era may be looked back upon some day as an age of shams so far as dress is concerned. We don't even trouble to speak of "imitation" pearls any more, so manifest is the fact that the long strings and thick ropes of pearls we wear about our necks never came from the shell of an oyster.

We laugh at the old idea that no well-bred woman should wear brilliants that are not diamonds or rubies that are glass or emerals that are but green crystals. Our gilt jewelry doesn't even have to be gold provided it has the warm luster of the precious metal and does not leave disfiguring black marks on the skin. And—shame of shame from our grandmothers' point of view—we even carry handkerchiefs that are not pure linen.

Even the fuzzy little poodle that snuggles under the arm of the smart young woman walking down the avenue may not be a dog at all. It looks doglike enough and it is held in the conventional position under the arm, but if you follow the young woman into a shop you may see that she slips the creature from under her arm, all limp and lifeless, and with a deft pull at the patent fastener down the furry back, opens—not a dog or even a dogskin, but a well-fitted purse made from the sort of fuzzy fabric from which children's stuffed animals are devised.

The things that saves all this long list of shams from covering us with ignominy is that in our simulations we never wish to deceive. From its proper place within her dog purse you may see the young woman take a lipstick and while she waits for her change she peers in her tiny mirror and renews the slender cupid's bow on her lips. She has no more idea of trying to make you believe that her cherry lips are real than that her absurd little bow-wow is a real dog. She is perfectly outspoken and candid in her shams and so no doubt are you.

HOROSCOPE

The Stars Incline, but do not Compel.

(Copyright, 1927, by the McClure Newspaper Syndicate.)

Sinister influences are rather strong to-day, according to astrology, which reads in the stars certain ill omens.

News that is disturbing is indicated from foreign lands and there may be much unrest and anxiety among Americans who foresee world events.

War is to be easily precipitated.

Under this sway of the stars women may be exacting and men may be difficult to please. The rule is threatening to domestic happiness.

The clergy are well directed at this time when there is to be a revival of interest in life after death.

Under this rule the mind is likely to be open to good suggestions of every sort and preachers should benefit.

Many denominational conflicts may be expected and much prejudice may be manifested among supporters of the churches.

This is a day in which to take account of one's personal assets in the way of mind and morals; for the coming years are to test human character, the seers warn.

The Sun rising in square to Uranus and Jupiter is read as presaging for New York and the whole country great increase in trade.

It is again prophesied that President Coolidge will show daring and initiative in a stand regarding an important governmental policy.

The West is to attract increase of population and to focus national interest. Chicago and Milwaukee as well as San Francisco and Los Angeles are to be centers of tremendous interest.

The seers warn that after September the United States is to face a serious crisis in which Mexico or another neighbor may be concerned.

Persons whose birthdate it is have the augury of many pleasant experiences in the coming year, which is auspicious for courtship.

Children born on this day probably will have artistic talent. Singers are born under this sign.

MISSION MEETING HELD WARKWORTH

Several Interesting Papers Read By Members of St. Andrew's Y.P.A.

WARKWORTH, April 2.—St. Andrew's Y.P.A. held a very interesting missionary meeting on Monday evening in the basement of the Presbyterian church. Miss Allie Mowat had charge of the meeting. Mrs. Carmen Carlaw gave a very interesting talk on the life and work of a great missionary, John Moffatt, while several members gave short papers on missionary work in general. Miss Beatrice Merrills gave the following paper, "What Moslems Believe and Practice."

The Moslem religion falls into two distinct parts—creed, being their articles of faith and belief and deed, being the outward practice of their religion. All believers in this religion must have a firm faith in the following six articles: God, His Angels, His Books, His Prophets, The Day of Judgment and Predestination of God and Evil.

Moslems believe in God and His mercy, but they do not see God's relation to man. They teach God above us while Christ teaches God above, with, and in us.

Moslems believe in four Archangels, two recording angels who write down men's good and evil doings and two black angels who visit men after burial and mete out blows to those who are not Moslems.

It is also believed that only four of God's books remain, the law which was sent to Moses, the Psalms which were sent to David; the Gospel which was sent to Christ, and the Koran or Moslem book of faith which is eternal. In this we find no doctrine of the sacrifice of sin.

To Moslem there is no distinction between the six prophets but they love and reverance them all.

The Day of Judgment takes no small part in their creed, their Heaven is a beautiful garden of delight, and their hell is a very hot place where men are used as fuel.

Moslems believe that God's will is inevitable before any event transpires but to us God's will is secret until He reveals it.

During the year the Moslem has one lunar month of fasting which we believe was copied from our Lent. Their fasting lasts from sunrise to sunset, and at night they feast.

If we were to go to Arabia we would find no hotels but hospitality is a religious practice in every home.

Mohammedanism is the shortest and most oft repeated creed in the world. Their prayer, "There is no God but God; Mohammed is the Apostle", is repeated five times daily. To us their prayer seems but vain repetition and wrong positions render their prayer valueless.

The Koran and other books show us that Mohammed had a correct idea of some of the attributes to God but very false conceptions of many others. Missionary work seems to be our only way of correcting these false conceptions.

Mr. Maycock sang the solo, "Gentle Shepherd" which was enjoyed by all.

Several hymns were sung and the meeting closed by repeating the Mizpah Benediction.

PREPARING FOR RELAYS

PUBLICITY USED TO MAKE CANADA KNOWN ABROAD

Only in Recent Year's Have Outsiders Known About Dominion.

SETTLERS SOUGHT

Propaganda Most Used Where Suitable Immigrants Can Be Secured.

(This is the fourth of a series of articles contributed by the Federal Department of Immigration and Colonization).

It is a matter of history that, at the signing of the Treaty of Versailles, in 1763, the British Government would have preferred the Island of Gaudeloupe to Canada. Guadeloupe produced sugar—Canada produced only furs!

This failure to appreciate the resources and possibilties of Canada has persisted, to an astonishing degree, even to the present day. It is only in recent years that the Canadian heritage has begun to be properly understood outside of the Dominion and, one might add, even within the boundaries of Canada itself. That a change is coming about is due, at least in part to the publicity activities of the Department of Immigration and Colonization.

The purpose of the advertising and other publicity activities of the Department is to make known in other lands the opportunities which Canada affords to new settlers, and to make available to the better classes of prospective immigrants reliable information about the Dominion. Although the publicity of the Department is directed mainly to those likely to become settlers on the farm lands of Canada, or to engage in farm or house hold labour, it of necessity embraces wider fields than these. Everything which brings Canada into favorable notice has a relation to the success of immigration activitiees.

The Department of Immigration and Colonization carries on publicity in those countries from which may be secured settlers of the type likely to succeed in Canada, and where such activities are regarded without disfavour by the national government. These conditions limit the field mainly to the British Isles and the United States of America. In some of the countries of North-western Europe a more favorable attitude toward Canadian publicity has recently been observed, but, generally speaking, these countries do not regard with favour any pronounced emigration activities by other lands.

The publicity work of the Department is carried on through a Publicity Branch at Ottawa; through the general organization of the Department in the British Isles and the United States, and to a lesser degree, through its organization in Europe.

The attitude of the Department with regard to its publicity is, that while Canada's attractions shall be vigorously presented, they must not be exagerated, and the statements in every instance must be such as can be supported by actual facts. The charges sometimes heard that Canadian publicity is too optimistic when run to their source invariably disclose that the publicity complained of was not issued by the Department of Immigratiton and Colonization.

The more important avenues of publicity utilized by the Department are: newspaper and farm journal advertising; the preparation and distribution of news and feature articles; the preparation and distribution of booklets and other literature; illustrated lectures; the placing of exhibits of Canadian products at agricultural fairs; the maintenance of attractive show windows at strategic points, and special visits to Canada of editorial parties.

Adevrtising is carried in periodicals circulating in farm communities in the British Isles and the United States. It is confined mainly to the late autumn and winter months, this being the season in which farmers are most receptive to this kind of appeal. Its object is to give information about and create an interest in Canada as a field of opportunity for the classes to which the appeal is directed. The advertising invites enquiries for more detailed information and these enquiries, when received by the Department either at headquarters or at any of its agencies, are answered by letters covering the subject in some detail and accompanied by appropriate literature. In the course of an ordinary year the Department distributes between a million and a half and two million copies of its publicatitons.

Other means of supplying information and creating interest are also employed. A news service to papers both in Great Britain and the United States results in the publication of a great amount of information about Canada, sometimes of a general nature, but usually bearing some relationship to the agricultural development of the country. Lectures, usually illustrated by stereopticon slides or motion pictures, are a direct and effective means of publicity. A plan which is somewhat extensively followed, and which brings very fruitful results, is the invitation of editors and journalists of recognized position to see Canada for themselves and publish their own impressions. It is a fact that the impressions published as a result of visits of these trained observers are usually much more optimistic concerning the opportunites to be found in Canada than anything contained in the Department's literature.

Exhibits depicting the growth, progress, and resources of Canada, with special emphasis upon the country's agricultural possibilitties, are an important feature of the work of making Canada known to other countries. These exhibits may vary in magnitude from splendid presentation of Canada at the Wembley Exhibition to a portable stand at some agricultural fair in the British Isles or the United States. They are also a means of bringing the public of other countries and, in the case of agricultural fairs, particularly the farming classes, into direct contact with representatives of the Department.

That, after all, is the objective of the Department's publicity—to excite an intelligent interest in Canada and to bring interested persons into direct contact with a representative of the Department. Whether that contact be established as the result of advertising or of news matter distributed through the Press, or of lectures or exhibitions or any other of the many forms of publicity, the first objective has been accomplished when the enquirer is placed in contact with the department al representative.

He then becomes the subject of personal attention and, if he proves to be of the type likely to become a successful settler every co-operation is extended in supplying him with detailed information and in facilitating the migration of himself, his family and his effects to the Dominion.

BOYD BECOMES CHIEF AT GALT

Former Member of Peterborough Police Force Obtains Position.

EXPERIENCED MAN.

Daniel T. Boyd, sergeant of the Belleville police force since the 3rd of January, 1921, and formerly of the Peterborough police force, has been appointed Chief Constable of the city of Galt, the appointment to take effect the first of May. To-day the genial sergeant is receiving the congratulations of his many friends on his advancement.

He was notified of his appointment by letter to-day by the secretary of the police commission of Galt. The board met on the 23rd of March, the sergeant appearing on that date before them to present his qualifications. The board then adjourned until yesterday when the appointment was finally decided. There were forty applications for the position sent into the Galt Police Commission and Sergt. Boyd's record stood out in so favorable a light that he was the unanimous choice.

Sergt. Boyd was born in Brantford in 1889, and lived in that section for some years. On March 14th ,1910, he was appointed to the Hamilton police force and in May of the next year was married to Miss Edna Pollock of Milton. Incidentally the union has been blessed with three happy children, two girls and one boy Jean is attending High School in this city and Dorothy and William are bright students of the public school.

Record of Police Work.

In June, of 1911, Sergt. Boyd accepted a position on the Regina, Sask., force and continued there for four years. The last year was spent in the detective department of the force and he was mentioned prominently at the time of lawlessness of the Bullard gang of safe blowers and yeggmen. He was instrumental in running this gang to earth but only after a pitched gun fight in which a number of police were wounded.

Retiring from the force for three years Sergt. Boyd then accepted a call to Peterborough in June, 1918. In the Lift Lock City he made many friends and was well liked by the members of the force and the citizens. Some very fine criminal work was done by this constable in Peterborough and his worth was mentioned on several occasions by the chief constable.

When Chief Kidd was appointed as Chief Constable of this city he was a member of the Peterborough force also, and soon afterwards Sergt. Boyd was added to this force as a sergeant.

His worth on this force has been recognized. Always likeable and with a kindly smile for all he has made many friends and his loss will be keenly felt here. Sergt. Boyd and his wife, while residents of this city have been socially prominent and fraternally the officer was well known.

The Galt force is composed of one sergeant and five constables and the position was made vacant by the death of James Gorman, who was chief there for many years.—Belleville Ontario.

THINK DRIVER KILLED BY TRAIN

Owners of Wrecked Speeder Sure Body Was Swept Away By River.

SAULT STE. MARIE, Ont., April 1. — Some employees of the Algoma Central Railway are confident that the Forestry branch speeder which was hurled from the Montreal River bridge, 235 feet into the cataract below by an A.C.R. train a few days ago, was occupied, and the driver's body was carried away in the swift current. They claim that one of the sectionmen at Mekatina, has not been seen since the accident. The speeder was left at Mekatina in charge of one of the A.C.R. employes when the patrols were called in last fall. The man was told that he could use it but had never exercised that privilege.

The speeder was struck by an A. C.R. freight train on the Montreal River bridge at 2 o'clock in the morning and was completely demolished portions of it falling into the gorge below and other parts of it into the cataract itself, then in spring flood.

THE DOUGLAS FIR.

The Douglas fir (Pseudotsuga taxifolia) of British Columbia and the Pacific Coast, often erroneously called "Oregon pine," is the only representative of its genus in Canada. It probably yields more lumber annually than any other single species in America. The tree in Canada is not found east of the Rocky Mountains, the greater part of the lumber being produced in the coast region of British Columbia. This is Canada's largest tree, and from it larger structural timbers can be produced than from any other tree in America. It is used chiefly for structural purposes, but on account of its attractive appearance it is also used for interior finish. The wood is also important in Canada as a material for railway ties and mining timbers. It is noted chiefly for its strength and durability, and the large dimensions in which it can be obtained.

CONTRACT BRIDGE

By ROBERT F. FOSTER.

Contract is a game for four persons, two being partners against the two others. Two packs of 52 cards each, with distinctive backs are considered necessary, the still pack being used to mark the position of the next deal. The cards rank from the A K Q down to the 3 and 2 for all purposes. The suits rank in the order of spades, hearts, diamonds and clubs, spades being the highest. No-trumps outranks all suits.

If there is a trump suit, the five highest cards in that suit are called "honors" and there is a bonus for holding four or more in one hand. In no-trumpers, the four aces are the only honors.

If more than four candidates offer for play, those who shall have the preference are decided by drawing from a full pack of 52 cards, spread face down. A player exposing more than one card must draw again. A table is considered complete with six players.

The two who draw the highest cards are partners, and the higher of the two has the choice of seats and cards, his partner sitting opposite him. The next highest has the choice of the remaining seats. These four play a rubber, at the end of which if there are more than four players belonging to the table, those who have just played draw cards to decide the outgoers, the lowest cards drawn retiring in favor of those waiting to play.

There can be no ties in drawing cards, because if the denomination is the same, the rank of the suits decides it.

The player who wins the deal takes a thoroughly shuffled pack and presents it to the player on his right to be cut. At least four cards must be left in each packet, and the dealer must complete the cut. He then distributes the cards face down, one at a time, beginning on his left, until each player has thirteen. No trump is turned.

While one partner is dealing, the other is shuffling the still pack ready for the next deal. This he places at his right. The next dealer then passes it over to be cut, without any further shuffling.

A misdeal does not lose the deal. If a player deals with the wrong pack, or out of turn, he must be stopped before the last card is dealt or the deal stands good, and the packs, if changed, must so remain. The deal passes to the left, either at the end of the play, or when all four pass without a bid.

The object of the game is to get the privilege of playing the hand with a certain suit for the trump, or at no-trump, which carries with it the right to play with the exposed dummy as the partner. This privilege is bid for, the dealer always having the first say. He can bid any number of tricks from one to seven in any suit, or at no-trump, or he may pass without a bid. The next player in turn to the left then has the opportunity to bid higher, if a bid has been made, or to pass, or double.

In order to overcall a previous bid a player must name an equal number of tricks in a higher ranking suit, or a greater number in a lower ranking suit. For example: If the dealer bids a club the next player in turn to the left may bid one in anything except clubs, or he may say two clubs. But if the dealer starts with one spade, the next player will have to bid one no-trump, or two in some suit.

There is no limit to the number of times a player may overcall a previous bid, up to seven tricks, even if made by his own partner, but no player can increase or change his own bid until it is overcalled, or doubled, by some other player. No player can double his partner, but he may redouble an adversary. Players frequently deliberately overbid their hands to prevent the other side from going game, as no one can score toward game but the highest bidders.

If a player's bid is not enough to overcall the previous bid he may correct himself without penalty by making the number of tricks sufficient in that suit, provided he does so before attention is called to the error. The suit can not be changed, and a pass or double can not be changed.

If the player on the left of the insufficient bid passes, doubles, or makes a bid, before correcting the error, that accepts the insufficient bid as regular. But if attention is called to it before it is corrected, the player may then correct it in any way he pleases; by more tricks, or by changing the suit, or both; but his partner is barred from any further bidding during that deal.

There are thirteen tricks to be played for in every hand, and the seventh won by bidder's side is known as the "odd" trick, the first six won by that side having no scoring value, and being known as the "book." A bid of one means to win seven tricks. A bid of two to win eight tricks, or two over the book, and so on.

When three players in turn pass the last bid or double, that ends it, and the player who first named the suit, or no-trump, becomes the "declarer" and his partner the "dummy." Suppose A-B play against Y-Z, and that Z deals and bids a heart, A a spade, Y and B passing. Z now bids two clubs, A passes and Y bids two hearts, which holds. Although Z shifted from the hearts, he is the player who first named that suit and therefore becomes the declarer. Again, suppose Z bids a heart, A passes and Y shifts to spades. B and Z pass. A actually had a better heart hand than his adversary, Z, and now bids two hearts. If this holds, A is the declarer, in spite of the fact that his adversary first bid that suit.

If the declarer, with dummy as his partner, can make good his bid, which is called the "contract," by winning as many tricks as he bid, or more, he scores their full value "below the line" on the score-pad, where the points count toward game. Any tricks over his contract that he wins are scored "above the line" in the honor column, where nothing counts toward winning games, although those points all help to increase the ultimate value of the rubber. These over-tricks are scored at various values according to their number, as will be explained later.

As soon as either side reaches 30 points or more below the line, whether they make it all in one hand or in two or three, a line is drawn under it to show a game won, and both sides start the next game from zero, as no score can be carried over from one game to the next. The side that first wins two games wins the rubber.

Doubling does not affect the value of the tricks in bidding, and two spades will still overcall two hearts, doubled or redoubled; but the values are increased in the scoring. If a player in his proper turn doubles the last bid made by an adversary, that means the tricks shall have double value if the contract is fulfilled, or the penalties be doubled if it fails. Either the declarer or his partner in their proper turn may redouble if they wish to, which makes the tricks four times their normal value, but there the doubling ends. Doubling is the same as any other declaration, and reopens the bidding for following players. Doubling does not affect the scores for honors held.

The partners who make the winning bid are known as declarer and dummy. The player to the left of the declarer leads any card he pleases for the first trick, and dummy at once lays down his thirteen cards, face up and sorted into suits, the trumps, if any, on his right. Dummy takes no part whatever in the play, except to ask a player who renounces to a suit if he has none of it. The declarer plays the dummy's cards to suit himself.

Each player in turn to the left must follow suit if able to do so; if not, he may trump or discard at pleasure. The highest card played, if of the suit led, wins the trick, but trumps win all other suits. The four cards played constitute a trick, and the winner of each trick leads for the next, any card he pleases.

The declarer gathers all the tricks won by his side and keeps them separate, so that they may be easily counted. Either adversary may gather the tricks for that side. As soon as the declarer has won six tricks, which constitute his "book," it is usual to push them together, as all tricks over that count toward fulfilling his contract.

Should any player renounce to a lead when able to follow suit, he may correct the error if he does so before either he or his partner has led or played to the next trick, not otherwise. If the player in error is an adversary of the declarer, he may be called upon to correct the error by playing his highest or his lowest of the suit, or to leave the card played in error on the table face up, as liable to be "called." That is, the declarer may demand that it be played to any future trick in which it does not constitute a revoke.

The partner of a player who renounces should never fail to ask him if he has none of that suit, because if the renounce is not corrected in time it becomes a revoke. The penalty for a first revoke is two tricks, for any further revokes by the same side, one trick each. These tricks are taken from the side in error at the end of the hand and given to their opponents. The tricks are then counted and scored by either side exactly as if no revoke had occurred. If the side in error has not tricks enough to pay, the other side scores a grand slam. Dummy can not be penalized for revokes under any circumstances, his hand being exposed.

DOCTORS ADVICE TO THE SICK

Wash Away All Poisons in Stomach, Liver, Kidney and Bowels Before Breakfast

To feel your best day in and day out, no more headaches, indigestion, gas on stomach, bilious attacks, rheumatism, kidney pains, bad breath, you must bathe your self inside. Start today by taking one Tanol Calomel tablet before meals or two at bedtime, then next morning drink a glass or two of hot water to wash from the stomach, liver, kidney and bowels all the previous day's waste, poison and toxins before more food is taken in. Get a few Tanol tablets from F. C. Weber, Charlotte street, Peterborough. They are harmless to take, do not nauseate, no bad after effects, no salts or seidlitz next morning, like ordinary calomel. Then you can eat better, sleep better, work better, think better and look better.

Queen Marie of Jugo Slavia, his favorite daughter, arrived just before midnight. She was met by her mother, Queen Marie, and taken to her father's bedside. King Alexander of Jugo Slavia has also come to King Ferdinand's side. At Belgrade reports were that King Ferdinand's condition was worse, bronchial pneumonia having set in after an attack of influenza, according to reports there.

Y.M.C.A. PLAYS IMPORTANT PART IN LIVES OF BOYS AND YOUNG MEN

Has Progressed From Small Beginnings To Present Splendid Status.

DOES GOOD WORK.

Fine Staff Has Good Equipment To Carry Out Many Activities.

Growing more vigorous with age the Peterborough Young Men's Christian Association has now reached the stage where it is part and parcel of the life of the average man and boy in this city.

Peterborough, in the first place was exceptionally fortunate, in that when other cities with buildings anywhere as good as the structure occupied by the local "Y" have been forced to pay an amount between $150,000 and $200,000, though the generosity of Mrs. Charlotte Nicholls and others who left legacies the present building was erected in 1896. Prior to this date, the "Y" had been functioning in rooms over stores, and was a very miniature organization indeed. Progress has been the watchword since and it is the proud boast of the local branch that in the matter of programmes and policies they are second to none in the country. Another feature is the remarkably low overhead with which it is operated, it ranking among the foremost when compared with other buildings of equal size. Over 70 per cent of the expense entailed is met from revenue derived from membership fees, dormitories, physical and other departments.

The membership is divided into a number of different grades, namely, sustaining, business men, seniors, young men from 17-20, social, rural, intermediates from 15-17, juniors, 12-15, beginners from 10-12.

The estimated cost of membership for every member figures out at $15 a year. The difference between this amount and the actual fee charged is met from revenue derived on dormitories and from funds raised in the annual campaign.

The usual age for beginners is 10 years and a boy entering then is placed in a weekly gymnasium class and swimming period. He is taught marching, proper posture, team play by means of group games, every activity being suitable for boys of that age. He passes from the beginners' to the junior class, and is introduced to the apparatus for the first time. As he passes through the different grades his work gradually becomes more advanced until he is finally an expert gymnast.

The business men's class is designed for those men who need a certain amount of recreation in order that they may recuperate spent energy. In this class the work is really play as the apparatus is not used, the whole idea being to obtain helpful and pleasant exercise.

Social Memberships.

The social membership includes reading-room privileges, a supply of the latest high-class periodicals always being at hand, games of various kinds, billiards and bowling. Here, billiards can be played under good wholesome surroundings not usually associated with the game. The bowling alleys prove a most popular feature during the winter, being crowded every night, and from the outlook it is estimated that their popularity will, if anything, become still greater.

The swimming tank, despite the fact that it lacks a filter and is equipped with an antiquated heating system, is another popular spot. It is expected that swimming classes will be inaugurated during the spring.

Among other activities is a Friday night supper club, providing social entertainment in addition to enabling topics of an inspirational nature to be discussed at its sessions.

Another club introduced last year was the Y's men's club, a branch of the international organization of that name. It functions somewhat after the manner of the service club and has already proved an asset to the local branch, its activities resulting in an increased membership.

Religious Training.

True to the name of the organization religious teaching is a feature, being given to the boys from the time of entering in such a way that it becomes as natural as entering a gym class. Older boys have discussion groups under competent teachers and a special series of talks for young men is conducted during the winter months in what is known as the Sunday evening supper hour. Joseph Wearing, city solicitor, was responsible for this section.

Moving pictures are shown to the boys every other week and mainly educational in nature, being supplied by the Ontario Government. Thus does the boy become acquainted with his own province and finds himself with a knowledge above the ordinary of its activities and resources.

First-aid classes are also conducted by Dr. H. M. Yelland and F. G. McNeely.

The Building Itself.

Upon entering the building, the visitor finds himself in a large room which is well supplied with comfortable lounges, a ping-pong table, and a piano. On one side is the reading-room where peace and quietness reigns, it being closed off from the main room by means of doors. A particularly attractive fireplace greets the eye, and one can well imagine the yarns that have been spun in front of its cheerful glow during the long winter months. Placed directly over the mantle is a bronze tablet, erected to the memory of Mrs. Charlotte Nicholls, through whose generosity the building was made possible. Another large bronze tablet adorns the wall, a mute but dignified testimony to the gallantry of fifty-five men who were active members at the time of enlistment, who laid down their lives for Canada during the Great War. On the same floor, situated at the rear of the building, is the gymnasium, fitted with all kinds of apparatus and of ample space for the numerous indoor games that are on the curriculum. Downstairs you find two regulation bowling alleys, billiard tables, the swimming pool and the locker rooms. On the upper floors are twenty-five dormitories and a dining-room. On the top floor of all is a hand-ball court in first-class shape which is in constant use by devotees of that game.

Tennis enthusiasts can also make use of the courts which are situated on the lot adjoining the building.

The Staff.

The staff of the association is composed entirely of men who gained their first experience in this city, although some of them have held positions in other Y's, they have come back to their old love.

G. H. Roper, general secretary, started to work in the Peterborough "Y" in 1905, acting as boys' physical director for one year. He left for Toronto where he spent three years as director of the All Saints boys' club. From there he went to Brantford where he spent six years, and he is now concluding his twelfth year in this city. He received his training at the West End "Y," Toronto, and at the "Y" training school at Couchiching.

Douglas A. Loomis, physical director, received his training at the local "Y." He left for St. Catharines, where he remained until he joined the Canadian Expeditionary Force. He returned to Peterborough and enlisted with the 93rd Battalion, later serving in France with the 4th Battalion. On his return from overseas, he was appointed physical director here.

F. G. McNeely, boys' secretary, received his early training here. Upon his return from overseas, he was appointed boys' secretary.

The Summer Camp.

Perhaps the greatest feature of the Y's summer work is the annual camp which has taken place annually for the past twenty-five years. In former years it usually lasted two weeks, but last year, through the co-operation of the Rotary club, the camp was kept open all summer with gratifying results.

The executive is composed of the following gentlemen, who are all leading executives and professional men in the city: President, G. A. Gillespie; T. Barrie; 1st vice-president, G. A. Macdonald; treasurer, J. J. Turner; recording secretary, R. L. Dobbin; W. R. Breyfogle, E. B. Fowler, J. Hamilton, B. D. Hall, V. Eastwood, J. E. Smith, J. Wearing; 2nd vice-president, W. A. Richardson; J. F. H. Wallace, P. P. Westbye, J. R. Marshall, Dr. J. J. Craig, J. H. Vernor.

WEDDING BELLS.

BALL—LARMER.

MILLBROOK, April 2.—A quiet but very pretty wedding took place at high noon in Grace Presbyterian Church on Thursday, March 31, when Florence Effeline, eldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. I. W. Larmer, "Shady Nook Farm," Seventh Line, Cavan, became the bride of Melville Whitfield Ball, eldest son of Mrs. Herbert Ball, Fallis Line, the Rev. John Riddle performing the ceremony.

The bride, who was given away by her father, entered the church to the strains of Mendelssohn's wedding march, played by Miss Myrtle Russell, organist of the church. She wore a becoming French dress of powder blue georgette crepe, daintily trimmed with insets of fine lace medallions, and silk embroidery in floral design; her coat was of navy blue poiret twill, with squirrel collar, and her black picture hat had tiny silk flowers in shades of sand, stockings and gloves of a matching shade, with black patent leather shoes completing the costume. An arm bouquet of Ophelia roses was carried, and the groom's gift, a white gold wrist watch, was also worn.

The young couple were unattended, Miss Thelma Ball and Mr. R. L. Fallis witnessing the signing of the register. The altar of the church was banked with flowers for the ceremony.

Mr. and Mrs. Ball left immediately by motor for Port Hope, the wedding breakfast being at the Queen's Hotel, and later in the afternoon went on to Toronto and points west.

Upon their return they will reside on the Hugh Kennedy homestead south of the village.

A large number of beautiful wedding gifts attested the high esteem in which the bride and groom are held by a wide circle of relatives and friends.

In Jasper National Park, Alberta, there are about 640 miles of standard trails by which tourists may visit the outlying scenic attractions.

EPIDEMIC NOW UNDER CONTROL

Latest Reports Indicate That Peak Has Been Reached.

TRACE SOURCE.

MONTREAL, April 2. Canadian Press.—Confidence that the typhoid fever epidemic, which has raged in Montreal for nearly a month, has been definitely controlled, was expressed last evening when the figures showing the total number of victims seized since March 4 were announced. These stood last evening at 1770.

The diminution in admissions to hospitals indicate that the peak of the epidemic has now been passed, and that the ravages of the malady are being restricted.

The authorities at the city hall declared yesterday that they had definitely traced the source of the epidemic and that it had its origin in infected milk. Steps have been taken to eradicate the disease at this source.

Medical men are still advising inoculations and thousands of citizens continue to take advantage of the free clinics that have been opened by various institutions.

Word "Boche" Forbidden In Cinemas In France

PARIS, April 2. United Press. —The Paris police have advised the motion picture house owners that the word "Boche" or "Square Head," no longer can be used to describe German characters in the films.

The regulation is aimed principally at the American films "Mare Nostrum" and "The Big Parade," in both of which the words occur. Theatre managers have been advised that their houses must close unless the objectionable word is eliminated from the films they are showing.

The word "Boche" came into general use after the war, and even was fond in some post-war dictionaries. It is an abbreviation for the German word "Alboche," meaning "Square Head."

WELLAND CANAL OPENING HELD UP

Two Temporary Bridges Have To Be Built Across Channels

NAVIGATION STARTS.

PORT COLBORNE, Ont., April 2. —Navigation on Welland Canal may not open until April 20, steamship officials fear. Construction operations have necessitated two temporary bridges over the canal at Port Colborne and Welland, and these will hold up the opening.

There is no ice to interfere with lake navigation and elevators expect the first steamers to arrive with American grain next winter. Vessels here expect to get away the fifteenth.

LOBLAW STORE OPENS SHORTLY

New Groceteria To Be Laid Out Like Other Stores.

SELF SERVICE.

The Loblaw Groceteria opens on Thursday afternoon, April 14, in their newly built and equipped store on Charlotte street. "Groceteria" is the principal of self-serve aplied to a grocery, just as "Cafeteria" is the principal of self-serve applied to a cafe.

Most people are familiar with the spick and span Loblaw stores in Toronto; the Peterborough store is exactly the same as those in Toronto and every store is standardized as to construction and interior arrangements, from the front door to the back. A customer coming from another city to Peterborough would go to precisely the same shelf for her wants. Each series of shelves are surmounted by a neat board upon which appears a list of goods in the shelves below.

There are many very striking features about the equipment; one of these is the refrigerating system in the basement. This is constructed by the Loblaw mechanics and carpenters under a Loblaw patent. It cools the adjacent store chamber for butter, cheese, bacon, lard and other provisions, and extends its sphere to the ingenious refrigerated counter upstairs in the store. This is a glass counter, open at the top, which has all the advantages of a shut-in refrigerator with the convenience of an open glass case. An attractive way of selling bacon is in vogue, the bacon being stacked in half pound and one pound quantities, each wrapped in a transparent wrapper.

The cake in the cake section is supplied by the Loblaw Bakery in Toronto, butter and cheese come from creameries directly under Loblaw supervision. Sugar and cereals are emptied into massive bins on the floor above the main store and run through a chute to a weighing department below.

The store is spotlessly white and equipped with the new electric lighting system called "Holophane," which is considered the most brilliant in Canada to-day.

With the exception of tone or two who are thoroughly acquainted with the Loblaw system, all local help will be employed.

The Loblaw system makes shopping easy without forgetting, and the Peterborough store is staking its reputation on every article accepted to sell. It is the purpose of the Loblaw store to prove worthy of every confidence.

UNION MINERS POST PICKETS

Guard All Non-Union Pits at Pittsburgh in Spite of Rain.

40,000 MEN IDLE.

PITTSBURGH, April 2 (Canadian Press).—The second day of the suspension of mining in the Pittsburgh region to-day found some 40,000 union miners idle in lack of a wage agreement with the operators. Union pickets were on duty at all the Pittsburgh Coal Company non-union mines this morning, despite the heavy rainfall. The Pittsburgh Terminal Coal Corporation, considered a union stronghold until yesterday, when it announced the decision to operate non-union, reported this morning that many of its 3,100 men visited the different mines last night and to-day, read the new wage scale offered by the company, and then departed.
